With the purpose of affording lucrative employment to political supporters this administration has caused an increase in the number of examiners of public accounts, so as to create the impression that a "business administration" was very zealous of the interests of the people, while the result shows the aggregate collections are very little in excess of the aggregate expenses, yet every official has been subjected to the suspicion of dishonesty, and, in every instance possible, has been grossly insulted without just cause.

MR STABLER SAYS

Local Treatment for Catarrh Does No Good

Mr. E. M. Stabler, Payne, Ohio, writes: "I had catarrh of the head, I tried a local catarrh remedy and it did me no good; I tried two different catarrh snuffs and they did me no good; I tried a catarrh balm and it did me no good; our home doctor and his medicine did me no good; I tried a Fort Wayne doctor and he did me no good. I gave them all up, for they were doing me no good. All they were after was my money, and they got it, and that was all they wanted. Then I got a Pe-ru-na Almanac. I read it all through and saw that Pe-ru-na was highly recommended for catarrh. I took eight bottles and they cured me sound and well. I am 59 years old and can I do a good day's work right along. I think Pe-ru-na is the best medicine that was ever got up for catarrh. I think every one that has catarrh should use it, as I believe it will do the same for others as it has done for me."

Send to The Pe-ru-na Drug Manufacturing Company, Columbus, Ohio, for Dr. Hartman's free book on catarrh.

Lily Lyrics.

Christmas has passed, and the old year is gone, so now we will have to put it 1892. During the holidays the young people of this community have had quite a number of parties, dances, &c., and all seem to have a merry Christmas and now we wish all a happy New Year.

Mr. George Callaway of Coosa was through here last week, looking for a home, and will doubtless locate at Maplesville.

Miss Mamie Young, a charming young lady of Plantersville, spent the holidays here among friends.

Miss Mattie Lenoir has secured a school at Strasburg and will begin teaching next Monday.

All the young ladies that were ...d teaching are going to collect ...great Xmas at home to the delight ...of their hearts.

Mr. John Wright's little girl, ...

Mr. J. C. Edwards is as smiles this Xmas over the new comer at his house, who arrived Christmas eve, and says furthah for Santa Claus.

Editor Banner: A happy new year. Ninety seven is gone. The people have realized many bereavements and grievances with untold disappointments. Many have been blessed with health and prosperity along with pleasant surroundings. Some have been unmindful of the source from which all blessings flow. Let us forget past troubles and cherish the pleasures. May we enjoy the present and hope for the future. As we start out with the new year, may we study what our duty is and perform it, and thus make others and ourselves happy. What a meaning!

Another Big Steel Plant Is Proposed for Birmingham.

A BOY FALLS FROM A TREE TO HIS DEATH.

An Old River Pilot Passes Away—Big Damage Suit Filed—Accidentally Shot—Another Cigarette Victim. Other Brief State News.

James T. Burns, of Pittsburg, Pa., is in Birmingham, with a view to establishing a plant for the manufacture of his steel. Mr. Burns claims that by his process the highest grade of steel can be made from any iron. He has been in conference with a number of the leading iron producers of the district and will bring the matter before the Commercial club. Mr. Burns is a practical mining engineer, and was for a long time in the employ of the British government as inspector of fortifications at Gibraltar and in the Bermuda islands. He has made a proposition in writing by which he agrees to erect a plant at a cost of $750,000 to $1,000,000 if his company is granted 100 acres of land in close proximity to Birmingham, and if the citizens of that city will subscribe from $150,000 to $200,000 stock in the enterprise. Maj. John Johnston, agent of the Commercial club, has the matter in hand, and he and Mr. Burns are endeavoring to negotiate matters so that the proposed plant can be located. It is calculated that the proposed plant will employ about 1,500 men.

CUBAN CABINET MINISTERS SWORN

Many People Witness the Ceremony. General Fitz Lee Honored.

Many people assembled at the palace in Havana Saturday to witness the swearing in of Senor Rafael Montero, Marquis of Montelo, Senor Francisco Zayas and Senor Laureano Rodriguez, secretaries of the provisional government. Marshal Blanco, the captain-general, escorted by a number of high Spanish officials, the consul corps, army and naval officers, politicians, etc., reached the throne room at 9 o'clock a. m. A new Bible was open on the table and upon it the secretaries took the oath of fidelity to the queen, the monarch and the Spanish government, placing their right hands on the Bible and kneeling as they repeated the words as required.

After the conclusion of the ceremony all present attended the celebration of mass by the bishop in the chapel of the palace. All knelt down at the elevation of the post excepting the British and German consuls.

When bidding good-bye to the consular corps, General Blanco took both of General Lee's hands. He shook them warmly, saying in broken English, "I thank you," a distinction which the captain-general did not confer upon any of the other consuls.

At the conclusion of the ceremonies, the captain-general remitted the death penalty imposed upon persons who had been convicted of common crimes.

KILLED BY FALLING BUILDING.

A Floor Gives Way and Thirty People Meet Death.

At London, Ontario, 2,000 people were assembled in a hall to hear the address of the successful municipal candidates. Just as the first speaker mounted the platform to begin an ominous crackling of timber was heard, and the raised platform on which the mayor and newly-elected aldermen were seated seemed to pitch forward to the floor. There was a sagging of timbers, and the next moment 150 people were hurled twenty feet to the floor below. A beam running twenty feet along the center of the hall had given way and the crowded mass standing above that section of the floor was thrown in a heap to the bottom.

The scene that followed, mingled with the cries and groaning of the dying was fearful. When the wreck had partially been cleared thirty persons were taken dead from the debris, and many injured.

Although the platform on which the ...eakers of the evening were standing ...apparently the first thing to give ... the mayor-elect and aldermen ... the death that overtook so ...ers who followed them in ... portion of the building.

GREAT SUFFERING IN CUBA.

A Conspiracy Against the Spanish Unearthed in Panar Del Rio.

CHEERING FOR THE UNITED STATES.

A Letter From an Insurgent Chief Says 150,000 Insurgents and Reconcentrados Have Died in Western Cuba and Santa Clara Provinces.

Havana, via Key West.—Details have been received from Spanish sources of a conspiracy against Spanish rule, said to have been discovered in the province of Pinar Del Rio. It is now stated that 1,500 men employed in the fields of Clay, Brook & Co., tobacco growers, and who had been disarmed, conspired to join the insurgents. Their leaders were imprisoned in Moro Castle.

Christmas night there were riots similar to those which occurred at Havana, Matanzas and other towns. The demonstrations were intended as a protest against autonomy.

At Matanzas the crowds cheered for the United States, President McKinley and annexation.

The majority of conservative mayors have been removed from the towns in the interior. They represent 75 per cent of the taxpayers.

A letter from an important insurgent chief says about 150,000 insurgents and reconcentrados have died in Western Cuba up to Santa Clara. He also expresses regret at the suffering endured by the insurgents in the field.

Dr. Delfin calls attention, in Dietro de la Marina, to the necessity of sending about fifty physicians into the interior of the island, provided with medicine chests and vaccine. This step, he says, is to save from death innumerable human beings who are dying of hunger and neglect.

Dr. Delfin adds that over 500,000 persons, mostly women and children, have died of famine in the fields. The reconcentrados are suffering from dysentery, smallpox, cholera, etc., which threaten extermination. Therefore, Dr. Delfin says, it is necessary to send medicines with food and physicians.

It is reported that an important engagement occurred last Monday in the Mulata mountains, province of Pinar del Rio, and that large numbers were killed on both sides. One prominent insurgent was captured and brought to Havana, where he was imprisoned in the communicado.

LOWERING THE WAGE SCHEDULE.

The Reduction Will Be General Throughout the East.

The action of the cotton manufacturers in New Bedford and Rhode Island in deciding to join the movement to lower the wage schedule in January, which was inaugurated by the big corporations of Fall River, makes the reduction practically a general one throughout the New England states. Cotton mills in Fall River, Lowell, Manchester, Salem, Suncook, N. H., and a number of smaller places have already posted notices of a reduction amounting to from 10 to 11 1-9 per cent. In New Bedford it is understood the cut down applies to the cloth mills only. As far as known the reduction in all the mill centers applies to treasurers, superintendents, overseers and clerks, as well as to the spinners and other operatives.

WILL LOOK AT THE CANAL.

Prominent Contractors on Their Way to Nicaragua.

Fourteen of the most prominent contractors in the United States will go to Nicaragua to inspect the survey of the proposed canal. If the work is deemed practical, these men will form a company and bid for the job. The party is under the direction of E. L. Cooley, chief engineer of the Chicago drainage canal. Most of the contractors were associated with Mr. Cooley in that immense undertaking. From the meager information in their possession Engineer Cooley estimates the maximum cost of the Nicaragua canal at $25,000,000. The army engineers say this is ridiculously small and predict an excess of $80,000,000. Others have variously estimated the cost of the project from $60,000,000 to $150,000,000.

NEW POSTAGE STAMPS.

The Government Will Advertise for About 12,000,000,000.

The postoffice department has prepared advertisements which will soon be issued inviting proposals for furnishing adhesive postage stamps for the government for the four years beginning July 1 next. The issues advertised for include the ordinary stamps, news and periodical stamps, postage due stamps and those for special delivery. The number required per year approximates 3,000,000,000.

Increase in Receipts.

The forthcoming weekly statement of the government receipts and expenditures will show a material increase in the receipts from both customs and internal revenues. The income from customs this month will probably exceed November by $3,000,000. The returns from internal revenue sources will probably reach an excess of $1,000,000 over November.

MONETARY COM...

Made by Authori... Business M...

The report of ... mission appoint... the convention ... in Indianapolis ... been made publi... standard on which ... done since 1879 is ... ground the in... mand certainty as ... and shall be. To ... that the United States ... all uncertainty as to ... "coin" in its obligations ... ing the taxpayer by the ... row at a lower rate of ... attempt is made to ... ing silver dollars, nor to ... legal tender qualities, on the con... a place is provided for them in ... circulation by forbidding the issue ... any paper money of less than silver certificate denominations below $10.

It is regarded by the Commission as dangerous to maintain the present practice of using Government bonds as money.

The Commission, therefore, strongly urge the Government to withdraw its demand obligations now in circulation, decline to provide gold for exporters, and put the burden and expense of maintaining a redeemable paper circulation upon the banks. In order to meet the demand obligations, the present reserve of $100 in the Treasury furnish a sufficient sum to be set aside in a Division of Issue and Redemption; and the Secretary of the Treasury is authorized to sell bonds whenever the reserves need replenishment. In this way, or from surplus revenue, the demand obligations, that is, United States notes and Treasury notes of 1890, can be retired in such a way that the cost to the country can be reduced, with the result of strengthening our currency, and leading to confidence in the continuity of our standard. By the plan of the Commission the withdrawal of Government paper is so arranged that contraction cannot possibly take place, if United States notes are canceled their place will be taken by the gold paid out for them, or by the expansion of bank notes.

The demand obligations of the United States were not a money based on property; they were only a debt. On the other hand, a bank note is never issued (fraud, of course, excluded) except for a consideration in negotiable property of equal or greater value. The bank note comes forth as the equivalent of a business transaction, and is based on the active property of the country which is passing between producers and consumers. This property is always negotiable and always equal to the duty of meeting the note's liability. Bank notes are as sound as the business transactions of the country. The currency of the country, moreover, should increase as the transactions of the country increase; hence the rigid unchanging issues of the Government make them an inelastic part of the circulation, while by the very process of their issue bank notes alone can be automatically adjusted to the changing transactions of the business community.

In amending the present national banking system, the Commission were actuated by a desire to secure absolute safety to the note holder; to make the notes uniform and of equal currency in all parts of the country to create an elastic system, which, while expanding in response to increasing transactions, should healthily contract when transactions diminish, and which would help in a better distribution of banking facilities throughout the Western and Southern States.

While providing for the partial use of bonds for securing notes (twenty-five per cent of the capital) the Commission propose that notes beyond this should be issued on all, instead of a part of the resources of a bank; and within a few years that no special bond security should be required. Banks may issue notes up to sixty per cent. of their capital without restraint; for issue beyond sixty per cent. and up to eighty per cent. they pay a tax of two per cent.; for those beyond eighty per cent. and up to 100 per cent. they pay a tax of six per cent. These notes would be a prior lien upon all the resources of the bank, and, in addition, upon the stockholders' liability. Moreover, all banks issuing notes contribute five per cent. of their circulation as a permanent guaranty fund. For daily redemptions, banks are required to keep a five per cent. redemption fund in the hands of the Comptroller of the Currency. Banks of $25,000 capital may be established in places of 4000 inhabitants, and branch banks are also permitted.

High Handed Proceedings.

The steamer Albion arrived at San Diego, Cal., from a cruise down the coast and her passengers tell of a rather high handed proceeding at Clipperton island on the part of the Mexican gunboat El Democrata, being no less than the hauling down of the stars and stripes by an armed force sent for that purpose, and in spite of the protests of the men there employed and the raising of the Mexican flag.

IRENE.

HOPS and offices were pouring their streams of life into the crowded streets. It was 6 o'clock at evening. At a corner where a human tide swept like a torrent from a broken dam a woman stood under a lamp post. She was tall and dark, and so motionless that she might have been a statue. Her arms were folded under her cloak. A policeman, edging his way through the crowd, asked her a question. She shook her head slowly, and did not look at him. The policeman passed on, and the next moment there were two quick pistol shots, a scream, and a stampede. The officer ran back, fighting his way through the swirling crowd. He found the woman, pistol in hand, bending over a man lying upon the pavement. The officer seized her wrist, and, looking at him with a strange smile, as she relaxed her hold on the pistol, she said:

"I am a woman, and I demand to be treated as such."

When she had been taken to the station and asked to make a statement, she said: "My name is Irene Roma. The name of the man I shot is Roy Campbell. I shot him because he ought to be killed. He was engaged to marry my sister. He did not keep faith with her, and she died of a broken heart. He is a brute, and ought to be dead."

Campbell was taken to a hospital. His wounds were pronounced dangerous. An effort was made to interview him. But all he would say was: "I suppose she thought she had a right to shoot me." He asked if they had put her in jail, and appeared to be pleased when told that she had been allowed out on bail.

Three weeks later the wounded man was sitting propped up in bed, when a card bearing the name of Irene Roma was handed to him. He looked hard at it, rubbed his eyes, held it further away, then closer, and then remarked: "I don't understand why she should want to see me. Let her come in."

With a timid, awe-struck air the woman approached the bed. She coughed in embarrassment as she seated herself on a chair which the nurse placed for her. She put back her hair, made aimless motions in her confusion, and then, looking straight at Campbell, said:

"I am awfully sorry I shot you."

Campbell smiled. "And are you sure you haven't come to shoot me again?" he asked.

She frowned in reproof. "You know I haven't. If you had thought that you would have told them to keep me out."

"No, I wouldn't. You have come so far out here that I couldn't have found the heart to disappoint you."

"A plaster of sarcasm won't draw out a soreness, Mr. Campbell. I have suffered so with remorse that I have come to see if I could not find some sort of consolation. You don't know how I have suffered. And I must go through a hateful trial, too, with everybody looking at me. Oh, I do wish I hadn't shot you!"

"Yes," he drawled, "I rather wish so myself. So, you see, we have something in common. But you needn't be worried over the trial. I shall not appear against you."

The nurse had withdrawn. They were alone. She put back her hair again, and he followed the movement of her graceful hand—the hand that had shot him. "No, I will not appear," he went on. "It is something of a distinction to be shot by the handsomest woman in Liverpool." He hesitated as he saw the tears gathering in her eyes. "I take it all back," he said. She wiped her eyes, and sat looking far away through a window. The mystery that lies in the cloudland was reflected in her eyes, and he gazed at her. She turned her eyes upon him, and the mystery flew from them.

"Yes, I am sorry I shot you," she said, "but I hope you will never can forgive

"Brute!" she said. "I almost wish I had killed you."

"When a woman almost wishes a thing, she wishes it doubly," he replied.

"I don't know but there is some truth in that," she assented. "But what a beast you were to treat Florence so. How could you?"

"Because I was a beast, I suppose."

"Yes, you were. She was taken ill with fever shortly afterward, but it was a broken heart that killed her." Her eyes shot shafts of hatred at him. "But I didn't come to reproach you," she said.

"Then why did you come?" he asked.

"To ask you why you could have been so heartless. I simply want to know. Was it because you have no heart at all?"

"It was because I had too much heart."

She darted a fierce look at him. "Ah! it was because you loved another woman."

"Yes. Florence made me promise to tell her if—if I should love any one better than I did her. It was not my fault if another woman set my soul afire, when Florence had only warmed my heart. God knows I fought against it with all my strength, all my philosophy. But at last I had to tell her, and I left it with her whether or not I should keep my promise of marriage. Then she drove me from her presence."

"Ah! And then you went to the other woman and told her of your love, and she spurned you."

"No, I did not tell her. Indeed, I was determined that she should not know."

She looked at him searchingly. "You killed my sister, but you are more of a man than I thought."

He smiled sadly. "A man is always more or less of a man than a woman thinks."

"If you hold so poor an opinion of women, I don't see how you could love one."

"I don't see, either."

"Fool!" she said.

"Yes; I'm a man."

She smiled at him, and then after a silence she said:

"Do you intend to tell the woman of your love?"

"No."

"If you do, and she loves you, I will shoot you again."

"That's consoling."

"Then let it console you. But really I am sorry for you—for your weakness. You ought to have had more strength than to let that other woman—and I know she is a fright—win your love. You ought to have known that she was playing with you."

"Reason addresses the brain, but it cannot reach the heart. I told you that I fought——"

"Yes, I know." And after a long silence she said: "I wish you would tell me the name of that woman."

"Irene Roma."

She sprang to her feet with a cry, and a nurse ran into the room. She found the visitor on her knees by the bedside. "Leave us," the man said, and the nurse withdrew. He put his hand on her head, and she sobbed under his touch. "And that was the reason I could not keep faith with her," he said. "You set my soul on fire, and in the flames I could see your smile." She had caught his hand, and it was wet with her tears. "And for that love I was willing to die," he said, unable now to see her, kneeling beside him, but feeling the warm tears upon his hand.

"O, don't—don't say that!" she sobbed. "In my despair I hated you because I loved you so."—Princess.

He Was a Clever Thief.

While a well-to-do Parisian was returning recently by train from Havre, during the first hour his only fellow passenger in the compartment was a young man, who made himself very agreeable. Then others got in, and talk was general. Finally the Parisian dropped asleep. Presently the young man, turning to the other passengers, with a wink toward the sleeping man, said, in an undertone, "I'll play a good joke on my uncle," and he unfastened the strap by which a small traveling bag was slung over the shoulder of the sleeper. "I'll change into the next compartment at the first stop, and my uncle will wake up and think he has been robbed. It will be fun to see his face, and I can watch through the little glass in the partition. Don't give it away."

The others grinned appreciatively, and the young man presently slipped out with the bag. Soon after the owner of the bag woke up. He missed his pooch from the strap, and jumped up in great excitement, exclaiming, "I've been robbed!"

The response from his fellow passengers was a roar of laughter. This added anger to the victim's excitement, and he stormed furiously. Finally one of the passengers assured the angry man that his bag was all right; his nephew had it in the next compartment.

"My nephew!" shouted the bewildered man; I haven't any nephew. I never had a nephew. I don't know anything about any nephew."

Then it was the turn of the other passengers to be dumfounded. But the thief got away, and there were several thousand francs in the bag.—Tit-Bits.

Crushed Between Cars.

While Car Inspector Henry Smith was working between two cars on the Southern railway, at Selma, one of the drawbars was broken, the switch engine backed on him, crushing him between the two cars. It is thought he is fatally injured.

Assignment at Montgomery.

The doors of the Builders' and Painters' Supply company, of Montgomery, one of the largest dealers in its line of goods in the state, were closed Monday. The liabilities and assets are not yet known.

Wants Its Capital Stock Reduced.

A petition has been filed in the probate court signed by sixty-five stockholders representing two-thirds of the capital stock of the South Anniston Land company, asking that the capital stock of the company be reduced from $1,000,000 to $75,000.

Repentance and Death.

A special from Guntersville says John L. Lovelace, a well known farmer, went to his home near Union Grove, after having been on a spree during the Christmas holidays, and, in a fit of repentance, seized a Colt's derringer and blew out his brains.

Big Day for the State Treasury.

The last day of the year was a big day in the state treasurer's office, there being certified into the treasury $113,000. Of this Judge Jones, as attorney of the Louisville & Nashville, paid to the credit of the counties through which the road runs $42,000.

Setting a Business-Like Example.

The farmers of Madison county are beginning to set a business-like example before the other counties of the state. Instead of running their large farms at a loss, as many have done, they are beginning to cut them up into forty, eighty and 100 acre tracts and to sell them to the thrifty farmers from the Northwest, who are settling in that part of the state.

Charter for New Railroad.

The Southern Railway company has filed an application for a charter at Jasper, Marion county, Tenn., asking to be allowed to extend its line through that county. This means that the Southern will build a direct line from Stevenson into Chattanooga, a distance of about sixty miles. Owing to the mountainous country the work will be quite expensive. The new road will pass through four different counties, which now have little or no railroad facilities.

To Change Alabama School Laws.

The committee on educational status of the State Educational association met in Birmingham and drafted a plan to secure needed changes in the state's laws, whereby the public school system can be improved and school funds be increased. It was decided that the committee draft an entirely new school law, and, after submission for approval and amendment to the next annual meeting of the association, present same to the next legislature for adoption.

Populist Convention Called.

The executive committee of the people's party met in Birmingham the past week and issued an address to the voters of Alabama, in which the keynote is, no compromise with the democrats, state or national.

The address charges the democrats with playing traitor to every pledge, and knifes Governor Johnston for his crusade against the dishonest county officers. It says that the democrats are untrue to the Chicago platform, the free silver plank of which was a snare to delude the people. It says that the democratic administration of the state has been untrue to the people in almost every particular, and with the ring of the old-time populist calls on all lovers of honest elections and honest administrations to come to the support of the people's party.

The populist convention will be held on the first Wednesday in May, 1898, and while it has not been definitely decided, Birmingham will likely be the place.

Disastrous Fire at Hayneville.

Hayneville was visited by one of the most disastrous fires in its history Thursday morning at 1 o'clock. It originated in the warehouse of W. T. Brightman & Co., and with a northeast wind the flames spread rapidly. The next building that caught was a livery stable of J. E. Miller. Fifteen horses and mules were burned. Efforts were made to save them without success. Next was the livery business of B. F. McWhorter, who saved his vehicles and horses. The general mercantile establishments of Dr. W. P. Russell and Pritchett & Rudolph were also consumed, as well as the stock of D. Goldstein, who occupied a storehouse of Dr. W. P. Russell.

The loss is as follows: W. T. Brightman & Co., $200; J. E. Miller, $500; B. F. McWhorter, $200; W. P. Russell, $5,200; Pritchett & Rudolph, $1,700; J. C. Light, $300; Pritchett & Merriwether, $3,000; Joe Lloyd, $300. The insurance will cover about one-sixth of the loss. The fire is supposed to be of incendiary origin.

AN EXCELLENT RECORD.

Notes From Montevallo's and Alabama's Famous School for Girls.

About twenty-five new pupils have engaged scholarships in the Girl's Industrial school for entrance after the holidays. This will make the enrollment between 360 and 400. Over 300 of these are boarding pupils and come from various portions of the state.

About 250 pupils in the school spent the holidays at their homes and are now coming back, many of whom bring new girls with them.

Out of the class of last session who graduated in the school of typewriting and stenography, seven out of nine have nice paying positions.

Quite a number of Mrs. Hudson's pupils in telegraphy can receive and send messages nicely. This is the only school in the state connected with the outside world by telegraph. The day before the school closed for the holidays over forty messages were handled through the college office.

Miss Mamie Guy, one of the most proficient pupils in the school of dressmaking, has an offer from a house in Kentucky to take charge of their dressmaking department as soon as she obtains her diploma in this line.

The pupils in the dressmaking department made $130 clear in November and nearly a hundred dollars in December. This money goes direct to the pupils earning it. This is all done in connection with their other studies and does not in any way conflict with them.

One girl who graduated in typewriting and stenography last year now has a position that enables her to keep her younger sister in the school this year.

TEMPERANCE TOPICS.

NOTES OF INTEREST TO THE ANTI-LIQUOR LEADERS.

Our Wellington at Waterloo—Echoes of the Anti-Alcohol Congress—The Greatest Temperance Reformer of the Age

The Train Wrecker.

HERE is danger ahead!" Through the darkness of night,
Hark! a voice full of anguish is calling;
Who can blame the brave heart for its moment of fright,
As the far reaching gleam of the engine's headlight
On a vision of horror is falling?
But the hand at the throttle does not falter or fail;
Hard down goes the lever; though the cheek may turn pale
At the thought of a death so appalling.

"There is danger ahead!" See, each moment more near;
God of mercy! how fast they are going.
Though the brakes on the wheels grate harsh on the ear,
While the echoing valleys and hills, far and near,
Catch the sound of the shrill whistle's blowing.
And the onlooker questions, with fear-bated breath;
Will they stop or go down in the river of death,
That so near at the moment seems flowing?

* * * * * * *

"There is danger ahead!" Rushing swiftly along,
Our Republic drives onward, unheeding
God of love! is there none to arouse the mad throng?
Shall no cry reach their ears 'midst the laugh, jest and song?
Are they deaf to all warning—all pleading?
Mighty God! give the strength; give the courage we lack,
Give us manhood to hurl the Rum Power from the track.
Bare thine arm; give the power we are needing.

Our Wellington at Waterloo.

The last day of the Anti-Alcohol Congress at Brussels was devoted to an excursion to Antwerp, but the writer went, instead, to one of the world's greatest battlefields where the trend of this country was decided. First, we were shown the bust of Wellington and the memorial slabs of his officers in the village church of Waterloo. Our visit here seemed a little untimely, for we surprised a peasant under the direction of a priest, in the act of cleaning the saints (or their statues) with soap and water, irreverently applied with a modern kitchen scrubbing brush. Across the street was an inn where Wellington slept that rainy night before the battle. Three miles farther, and we were on that famous battlefield, and noted the positions of the contending armies as pointed out by our guide from the top of the mound surmounted by the British lion which has one paw on a globe as though he expected the earth, and his face turned toward France.

Numbers, military experience, all were on the side of Napoleon. We saw the house where he slept on that fatal night before June 18, 1815, and where he breakfasted at morning, expecting before the night closed in that vanquished England would be his. We came next to that desolate, old walled castle, which now is a farmyard—Hougeront. We passed peacefully through the very door that would have given the morning of this century to a military despotism if Napoleon's army could have made an entrance there. The heavy oaken door that was red with both French and English blood on that day, has given place to a new one, and now lies inside against the old wall, each bullet hole telling its own story. We saw the well that became a sepulchre, the old chapel that was a charnel house for dying soldiers and over the door its crucifix with the blackened feet of the wooden Christ which refused to burn when the chapel was fired. We stopped and picked buttercup leaves that were peacefully nodding in the breeze in the orchard where that awful combat deepened until the turf was softened into mud with human gore. We cut a rose leaf from a stray branch that had mounted the garden wall, which witnessed the terrible tragedy where six French soldiers who had penetrated thus far, withstood for a quarter of an hour two hundred Germans before yielding themselves to death. We were shown the spot where Wellington took out his watch and said, "Five o'clock, Blucher or night." We turned our eyes to the distant [illegible] where the Prussian bayonets [illegible] saved the day were seen coming. We saw the spot where the peasant boy told Napoleon that there were no obstacles in the way of his reserves, and we caught a distant glimpse of the hollow road of Chain into which his guards plunged; the spot where Napoleon was held back by his men from riding between the Prussian and English artillery with breast bared to their bullets when he knew that all was lost. We felt for an instant the despair of that man of destiny, and wondered that he could have been beaten. Victor Hugo says: "Only by remembering that Napoleon, as conqueror of the [illegible] was out of harmony with the [illegible] teenth century, can we understand the battle of Waterloo—Waterloo, the hinge of the nineteenth century. The disappearance of the great man was necessary for the advent of the great age, and He who cannot be answered took undertook the task. saloon, its crowded graveyards, and mothers in tears; and it, too, must go!—Mary H. Hunt, in Union Signal.

A Great Temperance Reformer.

General Neal Dow, who died recently at Portland, Me., in the 94th year of his age, was the most conspicuous leader in temperance reform in this country.

The idea of wholly prohibiting the sale of intoxicating liquors as a beverage originated in Maine, and was first embodied in what for many years was known as "the Maine law."

It is just sixty years ago that Neal Dow and his associates appeared before the Maine legislature, bearing a memorial drawn by General James Appleton of Portland, asking for the enactment of that law. The memorial was rejected. Neal Dow kept up the agitation, however, and was greatly helped by the excitement attending the so-called Washingtonian movement, the object of which was to reclaim the intemperate. The difficulty of trying to reform drunkards, while nothing was done to restrain the saloons from making drunkards, impressed so many minds that Neal Dow's demand for the legal proscription of the traffic found increased support.

He traveled about the state, urging the reform, and did not abate his zeal, though he was several times threatened with violence. In 1851 the legislature passed through all its stages, in a single day, an act which outlawed the liquor traffic and made liquors liable to seizure and destruction wherever found.

The law was repealed in 1856, only to be re-enacted the following year with more stringent penalties, and in 1884 the principle of prohibition was incorporated in the state constitution.

General Dow accumulated wealth in business, but his habits were simple. He had a vigorous and striking personality, and was susceptible no more to ridicule than to threats. He began his exertions for temperance at the age of 21, when, as captain of a fire company in Portland, he made a strong and successful opposition to the practice of providing liquors for the firemen.

Through all his long life he was a total abstainer. He was twice elected mayor of Portland, and twice a member of the legislature, and in 1880 was the prohibition candidate for president.

General Dow's military [illegible] was gained in the civil war, in which he served with distinction, especially in the attack on Port Hudson, where he was twice wounded, and was after captured and taken to Libby prison.

Alcoholism and Insanity.

The close relation of alcoholism to insanity is shown by the statement of a specialist—Krafft Ebing—that all forms of insanity, from melancholia to imbecility, are found in alcoholism. It is artificial. It begins with a slight maniacal excitation, thoughts flow lucidly, the quiet become loquacious, the modest bold. There is need of muscular action. The emotions are manifest in laughing, singing and dancing. Now the aesthetical ideas and moral impulses are lost control of, the weak side of the individual is manifested, his secrets are revealed. He is dogmatic, cruel, cynical, dangerous. He insists that he is not drunk just as the insane insists on his sanity. Then his mind becomes weak, his consciousness dim, illusions arise. He stammers, staggers, and, like a paralytic, his movements are uncertain.

The principal character of these mental disturbances consist in a moral and intellectual weakness. Ideas become lax as to honor and decorum. There is a disregard of the duties of citizenship. Irritability is a concomitant. The slightest thing causes suspicion and anger which are uncontrollable. There is a weakness of will to carry out good resolutions, and a consciousness of this leads some to request to be placed in an asylum, for they are morally certain in advance that they cannot resist temptation. Thus one has been known to have his daughter carry his wages home as he could not pass a saloon on his way without going in if he had any money with him. Now, it is weakness of memory, a difficulty in [illegible] in of thought and a weak per- [illegible] until imbecility is reached.

[illegible] may be disturbance in brain [illegible] tion, causing restless sleep, anxious dreams, confusion, dizziness and headache. Such circulatory disturbances [illegible] the sense organs can give rise to hallucinations. There is a trembling in hand, face, lips and tongue. In short, there is a gradual mental and bodily degeneration.

THE BANNER is pleasd to state that suggestion that a mail car be attached to the accommodation train has been acted upon, and Clanton and the other towns between Montgomery and Birmingham now has two mails per day instead of two heretofore. It is now possible to mail a letter to Montgomery or Birmingham in the morning and receive a reply the same day. This is a grert improvement and is much appreciated by all citizens in this section.

The children of Lowndes county have been counted, and instead of there being about twenty thousand there are only thirteen thousand. And hereafter Lowndes will draw four thousand dollars lee as its portion of the fund from the State, than for years it has secured by false enumeration of the childen. Now, if a fair count of the votes of Lowndes could be obtained, we all might be contented. It seems that somebody ought to be required to pay back the State a great many thousand of dollars that Lowndes has falsely and wroungfully secured.—Birmingham Times.

On Monday next Clanton will elect a mayor and four councilmen for this year. It is a high tribute to the outgoing mayor and council that no organized opposition to their unanimous re-election is appearent. If there are any citizens dissatisfied with the conduct of the municipal authorities they are keeping wonderfully quiet. FOURTH DISTRICT CONTEST.

The prompt action of the committee on Elections No. 1, of which Robert W. Taylor, of Ohio, is chairman, in proceeding to inaestigate the contest of Willam W. Aldrich, against Thomas S. Plowman, from the Fourth Congressional District of Alabama, indicates that the committee proposes to take up first those cases which point to fraud in the casting of the votes, the counting of the returns, or the illegal issuing of the certificate of election, and especially where this is accompanied by threats and intimidation of voters.

It is well known that the Democratic Legislature gerrymandered this Alabama district and made it about forty miles wide and 200 long, so that it extends from the northeast to the southwest corner of the State. It is known as the "Shoe String District," and was thus made with the only object of trying to compel the election of a Democratic member of Congress, where the legal voters have wished otherwise or even cast their votes in the majority against the Democrat, nevertheless the Democrat has received the certificate of election just the same.

This is a district with a history, not the least part of which deals with congressional contests. In years past, when the Democrats knowingly, wilfully and maliciously counted the vote in the "black counties," so called, because of the overwhelming Republican colored vote they gave the lame excuse that the "white counties" had voted for the Democratic candidate and they felt justified in counting the colored Republican vote different from the way it was cast to save themselves from utter defeat. But in the case now before the committee this flimsy excuse and subterfuge is completely knocked from under them, for, aside from the gross frauds in several of the white counties, W. F. Aldrich has a majority even in the white counties. The Democrats, equal to any desyerate emergency, concluded to transfer the overwhelming Republican colored vote of about 3000 majority over to the Democratic candidate, thus making a virtual change of about 6000 votes in this one "black belt" county, and thereby securing the certificate of election to Mr. Plowman with an apparent handsome majority.

It will also be remembered that at the time of the gerrymander of this "Shoe String (Fourth) District" it had been practically agreeb that the Democrats should control the local and county offices in the entire district, but that the Republicans having a majority of more than 20,000 voters in the district, should have the Congressman. This was lived up to for several years, the district being two or three times permitted to be represented by legally elected Republicans, but the Democrats again become greedy and determined that the Republicans should not have a single Congressman from the state of Alabama; hence, fraubs sufficient were committed to apparently secure a solid Democratic delegation. They have become emboldoned and now, are carrying on their fraud against the corner stone of all parties, the primary election.—Washington Post.

The Coming Woman

Who goes to the club while her husband tends the baby, as well as the good old-fashioned woman who looks after her home, will both at times get run down in health. They will be troubled with loss of appetite, headaches, sleeplessness, fainting or dizzy spells. The most wonderful remedy for these women is Electric Bitters. Thousands of sufferers from Lame Back and Weak Kidneys rise up and call it blessed. It is the medicine for women. Political Pointers.

People's Press Bureau, St. Louis, Mo., Jan. 5, 1898.

The bulk of our purely Populist news comes generally from Kansas. There, happily, the Populists have a chance to carry out their theories and very few weeks pass that we are not able to chronicle something of interest to the reform world from that locality. Just now the question of Jerry Simpson's re-election is one of great importance. It is generally conceded that he will be returned, as the common people are anxious to show their approval of his work in congress, but the Populist politicians are opposed to him. Charles Bucher, the democratic leader, who has been suggested as a good man to run against Simpson, declares that he will not permit his name to be used and favors the democratic support being given to Simpson.

State Superintendent of public schools Striker of Kansas, who is credited with springing some suggestion on the public every week, now proposes that each county should establish an educational paper to be published weekly. He believes that such a paper would greatly increase the interest of both pupils and parents in educational work.

A year ago, on account of doubt of the debt-paying power of the state, Kansas seven and eight per cent bonds not find buyers in the east, whereas now six and seven per cent sells readily whenever offered. Municipal or school bonds are taken up greedily in the east. There has also been a good sale of school lands in the west part of the state and as a result of this the state school fund commission will have $250,000 to distribute to the public schools of the state the first of February. And still the republican papers assert that the Populists have ruined Kansas.

Governor Holcomb of Nebraska, has sent an interesting letter to the Advocate and News of Topeka, Ka., in reply to the request that he should give his opinion as to what the reform forces can expect to accomplish during the coming year and along what lines they should work. After pointinf with pride to the marvelous growth and wide acceptance of Populist principles the last few years and reviewing briefly the failures of the present administration, he urges first that all Populists use all fair means to unite all elements opposed to the single standard and corporation control. "Wise, energetic, united action should result in large gain for the advocates of our principles in the congressional delegations and pave the way for success in the presidential canvass of 1900." He believes that the re-election of Senator Allen and a full reform congressional representation is assured.

A movement is on foot to unite under one banner all the labor organizations in the world. The proposed by laws are free from all visionary crudities oppose violence and strikes and strikes and advocate educational work. All religous prejudice will be excluded although the almalgamated organization is to be secret.

Senator Mason of Illinois, has assured for himself a niche in the temple of fame by offering a bill limiting the period of debate in the august body of which he is a member.

On account of the row that his single standard views have arroused in the republican camp Secretary Gage recently tendered his resignation to President McKinley. He was assured that the president desired him to retain his position as he entirely agreed with the gold standard views expressed in Secretary Gage's recent mes-age.

HOW TO FIND OUT.

Fill a bottle or common glass with urine and let it stand twenty-four hours; a sediment or settling indicates an unhealthy condition of the kidneys. When urine stains linen it is positive evidence of kidney trouble. Too frequent desire to urinate or pain in the back, is also convincing proof that the kidneys and bladder are out of order.

WHAT TO DO.

There is comfort in the knowledge so often expressed, that Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, the great kidney remedy fulfills every wish in relieving pain in the back, kidneys, liver, bladder and every part of the urinary passages. It corrects inability to hold urine and scalding pain in passing it, or bad effects following use of liquor, wine or beer, and overcomes that unpleasant necessity of being compelled to get up many times during the night to urinate. The mild and the extraordinary effect of Swamp-Root is soon realized. It stands the highest for its wonderful cures of the most distressing cases. If you need a medicine you should have the best. Sold by druggists, price fifty cents and one dollar. You may have a sample bottle and pamphlet both sent free by mail. Mention THE BANNER and send your address to Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N.Y. The proprietor of this paper guarantees the genuineness of this offer.

ADDRESS OF STATE EX-COM.

investment in this state and gone to other states less favored by nature and facillities.

These, with other crimes of omission and commission have prevented emmigration to the state, retarded its growth and development, paralyzed enterprise, driven capitle from investment within its borders, and prevented the richest and most favored state in the Union from forging its way forward to the procession of greatest wealth and most prosperous people.

The paramount issue upon which the success of all good government depends is the free and honest expression of the people at the ballot box and the execution of their wishes. Wite dishonest election methods comes all the evils and crimes of bad government; and upon this issue depends all else. We denounce the avowed purpose of the democratic party of Alabama to disfranchise any class of citizens by constitutional convention or otherwise, and insist that, upon every principle of equity and justice, a man who fights the battle of the country and creates its wealth, above all others, has the right to shape the destiny of that country by his ballot.

We invite tae co-operation and support of every voter of the state who is opposed to fraudulent and dishonest political and governmental methods and policies, and who desires to see the state released from a thrauldom of ballot box stuffing and restored to that condition of paace and prosperity to which ous people are justly entitled and their marvelous resorces should command."

Miraculous Benefit

RECEIVED FROM

Dr. Miles' New Heart Cure.

ELI P. BABCOCK, of Avoca, N. Y., a veteran of the 3rd N. Y. Artillery and for thirty years of the Babcock & Munsel Carriage Co., of Auburn, says: "I write to express my gratitude for the miraculous benefit received from Dr. Miles' Heart Cure. I suffered for years, as result of army life, from sciatica which affected my heart in the worst form, my limbs swelled from the ankle up. I bloated until I was unable to button my clothing; had sharp pains about the heart, smothering spells and shortness of breath. For three months I was unable to lie down, and all the sleep I got was in an arm chair. I was treated by the best doctors but gradually grew worse. About a year ago I commenced taking Dr. Miles' New Heart Cure and it saved my life as if by a miracle."

An Old Idea.

Every day strengthens the belief of eminent physicians that impure blood is the cause of the majority of our diseases. Twenty-five years ago this theory was used as a basis for the formula of Browns' Iron Bitters. The many remarkable cures effected by this famous old household remedy are sufficient to prove that the theory is correct. Browns' Iron Bitters is sold by all dealers.

THE AMERICAN MONTHLY REVIEW OF REVIEWS

It is impossible to promise particular features that will appear in the "AMERICAN MONTHLY" during the coming year, for it is, as the publishers says, "a great monthly newspaper." As such, it prints for its readers an illustrated account of the notable things which make the history of the month, of the political, the economic, and literary happenings which are of value to intelligent men and women. The Editor's "Progress of the World" tells succinctly an illustrated story of the month. The "Leading Articles" give the best thought and information of the current magazines in five countries: the contributed articles furnish the character sketches of the man of the month, and give timely discussions by authorities on any question of immediate vitious import.

"We know of no review published in this country or in Europe, which combines so successfully as the AMERICAN MONTHLY the promptness, fullness and energy of journalism with the accuracy, carefully weighed judgment, exact information, and well-chosen English of the purely literary periodical."—The Outlook.

The result of this comprehensive effort to edit in one monthly volume the information needed by intelligent people of "live" instincts is best gauged in the opinions which the readers of the AMERICAN MONTHLY have seen fit to express. These are thinking business men, clergymen, editors, lawyers, professors, engineers, the wide-awake women of America. They write that the AMERICAN MONTHLY "is indispensable"; "is simply invaluable"; "is a generous library in itself"; is "a historical cyclopedia of the world"; "the best means of aid for a busy man"; "the best periodical of the kind we have ever had"; "a triumph of editorial genius"; "the world under a field-glass," etc., etc.

THE CROSS AND CROWN

Is the title of a treatise on the doctrine of perfection or sanctification, by A. L. Pattillo, of Verbena, now in the press. It is written in a plain, homely fashion by one deeply impressed with the necessity of Christians living a perfect life, who desires to see all professing religion imbued with the same spirit. The Author, who is also a poet, has written several poems, all on religious subjects. The whole when completed will make a book of over 200 pages, bound in a stiff board cover, which at the small charge of 50 cents, should speedily exhaust the edition.

This book has a double claim on the people of Chilton county and should find a place in every home in the county, from the fact that it is entirely a home production, being the first book ever written, printed bound and published in Chilton. It will be ready early in October. Price only 50 cents. Orders can be sent to THE BANNER, Clanton, or to A. L. Pattillo, Verbena.

Notice to Non-Resident.

The State of Alabama, Chilton county.
In Chancery at Clanton, Alabama, Seventh District, North-eastern Chancery Division. December 14, 1897.

W. M. Pylant, complainant, vs. Fannie Pylant, defendant.

In this cause it is made to appear to the Register, by the affidavit of A. C. WHAT IS MONEY?

THE TERM AS DEFINED BY MANY AUTHORITIES.

The Reader Will Readily Note the Points Wherein the Following Eminent Men Differ from Wall Street's Hack Writers.

"Money is the medium of exchange. Whatever performs this function, does the work, is money, no matter what it is made of."—Prof. Walker in Political Economy.

"Money is simply employed for bartering, as a ship for carrying. Its action is similar to a cart's, it fetches for its owner the things he is in want of."—Prof. Jevons.

"The intrinsic value of money was the idea in the days of crude barbarism. The simplest and most perfect form of money is that which presents nothing but transferable debt, such as paper. It is only when states have reached a high degree of civilization that they adopt this perfect form of money."—Rees' Encyclopedia.

"Whatever power there is over the currency is vested in congress. If the power to declare what is money is not in congress it is annihilated. * * * We repeat, money is not a substance but an impression of legal authority, a printed legal decree.—12 Wallace, 519. United States Supreme court.

"An article is determined to be money by reason of the performance by it of certain functions without regard to its form or substance."—Appleton's Encyclopedia.

"Metallic money, while acting as coin, is identical with paper money in respect to its being destitute of intrinsic value."—North British Review.

"Money is a tool of exchange and nothing more. It is not a measure of value, nor a standard of value, nor a representative of property. It transfers property conveniently from one party to another; as a wagon hauls goods from one place to another."—Prof. Price.

"Moneys are of great varieties. The impalpable characteristic which distinguishes money from the numerous subjects that resemble it, but which are not money, is its mark of authority, signifying that it is issued, circulated and made payable for debts, services, fines, taxes and commodities by virtue of law."—Alex Delmar in Science of Money.

"Money is a value created by law (a statutor law). The value of metallic money is created by law."—Henry Cornuschk.

"The legislation assumes that in contemplation of law, money of every species has the value which the law fixes on it; that congress has the constitutional power to say that ten penny-weights of silver shall henceforth be the dollar and do the office heretofore done by sixteen penny-weights, four and one-half grains."—Attorney General U. S. (12 Wallace, U. S. Supreme court report, page 519.)

NORMAN RAPALEE'S NUBBINS.

If this is prosperity, save us from adversity.

You can't down the trusts by voting as they do.

Human rights are more sacred than property rights.

A national debt is a blessing to the national bankers.

This is a government by the people—the rich people.

The more money there is, the more happiness we have.

These are prosperous times for the men who have money.

We are taking the "gold cure" now. How do you like it?

People are still anxiously looking for that promised prosperity.

Government ownership of railroads would let the water out.

More money! That is a plank upon which every man can stand.

No, bub, a public office is not a public trust. It is a private snap.

That wave of prosperity must be the private property of the bankers.

You can't whine away an evil. Stiffen your backbone and vote it away.

What we need most is honest statesmen, and then we'll have honest dollars.

THOUGHTS OF THINKERS.

Not on them the poor rely,
Not to them looks liberty,
Who with frowning falsehood cower
To the wrong, when clothed in power.
—Whittier.

You will never be worthy of happiness or escape wage-slavery while your hatred of capitalists proceeds from your mad wish to be capitalists in their stead.—Zola.

Leaving politics to politicians, whether in national or municipal affairs, is as fatal to a country as leaving the defense of its territory to mercinaries.—Joseph Chamberlain.

If men want to abolish crime, let them provide their fellows with decent surroundings.—Ben Tillett.

What pastor in any great city can put his hand on the causes of sins, and not say that fully one-half of these sins come from frightful poverty or from an overabundance of wealth—or from efforts to escape the one or acquire the other?—John Brisbane Walker.

We cannot get along without capital and capitalists. On the contrary, we ought to have more of the latter. In fact there ought to be at least 69,999,999 capitalists out of 70,000,000 people in this country instead of only so many thousands.—W. J. Steigleder in Chicago Tribune.

The poverty of the world is a gruesome fact. No other phase of our life seems to me so sad. Every tenth child dying in New York City is buried at the public expense. In every city of the world it is much the same. Each contains caravans of people, not especially dissipated, indolent or thriftless, who are very poor, never free from fear of want, doomed for life to the alternative of hard labor or starvation, as thoroughly cut off from all means of culture, as completely precluded from rational living, as were the helots of old Sparta.—President Andrews, of Brown University.

Partisan Census Figures.

The taking of the next census will shortly necessitate the appointment by the President of a force of experts to make arrangements for the work. It will cost fully $10,000,000 to take the census, which will proceed, moreover, contemporaneously with a presidential campaign. It is greatly to be feared that the work will be very partisan. If we ever get a genuine census the results will amaze the country. Heretofore the complaint has been that the very subjects upon which information has been most desired have been neglected. For example, the distribution of wealth in this country has been a matter of much speculation, but all who look into this subject agree that the census is taken in such a way that no particulars of value can be obtained through the medium of the report. The Republicans always take a census from the point of view of the tariff. The experts on census subjects have discovered that we get figures of no moment, and President McKinley has placed the patronage of the preliminary committee entirely at the disposal of General Grosvenor of Ohio. This man is quite destitute of the qualities that go to make the statistician, for all he has ever done in the way of figuring is to calculate the size of Republican majorities. The Populists in Congress ought to take hold of this subject.

Some Fashion Notes.

An observing young man of Rochester, N. Y., has contributed the following comments upon fashions of the day:

It is still fashionable for a great many people to be hunting for employment.

It is still stylish in England to employ women to pull canal boats; they are much cheaper than mules.

Some women in this city are so poor that they have adopted the epicurian fashion of eating refuse out of garbage barrels. We have seen them.

It is still fashionable for labor unions to be led by labor fakirs who feather their own nests out of the funds; and who tell the members to keep out of politics.

It will be very stylish at the next election, like many previous ones, for workingmen to vote for what they don't want, and get it.

It is getting more and more fashionable to make statistics show just what the capitalists want the working class to believe. They like the working class to enjoy imaginary prosperity while they steal the reality.

Two Great Political Weapons.

The vast volume of legislation is at present the main obstacle in the way of liberty. Even to know what laws are passed in one legislature would occupy more than all a man's leisure time. Nearly all these laws are in somebody's special interest and as no one can have a special privilege except at the expense of the rest, nearly every such act has some advocates more or less informed and active.

That 600 to 800 laws, nevertheless, go through the New York legislature each year is due to the improbability and futility of opposition by the many who have a small interest in each matter, to the few who have a great interest in it.

By putting a weapon in the hands of the leaders of the inert majority, direct legislation, [illegible]ally the referendum, would [illegible]tion to private laws [illegible] combined with pro[illegible]tection, it seems to [illegible]ce legislation to the [illegible] is necessary for the [illegible]olton Hall in New [illegible]

TO THE PENSIONERS.

PROF. CHITTENDEN TALKS ABOUT MONEY.

The Old Soldiers Should Not Close Their Eyes to the Conditions That Cause Haggard and Discouraged Poverty to Stare on Every Side.

The report of the secretary of the pension bureau gives us an aggregate of nearly one hundred and fifty millions of dollars paid from that office last year.

The distribution of that amount of money is widely disbursed—falling into the little rills and pools of commerce—reaching the hamlets, the home town, the home store, office, schoolhouse, church—all this fertilizing of the very roots of the social tree and the industrial is an incalculable blessing. In that aspect of the public welfare we are pleased; and by that single aspect of the case we are deceived. What might be a blessing pure and unqualified, is, under the present monetary system, a great evil and hard to bear.

We will not make an indiscriminate complaint against the soldier. Let him have care and honor according to his deserts; but we wish they might all be willing to confer with the reformer and learn of a better way of providing pensions—a way more just to their neighbors ten years younger and the children of their neighbors as well as their own—none of whom were eligible as soldiers, and who have with himself equal rights to a living.

In my somewhat extended acquaintance with the little rural towns of this section of the country, I observe a very interesting fact—that the ones who are "doing" well are nearly all drawing either interest money or soldier pensions.

These pensioners are good people, but they are like other people made up according to human nature, and are not beyond the reach of a very handy and subtle temptation to "let well enough alone" when we attempt to talk with them about our monetary sufferings. That the "well enough" for them is very bad for the rest of the people does not seem to be a visible thing to their eyes. "Why should we not be satisfied with our dollars which have been nearly doubled in value by the legislation of our rival parties?"

So says the Republican ex-soldier to the Democratic ex-soldier, or perhaps only to themselves very privately. My soldier friend, that is not fair. Why is it so difficult to get your attention and your assent to certain plain monetary principles when I talk with you as a neighbor? Your children are inheriting a curse along with mine, and the day will come when they will wonder that your eyes were so easily befogged.

1. If your pensions have been very much enlarged by the appreciation of dollar values, then you are receiving so much more than the law intended.

2. If the process of increasing the value of a pension has crippled the industries and increased the difficulties of obtaining a living by labor, then your advantage is obtained at your neighbors' disadvantage.

Now there is a better way of doing all that is right and avoiding the part that is not right—and very wrong. When the greenback circulated in full volume, at the close of the war and after, no soldier complained that he did not have full commercial value in every one of those currency pieces. Then also his neighbor who depended entirely upon the labor of his hands found ready employment or ready sale of his products. You soldiers remember that distinctly. Your neighbor was willing to see you favored with a pension. He did not covet your reward of merit, because he also and his children had a chance to live. The large increase in the volume of money made the war tax and the after war tax easy to carry—so easy that he became careless and did not watch the doings of his agent in congress. What a monstrous wrong was being hatched under the specious phrase of "guarding the public credit," by returning to specie payment—first coin redemption, then gold redemption!

Three hundred soldiers met in Denver a year or two ago and denounced these scoundrel acts of legislators. It was a grand declaration they made and did honor to the veterans of the whole nation.

Now we are willing to make our tale of bricks for the old soldiers and their families; but it is just exactly too bad to be obliged to make the bricks without straw. We are willing to divide with them to the last morsel; but we do think they ought to lend a hand politically and help to lighten the common burden. This is the simple way to do it. First, don't say that the pension money comes through the tariff revenue and hurts nobody. It does hurt in that very fact. The trade tax revenue is a vicious substitute for an equitable system which we almost adopted (thanks to Mr. Cleveland for that one good endeavor).

"But we must raise a revenue."

Very true; we must. And how very simple a thing it would be to do it in the annual increase of the money volume. How much more money do the people need every new year? Not less than ten per cent addition to the last year's volume.

How much would that vary from the annual aggregate of the public budget? Suppose, however, that the annual money increment were just large enough to cover the pension orders: about $150,000,000. How very simple (now let ignorance laugh) a thing it would be to bless the old soldier and his neighbor by the same act of the treasury department.

If we cannot agree at once to adopt this way of increasing paper money we ought not to lose the blessings of the natural increase of coin money. The loss of silver was a stroke against nature. She was ordained to supply metalic money until the consensus of mankind should adopt something better. Until the better is adopted, it is suicide to abandon the primitive source. The soldier who is too easily satisfied with a pension on the gold basis ought to reflect that such a "basis" of the public debt leaves millions of the people with no basis at all. While his house survives the catastrophe and shines with a new coat of paint, poverty—brown bread, fenceless and defenceless poverty—glares haggard and discouraged on every side, and his own children are striving with hih neighbor's children for a place and a job under conditions—simple monetary conditions that make the laborer a wage slave and gold the slave driver.

A. J. CHITTENDEN.

VERSE OF THE HOUR.

Men of Labor.

Men of labor, why for others
Ever toil?
Men of labor, be ye brothers,
Not the spoil
Of the vampires, who are taking
All the wealth that ye are making;
Of the serpent that would crush you in its coil.

Why be slaves? Why wait ye longer?
Be ye free.
Than your tyrants ye are stronger.
Liberty!
Shout that watchword unto heaven;
Shout it till your bonds are riven;
Shout it till the sounds ring over land

To the earth;
Until Tyranny shall weaken,
And a birth,
Bright as the bright dreams of sages
In the past and vanished ages,
Of Fraternity and Liberty come forth.

Speak! The weary world is waiting
For your call;
Never in your zeal abating
Until fall
All the Greed and Wrong that bind
us,
Wrecks upon Time's shore behind
us;
And a new day shed its beauty over all.
—J. A. Edgerton.

A Real Democrat.

"Debs is all right!" Well! I guess so;
A man who will madden men, by showing them their villainy,
Is right, up to date. A man who will love well
The "rag-tag and bob-tail"—no fear of hell—
Why! he is up-to-date good, I tell you.
Gods! to be right, now, to some, means to squint and to squirm
About "law" and "religion," and all that sort of thing;
It means to deck the hide with feathers, and folderol,
And play goodie to the "poor devils."

Why poor? oh, there are many reasons:
Some won't work, some can't, and some don't know how;
But what is work, anyhow?
P'raps 'tis to saunter round lookin'
lots,
And gettin' lots for lookin'.
Who knows?
Work may be to trace marks on a "margin,"
Thus waterin' somethin' called "stocks."
What's work, anyhow?
Blackin' boots, is it? Or preachin'
"the will o' the Lord?"
Be it what it may, by the hilt of my father's sword!— (And he was a revolutionist—he fought in '76)—
Debs is all right, and if you don't believe it,
Why! wait till the crack of doom—
God's will, not mine—sets our sham republic
A spinnin'—the Lord knows where.
Some of us have eyes, and we see; ears,
and we hear,
And the roar of a mighty change is soundin' out clear.
So, think up a little, back numbers in line,
We live in ninety-seven—and soon in ninety-nine.
—Cleveland Recorder.

The Fight Is on Gold.

If the lawless, irresponsible dictators of industry and commerce are successful, then liberty, constitutional government and personal security are at an end, civilization is derailed into an abyss, and retrogression displaces progress through another age of barbarism. Gold becomes the only God, and bayonets the only prod to duty. The university, the press and the pulpit will all be made permanent attachments to the one despotic machine which is to control every source of communication and instruction, and stifle all thought and aspiration that does not strengthen the ruling power. On the other hand, the people's victory will end class rule forever, and gradually abolish all special privileges and monopolies by means of which one man holds an unjust advantage over another.—Walter Vrooman in New Democracy.

An Embarrassment of Riches.

The wealth of John D. Rockefeller has now reached the sum of $244,000,000, and furthermore is increasing at the rate of $1,500,000 a month, or $50,000 a day, or $2,083 an hour, or $34.50 a minute, or 57 cents every second of time, day and night, Sundays and holidays. No wonder the man calls on the churches and colleges to relieve him of some of his riches.—Utica Press.

VIEW OF THE FIELD.

SHOWING THE WORKING OF THE YEAST.

News and Notes from Washington and Elsewhere—The People Are Many and Plutocrats Few but the Latter Supply Our Rulers.

The national Republican platform declared for the freedom of Cuba, but the administration people, including Mr. Reed, who carries the house of representatives in his pocket, have experienced a change of heart. The government is giving all the aid possible to Spanish tyranny because a lot of Boston capitalists who own sugar plantations succeeded in getting troops enough detailed by Weyler to give adequate protection to their plantations without paying either troops or insurgents. In return they were able to show what seemed to be proof of ability to influence Washington sentiment against recognition of the insurgents. They expect the same protection under Blanco with the same equivalent on their part. The arrangement is a good one for the Boston capitalists, though it bears very heavily on other Americans whose capital is invested in Cuban sugar plantations. The Bostonians, in addition to getting their sugar marketed cheaper than their American competitors can possibly do, bring back American gold, which is received in payment, change it into Weyler's script at a handsome profit and pay the laborers on the plantations in this script. The whole transaction has been so profitable that their plea against the United States intervening in Cuban affairs, on the ground of humanity to the starving country people, was undoubtedly sincere. Intervention on any ground would interfere with the increased dividends which the little group of Boston capitalists has been able to make out of the misery and the gnawing distress of Cuba. They have assurance of labor enough for their plantations, though the rest of the country population of Cuba may be exterminated.

The house committee on postoffices intends to vigorously push the infamous Loud bill for the curtailment of second class rates in the interest of the plutocratic daily papers. Every Populist should send his protest to some representative or senator. The Loud bill stops the mailing of sample copies of newspaper and economic libraries at second class rates, and is designed to suppress political agitation and prevent competition with existing papers.

Senator Allen of Nebraska introduced in the senate a resolution declaring it to be the sense of the senate that congress should, with all due convenient speed, acknowledge by appropriate act the political independence of Cuba.

The McKinley prosperity has at last, after many delays, reached Fall River, and the Cotton Manufacturers' association as a result has voted to reduce wages in all the mills of the city.

Senator Butler, of North Carolina, spoke at length Monday upon amendments he had offered to the bill previously introduced by him providing for a postal savings bank system. Such a system would, in his opinion, insure greater comfort in the homes of the plain people of the land, as a great majority of them would certainly become depositors in such banks.

What Keeps Reed There.

Speaker Reed will hardly thank his friend Augustus G. Paine for the naive manner in which the latter gentleman explains the speaker's decision to remain in Congress instead of resigning and engaging in law business in New York. "It is true," says Mr. Paine, "that the pressure of a large commercial interest has been brought to bear on Mr. Reed to induce him to retire from Congress and come to New York. Other large interests, however, feel that Mr. Reed should remain at the capitol." The admission that Mr. Reed lives and moves and has his being by the grace of "large commercial interests" both as speaker and in his private capacity, is frank and commendable, but it is hardly creditable to Mr. Paine's discretion. The speaker will be justified in feeling that his friend has violated confidence in giving to the public arrangements of a private nature.—Arizona Gazette.

Beware of the Money Power.

The United Trusts and Syndicates, by experimenting constantly and pushing forward all along the line and at the same time by convincing the United States not to EXPERIMENT, succeeds in approaching the same relation to its rival government that a live ant sustains to a dead worm. By incessant and fearless activity, and by using our constitution, traditions and flag as a blind, this irresponsible despotism is fast nearing the time when it hopes to throw off its mask and publicly usurp supreme power.—Walter Vrooman in New Democracy.

Here Is a Pointer.

When the people attempt to defeat a new aggression on the part of the trusts by carrying out the plan of some renowned thinker, known to be uninfluenced by special interests, the emissaries of the trusts scatter the people by crying: "EXPERIMENT," "An untried and Utopian scheme," "Innovators." While the patriots argue as to whether their plan is really an EXPERIMENT, the enemy captures a new position.—Walter Vrooman in New Democracy.

"Money," says the Rev. Mr. Howard, "is condensed opportunity." Yes, and the opportunity is often so condensed that the trying to grasp it is a very Tantalus-job.—Fresno (Cal.) Republican.

The latest issue of Bradstreet notes a sharp decline in business in the South, and ascribes it to the yellow fever. Just so. When famine abroad creates a great demand for breadstuffs, thus stimulating business, the improvement is at once placed to the credit of the McKinley administration. When pestilence checks business in the South, the blame is laid at the door of God. That is about the average gold bug's idea of fairness.—National Bimetallist.

The Bethlehem, Pa., iron and steel works made a 10 per cent cut on the wages of its employes which went into effect the 1st inst. The company makes the queer statement that by thus reducing the wages it hopes to be able to keep the men at work steadily. Probably if the company would pay nothing it would be able to keep the men at work double shift right along. What a wonder it is that the gold-bug statesman didn't think of using that logical argument in the recent campaign?—Bessemer Indicator.

During the campaign of 1896 and the late fall elections the Republican party pledged itself to secure the independence of Cuba. Elections are now over, and this important pledge is repudiated. Cuban bondholders, who helped to make up the twenty million corruption fund, now have the ear of the administration. The struggling patriots of Cuba are to be sacrificed and the wishes of the American people ignored in order to keep faith with the money power.—Silver Knight-Watchman.

The "Fiat" Goes.

After the discovery of gold in California and Australia, Germany and Austria demonetized gold; in 1871 Germany demonetized silver and remonetized gold. To a "fool greenbacker," it would appear as if neither gold nor silver is money without the "fiat" of a government behind them to make them such. If the United States were to demonetize both gold and silver, would they still be money? And if it were to issue full legal tender greenbacks, with the "fiat," wouldn't they still be money and the world still move. The trouble with you is that you don't know what money is, and it is doubtful if your saw dust filled cranium will ever be able to grasp the truth. Wealth is the product of labor; money, its legal representative, is a product, not of labor, but of legislation, and only when it is supplied by a government in ample volume does it benefit a people. Restrict its issue below the needs of the people for exchange and unjust rates of interest are possible; increase the issue so that the supply equals the demand, and prosperity comes, gold or no gold, silver or no silver.—People's Tribune.

Fight Every Day.

Every time General Grant ordered an attack on the forces defending negro slavery, he tried an EXPERIMENT. Never could he tell exactly what the result would be. There might be more dead Union men than Confederates, or there might possibly be more dead Confederates than Union men. The one thing of which he was certain, however, was that his duty consisted in going ahead, and, when defeated he gathered his troops together and tried again. He knew that, if followed long enough, his plan would crush the Confederacy.

So each attack on the white slave power to-day is an EXPERIMENT.—Walter Vrooman in New Democracy.

EMINENT DIVINES' SERMONS

THE BOYHOOD OF JESUS IS THE SUBJECT OF DR. TALMAGE.

The Sixth of the New York Herald's Competition Sermons Is on "The Power of Gentleness"—Rev. Dr. Talmage Discourses on Christ as a Village Lad.

TEXT: "Thy gentleness hath made me great."—Psalms, xviii., 35.

There is little in the popular idea of gentleness to make it desirable for God or man. We think of it as lacking in vigor and a long way removed from greatness. So suggestive is it of weakness and softness that we want very little to do with it.

Our ideas of gentleness need rectifying. We speak often of a gentle horse. What do we mean by it? That horse is gentle that is nervy and full of mettle, able to pass anything on the road, and yet so easily subdued that the voice of a little child would bring him to a standstill at once. That man is gentle who has the strength of a Hercules and the tenderness of a woman. Gentleness is power withholding itself and spending itself in goodness.

A good illustration of gentleness was ... on a Spanish battle field. A gallant French soldier's sword was uplifted to strike his foe to the earth, but he saw as the ... was about to descend that his antagonist had but one arm. Instantly he stayed his sword, brought it to a salute and rode on.

Gentleness in a woman is love's mighty magnet and will attract its own from the ends of the earth. A woman without it is a monstrosity, a warrior with it is greater far than he who shows his power by burning villages, destroying crops, executing prisoners. The great general at Appomattox considering the interests of the men in gray, treating them as his countrymen, ... the salute already under way to ... victory lest they should be further humiliated, and sending the defeated ... well fed and equipped for labor ... farms, declaring himself a gentle ... as well as a great soldier, and did more in that hour to make his country great than other great men have done in a ... Grant could have crushed the ... in that hour; instead, he caressed it ... her weak and wayward child, ... it to tears.

We speak often of the power of God, but ... the gentleness of God that works the greatest wonders. It is this that mak... ... great. See the gentleness of God at the beginning. It is not the strong arm, ... tender heart, that reveals itself with fallen man. It is not a king's voice that we hear in Eden, but a father's, ... that, "Adam, Adam, where art thou?" When God came down in human flesh to save a lost world He came in the ... A still and quiet night it was ... the Saviour was born. The stars ... down peacefully upon the shepherds as they watched their sheep. The world was wrapt in slumber. It was into this stillness and quiet that God's angels came and God's glory shone around. Gentle words those were the angels spoke: "Be not afraid," so sweet and gentle was the music ... the angels' best that no one save the shepherds heard it.

The spirit of the Gospel is the same. It ... up in the words: "A bruised reed will He not break; the smoking flax He will not quench." It is by gentleness that God seeks to win the world to righteousness and truth. "The Lord God is a sun." Sooner or later cold and icy hearts must give way before Him. We need more gentleness before the earth can become like heaven—gentleness on the part of parents. You can shout at your children and bring them into trembling submission; you can thrash them into obedience; you can starve them into submission. The strong can bring the weak to terms for a while by any of these methods. But if you want to show your child the sweet reasonableness of your position and to make him docile, obedient, trustful, sit down and talk gently with him and seek to make his heart your own.

We need more gentleness on the part of preachers. "The servant of the Lord must not strive, but be gentle toward all men." ... of Preacher was so gentle that Simon the Pharisee asked him to dine with him; the poor harlot lingered near His feet ... Zaccheus and Matthew, the publicans, became His loyal disciples, and even a thief, in the agony of crucifixion, cried, "Lord, remember me." The world needs nothing more than it needs gentleness and love. Human hearts are hungry for the music of gentle voices and the touch of tenderness. Why should we not all try to show that we are the sons and daughters of the gentle God?

Rough, rude boys have been made great for time and eternity by the sweetness and gentleness of mothers and sisters. Dull, ... scholars have been made ... and earnest by the tender patient love of self-denying teachers. Souls ... mean, selfish, sinful, have been made great by the gentle, faithful labors of those not willing that any should perish. The night of life is coming on apace. It will be sweet to have the gates swing inward at our approach to the city eternal, and to be welcomed by some watching for our home coming, and to hear from joyful lips such words as these: "Thy gentleness hath made me great."

CHRIST AS A VILLAGE LAD.

Dr. Talmage Discourses on the Boyhood of Jesus.

TEXT: "And the child grew and waxed strong in spirit, filled with wisdom, and the grace of God was upon Him."—Luke xi., 40.

Concerning what bounded the boyhood of Christ, the preacher said, we have whole libraries of books and whole galleries of canvas and sculpture, but art and poetry ... have, with few exceptions, ... the village lad. "Yet, by ... evidences," he said, "I think we can come to as accurate an idea of what Christ was as a boy as of what Christ was as a man.

"First, we have the Bible account of His boyhood. Then we have the prolonged account of what Christ was at thirty years of age. We have besides an uninspired book that was for the first three or four centuries after Christ's appearance received by many as inspired, and which gives a prolonged account of Christ's boyhood.

"The so-called apocryphal Gospel, in which the boyhood of Christ is dwelt upon, I do not believe to be divinely inspired, and yet it may present facts worthy of consideration. Because it represents the boy Christ as performing miracles, some have ... down that whole apocryphal book. But what right have you to say that Christ during certain ... at ten years of age ... as at thirty ... was in boyhood ... as divine as in manhood ... He must have had the power to work miracles, whether He did or not work them. When, having reached manhood, Christ turned water into wine, that was said to be the beginning of miracles. But that may mean that it was the beginning of that series of manhood miracles.

"In a word, I think that the New Testament is only a small tract ... of what Jesus said and did ... liberty to believe or reject these ... apocryphal Gospel which say that when the boy Christ with His mother passed a band of thieves, He told His mother that two of them, Dumachus and Titus by name, would be the two thieves who afterward would expire on crosses besides Him. Was that more wonderful than some of Christ's manhood prophecies? Or the inspired story that ... Christ made a fountain spring ... of a sycamore tree so ... washed His coat in the stream ... —was that more unbelievable than the manhood miracle that changed common water into a marriage beverage? Or the uninspired story that two sick children were recovered by bathing in the water where Christ had washed. Was that more wonderful than the manhood miracle by which the woman, twelve years a complete invalid, should have been made straight by touching the fringe of Christ's coat? Is that more wonderful than the manhood miracles by which Christ reanimated the dead again and again without going where they were or even seeing them?

"From the naturalness, the simplicity, the freshness of His parables and similes and metaphors in manhood discourse I know that He had been a boy of the fields and had bathed in the streams and heard the nightingale's call, and broken through the flowery hedge and looked out of the embrasures of the fortress, and drank from the wells and chased the butterflies."

Dr. Talmage referred to Christ in the mechanic's shop, having been taught the carpenter's trade by His father, Joseph. "His hammer pounding, His saw vacillating, His axe descending and the perspiration from His work standing on His brow."

Then said the preacher: "I show you a more marvelous scene—Christ, the smooth-browed lad, among the long-bearded, white-haired, high-foreheaded ecclesiastics of the Temple."

Following other events recorded in the apocrypha, the preacher asked if they were more wonderful than events recorded in the New Testament.

"If Christ were divine was He not able at ten or twelve years to describe the human system as well as though He had been fifty years standing at an operating table or in a dissecting room? In other words, while I do not believe that any part of the so-called apocryphal New Testament is inspired, I believe much of it is true, just as I believe a thousand books, none of which is divinely inspired."

"A child twelve years old, surrounded by septuagenarians, He asking His own questions and answering theirs. Let me introduce you to some of these ecclesiastics. This is the great Rabbin Simeon! This is the venerable Hillel! This is the famous Shammai! These are the sons of the distinguished Betirah. The first time in all their lives these religionists have found their match, and more than their match. Though so young, He knew all about that Temple under whose roof they held that most wonderful discussion of all history. He knew the meaning of every altar, of every sacrifice, of every golden candlestick, of every embroidered curtain, of every crumb of shew bread, of every drop of oil in that sacred edifice. He knew all about God. He knew all about man. He knew all about heaven, for He came from it. He knew all about this world, for He made it. He knew all worlds, for they were only the sparkling morning dewdrops on the lawn in front of His heavenly palace.

"Put these seven Bible words in a wreath of emphasis: 'Both hearing them and asking them questions.' I am not so much interested in the questions they asked Him as in the questions He asked them. He asked the question not to get information from the doctors, for He knew it already, but to humble them by showing them the height and depth and length and breadth of their own ignorance. The radiant boy with any one of a hundred questions about theology, about philosophy, about astronomy, about time, about eternity, may have balked them, disconcerted them. Behold the boy Christ asking questions, and listen when your child asks questions. He has the right to ask them. The more he asks, the better. Alas for the stupidity of the child without inquisitiveness! It is Christ-like to ask questions. Answer them if you can. Do not say: 'I can't be bothered now.' It is your place to be bothered with questions. If you are not able to answer, surrender and confess your incapacity, as I have no doubt did Rabbis Simeon, and Hillel, and Shammai, and the sons of Betirah when that splendid boy, sitting or standing there, with a garment reaching from neck to ankle, and girdled at the waist, put them to their very wits' end. It is no disgrace to say 'I don't know.' The only being in the universe who never needs to say 'I don't know' is the Lord Almighty.

"But while I see the old theologians standing around the boy Christ, I am impressed as never before with the fact that what theology most wants is more of childish simplicity. Why should you and I perplex ourselves about the decrees of God? Mind your own business and God will take care of His. In the conduct of the universe I think He will somehow manage to get along without us. If you want to love and serve God, and be good and useful and get to heaven, I warrant that nothing which occurred eight hundred quintillion of years ago will hinder you a minute. It is not the decrees of God that do us any harm; it is our own decrees of sin and folly.

"You need not go any further back in history than about one thousand eight hundred and sixty-four years. Something occurred on that day under an eclipsed sun that sets us all forever free, if with our whole heart and life we accept the tremendous proffer. Do not let the Presbyterian Church, or the Methodist Church, or the Lutheran Church, or the Baptist Church, or any of the other evangelical churches spend any time in trying to fix up old creeds, all of them imperfect, as everything man does is imperfect. Our own denomination made itself absurd by trying to revise its creed made hundreds of years ago. You might as well try to revise your grandmother's love letters. I move a new creed for all the evangelical churches of Christendom, only three articles in the creed, and no need of any more.

"If I had all the consecrated people of all denominations of the earth on one great plain, and I had voice loud enough to put it to a vote, that creed of three articles would be adopted with a unanimous vote. This is the creed I propose for all Christendom:

"'Article first—God so loved the world that He gave His only begotten Son, that whosoever believeth in Him should not perish, but have everlasting life.'

"'Article second—This is a faithful saying, and worthy of all acceptation, that Jesus Christ came into the world to save sinners, even the chief.'

"'Article third—Worthy is the Lamb that was slain to receive blessings and riches and honor and glory and power, world without end.'

"But you go to tinkering up your old creeds, and patching and splicing and interlining and annexing and subtracting and adding and explaining, and you will lose time and make yourself a target for earth and hell to shoot at. Let us have creeds not fashioned out of human ingenuities, but out of scriptural phraseology, and all the guns of bombardment blazing from all the port holes of infidelity and perdition will not in a thousand years knock off the church of God a splinter as big as a cambric needle. What is most needed now is that we gather all our theologies around the boy in the temple, the elaborations around the simplicities, and the profundities around the clarities, the octogenarian of scholastic research around the unwrinkled cheek of twelve-year juvenescence. 'Except you become as a little child you can in no wise enter the kingdom;' and except you become as a little child you cannot understand the Christian religion. The best thing that Rabbis Simeon and Hillel and Shammai and the sons of Betirah ever did was, in the temple, to bend over the lad who, first made ruddy of cheek by the breath of the Judean hills, and on his way to the mechanic's shop, where he was soon to be the support of his bereaved mother, stopped long enough to grapple with the venerable dialecticians of the Orient, 'both hearing them and asking them questions.' Some, referring to Christ, have exclaimed: Ecce deus! Behold the God. Others have exclaimed: Ecce Homo, Behold the man. But to-day, in conclusion of my subject, I say: Ecce adolescence! Behold the boy."

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

INTERNATIONAL LESSON COMMENTS FOR JANUARY 9.

Lesson Text: "Jesus Tempted," Matthew iv., 1-11—Golden Text: Hebrews ii., 18—Commentary on the Lesson For the Day Written by Rev. Dr. D. M. Stearns.

1. "Then was Jesus led up of the Spirit into the wilderness, to be tempted of the devil." From the beginning to the end He was under the guidance and control of the Holy Spirit most fully. The Father having testified to the fact that He was His beloved, well pleasing Son, the Spirit now leads Him into this great conflict with the devil, at the very beginning of His public work, that He may meet the adversary face to face and overcome him. And now, in that He Himself hath suffered, being tempted, He is able to succor them that are tempted (Heb. ii., 18). He had been subject for thirty years to all the temptations of an ordinary human life, but this is something special, and, as Dr. Weston says, has to do with Him as Son of "Man," Son of God and the Messiah.

2. "And when He had fasted forty days and forty nights, He was afterward an hungered." Luke iv., 2, says, "In those days He did eat nothing." This was not a new thing on the earth, for Moses passed through it twice and Elijah once (Deut. ix., 9, 18; I Kings xix., 8). On the Mount of Transfiguration we find the three who fasted forty days. There must be some wondrous significance connected with it which we have not yet had revealed to us. In Mark xi., 12, we read of another occasion on which He was hungry, and one of His last utterances on the cross was, "I thirst" (John xix., 28), but what an awful thirst that must have been!

3. "And when the tempter came to Him he said, If thou be the Son of God, command that these stones be made bread." God had testified, "This is My Beloved Son," but the devil questions it to His face, with this "if." As in the garden of Eden he questions the word of God with his "Yea, hath God said" (Gen. iii., 1), and has ever since been doing the same thing, so he does not hesitate to face the Son of God Himself with his devilish doubts. Think it not strange, then, if he oft approaches you in this way, but receive not his doubts; it is better not to listen to him.

4. "But He answered and said, It is written, man shall not live by bread alone, but by every word that proceedeth out of the mouth of God." Not the gratification of our desires, but the will of God, is the great thing. Just as in our words we show our loved ones our hearts, so God in His word has given us His heart for us, and God is love. Shall we be satisfied with His heart and His way and thus live on His word, or shall we insist on having all things minister to our comfort at all costs?

5. "Then the devil taketh Him up into the Holy City and setteth Him on a pinnacle of the temple." Up to Jerusalem, the city of the great king (chapter v., 35). Do not stop to ask how, but simply believe and consider the temptation and the victory and ask the Spirit to apply it to your own soul. The wilderness and the hunger, and the stones suggest the hard and lonely and commonplace things in daily life, but the Holy City, the temple and a pinnacle thereof suggest holy things and the heights thereof not so common, but far more dangerous ground because more holy.

6. "And saith unto Him, if Thou be the Son of God, cast Thyself down, for it is written, He shall give His angels charge concerning Thee, and in their hands they shall bear Thee up, lest at any time Thou dash Thy foot against a stone." The devil can quote Scripture, and sometimes quite freely and at great length, but never to glorify God nor to help a soul to know Him. He always perverts it with the purpose of working ruin. The man who thinks that because he is a child of God and controlled by the Spirit therefore he cannot sin, nor even make a mistake, is on a pinnacle of the temple listening to the devil. He would do well to consider these words. "If a man think himself to be something when he is nothing, he deceiveth himself." "If any man think that he knoweth anything, he knoweth nothing yet as he ought to know" (Gal. vi., 3; I Cor. viii., 2).

7. "Jesus said unto him, It is written again, Thou shalt not tempt the Lord thy God." Scripture never contradicts Scripture, but explains it and instructs us how to avert its abuse. Jesus quoted it from the heart to the glory of God, believing every word, but the devil uses it only wickedly. We may be said to tempt God when we make a self-willed demand for His help, or in any way claim His promises for selfish ends. Our Lord lived that the Father might be glorified, and taught us that when we are willing to live thus we can ask what we will and receive it.

8. "Again the devil taketh Him up into an exceeding high mountain, and sheweth Him all the kingdoms of the world, and the glory of them." The first temptation was to satisfy His physical need, to satisfy Himself, on the ground that He was entitled to it; the second was to show Himself and what a great one He was; the third was to accept the world without the way of the cross. The prince of this world offers it simply on condition that it be accepted as from him and that he be thanked for it.

9. "And saith unto Him, All these things will I give thee if Thou wilt fall down and worship me." The time will come when the antichrist, the man of sin, the beast of Rev. xiii., will accept this offer of satan and for a brief period will do wondrously, but, oh, how brief his dominion; how fearful his fall and how awful his eternal doom, the lake of fire and brimstone forever! (Rev. xix., 20).

10. "Then saith Jesus unto him, Get thee hence, satan, for it is written, Thou shalt worship the Lord thy God, and Him only shalt thou serve." True worshipers worship the father in spirit and in truth, for the Father seeketh such to worship Him. "God is a Spirit, and they that worship Him must worship Him in spirit and in truth" (John iv., 23, 24). The word of God is the only guide, the Holy Spirit the only teacher, the Lord Jesus the only way to God the Father; so to worship in spirit and in truth means that in all things Jesus is acknowledged as Lord to the glory of God the Father, and that all is done in accordance with the word and in the power of the Spirit.

11. "Then the devil leaveth Him, and behold angels came and ministered unto Him." Luke iv., 13, says that the devil departed from Him for a season. How thankful we should be that our Lord did not conquer satan in what we might call a miraculous way, but in such a way as He will through us conquer him also. He has left us His sword, the Word of God, and we are told in Eph. vi., 16, 17, that these, the shield of faith and the sword of the Spirit, will surely overcome the adversary.—Lesson Helper.

Queerest Town in England.

The most curious town in England is Northwich. There is not a straight street, nor, in fact, a straight house in the place; every part of it has the appearance of having recently suffered from the visitation of an earthquake.

Northwich, as every one knows, is the center of the salt industry. On nearly all sides of the town are big salt works, with their engines pumping hundreds of thousands of gallons of brine every week.

At a depth of some two hundred or three hundred feet are immense subterranean lakes of brine, and as the contents of these are pumped and pumped away, the upper crust of earth is correspondingly weakened, and the result is an occasional subsidence.

Those subsidences have a "pulling" effect on the nearest buildings, which are drawn all ways, giving the town an upside-down appearance.

"How long," inquired the Eastern potentate, "has the young man been in the treadmill?"

"Two weeks, O conquering king. And he told me yesterday that he was having a fine time, although the scenery was getting monotonous."

"Two weeks? Great Allah! Who is he, anyway?"

"He claims he is an American bicycle scorcher, but what that might be I know not."—Puck.

It keeps some men so busy telling what they are going to do to-morrow that they haven't time to do anything to-day.

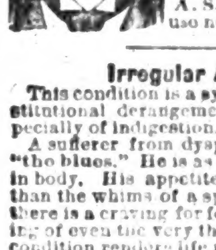
Gath, S. C., writes: For several years I had suffered much from Cold Feet, Sick Headache, Sleepless Nights, and found no relief until I commenced taking that greatest of all medicines, Dr. M. A. Simmons Liver Medicine. It is better than the others.

Enlargement of the Womb.

This may be caused by congestion, inflammation or tumors. The symptoms are a dull pain in the lower part of the abdomen, sometimes depressing or sinking down of the womb, and some uneasiness in emptying the bladder and bowels. Costiveness should be avoided by using Dr. M. A. Simmons Liver Medicine in small doses, and our Mexican Female Remedy used as an injection, and the persistent use of Dr. Simmons Squaw Vine Wine, will bring about a cure.

Julian R. Harrison



Hattieville, S. C., says: Have used Dr. M. A. Simmons Liver Medicine six years in my family. My Wife thinks there is nothing like it for Constipated Bowels and Biliousness. It cured me of Palpitation of Heart. Have used "Zeilin's Regulator," and think Dr. M. A. S. L. M. the best, and use no other.

Irregular Appetite.

This condition is a symptom of some constitutional derangement of the system, especially of indigestion.

A sufferer from dyspepsia generally has "the blues." He is as miserable in mind as in body. His appetite is more capricious than the whims of a spoiled child; at times there is a craving for food, at others a loathing of even the very thought of eating. This condition renders life miserable and should be corrected by the use of Dr. M. A. Simmons Liver Medicine.

Knocked Out. Zeilin's big fraud has just been knocked out by the Supreme Court. The unfortunate merchants who were induced to buy the stuff find themselves with goods that cannot be sold, as the Supreme Court enjoined it. The United States Court knocked out the old proprietors of the article now called "Black Draught" as perpetrators of fraud.

Moral: Don't "tamper" with frauds!

Merit Means Money Made.

You cannot advertise money out of people's pockets all the time; you may do it now and then, but if you don't give them something of absolute merit in return, advertising will never prove successful. The kind of advertising that pays is advertising a good thing. As it has merit the people will use it again and again. Never has this been better illustrated than in the great success of Cascarets, candy cathartic, that we have been lately advertising in this paper. All druggists call Cascarets, repeaters, that is, people buy them, like them, and buy them again and recommend them to their friends. Cascarets are guaranteed to cure costipation or money refunded, and are a delightful laxative and liver stimulant; the best medicine ever made. We recommend all our readers to try them.

THE KNIGHTS OF LABOR

Is the greatest Labor Organization the world has ever seen.

It is the only organization which, while striving to secure for wage-workers the best possible terms as to wages, hours and conditions, aims at reforming the causes of industrial injustice.

It secures to each trade and locality absolute control over its own trade or local affairs, yet its perfect organization enables its members to act unitedly, promptly, and, therefore, effectively when concentrated action becomes necessary to remedy injustice or to resist oppression.

It is pledged to work for the overthrow of the capitalistic system of production and exchange, yet, realizing that reforms can only be beneficial and permanent when they rest upon the convictions of a wisely educated people, it seeks to accomplish its objects only by appeals to reason and science—never by force.

It is a secret organization only so far as secrecy is necessary to protect its members from wrong and persecution, and can never be used to shield wrong-doing.

Its doors are open to all who labor honestly and usefully either by hand or brain, without question or discrimination on account of creed, race or nationality.

The Grandest Remedy

Mr. R. B. Greeve, merchant, of Chilhowie, Va., certifies that he had consumption, was given up to die, sought all medical treatment that money could procure, tried all cough remedies he could hear of, but got no relief, spent many nights sitting up in a chair; was induced to try Dr. King's New Discovery, and was cured by the use of two bottles. For past three years has been attending to business, and says Dr. King's New Discovery is the grandest remedy ever made, as it has done so much for him and also for others in his community. Dr. King's New Discovery is guaranteed for Coughs Colds and Consumption. It don't fail. Trial bottle free at Dr J. S. Johnson's Drug Store.

Don't Neglect Your Liver.

Liver troubles quickly result in serious complications, and the man who neglects his liver has little regard for health. A bottle of Browns' Iron Bitters taken now and then will keep the liver in perfect order. If the disease has developed, Browns' Iron Bitters will cure it permanently. Strength and vitality will always follow its use. Browns' Iron Bitters is sold by all dealers.

VOL. VI CLANTON, ALA., THURSDAY, JANUARY 13, 1898 NO. 12

QUEROS OF THE DAY.

Captain David L. Brainard, who has been selected to take charge of the Kellett relief expedition, is very appropriately connected with the subsistence department of the United States army and is well fitted by experience for the task. He was second in command of the Greely expedition. It was Brainard to whom the scant food supply of the starving remnant of that unfortunate company was intrusted, and it was due to his careful husbanding of the precious stores that the lives of those who survived were prolonged until relief came. That he might add to the food he daily fished through the ice, keeping this up until he was exhausted and lay down to die. His was one of the most heroic deeds of arctic exploration. Captain Brainard enlisted in the army as a private and has seen some service among the Indians.

CAPTAIN DAVID L. BRAINARD.

The New French Embassador.

M. Jules Cambon, the new French ambassador, who has just arrived, comes from a family of diplomats. His brother, M. Paul Cambon, is the French ambassador at Constantinople, where he has made a brilliant record. Jules comes to us direct from Algeria, over which French colony he has held sway as governor general for several years. In order to show that his service there has been entirely satisfactory to the French government he has been appointed honorary governor of the colony, an unusual honor. The change from northern Africa to our beautiful national capital is said to be a most acceptable one to M. Cambon, and he hopes that his stay in Washington will be a long one. Both he and Mme. Cambon are fond of society, and they have leased the house formerly occupied by M. Patenotre with a view to extending generous hospitality to members of the diplomatic and official circles. Poor M. Patenotre, who offended his government by marrying Miss Ellverson of Philadelphia, has been packed off to Madrid and will do penance for making an undiplomatic marital alliance by serving a term at the divary Spanish court.

Palms at Home.

While acres of fertile soil are covered with all the plants that can stand the English climate, there are others from more sunny climes that must have the protection of glass and heat. The palmhouse, which accommodates the ferns and palms of priceless value, is 362 feet long, 100 feet broad and 66 feet high. It is the largest and most elegant structure of its kind, fitted up with all the modern inventions to make plant life strong and vigorous. A spiral staircase conducts the visitor to a high room or platform where all the exquisite greenery and graceful forests of plants can be viewed. The view is a glimpse of fairyland, a veritable illusion of the senses, a midsummer night's dream.—George E. Walsh in Lippincott's.

Brain Trouble.

Mamma—Why don't you study your lessons as Tommy Smart do?

Johnny—If I studied like Tommy Smart does, I'd be afraid of getting brain trouble like he has.

Oakmulgee, Ala, Jan. 8, 1898

Editor BANNER: Christmas over, and not over either. If you had been here you could not have told by our young people whether cotton was worth five or fifteen cents per pound, but you may be sure the older ones of us could feel the difference. However, it is said that where there's a will there's a way, but the way gets to be hard to find. Our portion of the country is the shortest in way of a crop of any year in thirty, but we have to go some way.

I guess I can tell the best fish story. Byard Grillin got a few carp fish four or five inches long three years ago, and caught one recently weighing fifteen lbs. sure.

Our people are beginning to talk politics some. I have been at a loss to know what the G. O. P. folks would have to tell, but all at once I thought of it and I do not mind telling it. They will each accuse the other of ruining the country, and oh, how true it is! If a Democratic administration in full force could save the country by putting cotton down as low as four cents, and a republican administration, with no excuse only to save the country from bankruptcy, put cotton down to four and one-half cents, all to make what Grover and William and John Sherman call sound money. For the life of me I cannot see what promise they will come to the people with. But they are coming. I for one will be ready for them with a few questions, such as what have they done for the country, etc. Above all things we must avoid division among ourselves; select our best men and go for them to all intents and purposes, leaving off self, work for the good of our party and for the saving of our country, is now a serious question. We must have no straddlers but strait middle of the roaders on our ticket. No country can ever rise under any contraction system. As the currency is the life blood of any nation, they cannot live without it in sufficient quantity to transact business in a legitimate way. Yours truly,

W. A. FOUNTAIN.

SEVEN DOCTORS FAILED.

A Case of Systematic Catarrh in Its Worst Form Cured.

Invalids would do well to read the following letter recently written to Dr Hartman by Mr. Abe Miller, of Stilesville, Indiana. Not only read it, but ponder on it. Not only ponder on it, but act upon it. He writes: "A word of praise to your medicines. I began taking Pe-ru-na the 20th of February, 1897. I was all worn out. My weight was 134 pounds I was weak and almost ready to go to bed. I had catarrh, asthma and kidney trouble. I have taken ten bottles of Pe-ru-na and I weigh 161 pounds I feel as if I could do as much work as any man on earth. I had tried seven doctors; some of them as good as there were in the state. But none of them did me any good. At last I saw Pe-ru-na advertised. Then I began taking it and it has cured me. So I recommended it to my neighbor and it is doing the work for him. He has gained four pounds from the use of three bottles.

Turn-Round Topics.

On Sunday morning, January 2, Mr. P. H. Connell and Miss Martha J. Howard were joined for life by Rev. A. L. Pattillo. The contracting parties are well and favorably known, and happiness reigns supreme.

As the weather was so disagreeable Christmas day most people spent the day quietly at home. In the evening the weather cleared up and a good crowd turned out to see the Christmas tree at Mr. T. C. McKinney's. The tree was beautiful and the children's hearts were made glad by the numerous presents.

On Friday evening Miss Janie Oden entertained a number of friends at her mother's home and a most delightful pleasure it proved to all. Throughout the evening there was a constant flow of music rippling amongst the congenial company, whose jolly laughter was an index of the pleasure they experienced.

Walter Kendrick returned Sunday from a trip to friends in Stanton, Plantersville and Selma.

W. H. Kendrick and family returned to their home at Speigners, Tuesday after spending the holidays with parents here.

M. C. Williams visited Robinson Springs last week.

Household Gods.

The ancient Greeks believe that the Penates were the gods who attened to the welfare and prosperity of the family. They were worshiped as household gods in every home. The household god of to-day is Dr. King's New Discovery. For consumption, coughs, colds and for all affections of the Throat, Chest and Lungs it is invaluable. It has been tried for a quarter of a century and is guaranteed to cure, or money returned. No household should be without this good angel. It is pleasant to take and a safe and sure remedy for old and young. Free trial bottle at J. S. Johnson's Drug store.

Generosity in bloom. Just before Christmas Mrs. Henry Durben decided to have a little cake party for the benefit of our preacher, whom all admit to be a true Christian, laying aside sectarianism. Mrs. Durben had the room beautifully decorated, and after the voting, and the distribution of cakes, sweet songs were sung in honor of the good old preacher, who has never been heard to call for money in all his long ministerial service. Well, enough was realized to buy him a nice suit of clothes, and a kind neighbor, who is never behind on such occasions, furnished him with a fine new hat.

Mr. B. M. Gentry is busy, moving his saw mill from Thorsby to Bibb county, on the midland railroad.

Mr. Peter Quigley has left the county poorhouse, of which he has so long been the able superintendent, and is now snugly ensconced in his new home, happy and jovial.

Concert at Longstreet.

The concert for the benefit of the Unity Presbyterian Church came off with great eclat on the night of the 30 ult. The program was well rendered by the pretty maids and graceful lads of the community.

The audience went away highly pleased. The chief good done was in the expansion of the minds of the youth and elevation of the standard of society. Miss Kate Garner deserves the praise and respect of every good citizen for the advancement of education and uplifting of the intellects of the people of that community, for by her efforts chiefly was the concert formulated and produced.

A Cure for Lame Back.

"My daughter when recovering from an attack of fever was a great sufferer from pain in the back and hips," writes Louden Grover, of Sardis, Ky. After using quite a number of remedies without any benefit she tried one bottle of Chamberlain's Pain balm, and it has given entire relief." Chamberlain's pain balm is also a certain cure for rheumatism. Sold by J. S. Johnson jr. Druggist.

General Yamaji, who has just died in Japan, was known as "the one-eyed demon." He was a type of the old Oriental warrior, fierce, cruel, vengeful, fearless, and only happy in battle. He did not hold an independent command in the late war, having been attached to the army of Field Marshal ant Oyama, but he had charge of e assaulting columns at Port Arthur, here he added to his old reputation for courage. General Yamaji was a ater of foreign innovations and was the most intense degree a reaction- ist. Few like him are left in Japan.

e Chicago Tribune calls attention e fact that "one of the noteworthy litions affecting industrial enter es in the States of Pennsylvania liana and Ohio is the alarming de se in the supply of natural gas in States. For several years past reater part of the natural gas used ais country has come from the States above named, and at one time the supply was thought to be inexhaustible. The error of this supposition, however, may be clearly shown by comparing the total output of natural gas to these States for the past year with the total output for preceding years. In 1896 the value of all the natural gas produced in Pennsylvania aggregated only $5,528,610 against the enormous valuation of $19,282,375 put upon the product of 1888. Ohio has ver been such a prolific generator natural gas as Pennsylvania, but figures for the Buckeye State show rresponding diminution. In 188 produced $5,215,639 worth of ral gas, whereas at the present her total output is valued at only 29,400. Of the States producing l gas Indiana is the youngest. y a few years have elapsed since resources of the State in this direction were first discovered, but the total valuation of Indiana's yearly supply of natural gas has gradually diminished from $5,718,000 in 1893 to only $5,043,635 in 1896. As the Indiana gas fields are much younger than those of Pennsylvania and Ohio, [illegible] that they will continue to yield a eral supply of gas for some time to come. Of course it is difficult to judge of what is underneath the earth's crust, but, from superficial indications, the natural gas industry in the United States is doomed to ultimate extinction.

This is furthermore shown by The figures for the entire country. In cor 38 the value of all the natural gas in of the United States aggregated $22,620,375, whereas [illegible] aggregated only $13,0[illegible] position only, from these figures in the U[illegible] gated to [illegible] of supply [illegible]

HAPPENINGS IN ALABAMA.

The Week's News Gathered and Told in a Brief Way.

ALABAMA AT FLORIDA FISHERY CONGRESS.

The End of a Noted Will Case—Courtland a "Dry" Town—Many Negroes Duped by "African Charley"—Interest in the Good Roads Convention.

Alabama at the Fishery Congress.

It is the wish of Gov. Bloxham, of Florida, that as many of the citizens of Alabama as possibly can, will attend the National Fishery Congress to assemble at Tampa, Fla., on the 19th day of January, 1898. The array of learned and gifted men who will participate in the deliberations of this important industrial congress are seldom assembled in any state or country. It is hoped that the citizens of the southern states will appreciate the aims and objects of this congress and will avail themselves of the educational features which it will promulgate, and point to sources for the enrichment and happiness of the people.

Prominent men, delegated from distant California, Oregon, New England, the western states and foreign countries, will attend this congress.

It is earnestly desired that Alabama send exhibits of marine products to place in the exposition building, which will be a feature of this congress.

Will Contest Ended.

The will of Captain Duncan Dew of Eutaw, who died last October leaving an estate worth a quarter of a million dollars, has been admitted to probate, a compromise having been reached between Joe J. Dew, second cousin of the deceased and sole legatee, and fourteen first cousins in Alabama, Georgia, North Carolina, Mississippi and Texas, contestants.

By the terms of the compromise the contestants get $90,000 in cash, the three Alabama contestants receiving $8,000 each and the remainder to be divided between the other eleven, while valuable farm lands in Bibb, Wilcox, Tuscaloosa, Blount and Greene counties, Alabama, lots in Birmingham and five farms in Texas go to Joe Dew.

The contestants charged forgery of the dead man's name to the will, and the trial was about to begin when the compromise was effected.

Negroes Swindled.

The negroes in and around Ramsey, Sumter county, have been buncoed out of about $800 by one of their race who operated an African colonization sell. The perpetrator of the swindle has successfully worked other part of the state. He is an ordinary, medium-sized negro, known as "African Charley." His scheme was to collect $2 from each negro who wanted to go to Africa. For that sum "African Charley" would promise his dupe free transportation to the dark continent and land and a home on his arrival. About 400 negroes were swindled. All of the negroes were told to meet at Gainesville on January 1 where boats would carry them to Mobile and thence to Africa. "African Charley" has disappeared and no boats have been reported at Gainesville for the emigrants.

Courtland a "Dry" Town.

The saloons of Courtland, numbering three, have been closed since the beginning of the new year, and from every indication it seems that it will be a dry town. The ladies recently took the matter in hand and are determined that no whisky shall be sold there. It has been learned that it is impossible for the saloonists to secure signatures of a sufficient number of the freeholders to obtain a license, the majority of them having signed the petition for the ladies against the sale of liquor.

Interest in the Good Roads' Convention.

Much interest is being manifested throughout the southern states in the Good Roads Convention to be held in Anniston in February. Nearly every line of railway in Alabama has signified its willingness to give free transportation to delegates to the convention, and it promises to be one of the largest attended and most enthusiastic meetings ever held in that city or state.

Impeding Navigation.

The United States government has caused the indictment of a number of saw mill owners above Mobile for impeding navigation in the Alabama river with their logs and rafts. It is charged that navigation on the river has been rendered absolutely dangerous of late by the careless rafting of timbers, and District Attorney Wickersham says that he intends to prosecute the cases with vigor.

Will Pay the Teachers.

The public school teachers of the state will be paid for the quarter ending January 1 before the end of next week. The money is already in the treasury. Governor Johnston and Treasurer Ellis have pushed tax collectors into remitting their collections about a month earlier than for some years past.

NEWS ITEMS OF OUR OWN STATE.

Democratic Committee to Meet.

Chairman John B. Knox, of the democratic state executive committee, has issued a call for that body to meet in Montgomery, Tuesday, February 22, for the purpose of fixing the time and place of holding the next state convention.

Alabama Postmasters.

The following were appointed postmasters Monday in Alabama: William H. Stacy, Jr., Central, Elmore county; William C. Powell, Dexter, Elmore county; R. J. Tomlinson, Five Points, Chambers county; B. H. Reynolds, Fredonia, Chambers county.

Accidentally Shot.

At Montgomery Master Jimmie LaPrade, who was accidentally shot in the knee while loading or cleaning his gun, died of his wound. The little fellow suffered greatly and finally died of lockjaw. His little companion, who was with him when the accident happened, is greatly distressed, though it was not his fault.

Large Land Purchase.

One of the most important of recent southern land purchases has been made by Messrs. J. J. Flowers, F. A. Flowers and J. D. Flowers, of Bolling. These gentlemen have purchased 60,000 acres of finely timbered land southeast of Bolling, near the Georgia-Alabama line, and will soon erect upon it an immense plant similar to the one at Bolling.

To Klondyke's Tempting Gold.

Six Alabamians left Birmingham Monday night for the Klondyke gold fields, Alaska, to seek their fortunes. There were in the party Joe W. Biddle, Jim Biddle and John Neal, representing the Klondike Mining company, of that city; R. W. Stapleton, representing the letter carriers of Birmingham, and Charles L. Smith, looking out for "No. 1."

Crushing Moonshiners.

Deputy Collector Logwood has recently destroyed seven illicit distilleries in the northern part of the state. One was destroyed in Madison county, one in Lauderdale, three in Limestone, and two in Cullman. Thos. J. and Tilden Walker of Plevna, Tom Lanier, Dempsey Smith, Green Sharpley and Jim Sharpley, of Battleground, were among the moonshiners arrested for operating the stills.

Libeled For Filibustering.

At Mobile the steam pilot-boat Somers N. Smith, which was seized a few days ago, as per instruction of the secretary of the treasury, was libeled in the United States circuit court for conveying men, arms, ammunitions and provisions to the insurgents in Cuba. The bill sets forth that the boat made two expeditions to Cuba between August 26 and October 29. She was fitted out here, having come from Pensacola, ostensibly for repairs. She is a vessel of seventy-nine tons.

Wreck on the Western Railway.

Saturday night a freight train on the Western Railway of Alabama was wrecked two miles south of LaGrange. The Cannon Ball for New Orleans could not get by and a train was made up to take its place, consisting of engine, two coaches and a sleeper. When one mile south of Shorter's station, twenty miles from Montgomery, a bridge gave way under the train and it was wrecked. The engine passed over in safety, but the cars were badly damaged. Captain H. M. Law, conductor, and Will Pope, flagman, were badly injured. Pope not having yet regained consciousness. A number of passengers were injured.

Later news announces the death of Captain Law from the effects of his wounds.

Return of Youth to an Old Woman.

Limestone county has an interesting phenomenon. Mrs. Polly Emry, aged eighty-seven years, a white woman of a highly respectable family, appears to have fallen heir to another maidenhood. For a quarter of a century she has been an old woman, with white hair and no teeth, and the weight of years was apparent in her wrinkled face and enfeebled movements. Twenty-seven years ago every tooth was extracted from her mouth.

About a year ago her health commenced to materially improve. Her strength rapidly returned, her figure became more erect, her eyes brighter, her movements more elastic. Her hair also became perceptibly darker. Her gums commenced to swell and finally new teeth appeared. The change in a year is said to be astonishing. Her hair is now black. She has a new and substantial set of teeth as white and strong as a maiden's. Her vitality is greatly increased; her strength has returned and her appearance is said to suggest her age as forty instead of more than twice that number of years.

Joseph J. Williams, independent democrat, was elected mayor of Memphis, Tenn., over Hon. Lucas Clapp, the present incumbent, by a majority of about 500 votes. The entire independent ticket also carried by reduced majority.

Debs to Tour the South.

Eugene V. Debs has left for a trip through the south in behalf of the social democracy. He has an engagement to occupy the Rev. Thomas Dixon's pulpit in New York city April 17. He says that in every state in which an election will be held this year the social democrats will have a ticket in the field.

SEMINOLES ON WAR PATH.

Great Excitement Prevails in the Indian Nation.

THREATS OF A GENERAL UPRISING MADE.

Indians Are Seeking to Avenge the Death of the Two Seminoles Who Were Burned at the Stake For Murdering Mrs. Leard.

A special from Kansas City, Mo., says: General alarm exists throughout the southwest owing to the persistent rumors of a Seminole Indian outbreak which have poured in from various parts of the country since nightfall. The stories vary from the threatening war-dances to massacres, in which a score or more settlers are said to have lost their lives, and it is not probable the real state of affairs will be known until tomorrow. Since the burning of the two Indian murderers near Maud, Oklahoma, last Friday, the Seminoles have become greatly excited and trouble has been feared for several days. Specials from the various stations of the Indian country follow.

Trail of Blood.

A telegram received at South McAlester, I. T., Tuesday morning by the train dispatcher of the Choctaw, Gulk and Oklahoma reports a band of 150 Seminole Indians is on the war path and is leaving behind it a trail of blood. A telegram was sent by the railroad agent at Earlboro. The brief information conveyed was that the Seminoles were avenging the work of the mob that burned two Seminole Indians at Blake Shaw, at the stake on Friday last, and that the infuriated Seminoles had already massacred twenty-five men, women and children.

People Fleeing.

A special received at Wichita, Kan., from Shawnee, O. T., says: Tuesday the train from the east brought to that city a car containing every woman and child at Earlboro. The passengers confirm previous reports and say a pitched battle between the Indians and settlers took place this afternoon near Maud, resulting in the wiping out of several families. A later dispatch from Shawnee says:

A message calling for men and arms has just been received from Earlboro, a town of about 100 inhabitants, saying that nearly 300 Indians have sworn vengeance on the town and are moving towards the place, declaring they will burn the place. Grave fears are entertained for homes-traders on the border. A special train was made up from here of 150 men armed to the teeth, and left for the scene. The whole country is aroused.

MILLER'S STORY OF SUFFERING.

He Arrived at Dawson From Circle City Badly Frozen.

A letter from Dawson City, dated December 9, says: "Joaquin Miller arrived at Dawson from Circle City, December 4, at 11 o'clock. He was badly frozen, having lost a part of the great toe of his left foot; his left ear was sloughing off, and both cheeks were frozen. He left Circle City thirty-five days ago, in company with Harold Canovano, of the coast survey. They started from Circle City without dogs, having been unable to secure them. They pulled their outfit on a sled. Mr. Miller brings a story of great suffering all along the river by parties caught in the ice on their way to Yukon. He also reports the death of Charles Anderson, a young man from Brooklyn, N. Y., who accidentally shot himself while in a boat, about fifty miles below Circle City.

A Doctor Wants a Pardon.

Application has been made to the governor of Alabama for the pardon of Dr. Sullive Baldwin, the young Bullock county physician who is in the penitentiary serving a sentence for the murder of Wade Edson, at Fitzpatrick, two years ago. At Dr. Baldwin's request, Governor Johnston paroled him during the yellow fever epidemic at Montgomery to attend the sick, and he rendered substantial service, reporting back to the prison at the close of his term of parole. His friends will make a diligent fight for his pardon, but the friends of his victim will as earnestly protest, it is said.

Steamer Willie Call Launched.

The new steamer Willie Call, built by Peter Wagon, of Ball Play, Ala., was launched Tuesday for her maiden trip between Rome and Gadsden. Government experts declared her to be the finest boat that has navigated the Coosa river in twenty years.

Village Improvement Society.

A village improvement society has been organized at Huntsville, Ala., with the following officers: W. R. Rison, president; S. R. Cruse, treasurer; Mrs. M. W. Bolling, secretary. The society will set earnestly to work to improve the appearance of the city.

New Cotton Seed Oil Mill.

The cotton seed oil mill at LaFayette, Ala., is an assured fact. Messrs. C. C. and L. L. Torbet have contracted with Messrs. G. E. McGehee and Charles Schnessles for the mill, and work will begin on it early in the spring.

Governor Appoints a Sheriff.

Governor Johnston has announced the appointment of M. C. Grant as sheriff of Covington county, Ala., to succeed Hart, who recently resigned as [illegible] of the Dunston sensation.

TRADE WITH JAMAICA.

The South's Brilliant Commercial Prospects in the Semi-Tropics.

Mr. Robert G. Mallett, of Kingston, Jamaica, is in Birmingham. Since his return to the South Mr. Mallett has exposed his views on the trade relations between the South and Jamaica and is of the opinion that an immense market in the semi-tropics is knocking at the door of the South and is ready to take her goods, wares, merchandise and manufactures as soon as the proper steamship arrangements and trade relations can be established. He had a partner in Mobile and took from that port any amount of grain, flour and provisions, sending back by return cargo such things as limes, cocoanuts, bananas, spices, etc., etc. The yellow fever interfered a great deal with the trade last fall and gave him an opportunity to return home for a rest. Mr. Mallett grows enthusiastic whenever he talks about the remarkable field the South is going to have in the virgin countries in the semi-tropics. He says the South is going to grow rich by selling to its Latin neighbors in the South as the North and East have grown rich by selling their manufactures to the South. In other words, he believes the trend of growth and development in America is toward the South and that Alabama, with proper regulations, is going to get the lion's share of the future wealth to be obtained by dealing with the semi-tropics.

COLORED SWITCHMAN WON

In a $10,000 Suit Against the L. & N. Railroad.

There was a decision rendered in the supreme court at Montgomery, Ala., Tuesday of more than ordinary importance. It was a case taken on appeal from Jefferson county to the highest court. The plaintiff was Alexander Thornton and the defendant was the Louisville & Nashville railroad. Thornton was a colored man employed by the road as switchman.

He was on duty in the yards of the road in Birmingham, when, by some peculiar accident, he was thrown from a car and had both legs cut off.

The decision handed down by the supreme court makes it the first opinion with so large a judgment that has ever been rendered in the South against a corporation in favor of a colored man. The decision of the higher court carried with it a judgment of $10,000 and interest from the time of rendition of the original judgment in the lower court, more than a year ago.

POPULISTS IN CONVENTION.

Will Formulate the Policy to be Followed at Coming Elections.

Populists of national renown are assembling at St. Louis to take part in the conference which convenes Wednesday of the people's party national committee and national reorganization committee. Chairman Milton Park of the reorganization committee, which was appointed at the Memphis convention of the middle-of-the-road populists, speaking of the purposes of the conference, said:

"We wish to come to an understanding on matters relating to the calling of a national nominating convention and also the policy to be followed at coming elections. None of the middle-of-the-roaders favor fusion with the democrats, and I am pretty certain that populists everywhere will have nothing to do with fusion. The conference, which will probably last two days, will be behind closed doors and nothing will be given out until its conclusion."

MARCUS A. HANNA

Has Been Elected to the Senate to Succeed Himself.

Senator Marcus A. Hanna, of Ohio, has been re-elected to succeed himself in the United States senate, unless a change occurs Wednesday when the two houses of the legislature meet in joint session to cast the final vote. There is yet a possibility of his defeat, as the factional war against the senator will not be over until Wednesday.

Senator Hanna received 73 votes, a majority of one in a total membership of 145. The senate voted 19 for McKisson and 17 for Hanna. The house vote stood: Hanna, 56; McKisson, 49; Willey, 1; Warner, 1; Lentz, 1, and one absent. The only absent one was Representative Cramer, the democratic-populist, who is seriously sick.

Nominations Sent In.

The president Tuesday sent the following nominations to the senate:

Treasury—John Landis, of Pennsylvania, coiner of mint at Philadelphia.

To be consuls—W. Maxwell Greene, of Rhode Island, at Doublin, Ireland; Henry D. Saplor, of Pennsylvania, at Matanzas, Cuba.

Anchor Line Assigns.

The Anchor Line, operating a line of steamships between St. Louis and Southern points, has made an assignment. Their assets are given at $98,000, but no statement as to liabilities has been made. St. Louis is the company's headquarters.

Shot in the Leg.

Dr. R. B. Champion, a prominent dentist of Troy, Ala., while out in a boat fishing, happened to a very serious accident. His gun was in the bottom of the boat and was accidentally discharged, blowing Champion's leg almost off. It had to be amputated below the knee.

VOTED TO STRIKE.

Walk Out Almost Certain in the Cotton Mills of New Bedford.

A strike in the cloth mills of New Bedford, Mass., next Monday morning can only be averted by withdrawing the notice of a 10 per cent. reduction posted in the mills December 31st. The spinners Tuesday took final action on the question of striking. The result was in favor of resistance to the reduction, the vote being 398 to 4.

The attempt at arbitration have thus far resulted in the decision of the state board of arbitration to visit New Bedford. They will be present Wednesday and a conference of mill men and operatives with the state board has been called. Both sides will be represented, but both the mill men and the operatives, as would seem from present indication, will be unwilling to surrender their positions.

RUINOUS ORDER.

Tobacco Tax Will Destroy Business in Florida.

A new order from the treasury department has created a great sensation among the cigar manufacturers of Tampa. It compels them to have tobacco imported before the Weyler edict examined and appraised according to the present tariff, thus raising the duty from 35 cents to $1.85. This, if persisted in, means the closing of all the factories, as they cannot stand the raise. They declare it means an entire suspension of business. Such action would throw 10,000 people out of employment in Tampa alone, with a loss of $60,000 a week to business, as the pay roll amounts to that much. It is estimated that about 18,000 bales of tobacco will be affected by this ruling.

Trouble Over Water Works.

The negotiations between the city council of Montgomery and Mr. W. B. Rice, of Boston, representing the Capital City Water Company, are now off. The price proposed by Mr. Rice, $450,000, was considered exorbitant and the council rejected it. The council says that the present works are very much in need of repairs, would require $200,000 to put them in proper order and that new works can be built for much less. The city engineer has been instructed by the council to prepare plans and specifications for new works and the war is now on. In the meantime the Capital City works are being operated under the receiver of the United States court, and there is no contract with the city.

Re-Elected Officers.

At Huntsville, Ala., the directors of the Farmers and Merchants' National bank re-elected the following officers: W. J. Wellman, president; S. J. Mayhew, vice-president; A. E. Martin, assistant cashier; S. J. Mayhew, C. L. Nolen, W. S. Wells, R. M. Church, H. M. Knapp, of Bridgeport, Conn.; T. W. Pratt and W. J. Wellman, directors.

The Work of a Scoundrel.

Monday night some one set fire to the corn crib of Dr. John Hoetzler, near Madison, Ala., and destroyed his entire crop of corn, amounting to 4,250 bushels. No clue to the incendiary.

The Fisheries Congress.

As the national fisheries congress that is to meet at Tampa, Fla., on the 18th has assumed international importance, commercial organizations and mayors of cities throughout the United States are requested by Governor Bloxham to appoint delegates to this important industrial assembly.

...QUEROS... ...view of trade says: ...with a tone of quiet ...fidence pervading nearly all ...lines of business, with encour... ...ing activity in the iron trade, a re... ...inauguration of work by many thousands ...ticultural employes in the western ...ious industry, a largely reduced vol... ...thing of business failures as compared ...h corresponding periods in pre... ...ceding years, and a general outlook ...portantly not inferior to any previous ...ear at this time. Distributive trade ...has naturally been rather slow, peddling stock taking and the return of ...salesmen to the field. While there is ...gion for distributive business is no ...nger, industrial activity is a special ...feature unconfined to any one section, but specially notable in the west. Resumption of work after the holidays has been generally encouraging in that section.

Autumn's weather in the northwest checks distribution. Sales of southern iron are large. Louisiana sugar returns have been very satisfactory. Nine-tenths of Florida's orange crop was gathered before the freeze, and cotton is steady and in good export demand. Wool has opened up actively at some eastern markets and lower prices for cotton goods have stimulated some demand.

Naturally enough there is a slight gain in the number of failures this week over the last, the total aggregating 333, against 207 last week, but a heavy falling off from 1897, when the total was 488.

The holidays have exceeded their expected effect on export trade in cereals. Wheat exports from the United States and Canada for the first week in January amount to 3,481,075 bushels, against 5,585,000 bushels last week, 3,108,000 bushels in this week a year ago and 3,471,000 in the corresponding week in 1896.

Corn exports also show a sensible diminution, amounting to 1,086,000 bushels last week, 1,819,000 bushels in this week a year ago and 2,626,000 in the corresponding week of 1896.

Public Feeling Intense.

The grand jury of Hale county, Ala., made a partial report Tuesday morning. It is supposed Bill Sott was indicted for the murder of the Singley family last November. The day of his arraignment and trial has not been set. Public sentiment is in favor of giving the prisoner a fair trial.

The citizens of Hale county while doing all in their power to aid in securing for the prisoner a trial, there are many who fear an outbreak at any time. In some quarters the feeling is intense against the prisoner and it would take but little to stir up a sentiment having for its purpose the lynching of Sott.

The character of the crime, and the splendid standing of the murdered family has a tendency to inflame even the most law-abiding citizens.

Bill for a Lincoln Statue.

Early in the extra session of congress Senator Cullom introduced a bill making an appropriation of $50,000 for a statue of Abraham Lincoln, to be erected at Gettysburg. The bill went to the committee, where it remained until last Friday, when Senator Hansbrough reported the bill favorably.

It is the unanimous sentiment of the committee that Gettysburg is one of the most appropriate of all places for a statue of Abraham Lincoln. The name of the great president is as ever be associated with that battlefield. Like the wonderful achievements of the union army, his eloquent address at the dedication of the soldiers' monument there will live in history as long as the battle is remembered or the republic lasts.

Improving the Militia.

Adjutant General Hopkins of the Florida state troops, is developing plans for making the militia more efficient, and raising all the companies to a higher standard of excellence in practical soldiery. He has issued instructions to Col. W. S. Pinckney, who is at the head of the ordinance department, to prepare requisitions with this end in view. These requisitions are being put in form and soon will be promulgated to the troops.

Ironaton Taking on New Life.

The Clifton Iron Company is getting its new coke furnace at Ironaton, Ala., ready to go into blast as rapidly as possible, and that it will go into blast early in February. The coke furnace at Ironaton is a new furnace to be added to the number in the Anniston district, and is up to date in all its departments and has a daily capacity of from 150 to 175 tons.

A Swamp Utilized.

Mr. Burwell Boykin has a shingle mill in operation near Portland, Ala., that will turn out 40,000 shingles a day. He has a dam thrown across a swamp and can float the cypress logs to his mill for a distance of two miles. The cypress swamp, where his mill is located, is five miles long and two miles wide.

SWEEPING CHANGES

Made by the Republicans' Bill to Reform the Civil Service Law.

The bill for the reform of the civil service law, which has been drafted by a special committee of republican members of the house of representatives opposed to the system in its present form, makes sweeping changes in the present system, the most important of which is the establishment of a five years' tenure of office for those government employes who are brought within the terms of the bill. The measure limits the application of the civil service system to the departments in Washington and to such other localities where the total number of employes exceed twenty-five. All appointees are commissioned for five years, with the power of removal clearly regulated and vested in the appointing power. It is provided, however, that no removal shall be made for political or religious causes and in case of removal the causes shall be specified and the papers made a record of the office. All persons now in the public service are to terminate their service five years from the time that the act takes effect.

The measure recognizes the general eligibility of those persons for re-appointment. It includes in the civil service postal clerks and letter carriers in office having over ten employes, exclusive of subordinates. It limits the civil service regulations to clerks whose compensation is from $900 to $1,800 per annum and includes clerks, copyists, computers, and counters.

It is pointed out that the essential idea of the foregoing bill is to take out of the civil service all responsible and important offices, limiting it only to clerks in Washington and certain large cities and in these cases fixing a tenure of office of five years.

CONGRESSMAN KING FROM CUBA.

Says Naked People Are Dying Like Sheep in the Streets.

After spending several weeks making personal investigation of the situation in Cuba, Congressman King, of Utah, arrived at Tampa, Fla., last Saturday. His tour covered four provinces, and was thorough. Speaking of his trip, he said:

"I made it a point to learn just what the conditions were, and I found that no one has ever half depicted the awful horrors of the reconcentrados. These people, naked and emaciated, are still dying like sheep in the streets of the towns where they are huddled. To realize just what this means one must see for himself. I found that the Spanish people have evidently very little faith in the new autonomical government, for they are strongly in favor of annexation, and want it at once. General Blanco has not succeeded in his efforts to alleviate the sufferings, for he has not had financial means to carry it out. I have interviewed insurgent leaders, Spanish officers and Americans, and have some definite idea of what is going on in that devastated island. I know positively that General Lee is not going out with General Blanco to see General Gomez."

As Mr. King saw General Lee, he evidently speaks with authority.

Prof. Herman Schörfield, of Columbian University, came on the same boat. He has been making investigations for the purpose of writing magazine articles for Germany and Austria. He corroborated, in the main, Mr. King's views, but thinks the war will continue a long time.

PREFERS TO WIN WITH THEM.

Bryan on the Populists and Silver Republicans.

W. J. Bryan, in concluding a speech before the Bryan league at the Tremont house, Chicago, during a banquet held after the Auditorium meeting, made some remarks which are interpreted as showing his intentions if he is nominated for the presidency in 1900.

In speaking of the next presidential election, Mr. Bryan said:

"It may be we will be strong enough to win without outside help. But nevertheless, I prefer to win with the populists on one side and the free silver republicans on the other. And we must not forget when the victory is won that in the campaign of last year it took more courage on the part of the free silver republicans to desert their old party and more self-sacrifice on the part of the populists to go outside of their organization for a presidential candidate, because he agreed with them on the paramount issue, than it did for the democrats to support the ticket which was nominated by their own national convention."

DELIVERANCE CELEBRATED.

The People of Meridian Dined Many Prominent Visitors.

The people of Meridian, Miss., celebrated in right royal manner Monday night their deliverance from a visitation of the dreaded plague—yellow fever—which scourged numerous sections of Mississippi, Alabama and Louisiana, during the autumn just closed.

In the spacious dining-rooms of the Grand Avenue hotel the representative citizens and business men of Meridian—self-constituted hosts—made their guests; the leading officials of the various systems of railways converging there, the heads of postal departments, the members of the state board of health, the members of the city board of health and the members of the municipal boards, feel that they appreciated the efforts individually and collectively put forth by them, to the end that Meridian might be spared an affliction which, at one time, seemed to be inevitable.

THE PASSING SHOW.

GLANCES AT POLITICS AND CONDITIONS.

While Many of Us Are Puzzled to Make a Living the Administration Finds It Equally as Hard to Preserve Its Credit.

The administration is very much agitated at the deficit in the revenue. Some way of taxing the poor will have to be contrived, for the idea of an income tax cannot be tolerated. Accordingly, Senator Allison is to the fore with a scheme for taxing tea, and Senator Morrill is in favor of taxing coffee. The Populists in the senate want to revive the income tax, but the decision of the Supreme court stands in the way. But, whatever is to be the outcome, things cannot be long delayed, for no man, and no government either, can go on very long if he or it spends more than is received in the shape of income. The idea of levying a special tax on the railroads of the country has been suggested, but Mr. McKenna, who is so soon to go on the bench of the Supreme court, declares that a national tax on railroads is unconstitutional, and we are inclined to suspect that he knows all about it. Taxes on the rich are not apt to be constitutional, although taxes on the poor are invariably so, says the Twentieth Century. It is a little odd to have men like Senator Lodge get up and say that our country is the richest one on earth and blessed with inexhaustible natural resources, while at the same time there is no way of providing taxes enough to run the government. Senator Lodge says the talk about the distress of the poor is quite absurd because the taxes laid on the poor yield so much. This is really a very striking and ingenious argument. If the poor can pay so much, what can the rich pay?

A Fall River, Mass., dispatch under a December date, said:

"At a general meeting of the Cotton Manufacturers' Association it was unanimously voted to reduce all wages in the mills of the city, the amount and time of the reduction being left to a committee. It is understood that the cut will not be less than 10 per cent, and that it will go into effect Jan. 1. The cut will effect 28,000 persons. The feeling is prevalent that there will be a strike, but how large a proportion of the operatives will take part in it it is impossible to say. Every effort will be made to avert such action."

There is a remedy for all this condition, costing less exertion than all these kind of "strikes"—Vote! Labor has the electoral strength to make a "strike" at the ballot box that will end for all time the necessity of strikes against reduction of wages, says the Journal of the Knights of Labor. Stand together one time at the polls, and victory will perch upon the standard of labor, and the "crown of liberty" will be won for the industrial masses. Let all labor interests combine now for one great future effort to throw off industrial serfdom. Will you do it, and be free and prosperous?

It now looks like the American workers will not complete the Grand Trianon in Paris which they recently started, according to Pilgrim. This building was to have cost many millions and would have astonished the world by its magnificence. Perhaps you are surprised to learn that the workingmen of the United States have been engaged upon a building of this nature. Perhaps you never heard of it. Well, they have been doing that very thing, vicariously as it were. You see, the laboring people of the United States annually create and turn over to the Gould family many million dollars in return for which the Gould family do nothing. But in the direction of royalty the Gould do bend, and hence it came about once upon a time that Annie Gould married a French count and the count married Annie and $70,000,000, which the employees of the Missouri Pacific railroad and the Western Union Telegraph company had earned and turned over to Annie, because her father had given her a few little pieces of paper called stocks and bonds. So Annie and the Count de Castellene were married and soon afterwards the count turned up in Paris, and since then the "fur has flew." Banquets and yachts, balls and parties were plentiful, and the count, in cudgelling his brains for a way to spend the creation of American labor faster, hit upon this scheme of a magnificent building in Paris—not in America. But this extravagance caused the countess who, it is said, is now tired of her profligate husband to stop the flow of the golden dollars. Think of the hardships it takes to keep this irresponsible animal pleased. It has taken the cold and discomfort of many thousand railroad men to gratify his inordinate vanity, and more than one of them are minus limbs in trying to create wealth for him to throw at the birds, and many of them have left widowed women and fatherless children to face a bitter world.

According to the President's message, the nation is a lump of prosperity; according to a bill introduced by Senator Hawley at the earliest hour possible, the nation's prosperity has wide and deep cracks. No sooner was congress opened and the President's message had been read, than Senator Hawley demands attention to a bill brought in by him for two additional regiments of artillery. How is the introduction of this bill to be interpreted but as the lie direct to the Presidential claim of our paradisiacal happiness? Now, then, if McKinley is right, and we are a happy, prosperous people, why should we want more regiments of artillery than we now have? If, on the other hand, Hawley is right, and we do need such increase of repressive power, we are not a happy and prosperous nation. One or the other is in error. Which of the two, McKinley or Hawley, in giving the lie to the other, is right?

"Six tramps were arraigned in Justice Dunn's court Tuesday, charged with destroying railroad property. Among them was a lawyer of no mean ability who undertook the defense, and actually cleared the whole gang, much to the surprise of all. There was no question as to some of them burning posts to make a fire, but the tramp lawyer was smart enough to clear them all. His name was Norcross, of a noted family of lawyers of Illinois."—Dispatch, Arkansas City, Kas.

Little items like the above that occasionally creep into the press show what kind of people are being crowded into the ranks of the tramps, says the Appeal to Reason. Not only the laborer and the skilled mechanic are getting down in the mire, but lawyers, doctors, bankrupt merchants and speculators—men who a few years ago would have considered you insane had you suggested that they or their kind would have been forced on the tramp. In one smelter in Pueblo, Col. five years ago, there were seven graduated physicians doing common labor alongside of the Italians and Huns. Their dream of life had faded. Poverty is a great equalizer. I often meet tramps who are educated and have ability, but not in the one line that counts—money making. There are thousands of lawyers, doctors and other professionals who are on the tramp because they could not make a living—and they had to eat. Nice system!

ECONOMIC AXIOMS.

Divide the money, you double debts;
Double the money, you divide the debts;
Divide the money, you divide prices;
Double the money, you double prices.

That commodities would rise and fall in price in proportion to the increase or diminution of money, I assume as a fact that is incontrovertible; that such would be the case the most celebrated writers on political economy are agreed.—Ricardo.

If the whole money in circulation was doubled, prices would double; if it was only increased one-fourth, prices would rise one-fourth.—John Stuart Mill.

Numberless as are the evils by which kingdoms, principalities and republics are wont to decline, these four are, in my judgment, most baleful: Civil strife, pestilence, sterility of the soil and corruption of the coin. The first three are so manifest, that no one fails to apprehend them; but the fourth, which concerns money, is considered by few, and those the most reflective since it is not by a blow, but little by little, and through a secret and obscure approach, that it destroys the state.—Copernicus in the 16th century.

For men have so well obscured the facts about money that the great part of the people do not see them at all. The moneyers do as the doctors do who talk Latin before women, and use Greek characters, Arab words, and Latin abbreviations, fearing that if the people understood their receipts they would not have much opinion of them.—Bodin in 1577.

Money is the life blood of business. Make it plenty, all business prospers and workingmen are employed at good wages. Make it scarce, all business languishes, merchants become bankrupt and laborers are starving.—Wendel Phillips.

The Trust Octopus.

Trust-forming goes steadily on. It stops not for season of plenty or adversity. One combination after another is consummated and the underman squeals every time. The latest is the steel rod, wire and nail trust, and J. Pierpont Morgan, prince of the trust makers, is the head. Morgan will have power far beyond anything the Rothschilds ever thought of, if he is spared to live a few years more. And every turn he makes is at the direct detriment of the public. The voters of the country had only begun to appreciate the trust danger when six and a half millions of them last November cast their ballots for a man pledged to throttle the octopus. But in the next election this issue will far transcend anything else in importance. Silver nor tariff can touch it. The very life-blood of the people is being drawn by these combinations. The larger cities are being fed by the sacrifice of the smaller. The railroads foster the tendency. It comes to be a question whether or not the government some day will not be faced with the problem of absorption of the railroad and telegraph systems as well as the great industrial enterprises. That's why the government talks about building an armor plate plant. It, itself, is coping with a combination.—Knoxville Sentinel.

Wall Street's Panics.

And now the New York gold bug papers tell us that if England had accepted the offer of our commissioners for silver coinage, Wall street would have given this country a panic such that the one of '93 would not serve even as a sample. They say that England's statesmen and business men saved us. To which we will simply add that one of these days Wall street will give us one panic too many, and she will need several Englands to save her.—Free Press.

SOUTHERN INDUSTRIAL NEWS.

List of Those Reported to the Chattanooga Tradesman.

Among the most important new industries for the week just ended, the Chattanooga Tradesman reports the following: The Brown Common-Sense Harrow Company, capital $20,000, Murfreesboro, Tenn.; a development company with a capital of $20,000 at Birmingham, Ala.; the Nashville Electric Light and Power Company, Nashville, Tenn.; the Conway Milling Company, capital $12,000, Conway, Ark.; a flour and grist mill at Boxwood, Va.; machine works at Gallatin, Tenn.; the Pratt Process Company, capital $40,000, Atlanta, Ga.; a $25,000 bicycle factory at Charleston, S. C., and vehicle works at a cost of $50,000 at Louisville, Ky.

The Witherspoon-Ross Shoe Company, capital $40,000, has been chartered at Louisville, Ky. The Bourgeois Motor Works, limited, capital $10,000, at New Orleans, La.; the Eagle Gap Quarry Company, limited, capital $10,000, at Shreveport, La., and the Elliott Farm Oil Company, maximum capital $100,000, at Parkersburg, W. Va. The erection of a $75,000 silk mill is contemplated at Newport News, Va.; a $50,000 woolen mill will probably be erected at Madisonville, Tenn., and tobacco factories at Farmville, Va.

Woodworking plants will be established at Courtland, Ala.; Lexington, Ky., and Staunton, Va.

WILL TRY AGAIN.

Chandler Says McKinley Will Send His Bimetallic Envoys Back to Europe.

Senator Chandler had a conference with President McKinley Monday upon the subject of bimetallism and he said after the close of his interview: "The President stands firmly in favor of international bimetallism as promised by the St. Louis platform. He considers the negotiations with European powers only temporarily suspended on account of the peculiar condition of affairs in India, and it is the President's intention to again send his envoys to Europe as soon as conditions are favorable for continuing negotiations."

A Woman With Courage of a Soldier.

By the vigorous use of a hat pin Miss Addie Williams of Chicago succeeded in foiling the robbery of a street car conductor of that city. Just as the robbers were getting the best of the fight, she concluded to take a hand. Grabbing her long hat pin that fastened her hat to her hair she made a plunge with the pin on the robber nearest her. All her strength was bent to the thrust and the man screamed with pain. He released his hold on the conductor and turned on Miss Williams. She stuck him again and he quit the fight. Miss Williams went for the next man and she made a thrust for his eyes. The point of the pin struck the cheek. This was enough for the robbers and they jumped from the car.

Voted to Strike.

The weavers of the Wauskuck worsted mills at Providence, R. I., rejected the compromise offered by Superintendent Metcalf and voted to strike. They had demanded the restoration of the 1893 schedule as already put in effect at the mill at Olneyville, and the abolition of the double loom system.

Accidentally Killed Himself.

While in the act of pulling his shotgun from beneath his bed, George Robinson, of Apalachicola, Fla., shot and mortally wounded himself. The load of shot entered Robinson's left thigh, mutilated his leg horribly, and made life impossible and he died shortly after.

Cowboy Kills Two Men.

Seth Burrows, a cowboy of El Paso, Texas, got into a fight across the river in Juarez, Mexico, and in a pitched battle stood off the Juarez police for one hour. Burrows was killed himself, but before biting the dust he killed a gambler, a policeman and fatally wounded two other officers.

Looms Will Be Stopped.

On February 1, 1,140 looms in the printing department of the Manchester (N. H.) cotton mills will be stopped for an indefinite time. The cause assigned is the falling off in demand for print goods. There will also be a reduction of about 10 per cent in wages, affecting about 3,000 employes.

New Mississippi Postoffices.

New postoffices have been established at Attitude, Prentiss county, Solon P. Copeland, postmaster; Eskrit, Montgomery county, John M. Fowler, Jr., postmaster; Ogden, Wilkinson county, Edwin D. Ogden, postmaster.

Inaugurated as Governor.

Governor Bushnell, was inaugurated governor of Ohio Monday amidst the most exciting scenes ever witnessed in Columbus, fully 15,000 visitors coming in during the previous twenty-four hours.

Governor Taylor, of Tennessee, declines to enter the senatorial race.

Treasury Statement.

Monday's statement of the condition of the treasury: Available cash balances, $241,310,838. Gold reserve, $161,506,106.

At San Antonio, Tex., Frank Beitel, an old resident and wealthy realty owner and lumber merchant, committed suicide by shooting himself through the head. Ill health prompted the deed.

GOD'S MESSAGE TO ...

PREGNANT THOUGHTS FROM WORLD'S GREATEST PROPHETS.

The Angel of Pain—A Prayer for Nearness—Souls Ripen in Different Ways—How Can God's Child Repine—Straight Up the Only Way—Must Obey.

"In all their affliction He was afflicted."—Isaiah 63: 9.

He sat beside me through the weary weeks
I grew impatient, eager to complain.
He was not welcome in my happy home,
This shadow men call Pain.

He lingered still, with grave and patient grace,
As if to hear me say, "Thy will be done."
With childish petulance I turned aside,
Nor could my trust be won.

At last he went away. Once more my feet
Could tread, with haste, the busy walks of life.
I saw the struggle of the maimed and weak
Helpless, amid the strife.

The little children in their sordid homes,
Robbed of their birthright by the greed for gold;
The sick, the aged, in their awful fight
With Poverty and Cold.

I saw, unmoved, Oppression, with her hand
Grasping the throat of Freedom by the might.
Wrong ride triumphant, dragging Right on wheels
The forms of Truth and Right.

And then I knew that from my soul had gone
The sweetest joy a mortal heart can know,
The Christlike power to sympathize or share
In human grief and woe.

Up from my heart went forth the bitter cry:
"Father, forgive! teach me to do thy will.
Take all I have, but let me share with them
The joy of loving still."

An answer came, as in my lonely room,
One winter day, I watched the day wane,
And in the dark-robed angel at my side
I knew my old friend, Pain.

MR. JOHN EDWARDS, of Kingsmeon, came smiling into the office last Saturday, and we had the pleasure of handing him a Ten Dollar gold piece, in accordance with our cotton guessing contest proposition. Brother Edwards says there is no paper like THE BANNER, and gave us the following receipt:

Clanton, Ala., Jan. 8, 1898

RECEIVED of THE BANNER Ten Dollars in gold, being the amount of the prize offered by THE BANNER to the paid up subscriber making the nearest correct guess to the number of bales of cotton marketed at Clanton up to Dec. 31, 1897.

JOHN EDWARDS.

ALL Populists in Alabama are pleased to know the State campaign this year will be fought on clean party lines with no entanglements with either of the old parties.

The conference called by the national organization of the People's party went into executive session at St. Louis with about fifty populists present. Most of those in attendance were middle-of-the-road populists, very few of the members of the national executive committee had been invited having appeared. The conference will probably be in session two days.

WE learn, on good authority, that all the stock of the Alliance Co-operative Company at Jemison has been bought up by W. H. Merritt and L. H. Reynolds, and the old Alliance Co-operative Company is no longer in existence. The new firm will be the Jemison Mercantile Company, and they will carry on business at the old stand with increased capital and enlarged facilties. The new firm is well equipped for business and we bespeak for it the trade of that community, feeling assured that our people will reap the benefit of the change, the capital of the old Co-operative Company being insufficient to fully carry on the business.

HON. Wm. J. Bryan, in a recent speech, made the following remarks:

"It may be we will be strong enough to win without outside help. Nevertheless, I prefer to with the populists on one side and free silver republicans on the other. And we must not forget that when the victory is won that in the campaign of last year it took more courage on the part of the free silver republicans to desert their old party and more self sacrifice on the part of the Populists to get out of their organization to support a democratic candidate, because we agree with them on the paramount issue, than it did for the Democrats to support the ticket which was nominated by their own national convention."

Chairman Knox has called a meeting of the executive committee of the Democratic party of Alabama to assemble in Montgomery on February 22nd [illegible]

Clanton City Election.

THE election of a mayor and four councilors for the town of Clanton took place last Monday and passed off very quietly, although on the morning of the election an opposition ticket was sprung upon the voters. As was to have been expected the opposition met with very little support. The time has passed by when voters were content to let others choose whom they should vote for. Nowadays the voters expects to know in good time the men who seek official position, then to consider whom it is to his best interest and the best interest of the community to vote for. All the candidates were good men, and doubtless the city government would have been in good hands whichever were elected. But the point we wish to make is, that candidates for any office should let the people know they are candidates and what they propose to do if they are elected, then the voters can intelligently make their choice.

W. L. Sampey was re-elected mayor by a majority of 59, and W. I. Mullins and J. P. VanDerveer were re-elected councilors, while J. M. Potts and W. M. Wilson were elected to the council in place of E. Y. McMorries and J. M. Stanfield.

The opposition ticket, headed by A. C. Smith for mayor, withe Dr. W. E. Stewart and M. A. Watts for councilors, received a light vote, Dr. Stewart declining early in the morning to be a candidate.

General satisfaction is expressed at the result of the election, and we predict continued prosperity for Clanton under the new administration.

Chauncey Ives Filley, of St. Louis Missouri, for many years a Republican boss of the State, [illegible] not with the McHanna wing [illegible] ally and is giving out newspaper articles that disclose many ghastly G. O. P. skeletons. Of course those interested say that the old man is in his dotage, but those who are familiar with the outside facts of republican history for the last few years find Filley's statements dovetail perfectly with them. This last week he has spiked some of the biggest guns in Ohio and thus done much to defeat Hanna, who is his special hate now.

Governor Pingree, than whom few better advertised men are to be found in this country, has declared himself on the subject of a winning platform for 1900. He commends the silver cause, which he considers very much alive, but believes that "Fight the Trusts" must be the rallying cry for the next campaign. He says: "If the trusts and syndicates are to run the country as they are now we will have to change our system of education. There will be no use in educating our children to do business when there is no business. They will have to be taught to suck their thumbs instead of learning the industrial trades or even the commercial lines, because the trusts propose to combine every trade so that one man can do what it usually requires a half dozen or more to do. Competition is to be killed and all of its avenues closed to individual merit. That is the way things are drifting now, with all the precipitation the forces of legislative and administrative power can command. If the people can't be aroused to the magnitude of such an issue and the consequences it involves then they are content with serfdom rather than freedom."

The State Farmers' Alliance, held at Topeka, Kansas, January 5, was an interesting session. Judge Doster, Peffer and others took an active part. The State Populist Committee met the same day.

A scheme to establish free circulating libraries in every township in the state is the latest Kansas fad. The books are all to be along political and economic lines. The enterprise is said to be backed by both the Populist and Democratic State committees.

Dr. Benj. Andrews of Rhode Island, seemed to have left his muzzle at home when he recently spoke to the Kansas Teachers Association. He was as free and breezy as any westerner. Later in an interview he disclaimed having given up his silver views that at one time jeopardised his position as president of the Brown University, and speaking of the present banking system said: "I have positive information that some of the large New York banks informed correspondents, with whom the eastern institution was indespensible, that furnishing aid to the opposition, or silver campaign, meant an immediate cutting off of favors.

"The New York banker tells the banker of the west what principles he must follow politically and in a business way. The New York banker is subject to the dictation of London. We are like a fan. From one center, London, comes the edict to New York. From there it is distributed to the various parts of the United States, and the people are subservient to a system, the fountain head of which is England, the active body in New York and its tributary element in every city of the United States."

Hon. Ignatius Donnelly, the well known writer and politician, is being widely written up along a new line. He is to be married to a lady who is forty six years his junior.

The largest incorporation fee evar paid was recently deposited with the Illinois secretary of state by the American Steel Wire Company (trust). The amount was $37,500,000.

The newest woman in politics is Mrs. Griffith of Ohio, who on learning in the middle of the night that her husband who is a member of the Ohio legislature was weakening in his opposition to Hanna, wired the "continued pressure" that was brought to bear upon him, accordingly to the capitol, by a beer wagon, frustrated all plans on foot there. What is Scott's Emulsion?

It is a strengthening food and tonic, remarkable in its flesh-forming properties. It contains Cod-Liver Oil emulsified or partially digested, combined with the well-known and highly prized Hypophosphites of Lime and Soda, so that their potency is materially increased.

What Will It Do?

It will arrest loss of flesh and restore to a normal condition the infant, the child and the adult. It will enrich the blood of the anemic; will stop the cough, heal the irritation of the throat and lungs, and cure incipient consumption. We make this statement because the experience of twenty-five years has proven it in tens of thousands of cases. Be sure you get SCOTT'S Emulsion.

HOW TO FIND OUT.

Fill a bottle or common glass with urine and let it stand twenty-four hours; a sediment or settling indicates an unhealthy condition of the kidneys. When urine stains linen it is positive evidence of kidney trouble. Too frequent desire to urinate or pain in the back, is also convincing proof that the kidneys and bladder are out of order.

WHAT TO DO.

There is comfort in the knowledge so often expressed, that Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, the great kidney remedy fulfills every wish in relieving pain in the back, kidneys, liver, bladder and every part of the urinary passages. It corrects inability to hold urine and scalding pain in passing it, or bad effects following use of liquor, wine or beer, and overcomes that unpleasant necessity of being compelled to get up many times during the night to urinate. The mild and the extraordinary effect of Swamp-Root is soon realized. It stands the highest for its wonderful cures of the most distressing cases. If you need a medicine you should have the best. Sold by druggists, price fifty cents and one dollar. You may have a sample bottle and pamphlet both sent free by mail. Mention THE BANNER and send your address to Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N.Y. The proprietor of this paper guarantees the genuineness of this offer.

Showing Him the Door.

Some recently published memoirs of Marshal Pelissier, duke of Malakoff, one of the mushroom "nobles" of the court of Napoleon III, a man who had acquired a reputation for cruelty and violence in Algeria, relate an odd instance of the "not at home" system. The marshal had a servant named Fouquet, very honest and faithful, but stupid. One day the servant announced to the marshal a commandant of cuirassiers.

"I'm positively not at home to anybody," said the marshal and went on writing.

Fouquet went out, but soon returned and said timidly: "The commandant won't go. He says he has an important matter to communicate to"—

"Mille tonnerres!" shouted the marshal wrathfully. "I tell you to show him the door! Don't you know how to show any one the door? Well, now, I'll show you!"

And the marshal rose, gesticulating, and, followed by the astonished servant, rushed down stairs, walked up to the waiting cuirassier, seized him by the shoulders and pushed him toward the door, shouting as he did so:

"I tell you the marshal isn't in! He isn't here! Can't you understand? He isn't anywhere about!"

"But, marshal," the commandant stammered, "I am ordered to"—

"I don't care a straw for your orders!" shouted Pelissier, putting the officer out. "I am not at home, and that's all there is about it!"

The door slammed, leaving the commandant not less astonished than the servant at this emphatic personal assertion of the marshal's absence.

"There," said the marshal to the servant, "that's the way to show a man the door!"

Suffered 20 Years.

MRS. MARY LEWIS, wife of a prominent farmer, and well-known by all old residents near Belmont, N. Y., writes: "For twenty-seven years I had been a constant sufferer from nervous prostration, and paid large sums of money for doctors and advertised remedies without benefit. Three years ago my condition was alarming; the least noise would startle and unnerve me. I was unable to sleep, had a fear of making spells and slowly grew worse. I began using Dr. Miles' Restorative Nervine and Nerve and Liver Pills. At first the medicine seemed to have no effect, but after taking a few bottles I began to notice a change; I rested better at night, my appetite began to improve, and I rapidly grew better, until now I am as nearly restored to health as one of my age may expect. God bless Dr. Miles' Nervine."

An Old Idea.

Every day strengthens the belief of eminent physicians that impure blood is the cause of the majority of our diseases. Twenty-five years ago this theory was used as a basis for the formula of Browns' Iron Bitters. The many remarkable cures effected by this famous old household remedy are sufficient to prove that the theory is correct. Browns' Iron Bitters is sold by all dealers.

THE AMERICAN MONTHLY REVIEW OF REVIEWS

economic and political world, together with many papers which are of value to intelligent men and women. The Editor's "Progress of the World" tells succinctly an illustrated story of the month. The "Leading Articles" give the best thought and information of the current magazines in five continents; the contributed articles furnish the character sketches of the man of the month, and give timely discussions by authorities on any question of immediate serious import.

The result of this comprehensive effort to edit in one monthly volume the information needed by intelligent people of "live" interests is best gauged in the opinions which the readers of the AMERICAN MONTHLY have seen fit to express. These are thinking business men, clergymen, editors, lawyers, professors, engineers, the wide-awake women of America. They write that the AMERICAN MONTHLY "is indispensable"; "is simply invaluable"; "is a generous library in itself"; is "a historical cyclopedia of the world"; "the best means of aid for a busy man"; "the best periodical of the kind we have ever had"; "a triumph of editorial genius"; "the world under a field-glass," etc., etc.

THE CROSS AND CROWN

Is the title of a treatise on the doctrine of perfection or sanctification, by A. L. Pattillo, of Verbena, now in the press. It is written in a plain, homely fashion by one deeply impressed with the necessity of Christians living a perfect life, who desires to see all professing religion imbued with the same spirit. The Author, who is also a poet, has written several poems, all on religious subjects. The whole when complete will make a book of over 200 pages, bound in a stiff board cover, which at the small charge of 50 cents, should speedily exhaust the edition.

This book has a double claim on the people of Chilton county and should find a place in every home in the county, from the fact that it is entirely a home production, being the first book ever written, printed, bound and published in Chilton. It will be ready early in October. Price only 50 cents. Orders can be sent to THE BANNER, Clanton, or to A. L. Pattillo, Verbena.

Notice to Non-Resident.

The State of Alabama, Chilton county. In Chancery at Clanton, Alabama, Seventh District, North-eastern Chancery Division. December 14, 1897.

W. M. Pylant, complainant, vs. Fannie Pylant, defendant.

In this cause it is made to appear to the Register, by the affidavit of A. A. Smith, Esq., that the Defendant, Fannie Pylant, is a non-resident of the state of Alabama, and that her post office address and residence are unknown to affiant and further, that in the belief of said affiant, the Defendant is over the age of twenty-one years.

It is therefore ordered by the Register that publication be made in the Banner, a newspaper published in Clanton, once a week for four consecutive weeks, requiring her, the said Fannie Pylant, to answer or demur to the same within thirty days after the 17th day of January 1898, and failing so to do a decree pro confesso will be taken against her in said cause.

Done at office in Clanton, Alabama, this 14th day of December, 1897.

The nervous system controls the action of the vital organs of the body. Unless they are in a perfect state of health they lose the functions nature intended them for. The nervous system cannot be in proper working order unless properly fed by rich, red and life-giving blood. The blood's active principle is the red corpuscles that contain iron. The white corpuscles are the sewers of the body to carry off impurities. Too few red corpuscles in proportion to white ones means an impoverished condition of the blood that shows itself in the pale face and colorless lips. Dr. Harter's Iron Tonic is a preparation containing iron in such form that it immediately strikes the circulatory system and furnishes what nature has not provided. Dr. Harter's Iron Tonic is put up in a scientific manner. It has had 42 years actual test on the market.

GOSSIP FOR THE FAIR SEX.

ITEMS OF INTEREST ON NUMEROUS FEMININE TOPICS.

Dainty Candleshades---Used By the Best Tailors---Any Material Suitable for Ties---Newest Head Dresses---Etc., Etc.

DAINTY CANDLESHADES.

New and dainty candleshades are of white silk, embroidered with small blossoms, roses, forget-me-nots, pansies, buttercups and violets. The centre is encircled with a row of circular apertures through which peep out gem-like stops or crystal or colored beads. The little, glittering windows are odd and very effective.

USED BY THE BEST TAILORS.

Bourette, camel's-hair fabrics and the slightly rough-surfaced materials to which so many popular grades of suiting belong are extensively used by the best tailors for handsome costumes. They are strictly tailor-made, lined and may have a jacket to match or not, according to fancy. The woman of means frequently follows her tailor's advice, and has the jacket made like the dress. The woman who cannot have just what she wants is satisfied with one or two handsome wraps that she can wear with any of her dresses.—New York Ledger.

ANY MATERIAL SUITABLE FOR TIES.

There is hardly anything that may not be worn now for ties for women. There are black satin ties, one thickness of the satin about four inches wide and hemmed all around with a narrow ribbon, ties of the same style in plaids almost any plain color, all to be worn passing either once or twice around the neck, and then tying with an ordinary bow and ends in front. There are the stocks of all kinds and descriptions, with the four-in-hand tie in front or the immensely long and wide ties which receive the anathemas of the men as they are worn by women, with soft-puffed ends; there are ribbons of all descriptions—plaids, plain red, plain green, any color, passing twice around the collar and tied in a bow or like a four-in-hand; there are the mull ties of all descriptions, and there are the riding ties of flannel. These last are very pretty, and because they are called riding ties it does not follow that they may not be worn for any kind of street wear. The bright scarlet roves the most stylish, but the lighter colors of those soft flannel shades of blue and pink are very becoming. Red takes the lead in all kinds of neckwear, and is hard pressed by green.—New York

NEWEST HEAD DRESSES.

Some of the newest head-dresses—es in the cannot call them bonnets—are tiny enough to please the smallest man that ever sat behind a big hat. One of the absurd apologies for hats is a twist of white tulle, held in place by a twisted strand of pearls. This airy crown rests on the hair, leaving the top of the wearer's head uncovered. In the front a pearl and gold butterfly is poised.

Another "bonnet" has a crown—three inches square—of white satin, covered with lace and gemmed with turquoises. The brim is formed by a stiffened frill of white lace, caught back directly in front by a jewel, and a soft, curling black tip.

A wreath of cerise velvet and gold-spangled net has in front a knot of lace and an ornament, giving it the effect of one of the old-time turbans, minus the bulk of that curious headgear.

But airiest and prettiest of all is a twisted strand of pearls encircling the top-knot, and in front an Alsatian bow of pearled tulle and white roses.

THE "SMART" SILK UMBRELLA.

The favorite handle for the smart silk umbrella is ten inches in length, flat, and of pearl, encased in an open framework of chased silver. Other handles are of onyx, chrysodelite or tortoise shell, made in the form of quet mallets and golf clubs. Beautiful handles, which come from China and Japan, are of ivory, handsomely carved, representing odd figures of Chinese and Oriental maidens, men in mushroom hats and boat-shaped shoes, birds, fruits, flowers, etc. This artistic work, of course, brings a very high price. Some of the best French artists are devoting their time to painting China handles, which take a variety of forms, as well as the crooks with the balls. Turquoises, laminated gold, and various kinds of enamels have also been pressed into the service, and wood, elaborately carved into the semblance of birds, beasts and fishes, makes striking tops for the modern "para-plui." Satin metal, with the monogram in pearl or gold is extremely stylish and effective, and this dull, dark metal, with studded with bright jewels, is also very smart.

effect is not desirable while wheeling; neither does one see much of those straight, loose jackets, which, in some few instances, appeared so smart, but in most cases suggested a form of dressing-sack dear to old and figureless German women; the blazer-jacket, with small revers and rolling collar, is preferred. This may be worn open or closed, with button-holes made on a flap, a better method—if one wishes to wear the jacket open—than having the button-holes made through the cloth. Boots with gaiter-tops are worn, and with a sailor or Alpine hat the French dame who bicycles presents a figure very different now from that of two years ago.

ORIENTAL WOMEN WEAVERS.

The somewhat popular conception of the oriental woman is rather erroneous. It is that of one who is destined to a life of utter luxury. Yet the simple truth is that the large majority of women in the East work quite as hard for their daily bread as do their sisters in the West—aye, even harder, for, as a rule, married women in the West are supported by their husbands, whereas in the East, married women are, as a rule, constrained to support not only themselves, but also their husbands and children.

This statement applies especially to the thousands of women in Turkey, Persia and other countries of the orient who make a living as weavers. The whole civilized world appreciates their handiwork, for none can match them in making tapestries, carpets and other gorgeous products of the loom. This is the age of machinery, but no machine has yet been invented which can do the marvelous work of these oriental weavers. Yet many of these women work for pitiful wages. After cleaning and preparing the wool and shaping it into a lovely piece of tapestry, all they receive is the equivalent of from two shillings to four shillings a week. The woman who can earn seven francs is considered a Croesus, and her husband esteems her so much that he never dreams of beating her. The money is always paid to the husband, and he invariably appropriates it.

They are very womanly, those weavers. Of gossip they are fond, and while they are at work their tongues are constantly going. Perhaps this is one reason why they have so obstinately refused to herd together in factories, where the constant whirr of machinery, not to speak of the surveillance of a foreman, would very probably compel them to keep silent. In order to fashion a first-class carpet or piece of tapestry, the weaver must not only have a memory which will prevent her from making the slightest mistake while copying the design, but she must also possess a lively imagination and a thoroughly developed artistic sense. For the first-class weaver does not copy, she creates. She invents her own designs, she combines the various tones, she chooses the dyes and the shades, and, finally, she obtains those effects which seem so charming to us of the West, and with good reason.—London Mail.

SHE DISLIKES MEN AND DOGS.

A woman who loathes the sight of men and dogs, and hates them both cordially, is Miss Augusta Main, a spinster farmer near Berlin, N. Y. As she told a Justice, who held her to the Grand Jury in $1,000 bail for committing an assault on a male neighbor with intent to kill, she never sees men or dogs but what she aches to kill them. When she discovers a man on her premises, she drops all work and makes them skedaddle. If, when ordered away, the man or men do not hurry, she pushes them along with a pitchfork or any other implement that happens to be handy. As a consequence, the men folks give her plenty of room, and those who are acquainted with her gentle manners will almost go out of her way rather than cross her land.

Myron Beebe is the neighbor whom she attempted to slay, and who swore out the warrant for her arrest. For a long time he has dared to cross her premises to get water from a well. It saved him a long walk, and he took the chances. A few days ago, while Beebe was making the usual short cut to the well, Miss Main came out of her house with a big revolver, and without any parleying opened fire on the man. He ran for dear life, while the bullets whistled about his ears. When he got home he found that out of the six shots fired two had perforated the overalls which he wore, while another had torn the rim of his hat. The other three bullets came within such close proximity that their whistle still rings in his ears.

Miss Main has, since she took the farm, performed all the work on the place without any male assistance, and does it well. She goes to market with a load of vegetables every week, and sells them herself. Every day she cleans out the stables, feeds the live stock and rubs down the horses. Only in harvest time does she seek outside help, and then she hires strapping young women. All the tramps who come in the county know of her and give her a wide berth.—Chicago Chronicle.

FASHION NOTES.

The cape is a popular shape for wraps, and some of the handsomest garments of the season still cling to this model.

A charming poke bonnet is very smart, and the lines are excellent. It is of medium size with wide brim of black velvet put on absolutely smooth. A crown of nail, round and high, consists of ostrich [illegible] strings, which [illegible] Birming[illegible] dis[illegible] ty but rather [illegible] eyes is of pale [illegible] blue ribbon, [illegible] left side with a bunch of cherries, and on the right side is a vividly blue kingfisher holding a bunch of cherries in his bill. This hat made its appearance on a London stage.

The young woman who is devoted to the wheel is given to the wearing of a jacket blouse of corduroy, which is at once becoming, comfortable and appropriate. When she has secured these three characteristics in a garment she congratulates herself, and takes great pleasure in wearing what comes very near to being an ideal garment.

In the array of handsome silks lately received are delicate gray corded silks, with dainty figures of roses and violets woven on their glossy grounds; white watered silks brocaded with shaded carnations in delicate tones, and French silks in vivid colorings, whose designs are toned by a wonderful filmlike overweaving, which gives them a chiny effect.

An exceedingly elegant and stylish visiting costume has a skirt of cross-barred velvet, the bars in light shades on dark ground. A wrap of velvet the color of the dark shade of the dress is almost covered with rich applique. It is made with a high flaring collar with an inner collar that fits the throat quite closely; the sleeves are in cape shape, and are simply masses of rich garniture.

Next to a complete fur wrap, which is, of course, the desire of almost every woman, the combination garment of velour and fur is most liked. Sometimes there are in addition to the collar and neck portion full length fronts of fur. This sort of wrap is very expensive, almost as much so as if made entirely of fur, but it is so handsome and stylish that many ladies like it nearly or quite as well as the all-fur garment.

It takes rather a strong head to carry some of the extreme novelties in large hats. One of the newest models suggests a small cart wheel, so wide is its periphery. Among the trimmings are very long ostrich plumes. These are supported so as to stand up to what is certainly an absurd height. In most cases hats of this class have the under side of the brim covered with velvet flowers, roses being the sort usually preferred.

The dolman has come back into fashion's list of approved garments. It is made on lines very similar to the old-time model, and is as stylish as it is uncomfortable. The done-up and tied-down feeling that accompanies the wearing of one of these garments is a most serious objection to its adoption. The jacket and the cape are every way more comfortable, and for young ladies much more stylish. The dolman is more appropriate for quite elderly persons.

Petunia cloth is popular trimmed with chinchilla. One gown of this color had the skirt trimmed with three bands of chinchilla. The blouse coat was pouched back and front, and drawn in at the waist by a flexible silver belt. The wide sailor collar and turnback cuffs were edged with chinchilla, while a little vest of ruched white chiffon and lace with a jabot fastened with paste pine completed it. The hat was of petunia cloth and velvet trimmed with gray plumes and a silver clasp.

Navy to Have a Sailing Ship.

Probably for the first time in a full half century the navy department has opened proposals for building a full-rigged ship, without steam power. This craft is wanted for the instruction of the cadets at Annapolis in seamanship and navigation according to the old fashion. According to the department's plan, she is to be of 1,175 tons displacement and her measurements are: Length, 175 feet; beam, 27 feet; draft, 17.6. She will spread 20,000 square feet of canvas and her hull will be of yellow pine sheathing over steel frames, all coppered. The department submitted an estimate of $250,000 for this ship, but Congress cut the figure in half, so it was no matter of surprise that none of the bidders offered to build the ship complete within the small limit set by Congress, but submitted plans that would require a large amount of supplementary work to complete the vessel after it is turned over to the government.

How She Took Down the Line.

A Philadelphia lady tells this story to the Record of that city: "We had at one time in our employ a very green young woman, whose nationality is typified by an emblem of the same verdant color. This young woman, like the one your story speaks of, also came to us through an intelligence (?) office. She showed her intelligence on the first day of her service in our family. She was told to go out in the yard and take down the clothes line, which was stretched among half a dozen posts set up for that purpose. She was at the job for so long a time that we began to wonder what on earth was the matter with her. We went out to see what she was doing, and there we found her working away vigorously with a spade. She had already dug up three of the posts, and had almost completed the work on a fourth when we found her. She didn't stay with us long."

Coats-of-Arms.

The use of coats-of-arms as a badge for different families did not come into practice till the twelfth century. The Germans are said to have originated it, while the French developed the science. In the early days it was customary for a knight to adopt any device which suited him, and his sons either inherited the device or chose one of their own, as best suited their taste.

FIFTY-FIFTH CONGRESS.

Appropriations for the Civil Service Commission Taken Up.

The House—Wednesday.

There was a very large attendance in the hall of representatives when the house reconvened to-day after the holiday recess. The galleries were crowded. Without any preliminary business, the house went into committee of the whole to resume consideration of the legislative, executive and judicial appropriation bill. All the features of the bill had been disposed of except the appropriation for the civil service commission, upon which, by previous arrangement, there was to be an indefinite general debate.... It was proposed that Mr. Moody, republican, of Massachusetts, and Mr. Bockery, democrat, of Missouri, control the time for and against. In the debate that followed Dockery, Pearson and Landis attacked the service, while Mr. Greene, populist, closed debate with speech in favor of reform. At 4:55 p. m., the house adjourned.

The Senate.

There was only a small attendance in the senate to-day. Mr. Allen, of Nebraska, spoke on the immigration bill and declared in favor of consular inspection of immigrants. Mr. Carter called up the bill to provide for the taking of the next census, and argued against making the appointments through the civil service commission.... A letter from Secretary Sherman on the civil service question was read, and Mr. Cockrell said it was a most remarkable document, being a request upon congress for legislative action, which was in the power of his chief by executive order. Mr. Sherman recommends the exemption of the heads of bureau and the chief clerk of the state department from the operation of the law.... Mr. Teller, of Colorado, spoke at some length in support of the idea that the census bureau should not be a partisan bureau, and that its employes should, therefore, be placed in the classified service.... A lively civil service debate was precipitated just at the close of the session, in which Messrs. Carter, Cockerell, Allison, Cullom, Allen and Jones, of Arkansas, took part.... At 1 p. m. the senate went into executive session and soon after adjourned.

The House—Thursday.

The house today promptly resumed the debate on the civil service question, and Mr. Grosvenor, of Ohio, took the floor with an elaborate speech in opposition to the law. In opening, Mr. Grosvenor disclaimed any leadership of the anti-civil service reform and civil service reform forces, and any purpose to speak for any officer of the government—executive, legislative or judicial. He then proceeded to pay his respects to the National Civil Service Reform League, and to Carl Schurz, its president. His excoriation of the latter was the most scathing that has been heard on the floor of the house in months. He denounced unsparingly those who sought to read out of the republican party those who believed in the repeal of the civil service law. He argued that the people were overwhelmingly opposed to the law. Mr. Johnson (republican), of Indiana, one of the ardent defenders of the law, followed Mr. Grosvenor with an extended argument in support of the merit question. The entire day was taken up in the civil service debate. At 4:50 p. m. the house adjourned.

The Senate.

In the senate today Mr. Allen, of Nebraska, called up and the senate passed the bill providing for the holding of a congress of the representatives of different Indian tribes of the United States at Omaha in 1898, and appropriating $45,000 therefor. Some minor amendments to the bill were made.... A bill appropriating $175,000 for a public building at Fergus Falls, Minn., was passed.... The bill to protect the name and insignia of the Red Cross was passed. Mr. Gray, of Delaware, explained that Miss Clara Barton several years ago asked that the insignia of the Red Cross society be protected from those who would use it for commercial or perhaps fraudulent purposes. Under treaty entered into by a majority of the civilized nations of the world the sign of the Red Cross is known as an insignia of hospital corps or charitable organizations. Other nations had protected the insignia of the society, and the United States ought also to protect it.... After a brief executive session, during which some consuls were confirmed, the senate adjourned at 2 o'clock until tomorrow.

The House—Friday.

Before the debate on the civil service question was resumed in the house today, an ineffectual attempt was made to agree upon a time for the termination of the debate. Mr. Gillette, republican of Massachusetts, then took the floor in support of the law. Mr. Faris, republican of Indiana, followed Mr. Gillette and spoke against the civil service law. Mr. Cummings, democrat of New York, made a vigorous speech in favor of wiping out the civil service system, which he declared was doomed. He made a speech in defense of Tammany Hall and warmly defended it against its accusers. He maintained that the arguments of Mr. Grosvenor and Mr. Landis against the law were both in reality strong arraignments of the spoils system. Mr. Burton, of Ohio, followed in defense of the merit system. He inveighed against the insolence of office seeker and argued that this was not a government for the reward of party workers. Mr. Kerr, republican of Ohio, favored the modification of the law. At the close of his speech the house adjourned.

The Senate.

At the opening of the senate today the reply of the attorney general to the [illegible]ation calling upon members of the cabinet what, if any, changes should be made in the administration of the civil service laws, was read. The attorney general recommended that attorneys employed by the department of justice and deputy United States marshals ought to be excepted from the operation of the law.... Mr. Allen, of Nebraska, offered a resolution declaring that the United States should independently and without delay begin and continue the free coinage of silver at the ratio of 16 to 1; that such coinage should be supplemented by a safe and sound national paper money to be issued by the government without intervention of banks, the notes to be full legal tender and to be issued in an amount sufficient to meet the business demands of the country. Mr. Allen spoke briefly in favor of the adoption of the propositions set forth in his resolutions. At the conclusion of his remarks Mr. Teller arose. He said that he did not often give heed to publications concerning himself or the convictions of those who believed as he believed upon the financial or other questions, but he felt that a statement recently published was a gratuitous insult to those who believed upon the financial question as he believed. In brief, it charged that the recent reports to the effect that the secretary of the treasury had tendered his resignation were the result of a conspiracy to create trouble between the president and his secretary of treasury, and perhaps to disrupt the cabinet. Mr. Teller resented the charge with great emphasis. He also took occasion during the course of his remarks to denounce the republican party because it is the party of the gold standard, and that he hoped to see it go down in defeat in 1900.... Mr. Butler, of North Carolina, presented a joint resolution proposing an amendment to the constitution, providing for the election of federal judiciary by the people. The resolution went to the table to permit Mr. Butler to make a speech on it.... The senate then went into executive session, and at 3:15 adjourned until Monday.

The House—Saturday.

The civil service debate was continued in the house today until 2 o'clock. Mr. Corliss, republican, of Maine, was the first speaker, who favored a radical modification of the law. He was followed by Messrs. Hepburn, of Iowa, and Clark, of New Hampshire, who also attacked the service. The remainder of the session, under a special order, was devoted to eulogizing the memory of the late Representative Wright, of Massachusetts. Saturday, January 15, was set aside for paying tribute to the late Representative Milliken, of Maine.

There was no session of the senate today.

The House—Monday.

The civil service debate was again resumed today. The opponents of the law had much the best of the debate as far as the numbers of those engaging in it were concerned. Nine of the eleven speakers were of the opposition. The friends of the law are very anxious to shut off further debate and in this will have the co-operation of the speaker and the rules committee. Mr. Moody, who has charge of the bill, gave notice that he would test the sense of the house tomorrow on a motion to close debate. The opposition immediately sent word to all in their ranks to be on hand, and they say they will have no difficulty in defeating the motion. The entire day was consumed by the debate, when at 5 o'clock the house adjourned.

The Senate.

A bill was reported favorably from the Indian committee prohibiting railroad companies from charging more than 3 cents a mile for passengers through the Indian territory. A resolution looking to the filtration of water used in the city of Washington was referred to the District of Columbia committee. At 12:30 p. m., the senate went into executive session to consider the Hawaiian annexation treaty. The treaty was not taken up immediately in the executive session as a number of nominations were at first confirmed. Immediately after the treaty was called up Senator Perkins grew offered his motion for considering the debate on it with open doors, which was antagonized by Senator Davis, chairman of the committee on foreign relations, and others. A majority of those favoring open doors are opposed to ratification, but not all of them are on that side of the controversy. The senate decided not to debate the Hawaiian treaty in open session, and at 3:45 p. m. adjourned.

Texas Asked to Help Cuba.

Governor Culberson has received a telegram from New York from the Central Cuban relief committee, appointed by President McKinley, asking for immediate assistance in the way of clothing, money, food, etc. In compliance with the request he promptly issued an appeal to the people of Texas, asking them to give the assistance asked for.

Samuel T. Blyer, representing a Chicago company, is in Atlanta making arrangements for building a $100,000 plant for manufacturing smoke-consuming furnaces.

Return of the Plague.

At Bombay, India, the plague returns for the past forty-eight hours record 142 new cases and 105 deaths. There is a general exodus of the population and a suspension of business is threatened.

The Teeth as Affecting the Eyesight.

It is not a generally understood fact that the condition of the teeth has much to do with the health, beauty and usefulness of the eyes. That an ulcerated tooth will often cause extreme inflammation of the eyes is true, and a case is reported of almost total blindness caused by the teeth crowding together. A half-grown boy, who had complained of almost incessant uneasiness in his jaws, and had been visited with periodical attacks of the most violent toothache, retired one night in his usual condition, but upon awakening the next morning it was discovered that he was blind. The eyes presented a most unnatural appearance and the countenance was strained and distressed. After a good deal of investigation it was decided to remove some of his teeth and see if this would afford relief. Six teeth were extracted and the boy given sedative treatment. After a few days the sight became normal and there has been no return of the difficulty. Children who appear to have too many teeth should be carefully looked after, especially if they complain of their eyes in any way. Sometimes the symptoms are only secondary, but an acute diagnostician will speedily detect the exact state of the case.—The Ledger.

Cork Stone Pavements.

A new German building and flooring material is known as Knock's cork stone, is damp proof, absolutely water proof and practically fire proof; is sound proof and almost proof against wearing out. It can be blocked and colored to represent tiling, or can be finished to represent any wood design; can be varnished, polished, stained or finished in almost any way desired. It is very easy to the foot in walking, harbors no insects of any kind and is very easily kept in order. Best of all, it is simply and easily made. The refuse from cork factories is ground up into a meal and mixed with a similarly made tan bark meal; with these is mixed some ground peanut shells or like vegetable matter, together with paper waste, alum and water. The mass is molded into bricks and dried in the sun or in kilns, when it is ready for use. The same inventor has produced another material which he claims is not only as good as cork stone, but very much better.—Philadelphia Record.

His Last Circus.

There was a circus at Chanute a few days ago and an old farmer concluded he would take his wife to it. He had about $75 in change in his pocket, and as a matter of precaution he took along a revolver, knowing that he would not get home until late at night. After the circus was over the old farmer spied a "shell game" and tried to beat it. In about ten minutes he had lost $75. His wife was present at the performance. She concluded that the old man had got up against a "regular swindling game," as she termed it, and decided to help him out. She took the revolver out of his pocket and poked it under the nose of the operator of the shell game and coolly told him to give back the old man's money. The gambler handed it over, and turning to the old farmer she said: "Now, pa, we'll go home and you can't ever go to another circus as long as you live."—Kansas City Journal.

A Puddinhead Wilson Case.

An extraordinary example of efficacy of the thumb impression method of identification has happened in Bengal, India. Some months ago the manager of a tea-garden in the Dooars was brutally murdered, the murderer getting clean away, as the crime was not discovered until some time after its commission. For some time the police were at fault, until it was discovered that the murderer, in rummaging among some papers of the deceased, had smudged a Bengal atlas with his thumb. The atlas was forwarded to the Bureau, where the thumb impressions of criminals are kept, when it was discovered that the impression on the atlas corresponded with the thumb recorded of a noted criminal then at large. The man was arrested on the evidence [illegible] evidence subsequently [illegible] to connect him with [illegible] Reward Mail.

Deep Diving Operations.

Diving operations at a great depth have proved successful off Cape Finisterre, all the silver bars from the steamer Skyro, which sank in thirty fathoms in 1851, having been brought to the surface. The working depth for the divers was never less than one hundred and seventy-one feet and was often more. Dynamite was used to blow away the deck. The value of the silver was forty-five thousand dollars.

Suffering loses all its charms for a woman if she has to do it in silence.

School Roof Playgrounds.

Land is so valuable in New York that space cannot be afforded for school yards, and it is proposed to have playgrounds on the roofs, which will be enclosed by a high railing.

Appearance Was Deceptive.

He was a sanctimonious-looking man, clad in a severely cut suit of somber black. He even called for black coffee when he quietly took his seat at the counter in the light lunch cafe near Tenth and Chestnut streets, on Saturday night.

It seemed strange to the other customers of the place that so religious a man as he appeared to be should be drinking black coffee at midnight, says the Philadelphia Record. Black coffee is calculated to keep a man awake all night. Perhaps, thought the others, he has a long sermon to prepare for delivery in the morning. There was another surprise for the patrons of the place when the sober individual placed a cigar box on the counter beside him.

They wouldn't have been surprised if it had been a prayer book or a Bible, but a box of cigars seemed much too worldly. However, the best of Christians smoke sometimes. This Christian quietly drank his cup of black coffee, and after paying for it picked up his cigar box and started for the door. Unfortunately, however, he carried the box with the bottom uppermost, and the next instant an astounding thing happened.

The lid of the box swung open, and about a half pack of red, white, and blue chips, together with several bunches of aces, kings, queens, ten-spots and the like were distributed all over the floor. The clerical looking gentleman ejaculated "blankety blank blank" several times while he gathered up his poker outfit. Then he drifted out into the night.

Ran Away Backward.

A singular accident occurred in the Frisco yards, near Joplin, Mo., recently. Engine No. 126, running extra, left town upon the Girard pasenger train's time. The trains met on a curve on the edge of town. Both engineers applied the air brakes and reversed their engines, also giving a full head of steam to mitigate the collision. The engineer, fireman and trainmen of the extra engine jumped for their lives. The engines collided, but with only enough force to crush the cow-catchers. Having a full head of steam and being reversed, the extra engine, with no one aboard, rebounded, and at a terrific speed began backing out of town. It passed through East Joplin going at a rate estimated at a mile a minute. The dispatcher was promptly notified, and all trains in its direction were held to prevent another collision. Searchers found the engine two miles from town on a hill, with the steam and water exhausted, but with no apparent damage from its wild run.

City Cousins and Summer Boarders.

In a sketch of "Peaceful Valley," picturing life in an ideal rural community, Mrs. Lyman Abbott, in the Ladies' Home Journal, presents this realistic picture: " * * * Let us spend a winter in Peaceful Valley as an experiment. The summer visitors will have gone. The 'city cousins,' who find it very convenient to spend a few economical weeks with Cousin John on grandfather's old farm, to ride about in his plain, springless wagon, to enjoy the cream and fresh butter, and Cousin Jane's 'home cooking,' with the great advantage of having saved a good many dollars to be put into added luxury and festivities in town, will have departed. Gone, too, will be the 'city boarders,' who can find more fault in an hour than any other class of people, and who show great powers of endurance by staying on in places and returning to them year after year, where, according to their unvarying testimony, the food is poor and the beds are hard, where there is no meat worth eating, where the insects and flying things are pestering, where it is too hot or too cold,' and where, generally, so far as the landlady ever hears, things are about as uncomfortable as they can possibly be."

EMINENT DIVINES' SERMONS

DISCOURSES BY TWO WELL-KNOWN PREACHERS IN GOD'S VINEYARD.

"Christian Cheerfulness" Is the Title of the Eighth Sermon in the N. Y. Herald's Competitive Series—By a Brooklyn Minister—Dr. Talmage on Home Life.

TEXT: "Rejoice in the Lord always, and again I say rejoice."—Philippians, iv., 4.

What is so common among men as the disposition to see only the dark side of the events of life? Many of us have a tendency to exaggerate all this which amounts almost to melancholia. If it is not always high tide in our course of fortune we sink into a condition of morbid despair. We are too apt to forget that in nature the tide must fall as well as rise. We do not realize that it is the part of wisdom to make the best use of the opportunities we have. We compare our circumstances with those of others who are more fortunate and brood over the slings and arrows of outrageous fortune.

The tendency to dwell upon our ills grows with time. In the beginning it can be checked easily, but in time it becomes like a torrent gaining impetus with its descent, until it is beyond control. Now and then we receive the sad news that one whom we esteemed as upright and godly has allowed this morbid tendency to obtain such headway that it unseats the reason and with it the sense of moral responsibility. Then we learn of the self-destruction of such a one and we are not surprised. It was simply the inevitable consequence of a false, one sided view of life that is supported by neither common sense nor religion.

With reference to the character of the mind men may be divided into the matter of fact and the exaggerative. While the former are liable to be unsettled and discontented occasionally, the latter are apt to be so as a rule, because their minds, being imaginative, create for themselves ideals which they seldom, if ever, attain. Nevertheless, the normal condition of life is one of cheerfulness. God teaches us this in nature which, as a rule, is bright with sunshine, gay with color and filled with joyous sounds. Laughter and song, harmony and beauty are the radiant diffusion of that living picture whereby our Heavenly Father points out to each the road to happiness. It is the desire of every earnest man to please God. There is no better way to do so than by showing cheerful satisfaction with what He gives us. A preacher once said: "We do not please God more by eating bitter aloes than by eating the pure. A cloudy, foggy, rainy day is not more pleasing than a day of sunshine. A funeral march is not so much like the music of angels as the songs of lords on a May morning. There is no more religion in the grand naked forest in winter than in the laughing harvest field of the spring and the ripe, red fruits of autumn."

How few cultivate a sunny disposition! How few make an effort to be cheerful when they feel unhappy! There are some of the hard lines of whose faces never break into a smile. There are others who know only that mirth which is provoked by artificial means, such as a joke or a ridiculous incident. Some are cheerful only when they have driven a good bargain. You all know the business smile worn by those who are anxious to gain your good will or your money. Perhaps you are acquainted with people who wear a mask of cheerfulness for the outer world and a mask of terror for their homes.

Little do they who go through life dissatisfied and cheerless know how much they lose of that which is sweetest in human experience. Not only they but all with whom they come in contact are robbed of a portion of the blessing of existence. We owe it to our families, our friends, in fact to all our fellow men, as well as to ourselves, to make brighter, not gloomier, this human life. St. Paul's example shows that even in distressing circumstances cheerfulness is possible. His injunction, "Rejoice in the Lord," was literally obeyed by himself.

The consistent Christian must be cheerful. Even when the knowledge of his sinfulness weighs heaviest upon him he believes that God is forgiving and merciful. The bitterness of his sorrow is sweetened by the promises of God. The gloom of his soul is illumined by the light of God's love. However forbidding the darkness by which he is surrounded, however great the suffering to which he is subjected, however mercilessly the hand of misfortune may tighten its grip, he knows he shall be higher in the esteem of his God and more fit for his destiny if, with patience and a cheerful heart, he bears these things. The consolations of his religion will never fail him if he appeals to them. Gloomy Christianity is a misrepresentation. However well meaning those may be who dwell only on the sufferings of Christ, only on the wrath of God and the punishment of sin, they do God an injustice and teach only half the truth. There is nothing to gain from such a repulsive presentation of religion. It is not natural, necessary nor fair to our fellow men to minimize those features of our religion that God has made most prominent. There is a bright side which it is of the utmost importance to emphasize in order to win men to religion. The dawn of redemption and the joy of spiritual triumph forever obliterate the sorrows of Calvary. The justice, mercy and love of God irradiate prismatic light on the sombre picture of sin and judgment. JAMES B. NIES, Rector Church of the Epiphany, Brooklyn, N. Y.

HOME LIFE.

Dr. Talmage Preaches On the Cares of the Household.

TEXT: "Lord, does Thou not care that my sister hath left me to serve alone? Bid her, therefore, that she help me."—Luke x., 40.

Yonder is a beautiful village homestead. The man of the house is dead, and his widow is taking charge of the premises. This is the widow, Martha of Bethany. Yes, I will show you also the pet of the household, Tirzis Mary, the younger sister, with a book under her arm, and her face having no appearance of anxiety or care. Company has come. Christ stands outside the door, and, of course, there is a good deal of excitement inside the door. The disarranged furniture is hastily put aside, and the hair is brushed back and the dresses are adjusted as well as, in so short a time, Mary and Martha can attend to these matters. They did not keep Christ standing at the door until they had elaborately arranged their tresses, then coming out with their affected surprise, as though they had not heard the two or three previous knockings, saying: "Why, is that you?" No, they were ladies, and were always presentable, although they may not have always had on their best, for men of all ways has on our best; if we did, our best would not be worth having on. They threw open the door and greet Christ. They say: "Good morning, Master; come in and be seated." Christ did not come alone; He had a group of friends with Him, and such an influx of city visitors would throw any country home into perturbation. I suppose also the walk from the city had been a good appetizer. The kitchen department that day was a very important department, and I suppose that Martha had no sooner greeted the guests than she fled to that room. Mary gave no worriment about household affairs. She had full confidence that Martha could get up the best dinner in Bethany. She seems to say: "Now, let us have a division of labor. Martha, you cook, and I'll sit down and be good." So you have often seen a great difference between two sisters.

There is Martha, hard working, painstaking, good manager, ever inventive of some new pastry, or discovering something in the art of cookery and housekeeping. There is Mary, also fond of conversation, literary, so engaged in deep questions of ethics she has no time to attend to the questions of household welfare. It is noon. Mary is in the parlor with Christ. Martha is in the kitchen. It would have been better if they had divided the work, and then they could have divided the opportunity of listening to Jesus; but Mary monopolizes Christ while Martha wearies at the fire. It was a very important thing that they should have a good dinner that day. Christ was hungry, and He did not often have a luxurious entertainment. Alas, me! if on Mary had devolved upon Mary, what a repast that would have been! But something went wrong in the kitchen. Perhaps the fire would not burn, or the bread would not bake, or Martha scalded her hand, or something was burned black that ought only to have been made brown, and Martha lost her patience, and forgetting the proprieties of the occasion, with besweated brow, and, perhaps with ruffled temper in one hand and tongs in the other she rushes out of the kitchen into the presence of Christ, saying: "Lord, dost Thou not care that my sister hath left me to serve alone?" Christ scolded not a word. If it were scolding, I would rather have His scolding than anybody else's blessing. There was nothing worse. He knew that Martha had almost worked herself to death to get Him something to eat, and so He throws a world of tenderness into His intonation as He seems to say: "My dear woman, do not worry, let the dinner go; sit down on this ottoman beside Mary, your younger sister. Martha, Martha, thou art careful and troubled about many things, but one thing is needful." As Martha throws open that kitchen door I look in and I see a great many household perplexities and anxieties.

First, there is the trial of non-appreciation. This is what made Martha so mad with Mary. The younger sister had no estimate of her older sister's fatigues. Anyone, man or woman, tried with the anxieties of the store, the office and shop, or coming from the Stock Exchange, they say when they get home: "Oh, you ought to be in our factory a little while; you ought to have to manage eight or ten or twenty salesladies, and then you would know what trouble and anxiety are!" Oh, sir, the wife and the mother has to conduct at the same time a nursery, a clothing establishment, a restaurant, a laundry, a library, while she is mostly nurse, police and president of the realm. She must do a thousand things and do them well, in order to keep things going smoothly, and so her brain and her nerves are taxed to the utmost. I say to mothers and housekeepers who are tempted to think that they can sit in an arm chair and read a library, or ride on the best vehicle and travel all the earth upon, or ordinarily work, having large wages and great expenditure, can afford to do the duties of the household. Those are the women I am speaking now of, the great majority of whom are the wives in moderate circumstances, and who, at thirty years of age look as though they were forty, and at forty look as though they were fifty, and at fifty look as though they were dead.

You in the cares of the world that you have all the cares and anxieties. If the cares and anxieties of a household should come upon you for one week, you would look for the Insane Asylum. The hard-tasked housekeeper arises in the morning. She must have the morning repast, prepared at an irrevocable hour. What if the fire will not light; what if the marketing if not come; what if the clock has stopped—no matter, she must have the morning repast at an irrevocable hour. Then the children must be got off to school. What if their garments are torn; what if they do not know their lessons; what if they have lost a hat or such they must be ready. Then you have all the diet of the day, and perhaps of several days, to plan; but what is the butcher has sent meat unfit for use, or the grocer has sent articles of food adulterated, and what if some piece of silver be gone, or some favorite chalice be wrecked, or the roof leak, or the plumbing fail, or any one of a thousand things occur—you must be ready. Spring weather comes, and there must be a revolution in the family wardrobe; for autumn comes, and you must shut out the northern blast; but what if the moth has preyed you to the chest; what if, during the year, the children have outgrown the apparel of last year; what if the fashions have changed. Your house must be an apothecary's shop; it must be a dispensary; there must be medicines for all sorts of ailments. You must be in half a dozen places at the same time, or you must attempt to be. If, under all this wear and tear of life, Martha makes an impatient rush upon the library or drawing-room, be patient, be lenient!

Oh, woman, though I may fail to stir up an appreciation in the souls of others in regard to your household toils, let me assure you, from the kindness with which Jesus Christ met Martha, that he appreciates all your work from garret to cellar; and that the God of Deborah, and Hannah, and Abigail, and Grandmother Lois, and Elizabeth Fry, and Hannah More is the God of the housekeeper. Jesus was never married, that he might be the especial friend and confident of a whole world of troubled womanhood. I blunder; Christ was married. The Bible says that the Church is the Lamb's wife, and that makes me know that all Christian women have a right to go to Christ and tell Him of their annoyance and troubles, since by His oath of conjugal fidelity He is sworn to sympathize.

Again there is the trial of severe economy. Nine hundred and ninety-nine housekeepers out of a thousand are subjected to it—some under more and some under less stress of circumstance. Especially if a man smoke very expensive cigars, and take very costly dinners at the restaurants, he will be severe in demanding domestic economies. This is what kills tens of thousands of women—attempting to make five dollars do the work of seven. A young woman about to enter the married state said to her mother: "How long does the honeymoon last?" The mother answered: "The honeymoon lasts until you ask your husband for money."

How great are the responsibilities of housekeepers. Sometimes an indigestible article of food, by its effect upon a king, has overthrown an empire. A distinguished statistician says that of one thousand unmarried men there are thirty-eight criminals, and of one thousand married men only eighteen are criminals. What a suggestion of home influence! Let the most be made of them. Housekeepers, by the food they provide, by the couches they spread, by the books they introduce, by the influences they bring around their homes, are deciding the physical, intellectual, moral, eternal destiny of the race. You say your life is one of sacrifice. I know it. But, my sisters, this is the only life worth living. That was Florence Nightingale's life; that was Payson's life; that Christ's life.

FRANKFORT LOTTERY CLOSED.

Legal Fight of Twenty-two Years Ends in Abolition.

The forty-one offices of the Frankfort Lottery scattered over Louisville, Ky., were closed for the first time in twenty-five years and no drawings were made at the criminal office at Third and Green Streets. The lottery is closed for good.

The mandate of the Supreme Court has not been received, but the owners of the lottery felt that nothing would be gained by keeping open, as Criminal Judge Barker announced that his first act would be to proceed against the lottery without waiting for official notice. Thus has ended a fight that has been waged for twenty-two years against the policy shops of Louisville. The company had two drawings daily, and its profits averaged $10,000 a day.

While the autumn drought was not attended with such disastrous forest fires as many that have devastated portions of the pine lands of the Northwest in years past, the fires were dangerous enough to call public attention to the growing need of stronger federal measures for the preservation of these forests. The resolutions adopted by the national irrigation congress at Lincoln, Neb., indorsed the policy of forest reservation as indicated in the orders of President Harrison and President Cleveland, may be taken as a very reliable reflection of public opinion on this question. It is true that no edict of the government could stay the devouring element that lays waste such large areas of our pine lands during the dry spells every fall, but it is conceded that these fires might be prevented by an extensive system of forest police or wardens, similar to that employed in many countries. The fires could also be checked by fixing very severe penalties for the punishment of those who are guilty of criminal carelessness and recklessness in attempting to clear lands in this manner, thereby endangering millions of dollars' worth of property. No punishment could be too severe for men who will deliberately place in jeopardy hundreds of lives and vast areas of valuable pine timber. The rapid disappearance of American forests is a matter of serious concern. The corporate and individual timber thieves, together with those who wantonly and recklessly abuse the cutting permits granted by the government, are making heavy inroads upon our forest wealth. With this class of offenders the government can and should deal vigorously. The government should not only take measures for the prompt punishment of those who waste the timber and abuse the permits to cut from the public domain, but should devise a system of patrol that will prevent the destruction of our forests by conflagration.

Bad Digestion, Bad Heart.

Poor digestion often causes irregularity of the heart's action. This irregularity may be mistaken for real, organic heart disease. The symptoms are much the same. There is, however, a vast difference between the two; organic heart disease is often incurable, but heart troubles is curable if good digestion is restored.

A case in point is that of Mrs. Eliza Coleson, of Groomsburg, Ind. Mrs. Eliza Coleson, Newpoint, Ind., a woman forty-three years old, had suffered for four years with distressing stomach trouble. The gases generated by the indigestion pressed on the heart and caused an irregularity of its action. She had much pain in her stomach and heart, and was subject to frequent and severe choking spells, which were most severe at night. Doctors were tried in vain; the patient became worse, despondent, and feared impending death.

A CASE OF HEART FAILURE.

She was much frightened, but noticed that in intervals in which her stomach did not annoy her, her heart's action became normal. Reasoning correctly that her digestion was alone at fault, she procured the proper medicine to treat that trouble, and with immediate good results. Her appetite came back, the choking spells became less frequent and finally ceased. Her weight, which had been greatly reduced, was restored, and she now weighs more than for years. Her blood soon became pure and her cheeks rosy.

The case is of general interest because the disease is a very common one. That others may know the means of cure we give the name of the medicine used. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People. These pills contain all the elements necessary to give new life and richness to the blood and restore shattered nerves.

Wifehood.

It is of vital importance to every woman who contemplates wifehood that her mental state and physical condition should be at their best, since the desire and happiness of mankind are consummated in marriage and procreation. If she is feeble, it is impossible that her children should be strong. Every woman should know that female weakness can be cured; that Dr. Simmons Squaw Vine Wine will prove most beneficial during wifehood; that it will impart physical, mental and local strength, nourish the nerves, blood, brain, and vitalize the feminine organism and insures a safe and comparatively painless delivery.

Deep Diving Operations.

Diving operations at a great depth have proved successful off Cape Finisterre, all the silver bars from the steamer Skyro, which sank in thirty fathoms in 1891, having been brought to the surface. The working depth for the divers was never less than one hundred and seventy-one feet and was often more. Dynamite was used to blow away the deck. The value of the silver was forty-five thousand dollars.

Suffering loses all its charms for a woman if she has to do it in silence.

School Roof Playgrounds.

Land is so valuable in New York that space cannot be afforded for school yards, and it is proposed to have playgrounds on the roofs, which will be enclosed by a high railing.

Appearance Was Deceptive.

He was a sanctimonious-looking man, clad in a severely cut suit of somber black. He even called for black coffee when he quietly took his seat at the counter in the light lunch cafe near Tenth and Chestnut streets, on Saturday night.

It seemed strange to the other customers of the place that so religious a man as he appeared to be should be drinking black coffee at midnight, says the Philadelphia Record. Black coffee is calculated to keep a man awake all night. Perhaps, thought the others, he has a long sermon to prepare for delivery in the morning. There was another surprise for the patrons of the place when the sober individual placed a cigar box on the counter beside him.

They wouldn't have been surprised if it had been a prayer book or a Bible, but a box of cigars seemed much too worldly. However, the best of Christians smoke sometimes. This Christian quietly drank his cup of black coffee, and after paying for it picked up his cigar box and started for the door. Unfortunately, however, he carried the box with the bottom uppermost, and the next instant an astounding thing happened.

The lid of the box swung open, and about a half peck of red, white, and blue chips, together with several bunches of aces, kings, queens, ten-spots and the like were distributed all over the floor. The clerical looking gentleman ejaculated "blankety blank blank" several times while he gathered up his poker outfit. Then he drifted out into the night.

Ran Away Backward.

A singular accident occurred in the Frisco yards, near Joplin, Mo., recently. Engine No. 120, running extra, left town upon the Girard passenger train's time. The trains met on a curve on the edge of town. Both engineers applied the air brakes and reversed their engines, also giving a full head of steam to mitigate the collision. The engineer, fireman and trainmen of the extra engine jumped for their lives. The engines collided, but with only enough force to crush the cow-catchers. Having a full head of steam and being reversed, the extra engine, with no one aboard, rebounded, and at a terrific speed began backing out of town. It passed through East Joplin going at a rate estimated at a mile a minute. The dispatcher was promptly notified, and all trains in its direction were held to prevent another collision. Searchers found the engine two miles from town on a hill, with the steam and water exhausted, but with no apparent damage from its wild run.

City Cousins and Summer Boarders.

In a sketch on "Peaceful Valley," picturing life in an ideal rural community, Mrs. Lyman Abbott, in the Ladies' Home Journal, presents this realistic picture: " * * * Let us spend a winter in Peaceful Valley as an experiment. The summer visitors will have gone. The 'city cousins,' who find it very convenient to spend a few economical weeks with Cousin John on grandfather's old farm, to ride about in his plain, springless wagon, to enjoy the cream and fresh butter, and Cousin Jane's 'home cooking,' with the great advantage of having saved a good many dollars to be put into added luxury and festivities in town, will have departed. Gone, too, will be the 'city boarders,' who can find more fault in an hour than any other class of people, and who show great powers of endurance by staying on in places and returning to them year after year, where, according to their unvarying testimony, the food is poor and the beds are hard, where there is no meat worth eating, where the insects and flying things are pestering, where it is too hot or too cold,' and where, generally, so far as the landlady ever hears, things are about as uncomfortable as they can possibly be."

EMINENT DIVINES' SERMONS

DISCOURSES BY TWO NOBLE WORKERS IN GOD'S VINEYARD.

"Christian Cheerfulness" is the Title of the Eighth Sermon in the N. Y. Herald's Competitive Series—By a Brooklyn Minister—Dr. Talmage on Home Life.

TEXT: "Rejoice in the Lord always: and again I say, Rejoice."—Philippians, iv., 4.

What is so common among men as the disposition to see only the dark side of the events of life? Many of us have a tendency to exaggerate our ills which amounts almost to melancholia. If it is not always high tide in our course of fortune we sink into a condition of morbid despair. We are too apt to forget that in nature the tide must fall as well as rise. We do not realize that it is the part of wisdom to make the best use of the opportunities we have. We compare our circumstances with those of others who are more fortunate and brood over "the slings and arrows of outrageous fortune."

The tendency to dwell upon our ills grows with time. In the beginning it can be checked easily, but in time it becomes like a torrent gaining impetus with its descent, until it is beyond control. Now and then we receive the sad news that one whom we esteemed as upright and godly has allowed this morbid tendency to obtain such headway that it unseats the reason and with it the sense of moral responsibility. Then we learn of the self-destruction of such a one and we are not surprised. It was almost the inevitable consequence of a false, one sided view of life that is supported by neither common sense nor religion.

With reference to the character of the mind men may be divided into the matter of fact and the exaggerative. While the former are liable to be unsettled and discontented occasionally, the latter are apt to be so as a rule, because their minds, being imaginative, create for themselves ideals which they seldom, if ever, attain. Nevertheless, the normal condition of life is one of cheerfulness. God teaches us this in nature, which, as a rule, is bright with sunshine, gay with color and filled with joyous sounds. Laughter and song, harmony and beauty are the radiant figures of that living picture whereby our Heavenly Father points out to each the road to happiness. It is the desire of every earnest man to please God. There is no better way to do so than by showing ourselves satisfied with what He gives us. A preacher once said: "We do not please God more by eating bitter aloes than by eating honey. A cloudy, foggy, rainy day is not more heavenly than a day of sunshine. A funeral march is not so much like the music of angels as the songs of birds on a May morning. There is no more religion in the grand, solemn forest in winter than in the laughing blossoms of the spring and the ripe, rich fruits of autumn."

How few cultivate a sunny disposition! How few make an effort to be cheerful when they feel unhappy! There are some the hard lines of whose faces never break into a smile. There are others who know only that mirth which is provoked by artificial means, such as a joke or a ridiculous incident. Some are cheerful only when they have driven a good bargain. They all know the business smile worn by those who are anxious to gain your good will or your money. Perhaps you are acquainted with people who wear a mask of cheerfulness for the outer world and a mask of terror for their homes.

Little do they who go through life dissatisfied and cheerless know how much they lose of that which is sweetest in human experience. Not only they but all with whom they come in contact are robbed of a portion of the blessing of existence. We owe it to our families, our friends, in fact to all our fellow men as well as to ourselves, to make brighter, not gloomier, this human life. St. Paul's example shows that even in distressing circumstances cheerfulness is possible. His injunction, "Rejoice in the Lord," was literally obeyed by himself.

The consistent Christian must be cheerful. Even when the knowledge of his sinfulness weighs heaviest upon him he believes that God is forgiving and merciful. The bitterness of his sorrow is sweetened by the promises of God. The gloom of his soul is illumined by the light of God's love. However forbidding the darkness by which he is surrounded, however great the suffering to which he is subjected, however mercilessly the hand of misfortune may tighten its grip, he knows he shall be higher in the esteem of his God and more fit for his destiny if, with patience and a cheerful heart, he bears these things. The consolations of his religion will never fail him if he appeals to them. Gloomy Christianity is a misrepresentation. However well meaning those may be who dwell only on the sufferings of Christ, only on the wrath of God and the punishment of sin, they do God an injustice and teach only half the truth. There is nothing to gain from such a repulsive presentation of religion. It is not natural, necessary nor fair to our fellow men to minimize those features of our religion that God has made most prominent. There is a bright side which it is of the utmost importance to emphasize in order to win men to religion. The dawn of redemption and the joy of spiritual triumph forever obliterate the sorrows of Calvary. The justice, mercy and love of God irradiate prismatic light on the sombre picture of sin and judgment. JAMES E. NILES, Rector Church of the Epiphany, Brooklyn, N. Y.

HOME LIFE.

Dr. Talmage Preaches On the Cares of the Household.

TEXT: "Lord, dost Thou not care that my sister hath left me to serve alone? Bid her, therefore, that she help me."—Luke x., 40.

Yonder is a beautiful village homestead. The man of the house is dead, and his widow is taking charge of the premises. This is the widow, Martha of Bethany. Yes, I will show you also the pet of the household. This is Mary, the the younger sister, with a book under her arm, and her face having no appearance of anxiety or care. Company has come. Christ stands outside the door, and, of course, there is a good deal of excitement inside the door. The disarranged furniture is hastily put aside, and the hair is brushed back and the dresses are adjusted as well as, in so short a time, Mary and Martha can attend to these matters. They did not keep Christ standing at the door until they had elaborately arranged their tresses, then coming out with their affected surprise, as though they had not heard the two or three previous knockings, saying: "Why, is that you?" No. They were ladies, and were always presentable, although they may not have always had on their best, for non of us always has on our best; if we did, our best would not be worth having on. They throw open the door and greet Christ. They say: "Good morning, Master; come in and be seated." Christ did not come alone. He had a group of friends with Him, and such an influx of city visitors would throw any country home into perturbation. I suppose also the walk from the city had been a good appetizer. The kitchen department that day was a very important department, and I suppose that Martha had no sooner greeted the guests than she fled to that room. Mary had no worriment about household affairs. She had full confidence that Martha could get up the best dinner in Bethany. She seems to say: "Now let us have a division of labor. Martha, you cook, and I'll set down and be good." So you have often seen a great difference between two sisters.

There is Martha, hard working, painstaking, a good manager, ever inventive of some new pastry, or discovering something in the art of cookery and housekeeping. There is Mary, also fond of conversation, literary, so engaged in deep questions of ethics she has no time to attend to the questions of household welfare. It is noon. Mary is in the parlor with Christ. Martha is in the kitchen. It would have been better if they had divided the work, and then they could have divided the opportunity of listening to Jesus; but Mary monopolizes Christ while Martha swelters at the fire. It was a very important thing that they should have a good dinner that day. Christ was hungry, and He did not often have a luxurious entertainment. Alas, me! if the duty had devolved upon Mary, what a repast that would have been! But something went wrong in the kitchen. Perhaps the fire would not burn, or the bread would not bake, or Martha scalded her hand, or something was burned black that ought only to have been made brown; and Martha lost her patience, and forgetting the proprieties of the occasion, with besweated brow, and, perhaps, with pitcher in one hand and tongs in the other, she rushes out of the kitchen into the presence of Christ, saying, "Lord, dost Thou not care that my sister hath left me to serve alone?" Christ scolded not a word. If it were scolding, I would rather have His scolding than anybody else's blessing. There was nothing averb. He knew that Martha had almost worked herself to death to get Him something to eat, and so He throws a world of tenderness into His intonation as He seems to say: "My dear woman, do not worry, let the dinner go; sit down on this ottoman beside Mary, your younger sister. Martha, Martha, thou art careful and troubled about many things, but one thing is needful." As Martha throws open that kitchen door I look in and see a great many household perplexities and anxieties.

First, there is the trial of non-appreciation. This is what made Martha so mad with Mary. The younger sister had no estimate of her older sister's fatigues. As now, men bothered with the anxieties of the store, the office and shop, or coming from the Stock Exchange, they say when they get home: "Oh, you ought to be in our factory a little while; you ought to have to manage eight, or ten, or twenty subordinates, and then you would know what trouble and anxiety are!" Oh, sir, the wife and the mother has to conduct at the same time a university, a clothing establishment, a restaurant, a laundry, a library, while she is health officer, police and president of her realm. She must do a thousand things and do them well, in order to keep things going smoothly; and so her brain and her nerves are taxed to the utmost. I say there are housekeepers who are so fortunate that they can sit in an arm chair in the library, or lie on the heated pillow and turn off all the care upon subordinate, who, having large wages and great experience, can attend to all of the affairs of the household. Those are the exceptions. I am speaking now of the great mass of housekeepers, the women to whom life is a struggle, and who, at thirty years of age look as though they were forty, and at forty look as though they were fifty, and at fifty look as though they were sixty.

You think, O man of the world! that you have all the cares and anxieties. If the cares and anxieties of the household should come upon you for one week, you would be fit for the Insane Asylum. The half-rested housekeeper arises in the morning. She must have the morning repast prepared at an irrevocable hour. What if the fire will not light; what if the marketing did not come; what if the clock has stopped—no matter, she must have the morning repast at an irrevocable hour. Then the children must be got off to school. What if their garments are torn; what if they do not know their lessons; what if they have lost a hat or sash; they must be ready. Then you have all the diet of the day, and perhaps of several days, to plan; but what if the butcher has sent meat unsatisfactory, or the grocer has sent articles of food adulterated, and what if some piece of silver be gone, or some favorite chalice be crooked, or the roof leak, or the plumbing fail, or any one of a thousand things occur—you must be ready. Spring weather comes, and there must be a revolution in the family wardrobe; or autumn comes, and you must shut out the northern blast; but what if the moth has preceded you to the chest; what if, during the year, the children have outgrown the apparel of last year; what if the fashions have changed. Your house must be an apothecary's shop; it must be a dispensary; there must be medicines for all sorts of ailments. You must be in half a dozen places at the same time, or you must attempt to be. If, under all this wear and tear of life, Martha makes an impatient rush upon the library or drawing-room, be patient, be lenient!

Oh, woman, though I may fail to stir up an appreciation in the souls of others in regard to your household toils, let me assure you, from the kindness with which Jesus Christ met Martha, that he appreciates all your work from garret to cellar; and that the God of Deborah, and Hannah, and Abigail, and Grandmother Lois, and Elizabeth Fry, and Hannah More is the God of the housekeeper! Jesus was never married, that he might be the especial friend and confident of a whole world of troubled womanhood. I blunder; Christ was married. The Bible says that the Church is the Lamb's wife, and that makes me know that all Christian women have a right to go to Christ and tell Him of their annoyance and troubles, since by His oath of conjugal fidelity He is sworn to sympathize.

Again there is the trial of severe economy. Nine hundred and ninety-nine households out of a thousand are subjected to it—some under more and some under less stress of circumstance. Especially if a man smoke very expensive cigars, and take very costly dinners at the restaurants, he will be severe in demanding domestic economies. This is what kills tens of thousands of women—attempting to make five dollars do the work of seven. A young woman about to enter the married state said to her mother: "How long does the honeymoon last?" The mother answered: "The honeymoon lasts until you ask your husband for money."

How great are the responsibilities of housekeepers. Sometimes an indigestible article of food, by its effect upon a king, has overthrown an empire. A distinguished statistician says that of one thousand unmarried men there are thirty-eight criminals, and of one thousand married men only eighteen are criminals. What a suggestion of home influence! Let the most be made of them. Housekeepers, by the food they provide, by the couches they spread, by the books they introduce, by the influences they bring around their homes, are deciding the physical, intellectual, moral, eternal destiny of the race. You say your life is one of sacrifice. I know it. But, my sisters, this is the only life worth living. That was Florence Nightingale's life; that was Payson's life; that Christ's life.

FRANKFORT LOTTERY CLOSED.

Legal Fight of Twenty-two Years Ends in Abolition.

The forty-one offices of the Frankfort Lottery scattered over Louisville, Ky., were closed for the first time in twenty-five years and no drawings were made at the principal office at Third and Green Streets. The lottery is closed for good.

The mandate of the Supreme Court has not been received, but the owners of the lottery felt that nothing would be gained by keeping open, as Criminal Judge Barker announced that his first act would be to proceed against the lottery without waiting for official notice. Thus has ended a fight that has been waged for twenty-two years against the policy shops of Louisville. The company had two drawings daily, and its profits averaged $10,000 a day.

While the autumn drought was not attended with such disastrous forest fires as many that have devastated portions of the pine lands of the Northwest in years past, the fires were dangerous enough to call public attention to the growing need of stronger federal measures for the preservation of these forests. The resolutions adopted by the national irrigation congress at Lincoln, Neb., indorsed the policy of forest reservation as indicated in the orders of President Harrison and President Cleveland, may be taken as a very reliable reflection of public opinion on this question. It is true that no edict of the government could stay the devouring element that lays waste such large areas of our pine lands during the dry spells every fall, but it is conceded that these fires might be prevented by an extensive system of forest police or wardens, similar to that employed in many countries. The fires could also be checked by fixing very severe penalties for the punishment of those who are guilty of criminal carelessness and recklessness in attempting to clear lands in this manner, thereby endangering millions of dollars' worth of property. No punishment could be too severe for men who will deliberately place in jeopardy hundreds of lives and vast areas of valuable pine timber. The rapid disappearance of American forests is a matter of serious concern. The corporate and individual timber thieves, together with those who wantonly and recklessly abuse the cutting permits granted by the government, are making heavy inroads upon our forest wealth. With this class of offenders the government can and should deal vigorously. The government should not only take measures for the prompt punishment of those who waste the timber and abuse the permits to cut from the public domain, but should devise a system of patrol that will prevent the destruction of our forests by conflagration.

Bad Digestion, Bad Heart.

Poor digestion often causes irregularity of the heart's action. This irregularity may be mistaken for real, organic heart disease. The symptoms are much the same. There is, however, a vast difference between the two; organic heart disease is often incurable; apparent heart disease is curable if good digestion be restored.

A case in point is reported from the Eco Era, of Greensburg, Ind. Mrs. Eliza Colsom, Newpoint, Ind., a woman forty-three years old, had suffered for four years with distressing stomach trouble. The gases generated by the indigestion pressed on the heart and caused an irregularity of its action. She had much pain in her stomach and heart, and was subject to frequent and severe choking spells, which were most severe at night. Doctors were tried in vain; the patient became worse, despondent, and feared impending death.

A CASE OF HEART FAILURE.

She was much frightened, but noticed that in intervals in which her stomach did not annoy her, her heart's action became normal. Reasoning correctly that her digestion was alone at fault, she procured the proper medicine to treat that trouble, and with immediate good results. Her appetite came back, the choking spells became less frequent and finally ceased. Her weight, which had been greatly reduced, was restored, and she now weighs more than for years. Her blood soon became pure and her cheeks rosy.

The case is of general interest because the disease is a very common one. That others may know the means of cure we give the name of the medicine used—Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People. These pills contain all the elements necessary to give new life and richness to the blood and restore shattered nerves.

ALABAMA SPEAKS OUT.

Kyleton, Ala., writes, For Palpitation of Heart and Sick Headache Dr. M. A. Simmons Liver Medicine is worth its weight in gold. The imitations are not so good.

Wifehood.

It is of vital importance to every woman who contemplates wifehood that her mental state and physical condition should be at their best, since the desire and happiness of mankind are consummated in marriage and procreation. If she is feeble, it is impossible that her children should be strong. Every woman should know that female weakness can be cured; that Dr. Simmons Squaw Vine Wine will prove most beneficial during wifehood; that it will impart physical, mental and local strength, nourish the nerves, blood, brain, and vitalize the feminine organism and insures a safe and comparatively painless delivery.

J. T. McCarley,

Oak Lane, Ala., writes: I have used Dr. M. A. Simmons Liver Medicine 12 years. It cured a case of Sick Headache of 20 years standing. "Black Draught" is sometimes injurious to people as a Substitute; they cannot get it. Dr. M. A. S. L. M. Principal, think is far Superior. ANTON, ALA.

Puffiness and Dark Rings Under the Eyes.

The symptoms of liver disease vary according to the circumstances of temperament, age, or constitutional weakness of the individual. Not unfrequently the complexion becomes pale and sallow, or there is a puffiness and dark rings under the eyes. The functional disorders of the liver are impaired and there is loss or irregularity of appetite. These and all other disorders of the liver may be cured by that old reliable remedy, Dr. M. A. Simmons Liver Medicine. The fact that imitators undertake to sail under our colors and sell on the million dollar reputation of our Dr. M. A. Simmons Liver Medicine is a compliment to our goods, but an acknowledgment of the inability of their article to stand on its own merits, and shows an attempt to unfairly appropriate the business of another, which is unworthy of gentlemen, and the public should look out for the imitations and refuse to have anything to do with them.

Merit Means Money Made.

You cannot advertise money out of people's pockets all the time; you may do it now and then, but if you don't give them something of absolute merit in return, advertising will never prove successful. The kind of advertising that pays is advertising a good thing. As it has merit the people will use it again and again. Never has this been better illustrated than in the great success of Cascarets, candy cathartic, that we have been lately advertising in this paper. All druggists call Cascarets, repeaters, that is, people buy them, like them, and buy them again and recommend them to their friends. Cascarets are guaranteed to cure costipation or money refunded, and are a delightful laxative and liver stimulant; the best medicine ever made. We recommend all our readers to try them.

THE KNIGHTS OF LABOR

Is the greatest Labor Organization the world has ever seen.

It is the only organization which, while striving to secure for wage-workers the best possible terms as to wages, hours and conditions, aims at reforming the causes of industrial injustice.

It secures to each trade and locality absolute control over its own trade or local affairs, yet its perfect organization enables its members to act unitedly, promptly, and, therefore, effectively, when concentrated action becomes necessary to remedy injustice or to resist oppression.

It is pledged to work for the overthrow of the capitalistic system of production and exchange, yet, realizing that reforms can only be beneficial and permanent when they rest upon the convictions of a wisely educated people, it seeks to accomplish its objects only by appeals to reason and conscience—never by force.

It is a secret organization only so far as secrecy is necessary to protect its members from wrong and persecution, and can never be used to shield wrong-doing.

Its doors are open to all who labor honestly and usefully either by hand or brain, without question or discrimination on account of creed, race or nationality.

A SUGGESTION FOR [COT]TON FACTORIES.

MR. EDITOR: As there h[ave been] a good many articles writte[n in re]gard to prosperity and outl[ook for] cotton, and farmers are disc[ussing] the question with the view [of ad]vancing the price of our on[ly mo]ney crop, I would ask you t[o give] me a small space to give v[iews] of the question, promi[sing to] make it as brief as I can.

Not having seen any artic[le that] expressed my idea, I will sta[te] the only way in my opinio[n is to] manufacture the entire c[rop at] home. No legislation coul[d com]pel a man to plant only so m[uch or] produce only so much, and [unless] the white farmers are persua[ded to] curtail their acreage, the ne[gro in] the black belt will increase h[is]. Where the money is to com[e from] to hold 2,000,000 bales off th[e mar]ket I don't know. There a[re sev]eral cotton growers' associati[ons in] the South, but I think so[me] time wasted until they ad[vocate] manufacturing the cotton h[ere in] the South and tell us when w[e can] get the money to build fa[ctories] and operate them with.

I do not believe any one [would] say a factory would be of no [bene]fit to him in his immediate [neigh]borhood. He would be enab[led to] sell all his potatoes, turnip[s,] vegetables, butter, eggs and [all] meats. It would give him a [home] market near home for al[l] things. It would save hi[m ...] on bagging and ties and gi[nning] his cotton and freight on ... factured goods.

But it is not the advanta[ges or] disadvantages of factories I w[ish to] discuss in this article, but my [idea] as to how to get the factories.

I would build enough sma[ll fac]tories in the county to work u[p the] amount of cotton grown i[n the] county—say three or four sma[ll fac]tories—one at Clanton, one [at] Verbena, one near Maplesv[ille,] Dixie, and one near Jemison. [That] would give us four in the co[unty.] Let them be such as could be [built] for twenty thousand dollars [each.] Let the county do as the Stat[e did] for the railroads, when the[y en]dorsed their bonds to the amo[unt of] sixteen thousand dollars per [mile] and build railroads all ove[r the] country; that without such en[dorse]ment could never have been [built.] I would have the county flo[at four] hundred thousand dollars wo[rth of] bonds to run not less than ten [years] and under direction of the c[ounty] commissioners. The money [could] be readily furnished for these [bonds] at four to five per cent int[erest.] Let the county advance this m[oney] to such parties as can find goo[d and] sufficient collateral security o[n real] estate. Make it a severe pe[nalty] for any one to use this bond fo[r any] other purpose than for which i[t was] granted. Make the holder of [bonds] to pay annual interest; also i[f the] bonds run for ten years pay te[n per] cent of amount of bond into [a sink]ing fund annually for the fin[al re]demption of these bonds by [the] county. Let all other dividen[ds or] profits that may accrue to [the] bondholder remain to his cred[it in] the factory for the enlargemen[t of] same, if advisable. Let this p[rop]erty be exempted from taxatio[n for] the period of ten years.

You will perceive by this [plan] that at the expiration of ten [years] all bonds would be canceled, [and] that there would be $100,0[00 to] $150,000 of good taxable prop[erty] that would, at present rate of t[axa]tion, bring the county $600 or ... annually, aside from what m[ay] accrue from taxes on homes of [oper]atives.

VOL. VI CLANTON, ALA., THURSDAY, JANUARY 20, 1893 NO. 13

A SUGGESTION FOR COTTON FACTORIES.

MR. EDITOR: As there has been a good many articles written in regard to prosperity and outlook for cotton, and farmers are discussing the question with the view of advancing the price of our only money crop, I would ask you to grant me a small space to give you my view of the question, promising to make it as brief as I can.

Not having seen any article that expressed my idea, I will state that the only way in my opinion is to manufacture the entire crop at home. No legislation could compel a man to plant only so much or produce only so much, and when the white farmers are persuaded to curtail their acreage, the negro of the black belt will increase his, and where the money is to come from to hold 2,000,000 bales off the market I don't know. There are several cotton growers' associations in the South, but I think so much time wasted until they advocate manufacturing the cotton here in the South and tell us when we will get the money to build factories and operate them with.

I do not believe any one would say a factory would be of no benefit to him in his immediate neighborhood. He would be enabled to sell all his potatoes, turnips and vegetables, butter, eggs and fresh meats. It would give him a good market near home for all such things. It would save him freight on bagging and ties and ginning on his cotton and freight on his manufactured goods.

But it is not the advantages or disadvantages of factories I wish to discuss in this article, but my view as to how to get the factories.

I would build enough small factories in the county to work up the amount of cotton grown in the county—say three or four small factories—one at Clanton, one near Verbena, one near Maplesville or Dixie, and one near Jemison. That would give us four in the county. Let them be such as could be built for twenty thousand dollars each. Let the county do as the States did for the railroads, when they endorsed their bonds to the amount of sixteen thousand dollars per mile and build railroads all over the country; that without such endorsement could never have been built. I would have the county float one hundred thousand dollars worth of bonds to run not less than ten years, and under direction of the county commissioners. The money will be readily furnished for these bonds at four to five per cent interest. Let the county advance this money to such parties as can find good and sufficient collateral security on real estate. Make it a severe penalty for any one to use this bond for any other purpose than for which it was granted. Make the holder of bond to pay annual interest; also if the bonds run for ten years pay ten per cent of amount of bond into sinking fund annually for the final redemption of these bonds by the county. Let all other dividends or profits that may accrue to such bondholder remain to his credit in the factory for the enlargement of same, if advisable. Let this property be exempted from taxation for the period of ten years.

You will perceive by this basis that at the expiration of ten years all bonds would be canceled, and that there would be $100,000 or $150,000 of good taxable property that would, at present rate of taxation, bring the county $600 or $700 annually, aside from what might accrue from taxes on homes of operatives.

If this is not too long I desire to say a few words of a local and personal nature.

I notice one of our best citizens, Mr. J. A. Logan, is moving to Pickens county, and I consider this a loss to Chilton and a gain to Pickens. I have known Mr. Logan for many years, and I have always found him honest and true to whatever he professed; and he has labored long and faithful for the reformation so much needed in the political field.

With many good wishes, I am yonrs in the work.

Turn-Round Topics.

On Sunday, 9th instant, one of the most sad and serious accidents occurred here that our dear people have realized and experienced in a long time. Indeed a gloom of sorrow is prevailing through this country. On the above date Master Ellis Jones, aged 15, was drowned in Coosa river just above the mouth of Chestnut creek.

G. W. Jones, an older brother to the deceased, Arthur Jones, Eli Jones and Ellis Jones, with a batteau, went to see about some steel traps they had set. On their return, within about twenty yards of the bank, rowing up the river and the wind blowing very strong, turning the boat cross-ways the swiftest current of the river, in an instant the boat was capsized, throwing all over-board. Poor unfortunate Ellis being one that could not swim, help by his brother was offered him. His brother George being thrown out below, waited for Ellis to come to him in the swift water, while Arthur and Eli were looking out for themselves; and they just did make it to the shore, while George was struggling to save his brother. But the water was so strong he could not get out of the current. They went down stream hand in hand for perhaps two hundred yards or more, when George became almost exhausted, and realized he could not save himself and his brother too. His brother was already dead—died in his brother's hand. Friends, stop for a moment and think how you would have felt had you been in his condition and had to let go your dead brother. After George had let go his brother he had to turn on his back and float to the bank as best he could; and it is a thousand wonders that he ever reached land alive. Every day since search has been made to find the dead body, but as yet the body is hidden—but where? No one knows.

The three parents of the four boys at that time had been gone about two weeks on a fishing expedition down the Alabama river near Selma. Telegrams were sent, but no hearing from them could be had. But, truly fortunate, it was the dear old father of the unfortunate boy had a dream, and that dream troubled him so that he came home. The other two came also.

May God send a blessing upon the bereaved family, and may the body of their baby boy be found, is my prayer.

A TRUE FRIEND.

Stanton.

A sad occurrence took place near Stanton last Friday, when Manley Weaver shot and killed his chumpanion, Claud Jeffcoat, fourteen years of age. The boys had but one gun. A covey of patridges was flushed and Weaver brought the gun to his shoulder. Jeffcoat exclaimed excitedly: "It's my time to shoot, give me the gun!" His excited shout caused the birds to fly up and instantly his companion threw the gun to a level to take aim and fire at them. Young Jeffcoat, however, was determined to have the privilege of shooting and grabbed the gun near the muzzle, screaming as before: "Give me the gun, quick!"

At that instant the load was fired and in jerking the barrels toward him the lad caused the load to be discharged into his own body.

The shot entered his right side. He lived until his mother reached him, and gave the above account of the accident. "I was so anxious to shoot mother, that was all," was what the boy said just before he died.

Young Weaver is distracted with grief. Both boys were prominently connected, being scions of two well-known families. The sad occurrence is greatly deplored by the entire community, where great symnathy is felt for the bereaved.

Tribute of Respect.

Mrs. Nettie Perry, the sweet and idolized wife of Mr. W. E. Perry, and daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jno. Motley, died at her home in East Perry County, December 27, 1897, after a few mon hs illness.

She was only married twelve months and four days when the angel of death came and laid hands on her and said that she must go. She often spoke of death and said that she was ready to die. She belonged to the Missionary Baptist Church, and was a faithful worker in the Master's cause. She leaves many friends and relations to mourn her death and sympathize with her bereaved husband and parents.

"The Lord giveth and the Lord taketh away; blessed be the name of the Lord."

"Yet must we part and parting weep;
What else hath earth for us in store?

Where none shall bid our gladness cease

CLANTON, - ALABAMA.

An expert says that getting shot does not hurt any more than having a tooth pulled. The dissemination of this knowledge will not lessen the rush to get out of the way when bullets are flying around.

Georgia people and papers are pluming themselves greatly upon the fact that the new capitol of Rhode Island is being built of Georgia marble, in preference to all the granite and marble of New England. It comes from Pickens county, and is represented to be remarkably white white and strong.

The ingenuity that has been exhibited of late years in the discovery and application of explosives for mining purposes has really been a remarkable, and not less so has been the growth of the trade in explosives during the period of twenty years since the English act of 1875 came into operation, says the Trade Journals Review. Not only has the number of factories more than doubled, but the number of persons employed in them is now over 10,000, which shows an increase of nearly 3000 even during the last ten years.

Professor Bryce declares that the one conspicuous failure of American institutions is the government of our great cities, which every intelligent man knows to be true. The state limits the liberties of its cities. It does not dare to trust them with full autonomy. We have for years relied upon the country vote to hold the cities in check, but the time is soon coming when the cities will take matters into their own hands. If the rate of growth from 1880 to 1890 continues, in 1920 the cities of the United States will contain 10,000,000 more than one-half of the population. The city will then control state and nation.

The plague continues to spread in India, in spite of all sanitary efforts for its extirpation. Its progress is slow in comparison with most epidemics, but it is the hardest of them all to uproot entirely. It is several years since the present malady started on its course from China, and the history of previous visitations justifies the conjecture that it may have a long road to travel. Russia's plague of 1878 hovered about the countries of Western Asia for a decade before it advanced northward. In 1867 it appeared at Bagdad; in 1870-'71 Kurdistan was invaded; and in 1873 Bagdad suffered anew. In 1877 it appeared at Recht, an important city of Northern Persia, near the port of Enseli, from whence it was carried northward in Caspian ships and planted in the populous but malarious and unwholesome deltas of the Volga. Russia did not get rid of it for a number of years, and stray cases of it appeared in other European countries, to which it has been a periodical visitor since their history began. It may come again, but it is not now armed with its old terrors.

Disgraceful scenes have been witnessed more than once in American legislative chambers, recalls the New York Times. Our statesmen have occasionally resorted to the argument of fists vigorously swung, and in just a few instances the course of debate has been interrupted by the violent insertion into it of knives and revolvers. These lamentable facts are not to be denied, but the humiliation they have caused in sensitive minds is much mitigated by the thought that never, even amid the agonies of "reconstruction," did the most uncouth of our lawmakers display for more than a few minutes the reckless blackguardism by which for weeks past the members of the Austrian Reichsrath have shaken the foundations of the empire and classed themselves with savages. Democracy has its scandals, but monarchical institutions, apparently, do not develop in all who live under them unvarying reliance on courteous and legal methods as the only alternatives to out-and-out rebellion. However, we should remember that the government of the United States is an ancient one, compared with those of Austro-Hungary, Germany, Spain, Italy, France, and most of the minor Continental nations. In due time, no doubt, the residents of Europe will attain to our present high average of self-control. It would not be fair to expect as much from people to whom constitutional rule is still only an experiment as from those whose ancestors have been free for many a generation, and who have learned from long experience when to fight and when to make parliamentary motions.

REDUCTIONS INAUGURATED

In About Seventy of the Chief Cotton Mills in New England.

EIGHTY THOUSAND EMPLOYES AFFECTED.

Ten Thousand Operatives Are Out at New Bedford, Mass.—May Prove the Beginning of the Greatest Industrial Battle Ever Fought.

Eighty thousand or more skilled operatives employed in about seventy of the chief cotton mills of the New England states commenced work under the sweeping order of the new wage scale, which entails a reduction of 10 per cent or more. This reduction will bring on in New Bedford, Mass., Lewiston and Biddeford, Me., labor strikes which may prove the beginning of an industrial battle greater in extent and more disastrous in effect than any in the previous history of cotton manufacturing in the United States.

The battle against corporations undoubtedly would have been fought everywhere had not the voice of men and women ill prepared at this time of the year to go into idleness been heeded by the conservatives.

As it is, a great majority of persons employed in the nine corporations in New Bedford and one corporation each in the two Maine cities will take upon themselves the task of forcible resistance to reduction.

In New Bedford the nine corporations represent twenty-two mills, with over 770,000 spindles and 21,000 looms, giving means of livelihood to nearly 10,000.

The strikes will be directed by the labor union, the lead being taken by the mule spinners union, the national executive committee of which has sanctioned the strike of opposition and promised financial aid.

New Bedford's Big Strike.

A shut-down, the most complete in the history of the cotton mills of New Bedford, began Monday morning. Not a spindle was turning, nor a loom in motion in the factories of the cloth corporations an hour after the usual time for beginning work. Between forty and fifty operatives went into the Bristol mill, and twenty-five or thirty into the Whitman, but aside from these no mill made any show of running and these two soon shut down.

Nine corporations, operating eighteen mills, in which upwards of 10,000 hands are employed, are involved in the strike.

The cut down is uniform all over the city, 10 per cent. The total pay roll of these corporations is estimated at $70,000 weekly.

SOUTHERN INDUSTRIAL REVIVAL

The Tradesman Gives Encouraging Reports in All Lines of Trade.

The Chattanooga Tradesman's Southern correspondents report encouraging prospects in all lines of trade for the new year. A feature of the week is the increased number of new industrial enterprises, prominent among them being the organization of companies with large capital to develop valuable water power in Georgia and Tennessee.

Furnace operators in the South report inquiries for iron more numerous than for a long time and orders are booked ahead for several months. Alabama iron shows especial activity, and among the large orders being filled at Birmingham is one for 10,000 tons of iron from Japanese brokers. The Clifton Iron Company's furnace at Ironaton will be put in blast February 1, and the No. 3 furnace of the Sheffield Coal, Iron & Steel Company will be blown in about February 10. The Rome (Ga.) Furnace Company has received an order for 6,000 tons of high grade product, which will keep the furnace busy nearly four months.

Consumers of steel billets are asking for figures covering the year, but the mills are not selling that way. The demand for billets, pipe and structural material is heavy and prices are stiffening. Heavy orders are booked from the railroads for spring and summer delivery.

The coal trade in the mining districts of the South is still active. Coal is moving out rapidly, taxing the output of the mines at many points and some operators are compelled to run extra time to supply the demand.

Japanese Warship to be Launched.

The launching of the Japanese warship Kasagi, which is being built at Cramp's shipyard, Philadelphia, will take place on Thursday at noon. The Kasagi is the most important ship ever built in the United States for foreign account and is the first foreign warship launched in this country since the Zobiaca, in 1878.

Mrs. Lane Shoots Herself.

Mrs. Lucille Lane youngest daughter of Ex-Senator Joe Blackburn, of Kentucky, shot herself in her apartment at the Wellington hotel, Washington, last Saturday night. According to the statement given out by the family the shooting was accidental.

Two Men Killed in Arkansas.

At a dance on the Falls plantation in Mississippi county, Ark., Saturday night a shooting affray took place between three sons of Armistead Phillips on one side and the three sons of Wright Ray on the other. Two men were killed and two fatally wounded, the casualties being equally divided.

Pitched Battle Between Negroes.

At Sandy Fork, Leslie county, Ky., eight colored men were killed as a result of a quarrel over a game of cards in a blind tiger one day last week.

ALABAMA POSTMASTERS.

Long List of Them Named by the President Saturday.

The following Alabama postmasters were named Saturday:

Amy P. Armistead, Kushia, Mobile county; J. H. Pangs, Tangs, Chambers county; W. F. Fulton, Larimore, DeKalb county; C. D. Williams, Luttrell, DeKalb county; W. H. Morgan, Manti, Conecuh county; John K. Smith, Maylene, Shelby county; Nancy I. Tingle, Melville, Winston county; J. B. Bullard, Mexia, Monroe county; Marshall J. Lewis, Moss, Marengo county; Elbert C. Lusk, Nance's Creek, Calhoun county; William J. Harris, Nix, Etowah county; Wilson C. Whitaker, Oswichee, Russell county; J. A. Shipman, Prak, Barbour county; James Crumy, Partlow, St. Clair county; E. A. Carr, Pushmahata, Choctaw county; S. W. Rotenberry, Randolph, Bibb county; W. D. Shaw, Vienna, Pickens county; Samuel Miller, Watch, Lamar county; William R. Wiley, Wheat, Cullman county; W. H. Miller, Woodstock, Bibb county.

Shot Himself in the Mouth.

William Harrison, 35 years of age, suicided in the office of the Babcock Cotton warehouse, at Selma, where he was employed as a clerk Monday. He was found sitting in a chair with his feet on the stove, a smoking pistol in his hand and blood gushing from his mouth. He was breathing heavily and died a few minutes later without speaking. The cause is supposed to be an escapade in which he figured Sunday night. Two years ago he attempted suicide by taking morphine.

Madison's Finances.

The yearly report of G. D. Kinney, tax collector of Madison county, to the court of Madison county commissioners was published Monday. The receipts from all sources from February 1, 1897 to December 31, 1897, amounted to $36,717.75; disbursements amounting to $32,060.37. The special road fund of the year amounted to $12,295.81. Of this fund $11,107.75 was expended in improvements and extensions of the free turnpike system of the county.

May Nominate Johnston.

Rev. William D. Gay, secretary of the state executive committee of the prohibition party, announces that he will soon call a meeting of the committee for the purpose of nominating a state ticket. It is said that the party will nominate Governor Johnston, who will be the democratic nominee for governor.

A Reviving Industry.

There seems to be a good prospect that the old Florence shoe factory will resume operations at an early date. J. G. Merritt, of Boston, has been in that city the past week, and it is understood that he has put $20,000 into the concern and that he is now engaged in making the necessary purchases of machinery.

Primary Nominations in Jackson County.

In the democratic primary held in Jackson county Saturday the following candidates were nominated: For probate judge, C. L. Cargill; circuit court clerk, F. D. Hurt; superintendent of education, Samuel Phillips; representatives, Milo Moody and Calvin Rousseau.

Sheriff Carson Not Guilty.

The trial of Sheriff Alonzo D. Carson at Florence was concluded Saturday. The jury was out only a few minutes and returned a verdict of not guilty on the charge of habitual drunkenness in office, preferred by the grand jury.

Crushed Without Warning.

James Wyper, a young white man employed at the Drift mines of the Tennessee Coal, Iron & Railroad company at Pratt City as a miner, was instantly killed last Saturday afternoon by a mass of rock, which fell on him while he was at work in his room.

White Blasengen, a cattle dealer of Pulaski, Tenn., was fatally injured at Hobb's Island, near Huntsville, by his horse falling on him.

BRIEFLY NOTED.

The Mobile and Ohio is laying track south of Tuscaloosa at the rate of a mile and a half a day.

The Scottville depot on the Mobile and Ohio extension is well advanced, and the Centerville depot will soon be begun.

J. B. Vassey's cotton gin and saw mill at Cluttsville, Madison county, were burned last week. The property was a total loss.

Hon. Hector D. Lane, ex-commissioner of agriculture, was seized with convulsions Saturday and is in a dangerous condition. He was paralyzed last week and it is feared he will sustain another shock.

The gin house of William Moore, at Tyler's, near Selma, was burned last Saturday night. Mr. Moore had lately put in $3,000 worth of new machinery.

Eugene V. Debs, the leader of the social democracy, addressed a public gathering at Montgomery Monday afternoon in the interest of his pet theories.

The grand jury of Hale county finished its work and made a final report on last Saturday evening. One hundred and forty-seven cases were investigated, 354 witnesses examined and 88 true bills found, at a cost to the county of $330.

MANUFACTURING ACTIVITY

Is a Feature in Southern Iron, Sales Being Very Heavy.

GOOD EXPORT DEMAND FOR COTTON.

Prices Generally Remain Steady or Tend Upward—Mild Weather Checks Distribution of Winter Goods—Failures Slightly on the Decrease.

Bradstreet's weekly review of trade says: Distributive trade remains rather quiet, mild weather throughout the country tending to check distribution of winter goods. Prices generally remain steady or tend upward, except for some grades of iron and orders for spring trade where received are encouraging. Industrial activity is most manifest at the west, where the demand for iron is very large. A feature of the week was the placing of an order by one railway for 100,000 tons of steel rails, with smaller orders, aggregating in the neighborhood of 25,000,000 tons more. Pig iron production is now at an unprecedented rate, the furnace capacity being estimated at 1,000,000 tons a month. At the south manufacturing activity is a feature, sales of iron being very heavy. A good export demand for cotton and grain at steady prices is a feature. At the east a number of strikes against wage reductions are reported or expected in the cotton industry.

Some woolen mills, working on men's heavy wear goods are refusing orders, their capacity being fully booked. Anthracite coal production, it is hoped, in that trade, will be restricted sufficiently to allow of the advance of 20 to 40 cents per ton being maintained.

The recent falling off in wheat exports prove, as was indicated last week in Bradstreet's, to have been due to the usual holiday quieting, and not to any falling off of demand from abroad. The total exports of wheat (flour included as wheat) from the United States and Canada this week amounted to 5,135,166 bushels, against 3,481,000 bushels last week and 3,948,000 bushels this week a year ago, 3,202,000 bushels in 1896 and 3,564,000 bushels in 1895.

Corn exports for the week show a gain of 1,000,000 bushels, amounting to 4,514,000 bushels against 3,255,000 bushels last week and 3,336,000 bushels in the corresponding week of 1896.

As was expected, weekly failures are slightly smaller in number, amounting to 323 this week, against 333 last week, 479 in this week of 1897, 412 in 1896, 358 in 1895 and 386 in 1894.

STRIKE ENDORSED.

Decided to Stay Out Until All Demands Are Granted.

At New Bedford, Mass., Adelphi rink was crowded Friday to its utmost capacity, fully 2,000 men and women attending the mass meeting of the union and non-union weaver of the city.

The action of the union in voting to strike was indorsed by a hearty aye, and it was voted to stay out until the abuses claimed by the weavers are corrected.

The weavers demand, first, a restoration of wages; second, the abolition of the finding system; third, the adoption of a uniform price list in all the mills of the city.

It was the sentiment of all that the weavers would no go to work Monday if the notices were taken down. The union and non-union card and picker room operatives had a mass meeting also and unanimously decided to resist the cut.

HOW TO MAKE THE FARMS PAY.

A Georgia Farmer Shows That Diversified Crops is the Panacea.

R. W. Hale, a Pike county, Georgia, farmer, has realized the value of diversified crops on a farm by his experience during the year just closed. He made forty-six bales of cotton and sold it for less than it cost to produce it. On the other hand Mr. Hale has a young orchard of forty-six acres of fruit trees. Only ten acres were old enough to bear any fruit last season, but nevertheless fruit men paid him $1,000 cash to let them ship what they wanted to from the orchard. When they got through a distiller gave Mr. Hale two barrels of brandy for what was left. After this, the hogs had a feast on the balance.

A New Party Born.

At the conference of populist leaders held at St. Louis a new political party was born. It was christened "The People's Party." The people's party proposes to go it alone. It has severed connection with the national populist committee, and made all arrangements for administering its own estate without the aid or advice of any outside party.

New Postmasters.

The following postmasters were appointed Thursday for Alabama: D. J. Bloodworth, Cowart, Henry county; Daniel W. Morton, Fayette, Fayette county.

Increase in Naval Enlistment.

Secretary Long sent a recommendation to the house committee on naval affairs Thursday for an increase in the forces of enlisted men in the naval force by 1,000 men, and asking for an increase of the apprentices in the navy by 700.

Eighty Lives Lost.

Latest advices from the Orient state that the Japanese transport steamer Nara, of 2,510 tons, bound to the Peccaderes, was wrecked December 24 and about eighty lives lost.

DEATH'S RECORD.

Hon. Ben Butterworth.

Hon. Ben Butterworth, commissioner of patents, who has been ill at the Piney Woods Hotel, Thomasville, Ga., for some weeks, died last Saturday afternoon.

Mr. Butterworth was born in Warren county, Ohio, October 22, 1837, and was a member of the state senate of Ohio from Warren and Butler counties in 1873-'74; was elected from the first Ohio district to the forty-sixth, forty-seventh, forty-nine and fiftieth congresses and was re-elected to the fifty-first congress as a republican. He was commissioner of patents first during the administration of Garfield and Arthur and his record made then and subsequently had great weight with President McKinley in sleecting him for that position.

Logan Carlisle.

FAVORS ITALIAN REPUBLIC.

Co-Existence of the Vatican and Monarchy Impossible

POPE'S ALLOCUTION FORMS THE BASIS

Of an Article Which Declares That There Can Be No Peace With a King—Decree Has Produced a Profound Sensation in All Circles.

The Rome correspondent of the London Daily Chronicle in a startling statement quotes largely from an article in Civilta Cattolica which he declares is directly inspired by the vatican and the pope advocating as the solution of the eternal question between the vatican and the quirinal the establishment of an Italian republic.

The article, which is based on the pope's Christmas allocution, declares that the thing which stands opposed to papal independence is not Italian unity but "the special and concrete form wherein that unity is at present maintained with results much more disastrous to the state than to the holy see."

It proceeds to assert that the co-existence of the vatican and the Italian monarchy is responsible, and that one or the other must go. It then suggests the constitutions of Switzerland and America as examples of "admirable and glorious constitutions, true unities of nation and state, though differing from that of Italy, which has produced nothing but weakness, misery and starvation."

The article concludes:

"Without the aid of foreign bayonets the true Italy will find for itself its own way and will rise again, let us hope, from the ignominy in which it now lies prostrate to true greatness."

The Daily Chronicle's correspondent asserts that that this is "an intentional revelation to the outer world of the policy actuating the inner mind of Cardinal Rampolla," the secretary of state. He adds:

"Probably there would be no truth in the supposition that either Cardinal Rampolla or the pope had any idea of even a temporary alliance with the republican party, but yet they believe that, while peace with the king is impossible, it might be possible with a republic. The reason for the appearance of this astounding pronouncement at the present moment is the belief that not only the ministry, but the dynasty itself is menaced more seriously than usual."

TO UNITE ALL FACTIONS.

Silver Leaders Will Endeavor to Work in Union for the Fight in '98.

As a result of conferences held in Washington in the last few days between the silver leaders of the various parties, it is understood that Chairman Jones, of the national democratic committee, Chairman Butler, of the populist national committee, and Chairman Towne, of the silver national republican committee, will issue a joint manifesto the early part of next week with a view to securing common act on by the three organizations in the contest of 1898. The document is now in the course of preparation. It will appeal to all those interested in the cause of silver to work in union.

Wreck on the Mobile and Ohio.

Southbound freight train, No. 13, on the Mobile and Ohio, was wrecked about twenty-five miles north of Meridian Thursday night. As a result the negro fireman, Guy Claiborne, is dead, a white brakeman, Will Cunningham, is, it is thought, fatally wounded, and Engineer Charles Connell is badly hurt. The train crashed into an open switch and struck a train of cars on the side track.

Blanco Threatened.

Passengers who have arrived at Key West from Havana report that Captain-General Blanco has been threatened with an attack by a mob, and is mobilizing his loyal forces to be ready for any such demonstration. Most of the newspapers have been compelled to suspend publication, and those that are published are compelled to have their matter examined before using it.

Knoxville Elects a Republican Mayor.

Captain William Rule, a republican, has been elected mayor of Knoxville, Tenn. The republicans also elected the chairman of the board of public works, but lacked one of getting a majority of the board of aldermen. The democrats had two tickets in the field, which caused their defeat. The entire city government will change hands.

General Delgado Killed.

A dispatch received from Spanish sources in Pinar del Rio says that the insurgent brigadier, Gen. Parico Delgado, has been killed by his followers, and that his own staff, including Lopez Marin, has surrendered to the Spanish authorities.

Was a Real Battle.

It is reported that an important engagement has taken place between the Spaniards and the insurgents under General Rabi in the direction of Manzanilla, in which the insurgents lost 300 men killed and the Spaniards 110 killed and wounded.

Ex-President Cleveland has made a second appeal to Governor Budd, of California, for clemency in the case of Walter D. Worden, convicted of murder in connection with the train wrecking in the great strike of 1894.

Water Lengthens Life While Liquor Shortens It. A Temperance Lecture in the Street. Beer Drinking and Its Evil Effects.

Longevity Influenced by Water.

Solid and dry as the human body appears, water constitutes more than three-fourth of its bulk, and all the functions of life are really carried on in a watery bath, and, although the sense of thirst may be trusted to call for a draught of water when required, the fluid can be imbibed most advantageously for many reasons besides merely satisfying thirst. In the latter stage of digestion, when comminution of the mass is complete, it is much facilitated by a moderate draught of water, which disintegrates and dissolves the contents of the stomach, fitting it for emptying and preparing it for assimilation. Hence the habit of drinking water in moderate quantities between meals contributes to health and indicates the fact that those who visit health resorts for the purpose of imbibing the waters of mineral springs might profit by staying at home and drinking more water and less whisky. Water is the universal solvent of nature, and the chief agent in all the transformations of matter. When taken into an empty stomach it soon begins to pass out through the tissues, and the circulation to liquefy effete matter whose excretion from the system is thus facilitated. Very few people think of the necessity of washing the inside as well as the outside of the body, and he who would be perfectly healthy should be as careful about the cleanliness of his stomach as that of his skin.

A Temperance Lecture.

The following "news item" printed by the New York Sun, is by itself a pretty good temperance lecture. We copy it verbatim: "A carriage containing four well-dressed men in the stages of intoxication stopped on Union street, near Seventh avenue, Brooklyn, at about 3 o'clock yesterday afternoon. On the curb stood a white man bargaining with a peddler of fruit. He bought ten cents' worth of bananas, and offered in payment a five-dollar bill, which the peddler could not change. The wheelman asked the men in the carriage if they could change it. The least responsible one of the party at once drew a handful of paper money from his pocket, handed two one-hundred-dollar bills to the wheelman, stuffed the two-dollar bill into his pocket with the rest of his money, and called to the driver to go ahead. The moment the carriage was rolling down the street the wheelman stood looking at the two hundred dollars in his hands. Then he fumbled the bills, as if to restore his mind to working order, jumped on his wheel, and sputtered after the carriage. He caught it at the corner of Sixth avenue, returned the two hundred dollars with some difficulty, as the party of four seemed unable to comprehend the situation and wanted back his two dollars. The only loser in the transaction was the peddler. In his agitation, the wheelman forgot all about the bananas."

Bad Effects of Alcohol.

From scientific experiments of more than 2,000 persons Dr. J. H. Kellogg, of Battle Creek, Mich., has determined the effects of one ounce of alcohol administered internally. They are the following: (1) To diminish muscular activity; (2) to diminish cerebral activity; (3) to impair the coordinating power of the brain; (4) to lessen muscular strength; (5) to decrease digestive activity to a notable extent. From his medical experience and laboratory research have convinced him that it is an error to regard alcohol as a food; to digestion, as it has proven highly detrimental. This influence upon digestion, he declares, is exactly what would be expected of a drug that, like alcohol, is a paralyzer of protoplasmic activity, an anaesthetic and a sedative, and not, as has been erroneously supposed, a stimulant.

Herd of White Deer.

A herd of white deer was seen near Kingman, Maine, a few days ago. A hunter for twenty miles tried to get one of the animals. The herd was first seen by a New York sportsman. For awhile he was so bewildered that he did not know what to do, for it may be that no man before ever saw more than one white deer at a time in the Maine woods. He finally succeeded in killing a big white buck weighing about 225 pounds, and he left on the next train for home, after having been here only three days.

There was a patch of brown hair on his right side near the rump. When the man arrived in Bangor he met a taxidermist who bought the deer at a handsome price. The taxidermist says that he has mounted only one white deer in his life, and that was for a London man, who wanted it to present to the British museum.

Beer Drinking and Longevity.

Insurance doctors are much against beer drinking. Dr. Rogers of the New York Life, in reference to beer, says: "Recently I had occasion to make some study of what happens among persons engaged in the manufacture of beer. My cases included not only the workmen engaged in breweries, but also the proprietors of breweries. It is a curious fact that the mortality among the proprietors is about as high as among the workmen, showing that they are all given to copious libations. The mortality is strikingly low among brewers in early years. Up to forty or thereabouts, brewers seem to be about as good risks as pretty much anybody else. After forty the mortality rises very high and I should say that at fifty five or sixty years of age about three brewers may be expected to die where one average person dies."

Status of Saloonkeepers.

If saloon keepers are indeed "the best men on earth," as a certain mayor himself one of them, asserts, we shall have to revise our ethical systems so as to represent the worst as the best and the best as the worst. It would seem to be nobler to make a man drunk than to help him to keep sober; to minister to the indulgences of his appetites than to influence him to control them; to start him on the road to the almshouse or states prison than to encourage him to thrift, industry and uprightness. If saloons are the best places on earth, homes and schoolhouses and churches must be the worst, they are so widely different.—The Independent.

PROCEEDINGS OF CONGRESS.

The House—Monday.

The civil service debate was again resumed today. The opponents of the law had much the best of the debate as far as the numbers of those engaging in it were concerned. Nine of the eleven speakers were of the opposition. The friends of the law are very anxious to shut off further debate and in this will have the co-operation of the speaker and the rules committee. Mr. Moody, who has charge of the bill, gave notice that he would test the sense of the house tomorrow on a motion to close debate. The opposition immediately sent word to all in their ranks to be on hand, and they say they will have no difficulty in defeating the motion. The entire day was consumed by the debate, when at 5 o'clock the house adjourned.

The Senate.

A bill was reported favorably from the Indian committee prohibiting railroad companies from charging more than 3 cents a mile for passengers through the Indian territory.... A resolution looking to the filtration of water used in the city of Washington was referred to the District of Columbia committee.... At 12:30 p. m., the senate went into executive session to consider the Hawaiian annexation treaty. The treaty was not taken up immediately in the executive session, as a number of nominations were at first confirmed. Immediately after the treaty was called up Senator Pettigrew offered his motion for conducting the debate on it with open doors, which was antagonized by Senator Davis, chairman of the committee on foreign relations, and others. A majority of those favoring open doors are opposed to ratification, but not all of them are on that side of the main controversy. The senate decided not to debate the Hawaiian treaty in open session, and at 3:45 p. m. adjourned.

The House—Tuesday.

The civil service debate, which was inaugurated in the house a few weeks ago, ended to-day. It opened with a row, but ended very tamely. There was not even a vote on the appropriation in the legislative, executive and judicial appropriation bill for the civil service commission. The republicans, who were seeking to modify or repeal the law, decided to let the debate come to a close to-day, but it required the casting vote of the speaker to accomplish this. There is conflicting statements as to the situation in which the future conduct of the war against the civil service law is left. All the republican opponents of the law agree that the fight is to be kept up. It is understood that an opportunity will be given in the future for the consideration of a bill to modify the law. The debate to-day was quite dull until the closing hour, when Mr. Simpson enlivened it with reference to the Ohio senatorial election. Mr. Bailey made a clear statement of the minority position, which indicates that the minority will vote to repeal, but not to modify the law. The principal speech of the day was made by Mr. Brosius, chairman of the civil service committee, who defended the law in a two hours' speech.

The Senate.

The senate today briefly discussed an adverse report by the pensions committee on a bill to pension General Meade's two daughters at $100 a month each, Chairman Gallinger saying the committee did not wish to enter on the pensioning of daughters of veterans. Senator Allen, of Nebraska, thought that General Meade's service justified such liberality. No action was taken and after Senator Wolcott, of Colorado, announced a speech on the money question for next Monday, Senator Fairbanks addressed the senate on immigration. After this speech the Hawaiian treaty was taken up in executive session.... Mr. Allen secured the adoption of a resolution calling upon the president for information in his possession relative to the boundary line between Venezuela and British Guinea, and to inform the senate whether the United States now has any clerks or other employes at work upon the Venezuelan boundary question and also what part of the $100,000 appropriated for the Venezuelan commission has been expended.... At 3:45 p. m. the senate adjourned.

The House—Wednesday.

The house today passed an urgent deficiency bill carrying $1,741,843. One of the items, authorizing a further expenditure of $520,000 for the soldiers' home at Danville, Ill., for which $150,000 was appropriated in the last sundry civil bill, was used by Mr. DeArmond, of Missouri, as a basis for a bitter personal attack upon Chairman Cannon, whose home is at Danville. Mr. DeArmond moved to strike out the paragraph appropriating $100,000 for the construction of barracks at the soldiers' home established at Danville. He called attention to the fact that when the sundry civil bill passed at the last session carrying $150,000 for the establishment of the Danville home it was then stated that was all the money which would be asked for. Mr. DeArmond was exceedingly caustic in his criticism of Mr. Cannon, who, he said, after using his power on the appropriations committee to get that soldiers' home located at his home town, was trying to take a half million more out of the treasury. Mr. Cannon, in his reply, was as sarcastic as his adversary. Several members spoke briefly of the testimony, showing the necessity for a soldiers' home in the Mississippi valley, and the propriety of locating it at Danville. Mr. DeArmond's motion was then defeated without division. There was also a lively debate over the provisions in the bill requiring the owners of bullion hereafter to pay the cost of transporting bullion from assay offices to the mints. The house then adjourned.

The Senate.

Mr. Chandler, of the committee on naval affairs in the senate today, secured the passage of a resolution asking the secretary of the navy to furnish a list of the active officers of the navy in each corps, together with those who are at sea or on shore duty and on walking orders. At 12:25 p. m. the senate, on motion of Mr. Davis, went into executive session and Mr. Davis continued his speech on the Hawaiian question. Mr. Davis' speech today was devoted largely to a presentation of the strategic features of annexation. He displayed a chart showing the location of Hawaii relative to this country and to Asia. One of the points brought out with considerable elaboration was the probable effect on the Nicaragua canal, of the occupation of the islands by some foreign power. He illustrated by a reference to the map showing that Hawaii was in a straight line between the western terminus of the canal and Japan and China. The nation, he said, which controls Hawaii, will control that great gateway of commerce, and the guns planted upon Hawaii would be pointed directly at the mouth of the canal. Senator Allen, of Nebraska, followed in opposition to the treaty. He called attention to the distance of Hawaii from our own shores, referred to the necessity we would be under of defending the islands in case of war, and claimed that on this account it would be necessary for the United States to establish and maintain a separate fleet for their protection, as well as an army on the islands. The senate then adjourned.

The House—Thursday.

The house today entered upon the consideration of the agricultural appropriation bill. The bill carries $3,323,302, being $135,500 in excess of the amount for the current year. Mr. Wadsworth, of New York, chairman of the agricultural committee, explained that the increases were due to the growing demand for inspections of meat and meat products for export.... Under the latitude allowed for debate, Mr. Williams, of Mississippi, submitted an extended argument in favor of the establishment of the postal savings bank system.... After some remarks by Mr. Henderson, of Iowa, in support of the appropriation in the bill for seed distribution and in eulogy of Secretary of Agriculture Wilson, whom he described as a genuine hard-fisted farmer, Mr. DeArmond, of Missouri, got the floor and submitted some sarcastic comments on the report of the election of Senator Hanna, at Columbus yesterday. He read the telegram sent by Mr. Hanna to President McKinley: "God reigns and the republican party still lives," from which the basis of his remarks were taken.... An amendment was offered to strike out the appropriation for seed distribution, which was defeated by a vote of 119 to 115.... After a sharp debate an amendment appropriating $105,000 for the publication and distribution of 150,000 copies of the "horse book" was adopted, 115 to 103. The house then adjourned.

The Senate.

Among the measures reported to the senate today was the pension appropriation bill. It was placed on the calendar. At the conclusion of the morning business the immigration bill, the unfinished business, was taken up, and Mr. Caffery, of Louisiana, was recognized for a speech in opposition to the measure.... Eulogies in memory of Senator Harris, of Tennessee, which were to have been presented today were postponed.... The senate did not make great progress with the Hawaiian annexation treaty. Several speeches were delivered, but in every instance the speakers announced that today's remarks were merely preliminary to what they should say before the close of the senate. Senator Morgan, of Alabama, made the principal speech of the day.

Senator Cannon, of Utah, presented the following resolution, which was adopted:

"Resolved, That the president is requested, if in his opinion it is not incompatible with the public interest, to transmit to the senate at his earliest convenience a statement showing what measures are in force by this government in the Island of Cuba and in waters contiguous thereto, to protect the lives and property of American citizens now living in Cuba."

At 4:50 the senate adjourned.

The House—Friday.

The house managers decided not to proceed with the consideration of the diplomatic and consular appropriation bill today, but to give the day for the consideration of private bills. This was doubtless done to avert the possibility of precipitating a sensational Cuban debate during the consideration of the appropriation bill. When the house adjourned last night the amendment to the agricultural appropriation bill providing for the publication of another edition of "Horse Book" was pending. Today the friends of the amendment compromised with the appropriation committee by agreeing to a reduction of the number to be printed from 150,000 to 75,000. An amendment to the amendment was adopted and the bill was passed.... The resolution was adopted accepting the invitation of the government of Norway to participate in the international fisheries exposition at Bergen from May to September, 1898.... The senate bill to refer to the court of claims the claim of the corporation of the book agents of the Methodist church, south, was next taken up. Mr. Cooper, of Texas, in charge of the bill, moved as a substitute a bill appropriating $288,000 for the full settlement of this claim. The property of the corporation, which was located at Nashville, Tenn., was seized and held by the United States from 1862 to 1866, when it was turned over to the owners. After a lengthy discussion the bill went over until tomorrow and the house adjourned.

The Senate.

After the transaction of some routine business in the senate to-day Mr. Hoar, of Massachusetts, presented the following resolution, proposing an amendment to the constitution: "That the following article be proposed to the legislatures of the several states as an amendment to the constitution of the United States: The term of office of senators and members of the Fifty-sixth congress shall continue until the 30th day of April in the year 1899 at noon. The senators whose existing terms would otherwise expire on the 4th day of March in the year 1899, or thereafter, shall continue in office until noon of the 30th day of April, succeeding such expiration; and the 30th day of April, at noon, shall thereafter be substituted for the 4th of March as the commencement and termination of the official term of president, vice-president, senators and representatives in congress." The resolution was referred to the committee on privileges and elections.... Mr. Pettus, of Alabama, secured the passage of a bill to regulate the duties of the United States judges in the district courts in Alabama.... Almost the entire four hours of the executive session of the senate to-day was devoted to the indirect consideration of the nomination of Hon. Joseph McKenna, now attorney-general, to be associate justice of the supreme court. Upon agreement consideration was deferred until a week from to-day.... Consideration of the Hawaiian treaty was postponed until next Monday.

The House—Saturday.

The house devoted two hours to general debate on the army appropriation bill and the remainder of the day to eulogizing the life and public services of the late Representative Seth W. Milliken, of Maine, who served for fourteen years in the lower branch of congress.... On motion of Mr. Lanham, of Texas, a bill was passed authorizing the president to appoint an additional district judge for the northern district of Texas. It was evident that Judge Rector, now the judge of that district, was utterly incapacitated from performing the duties of his office.... The house then went into committee of the whole and took up the consideration of the army appropriation bill. The bill, Chairman Hull, of the military committee, explained, carried $23,185,990, which was $1,039,750 less than the estimates and $56,746 in excess of the law for the current year. The increase in the pay of the army was due to the fact that the army was nearer its maximum strength than heretofore. At 2 o'clock debate was suspended to give the members an opportunity to pay tribute to the memory of the late Representative Milliken, of Maine, and as a further mark of the respect, the house at 3:25 p. m. adjourned.

The House—Monday.

This was District of Columbia day in the house, and immediately after the reading of the journal Mr. Curtis, of the District of Columbia committee, claimed the day and the house proceeded to the consideration of district business.... After the passage of three bills of purely local importance, the house resumed consideration of the army appropriation bill, which was begun on Saturday. In the course of the general debate, Mr. Griffith, of Iowa, defended the policy of retiring officers on three-quarters pay. The debate was enlivened by an attack upon the efficiency of the several branches of the army by Mr. McClellan, of New York. The army today, he declared, was little better than a clumsily organized national police force, top-heavy with the gold lace of staff officers, many of whom had not seen more active service than falls to the lot of a member of a member of the police force. The army should, he declared, be entirely reorganized. He was followed by Mr. Lewis, of Washington, who made a vigorous speech against any increase in the army. Mr. Hull of Iowa, expressed concurrence in the views of Mr. McClellan to the extent that he believed that the army should be reorganized, as the present organization was obsolete. The discussion of the needs of the army was continued by Messrs. Wheeler, of Alabama; Cox, of Tennessee and others.... Without completing the bill, the committee rose and at 5:10 p. m. the house adjourned.

The Senate.

In anticipation of an interesting session of the senate today, all the galleries were well filled sometime before the senate convened.... Mr. Hanna, who has just been elected senator from Ohio, made his first appearance on the floor since his election. Mr. Foraker presented the credentials of Mr. Hanna for the remainder of Mr. Sherman's term of six years, ending March 4, 1899. They were read. As there was no objection to the administration of the oath of office, Mr. Foraker escorted Mr. Hanna to the vice-president's desk and the oath was administered.... Among the motions presented were the remonstrances of 512 Roman Catholic societies of the United States, representing more than 50,000 members, offered by Mr. Murphy, of New York, against the enactment of the pending immigration bill.... At 12:50 Mr. Wolcott, of Colorado, chairman of the bimetallic commission, was recognized for a speech upon the work of the commission, who spoke for one hour and fifteen minutes, and at the close of which he was greeted with a burst of applause.... Mr. Lodge, of Massachusetts, then demanded the regular order, which was the immigration bill, and he was sustained in his demand by the vice-president. Mr. Hoar spoke in favor of the bill. An amendment was offered by Mr. Spooner providing that steamship companies should take back to Europe the wife and children of an emigrant who failed to meet the requirements of the proposed law. Adopted by 42 ayes and 22 noes. An amendment to fix the age of emigrants affected by the bill from 16 to 21 years was lost. The bill was then placed on its passage and passed by a vote of 47 to 28.... A bill authorizing the Muscogee Coal & Railroad company to construct and operate a railway through the Indian Territory and Oklahoma Territory, and for other purposes, was passed.... Bills were passed providing for an American register for the steamer Navahoe and to amend section 4,400 of the Revised Statutes authorizing the licensing of mates on river and ocean steamers.... The joint resolution providing for participation by the United States in the fisheries exposition to be held this year in Bergen, Norway, which had been passed by the house, was passed.... The senate then, at 4:45 p. m., went into executive session and at 5 p. m. adjourned.

Found Dead in the Woods.

Last Friday night Herbert Seeley and Miss Alice Caro, of Warrington, a town surrounding the navy yard, at Pensacola, Fla., left in a buggy to attend a party at Mill View, about ten miles away. They arrived safely and were among the gayest of the guests. At 2 a. m. the couple left to return home, but late in the following day they had not made their appearance and a searching party was organized. Monday morning, near a bridge, their bodies were found in a clump of trees. The young lady had been killed by a pistol ball, while her companion lay beside her with his skull shattered by a ball. A coroner's jury were convinced that the young man had killed the girl and subsequently committed suicide.

LARGE CATTLE TRADE.

Thousands of Head Shipped to the West for Fattening Purposes.

Three train loads of Alabama cattle left Birmingham last Friday over the Kansas City, Memphis and Birmingham railroad for points in Indian Territory and Kansas. These will be the last shipments of live stock from this state to the western pastures for fattening purposes this season, as the cattle quarantine went into effect on the 15th inst.

The business of shipping Alabama cattle to the west has been a big one since November. It is estimated that between 40,000 and 50,000 head have left the state this winter. Alabama has been fairly drained of its young beef. The reason for this extraordinary shipment lies in the fact of the duty on Mexican and Central American cattle, which was fixed by the Dingley bill at $3 per head on the average. At this price the cattle feeders found it more profitable to buy at home than to bring cattle across the border. Alabama has received the benefit. The cattle have been gathered by brokers at central points, especially in such North Alabama cities and towns as Birmingham, Huntsville, Gadsden, Athens, Collinsville and the Decaturs, and shipped by the train load to Kansas, Missouri and Indian Territory to be fattened for slaughter by the big packing houses.

THE ALABAMA AND TOMBIGBEE.

Articles of Incorporation For the New Road Filed.

The organization of the Alabama and Tombigbee Railroad Company has been completed by the filing with the secretary of state of all the final papers and the issuing of the certificate of incorporation. This railroad is to extend from Lower Peachtree, in Wilcox county, to Coffeeville, in Clarke county, a distance of about forty miles. The incorporators and owners are the gentlemen who compose the Scotch Lumber Company at Fulton. This means a great deal for the development of that part of the State of Alabama. The capital stock is paid in full in cash. Much of the right of way is already secured, and a few miles of the road have been graded and track laid. It connects with the Mobile and Birmingham railroad at Fulton.

CONDENSED STATE ITEMS.

Birmingham's total cotton receipts up to January 13 have been 85,214 bales.

The house of Stephen Carter, a negro, near Greensboro, was destroyed by fire. Three small children perished in the flames.

Arguments in the Crowe-Underwood contested election case from the Ninth district was heard before election committee No. 1 Friday.

The machinery of the Alabama Kaolin company at Fort Payne is expected next week. The company will employ from 125 to 150 hands.

The saw mills of Baldwin county are unable to supply the demand for building material. Over 500 houses will be built in the county this winter.

WARSHIPS MOVING SOUTHWARD

Said to Have No Reference to the Present Cuban Troubles.

The North Atlantic squadron which has been gathered at Hampton Roads, sailed Southward Saturday. Lest there should be any misunderstanding of the purpose of the cruise, which has already been described, the order under which the vessels will proceed have been made public and taken in connection with the department's orders to Admiral Sicard, the navy department says, show the squadron movements have no reference to Cuba. The squadron is supposed to be destined eventually to participate in drills in the Key West drill waters.

Rev. William D. Gay, secretary of the state executive committee of the prohibition party, announces that he will soon call a meeting of the committee for the purpose of nominating a state ticket.

Smallpox, which was thought to have been crushed out of Montgomery, has recently developed there again, and, while it has by no means assumed a serious aspect as far as the community is concerned, there are new cases developing every week and a fair proportion of them are white people. The physicians have gone industriously to work as they did when the disease first appeared last summer, and are filling up all gaps left in the general vaccination.

The meeting at Montgomery for the purpose of forming a State Agricultural Society was not much of a success. While we are heartily in favor of the farmers of the State being thoroughly organized, we do not believe they can accomplish as much good for themselves in any other organization as they can in the Farmers' Alliance, and the stronger the Alliance the greater the good. The Chilton County Alliance will meet with Union Alliance on February 2, and every farmer in the county should make a point and be there. It promises to be an unusually interesting meeting.

The formation of another "People's Party" by the extremists who met at St. Louis is to be deplored. That it cannot possibly do any good, and in all probability will do some harm, does not appear to trouble the promoters of the new party. If there were any errors of judgment or of policy existing in the established organization of the People's Party, or if the members of the party were dissatisfied with its management, the party organization was fully competent to correct all departures from strict Populist principles, without going outside the party to effect any changes. The old organization is good enough for all true Populists, and they will see to it that nothing is accomplished which is not in strict conformity with the party platform and true Populist principles.

Like the calm which precedes the storm, politics in Alabama are abnormally quiet. 'Tis true there are mutterings of the storm to follow, but up to the present candidates are keeping under shelter. So far as the Populist State ticket is concerned the convention in May can safely left to determine the State candidates. County politics are unusually quiescent, and whether we are to have a primary or convention or days meeting to select candidates for county offices no one seems to know. This question should be set at rest, and an early meeting of the county executive committee is looked for. A Probate Judge, Circuit Clerk, Representative, and County Superintendent of Education are to be elected this year.

Mrs. N. A. Goodwin and Miss Willie Glover have enjoyed a visit to Selma.

We are glad to state that Mrs. John Foshee has returned home from a visit to her parents at Montevallo.

We had a most quiet Xmas; nervous people were glad the supply of gunpowder seemed exhausted, even the fiendish small boy seemed to have been cheated out of his firecrackers that have been his chief treasure and joy at Xmas. The terrible poisoning affair seemed to have affected the too frequent imbibers, dealers were required to taste for purchasers which soon incapacitated them for business. Our railroad is on a quiet boom.

The New Time in its January number sounds the keynote of the opposition to the currency plans of President McKinley and Secretary Gage. This able magazine is now the recognized leader in the fight against the money power. "The Wolcott commission and its results" is the subject discussed by Charles A. Towne, the brilliant chairman of the Silver Republican National committee. He handles Comptroller Eckels without gloves, and charges him with dense ignorance on the subject under discussion. Mr. Towne accuses the Republican party leaders leaders with despicable duplicity and with the betrayal of solemn pledges.

"The Menace of Plutocracy" is discussed by Congressman M. W. Howard, of Alabama. Among the famous contributors to this splendid number are Prof. W. H. H. Leckey of the English Parliament; Congressman D. B. Henderson, of Iowa; Congressman Stark, of Nebraska; Prof. J. R. Commons, of Syracuse University; Hon. John C. Bradshaw, who treats of "Single Tax and Labor;" John W. Breidenthal, Senator Marion Butler, Helen M. Gougar, Imogene C. Fales, Rev. Myron W. Reed, Senator William M. Stewart, Prof. Frank Parsons and many other of the best writers and thinkers of the country.

Twenty-five illustrations, including several striking cartoons, are scattered through the January New Time. This magazine has passed the 50,000 mark, and is a power to be reckoned with. He Hoped to Gain Experience.

He walked into the furniture show with a nervous air and tried to look as if he were quite accustomed to that sort of thing. He gazed about the establishment in search of something and seemed perplexed.

"A nice pair, that," observed the shopkeeper soothingly, as he saw the young man stand still before a couple of chimney ornaments.

"That's what all the relatives and neighbors say," said the young man, blushing a fiery red. "How did you know about it?"

"Well—er—they always are," stammered the proprietor, taken aback. "You see," he added, recovering himself, "I'm a married man myself."

"Yes—exactly," said the customer. "Perhaps you can help me. If you had to—buy a cradle—I mean, if it was—more—than you expected—that is, if they were more than you expected—do you think—that one would do or would one be—too small for—two, and ought I to buy one for each? I shall have more experience of that kind of thing as time goes on, of course."—Pearson's Weekly.

Political Pointers.

People's Press Bureau, St. Louis, Mo., Jan. 12, 1898.

W. J. Bryan has been arraigned by Arthur McEwen, a leading Henry George Democrat, of New York City for his strict adherence to the "16 to 1 idea," to the neglect of other matters that he asserts many Democrats esteem equally or more important. Mr. McEwen uses the columns of the New York Journal, since that was the only great paper of the east that favored Bryan during the last campaign, this is significant of the attitude of eastern democrats toward the late candidate. Mr. McEwen is particularly bitter on account of Bryan having not aided the Henry George party which he says represented the true Bryan democracy.

Senator Teller has been again arraigning the G. O. P. and declaring his intention to keep up the fight against it even if it should change the money plank in the next platform. This latter he does not consider an improbable event.

Almost every man of note among the anti-gold forces has declared himself in regard to Gage's treasury scheme and all vie with one another in condemning the same in most vigorous terms.

Hanna's re-election to the United States senate was no surprise to those who had watched the manoeuvers of that gentleman during the last campaign and noted his ability to produce any required amount of cash. The triumph of such methods and such a man can not but put many self-respecting men out of the party.

The conference called last week at St. Louis by the self-styled national organization committee of the people's party, was attended by 38 accredited delegates. The principle result of the meeting was a set of resolutions opposing "fusion." An attempt to call a middle-of-the-road national convention on July 4, will probably be made. The Globe-Democrat, the chief gold organ of the west, was loud in its praise of the meeting and the delegates all quoted the goldbug Globe as gospel truth. The reason is obvious.

Pueblo, Colorado, sends out a warning to workingmen not to come to that city with the hope of finding work. A large number of men have already reached there in response to a rumor that large contract work was in progress, and suffered as a result.

Many Democratic papers are booming W. J. Stone of Missouri for the presidential nomination in 1900. Stone declares himself the friend of Bryan and says that he is not seeking any office now.

The Legislative committee of the American Federation of Labor has issued an address to the members of the Fifty-fifth congress, in which legislation in regard to the following matters is asked for: An eight hour day of labor; some restriction of immigration; limitation of convict labor so as not to conflict so seriously, as it now does, with the working classes; the taking of some steps to stop the indiscriminate and dangerous use of the writ of injunction.

Senator Allen recently offered a resolution in the Senate favoring the free coinage of silver "immediately and independently," such coinage to be supplemented by "safe and sound paper money issued without the intervention of banks," that the increase of the public debt of the selling of government bonds be prohibited and that the government, in the discharge of its obligations, should use its option as to the kind of lawful money in which they should be paid, and that such option should never be surrendered."

Governor Leedy, of Kansas, was the first governor to respond to the request of Stephen Barton of New York for help in money, clothing and medicine for the Cuban sufferers. A committee of leading citizens was appointed and the work is well under way.

It is about settled that the Populists, Democrats, Silver Republicans and Union party, in Oregon, will hold simultaneous conventions in Portland, March 25. A.R.

HOW TO FIND OUT.

Fill a bottle or common glass with urine and let it stand twenty-four hours; a sediment or settling indicates an unhealthy condition of the kidneys. When urine stains linen it is positive evidence of kidney trouble. Too frequent desire to urinate or pain in the back, is also convincing proof that the kidneys and bladder are out of order.

WHAT TO DO.

There is comfort in the knowledge so often expressed, that Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, the great kidney remedy fulfills every wish in relieving pain in the back, kidneys, liver, bladder and every part of the urinary passages. It corrects inability to hold urine and scalding pain in passing it, or bad effects following use of liquor, wine or beer, and overcomes that unpleasant necessity of being compelled to get up many times during the night to urinate. The mild and the extraordinary effect of Swamp-Root is soon realized. It stands the highest for its wonderful cures of the most distressing cases. If you need a medicine you should have the best. Sold by druggists, price fifty cents and one dollar. You may have a sample bottle and pamphlet both sent free by mail. Mention THE BANNER and send your address to Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N.Y. Planters CUBAN OIL cures Cuts, Burns, Bruises, Rheumatism and Sores. Price, 25 cents.

Two of the Alabama contested election cases have been disposed of by the elections committee. These were the cases of Comer against Clanton, and that of Clark against Stallings. The latter case was dismissed on motion, Mr. Clark having abandoned it. In the other case the committee adopted a resolution declaring that G. L. Comer was not elected to congress, and that Henry D. Clayton was elected to the fifty-fifth congress, and was entitled to his seat therein. The committee is now considering the case of Crow against Underwood. Judge Horne, of Birmingham, is counsel for Dr. Crow, and General Dudley, of Washington, is counsel for Underwood. Clayton, Stallings and Underwood are the sitting members, all democrats, Comer and Clark ran as gold men and Crow as populist. The other two Alabama cases, Aldrich vs. Plowman, and Goodwyn vs. Brewer will probably be settled in a few weeks, the evidence pointing to both contestants being seated.

A Clever Trick.

It certainly looks like it, but there is really no trick about it. Anybody can try it who has Lame Back and Weak Kidneys, Malaria or nervous troubles. We mean he can cure himself right away by taking Electric Bitters. This medicine tones up the whole system, acts as a stimulant to the Liver and Kidneys, is a blood purifier and nerve tonic. It cures Consumption, Headache, Fainting Spells, Sleeplessness and Melancholy. It is purely vegetable, a mild laxative, and restores the system to its natural vigor. Try Electric Bitters and be convinced that they are a miracle wonder. Every bottle guaranteed. Only 50 cents at bottle at J. S. Johnson's Drug Store

Pe-ru-na Cures Catarrh Wherever Located

All classes and conditions of people have chronic catarrh. It spares neither strong or weak, old or young, healthy or sickly. All ranks of people have chronic catarrh. Rich men, poor men, beggars, lawyers, doctors, merchants, priests. Not one catarrh of the head, the lungs, catarrh of the stomach, catarrh of the liver, catarrh of the kidneys, catarrh of the bowels. A multitude of women are afflicted with catarrh of the pelvic organs. When it is said, therefore, that Pe-ru-na cures catarrh wherever located, a much larger fact is stated than at first appears. Who is there that says Pe-ru-na will cure catarrh wherever located? Doctors say it. Lawyers say it, preachers say it. A vast army of men and women say it who have tried it. The old and the young say it. They say it in the East and in the West; they say it in the North and in the South. All these say that Pe-ru-na will cure catarrh wherever located.

Dr. Miles' Heart Cure

Cures a Prominent Attorney.

M. E. C. PHELPS, the leading pension attorney of Belfast, N. Y., writes: "I was discharged from the army on account of ill health, and suffered from heart trouble ever since. I frequently had fainting and smothering spells. My form was bent as a man of 80. I constantly wore an overcoat, even in summer, for fear of taking cold. I could not attend to my business. My rest was broken by severe pains about the heart and left shoulder. Three years ago I commenced using Dr. Miles' Heart Cure, notwithstanding I had used so much patent medicine and taken drugs from doctors for years without being helped. Dr. Miles' Heart Cure restored me to health. It is truly a wonderful medicine and it affords me much pleasure to recommend this remedy to everyone."

Sheriff's Sale.

By virtue of an order of sale issued out of the Circuit Court of Chilton county, and State of Alabama, and to me directed, whereby I am commanded to make the amount of a certain judgment recently obtained against Sallie Hanlin, by the sale of the following described property, to-wit:

Commencing at the south east corner of the south west quarter of south west quarter of section twenty-one, township twenty-one, north, range sixteen east, and running thence in a westerly direction forty feet, thence north one hundred and five feet, thence east four hundred and twenty feet, thence south one hundred and five feet, and thence west to point of beginning, containing one acre, and also the mill-dam, mill-house and mill-race situated on said land, and lying and being in Chilton county, Alabama.

Therefore, according to said command I shall expose for sale, at public outcry, to the highest bidder, for cash, all the right, title and interest of the above named Sallie Hanlin in and to the above described property, on

MONDAY, FEBRUARY 14, 1898,

during the legal hours of sale, at the Court House door in Clanton, Alabama.

Dated at Clanton this 6th day of January, 1898. J. T. COOLEY, Sheriff.

We shall be pleased to receive communications at all times, and request that the friends of the BANNER send us all the items of news that come within their notice, and thus assist us to make the BANNER the newsiest as well as the most popular paper of Chilton county.

An Old Idea.

Every day strengthens the belief of eminent physicians that impure blood is the cause of the majority of our diseases. Twenty-five years ago this theory was used as a basis for the formula of Browns' Iron Bitters. The many remarkable cures effected by this famous old household remedy are sufficient to prove that the theory is correct. Browns' Iron Bitters is sold by all dealers.

THE CROSS AND CROWN

Is the title of a treatise on the doctrine of perfection or sanctification, by A. L. Pattillo, of Verbena, now in the press. It is written in a plain, homely fashion by one deeply impressed with the necessity of Christians living a perfect life, who desires to see all professing religion imbued with the same spirit. The Author, who is also a poet, has written several poems, all on religious subjects. The whole when complete will make a book of over 200 pages, bound in a stiff board cover, which at the small charge of 50 cents, should speedily exhaust the edition.

This book has a double claim on the people of Chilton county and should find a place in every home in the county, from the fact that it is entirely a home production, being the first book ever written, printed, bound and published in Chilton. It will be ready early in October. Price only 50 cents. Orders can be sent to THE BANNER, Clanton, or to A. L. Pattillo, Verbena.

Notice to Non-Resident.

The State of Alabama, Chilton county.

In Chancery at Clanton, Alabama, Seventh District, North-eastern Chancery Division, December 11, 1897.

W. M. Pylant, complainant, vs. Fannie Pylant, defendant.

In this cause it is made to appear to the Register, by the affidavit of A. C. Smith, Esq., that the Defendant, Fannie Pylant, is a non-resident of the State of Alabama, and that her post office address and residence are unknown to affiant and further, that in the belief of said affiant, the Defendant is over the age of twenty-one years.

It is therefore ordered by the Register that publication be made in the Banner, a newspaper published in Clanton, once a week for four consecutive weeks, requiring her, the said Fannie Pylant, to answer or demur to the same within thirty days after the 17th day of January 1898, and failing so to do a decree pro confesso will be taken against her in said cause.

Done at office in Clanton, Alabama, this 14th day of December, 1897.

W. E. STEWART,
Register in Chancery.

"FIAT" IN FAR INDIA.

"VALUE" LEGISLATED INTO SILVER MONEY.

The Difference Between Coined and Uncoined Metal The Quantitative Theory Proved—Good "Queer" Is Kept in Circulation.

India is proving the quantitative theory of money. The gold value of the silver bullion in a rupee is about 20 cents. The gold value of a coined silver rupee is about 30 per cent above. A year ago its value was reported by the United States consul to be 28.8 cents. Writers in India are complaining that the rupee has appreciated about 30 per cent compared with bar silver and has placed the trade of India at the mercy of those countries where the silver coin used is not limited in amount by closed mints, and where the value of all silver coins keeps on a level with the value of silver bullion. The gold standard advocates in both England and India know that the quantitative theory of money is true, and that is just the reason why the mints of India were closed. Had they not believed in that theory the mints of India would be open today. Were the quantitative theory not true, the silver rupee would be always at a par with silver bullion. That being the case, closing of the mints could do no good, for bullion would circulate as freely as coined rupees, and the government might as well continue to turn bullion into rupees on demand.

But the quantitative theory being true, the government of India decided to utilize that fact and place a great gulf between the coined rupees and the mass of uncoined silver. They said: "We will stop the further coinage of silver and the supply being thus limited, demand for them as an exchange medium will keep them from falling further, even though uncoined silver continue to fall. They limited the quantity to keep up the quality. There is nothing behind the rupee. It is itself a coin of ultimate redemption. The thirty per cent of gold value above the value of the bullion in each rupee is what some are pleased to call fiat. Yet that 30 per cent of fiat in each rupee is worth gold in London.

Were silver bullion to drop in value to nil, the rupee would not be affected so long as the mints were kept closed, thus keeping down the quantity of the circulating medium. The only influence that would be felt on the value of the rupees in addition to quantity of legal coins, would be the "dummy" rupees that are even now constantly appearing there. These so-called "dummy" rupees are coins made illegally, presumably by connivance of the raiahs and others. These are knowingly received and circulated by the 300,000,000 people of India. Many of the fair-minded English in India say that this coinage is illegal but not dishonest, and that the government will never be able to suppress it. This will always act as one factor retarding the appreciation of the stock of rupees, but it is doubtful if the illegal coins exist in numbers sufficient to produce any very obvious effect. They influence the value of the other rupees only as they increase the mass. Here is another proof of the truth of the quantitative theory. These illegal ones circulate at a par with the legal ones, and far above the gold value of the bullion in them. This is not because they cannot be told from the others, for they are of finer silver than those coined by the government and are readily detected. They can be used in all commercial transactions that do not involve a payment to the government.

The commercial transactions of India are of sufficient volume to keep the rupees far above the gold value of the silver contained in them; for the ability of a nation to use money is determined by the volume of its commercial transactions. But what is the volume of commercial transactions in India compared with the volume of the commercial transactions in the United States? The commerce of India is insignificant when compared to that of this country. If the business of India can raise the rupee 30 per cent above the bullion value, the commerce of the United States can raise to a par with gold and keep there all the silver that could in any way or at any time find its way into this country.

H. F. THURSTON.

Cause of Sparta's Strength.

"After the creation of the thirty senators, his next task, and, indeed, the most hazardous he ever undertook, was the making a new division of their lands. For there was an extreme inequality among them, and their state was overloaded with a multitude of indigent and necessitous persons, while its whole wealth had centered upon a very few. To the end, therefore, that he might expel out of the state arrogance and envy, luxury and crime, and those yet more inveterate distresses of want and superfluity, he obtained of them to renounce their properties, and to consent to a new division of the land, and that they should live all together on an equal footing; merit to be their only road to eminence, and the disgrace of evil and credit of worthy acts, their one measure of difference between man and man."—Plutarch, Life of Lycurgus.

The Fool Victims.

It is one of the strange anomalies of our chaotic social system that these who see its inevitable drift and have the courage to point to its rapid disentegration and final collapse, should be considered as enemies to mankind by the fool victims of the system.

In many lines of business there is no longer any such thing as competition. What is going to be done about such kinds of business? Are the people going to sit down supinely and become the slaves the trusts, or will they arouse themselves and become the masters of all these great combinations of capital?—Star and Kansan.

A commodity is worth the labor of making it—no more. Labor should form the basis of the measure of value, because it is the source of value.—Coming Nation.

Poverty and its resultants, crime and intemperance are the bastard offsprings of private ownership of nature's store houses, placed at the disposal of all and which must again be redeemed before the children of God can be free.—Labor Exchange Guide.

Suicide has increased 300 per cent in this country in three years—from 2,040 in 1890 to 6,420 in 1896. Of course these are effects without any cause! The social system with its inevitable concentration of wealth has nothing to do with it!!—Appeal to Reason.

We took a run around the employment bureaus of the city last week. They were crowded by men and women, with poor clothes and hungry, anxious looks. Of course they don't want work. They only stand around for amusement's sake and pay in their dollars to help the bureau man keep the wolf from his door.—New Charter.

Prosperity Fashion Notes.

The Rochester, N. Y., society authority reports:

Expensive hats are no longer worn by women who work hard ten hours a day, for two and a half dollars a week.

It is now fashionable to put labels on canned goods by machinery, and girls are not needed for that business.

The fashion of having Pinkerton thugs to shoot down strikers has almost gone out. Crazy sheriffs now kill striking workmen much cheaper.

Capitalism continues to make suicide more fashionable.

It is becoming stylish for the old political politicians to argue that, in order to have prosperity in one country, there must be famine or war in some other country.

The fashion of American proletariat (people without property) pretending to have any rights which the capitalist class cannot trample on, has completely gone out. It is now stylish to drive them out of their homes, prevent them from walking on private property, and to shoot them down for marching on public highways.

Two Things Exactly Alike

A spirited discussion took place in a noted Republican resort one evening this week, says the Wilmington Justice, over the question "Are times any better." The company of fifteen of twenty were about evenly divided upon the question, and one life-long Republican said that a "gag" which he heard a few nights before illustrated the situation exactly as he saw it.

The "end man" called out: "Say Smith, did you ever see two things exactly alike?"

"No, did you?"

"Yes."

"What was it?"

"The Grover Cleveland panic and Bill McKinley boom."

A Model Republic.

In Switzerland, the little republic over among the Alps of Europe, the initiative and referendum law has been in operation for years, the government owns and operates the railroads, the telegraph and express business, the telephone system and all other public utilities. The little mountain republic is the best governed country on the globe and the people are prosperous and contented. Compare that state of affairs with the conditions that exist in our own country. —Southern Mercury.

Spain's Mistake.

While Japan was on the silver standard, like Mexico, she prospered and grew wealthy. There was no need of increasing taxation. Since she was persuaded by Rothschilds to adopt the gold standard, she has gone down and down until her people are getting as wretched as those in gold countries. There can be no prosperity while gold is king.—Silver Knight-Watchman.

BY HIS OWN PETARD

AN ADVOCATE OF FALLING PRICES EMBARASSED.

The Millionaire Owner of the Goldbug Philadelphia Record Explains That the Rapid Decline in Prices Has Cleaned Him Out.

We sincerely sympathize with the misfortuntes of Mr. Singerly, editor of the Philadelphia Record, and president of the Chestnut Street National bank, of Philadelphia, and several other failing concerns. His statement of the failure is pathetic. In his statement published in his paper, the Record, he says editorially:

"To the public: The Record is compelled to make a painful personal announcement this morning. Owing to the financial embarrassment of Mr. William M. Singerly, president of the Record Publishing Company, the Chestnut Street National bank, and the Chestnut Street Trust and Savings Fund Company, were obliged to suspend business recently.

"The weight which proved too heavy for Mr. Singerly to carry was his large investment in the Singerly Pulp and Paper Mills, at Elkton, Md. The extreme shrinkage in the price of paper and the resulting depreciation in the value of that property was the primary cause of his embarrassment and of the suspension of the bank and trust company, with which he has been so closely identified.

"An extraordinary effort was made before the announcement of the suspension recently to tide over the difficulty, and Mr. Singerly's friends rallied to his assistance with rare generosity and fidelity, but it was found impracticable to turn the assets at his disposal into a shape to meet immediate requirement."

Mr. Singerly has achieved the honor of occupying the foremost position as an advocate of contraction of the volume of money to the gold standard, the consequence of which is falling prices, stagnation, and bankruptcy, says the Silver Knight-Watchman. His wild ravings against the restoration of silver to the place it occupied before a criminal conspiracy deprived the world of the benefits of the supply of metallic money which was enjoyed for thousands of years previous to 1873, might sound harmonious in the insane asylum, but not elsewhere.

The great crash which has carried down the Chestnut Street National bank, several other banks and kindred institutions, is attributed by Mr. Singerly and his friends to the shrinkage of values. We must assume that Mr. Singerly did not know that the shrinkage of values was embarrassing to enterprise, otherwise he would not have been so earnest an advocate of contraction. If he thinks that the shrinkage of values which has "busted" him is a good thing, we are not disposed to question his motives in advocating such folly, but if Mr. Singerly and other men engaged in business are not real maniacs and animated by an insane impulse to commit financial suicide, it is barely possible that they are financial idiots, and really believe the doctrine which they teach, which is that the smaller the volume of money, and the more the circulating medium is contracted, the plentier money will be, and that the facilities for obtaining money will increase with the decrease of the supply of money.

If Mr. Singerly is sane and can convince himself that the lower prices fall the easier it will be for him to extricate himself from the ruin which declining values have produced in his case, we will recognize him as a genius.

Government Ownership.

The Swiss government has so far been greatly encouraged in its assumption of control over the railroads of the country. Arrangements have been made to expend $5,000,000 during the coming year upon the equipment of the lines, and the operation will be wholly public before many weeks. The experiment of government ownership of railroads in Switzerland was attempted only after the fullest discussion. The referendum on the subject resulted in an overwhelming vote in its favor. It is already announced that radical reductions in rates are to be made. New equipment has been liberally ordered, in spite of which the first year under national ownership is calculated to net the treasury several millions.—Toledo Union.

The Growing Deficit.

The Dingley bill threatens a larger deficit for the fiscal year, five months of which have now elapsed, than the panic year ending June 30, 1894, which was $72,325,448; it is $46,101,494 for these five months, and will probably reach a round $100,000,000, beating the record. It will show the rottenness of the whole "protective" doctrine; for so far as protective, in the sense of its advocates, it cannot yield revenue, and so far as it yields revenue it ceases to be "protective." Like the Wilson bill —which was just as bad—it is a good object lesson.—San Francisco Star.

Individual and Public Limitations.

Individual rights are subject to limitations. An individual has a right to do as he pleases, so long as he does not infringe upon the rights of others. If organized society—government—grant special privileges to a few individuals, it infringes upon the rights of the individuals who are thereby placed at a disadvantage.—Indianapolis World.

The Spread of Prosperity.

Some of McKinley's prosperity has struck Australia. A dispatch says that C. H. James has failed for nearly five million. Gold standard is surely a dandy.—J. A. Wayland.

SALT RIVER SIFTINGS.

Comments of the Phoenix (Ariz.) Gazette on Current Politics.

When Mr. McKinley penned that portion of the message relative to Cuba, he probably recalled Private John Allen's definition of platforms. "Platforms," said Private John, "are not made to stand on; they are made to get in on."

Mr. McKinley seems to be laboring under the impression that he was elected president of Spain.

The president says that "Not an American is now confined in a Spanish prison." Perhaps not. A few were to have been pardoned, and the rest have been starved to death or murdered.

Congress is to be urged to pass a bankrupt law. There is every indication that the treasury department is in need of one.

The silence of Mark Hanna may be taken as an indication that he is sulking because Mr. McKinley failed to mention the Ohio difficulty in his message.

Perhaps the McKinley administration is real sorry that Mr. George Washington and his associates refused to accept autonomy about three generations ago.

The return of the bolting "Democrats" to the fold is accompanied by a silence that would be rudely shocked by the thunderous echoes of a pin falling on a rubber door-mat.

About all that is known as to what congress will do, is that the house will do just as Tom Reed says.

The patriotic way would be to cut Alaska up into small territories, so that every original McKinley man can be named as governor.

It is noticeable that the return of the Arizona gold Democratic prodigals has not increased the market price of veal.

A race of pigmies has been discovered in Guatemala. Even in the United States, when the spoils of office are being divided, there is always developed a race of pigmies.

Gold and Free Coinage.

If we were to open our mint to the free coinage of silver, what would prevent a man from bringing silver from Europe, having it coined into American dollars, depositing the dollars at a New York bank and then taking gold exchange on London, thus draining us of our gold?" Such a question could be taken as a text for quite an exhaustive discussion of the whole monetary problem, but it can be sufficiently answered in a very few words. There would be no motive for such a transaction, and in business men never do anything without a motive. In the first place, Europe has no silver that would be available for the purpose. Her product is not enough to make good the wear and tear of her small change. Her silver coin is worth from $1.32 to $1.48 per ounce in gold where it is, and to send it here for coinage, bearing the expense of transportation and loss on lightweight coins, to have it recoined into American money at $1.29 per ounce would involve a tremendous and foolish sacrifice. If we consider the silver of other countries there would still be a total absence of any intelligent motive. At the American bank, the silver would buy no more gold exchange on England than it was worth. If the two metals were exactly at par with each other, and exchange were also at par, it would simply be an equal trade, with no loss or gain on either side. If there were a heavy demand for London exchange (as there would be in the case supposed), the rate would go above par, and then the transaction would involve a loss. That is to say, instead of getting a one pound bill of exchange for $4.86 in American money, the purchaser would have to pay $4.87, $4.88 or more. This would be true, whether gold or silver were deposited at the American bank. London exchange is almost constantly varying now, as the demand for bills varies.

Judicial Usurpation.

Uncontrolled by law, the federal judge can now abolish free speech, forbid a preacher to pray and prohibit a man from pursuing his work or an elected official from performing the duties of his position. All these things have been forbidden by federal injunction, and, though they are all legal acts, the persons so enjoined would have been sent to prison without trial if they had tried to assert their rights. Legislation is needed to stop this usurpation by the federal judges, to curtail their arrogated and despotic power to rule the people, and to guarantee the liberty for which this nation was founded.

Wages Reduced by Dingleyism.

The employes in a great shoe factory at North Brookfield, Mass., have just been informed that after Saturday last their pay will be cut down. The only reason assigned by the manufacturers is that they are losing money and can not continue in business unless they reduce the wage account. The Dingley tariff put a tax on hides, the raw material of the shoe factories, and the only way to meet this is to reduce wages. The duty was imposed against the earnest protests of shoe manufacturers, who insisted that it would seriously injure their business.

Cramp's Anchor to Windward.

Mr. Cramp, who builds war vessels at vast profits for the United States, again sounds the alarm with an article showing how Japan is outstripping us in naval preparations so rapidly that unless we wake up we shall not be able to control the Pacific ocean in three years. This is exactly the time required for turning out a first-class battle ship, so if we immediately engage Mr. Cramp's valuable and costly services, and spend, say, $1,000,000,000, we can pull through.

ALABAMA NEWS BRIEFLY TOLD.

Will Not Grant License.

The contest case over the application for license to sell liquor at Greenbrier in the southern portion of Limestone county has been decided by Judge Horton against the application for license.

A Novel Suit.

Ex-Convict H. C. Hervey has brought suit against the Sloss Iron & Steel Company, at Birmingham for $1,000 damages, claiming as the basis of his suit that he was unlawfully forced to work on Sundays and holidays.

Alabama Postmasters.

The following postmasters were appointed for Alabama Friday: John C. Tompkins, Bellgreen, Franklin county; A. H. Black, Hope Hull, Montgomery county; Joseph Schronberg, Scott Station, Perry county: Alexander White, White Hall, Lowndes county.

Two Tramps Killed.

Fast freight train No. 21, northbound, on the Alabama Midland of the Plant system was derailed Friday at or near Snowdoun, ten miles south of Montgomery. Two white tramps, whose names are not known, were killed and fourteen cars badly torn up. There was a general shaking up, but no other serious damage was done.

Election at Fruithurst.

At the municipal election held at Fauithurst Mr. J. A. Westerlund, the founder of the Scandinavian colony was elected mayor. Mr. Westerlund is at the head of an extensive immigration agency, and in consequence it is considered that his election will result in material augmentation of Northern energy and capital to the already prosperons condition of Fruithurst.

Boy Accidentally Killed.

At Stanton, Chilton county, Claude Jeffcoat was accidentally shot and killed by his companion, Manly Weaver, while out hunting one day last week. They were going through a field when a covey of birds flew up. Young Weaver had the gun and as he started to shoot Claude Jeffcoat took hold of the gun with his left hand on to the muzzle and saying, "it is my time to shoot," made an effort to take the gun, when the hammer fell, the charge of shot taking effect in Jeffcoat's side.

Another Fruit Colony.

A deal has been closed by which Alabama will secure another fruit colony. The persons behind the enterprise are Chicagoans with ample capital, and a determination to make a success of their undertaking. The syndicate has purchased 30,000 acres of fine land in Morgan county on the line of the Louisville and Nashville railroad and will cut it up into small farms, as has been done at Fruithurst and Thorsby. The new settlement or colony will be called Vinemount. A number of substantial Illinois families are already arranging to remove to the colony.

Talks of the Farmers' Convention.

Major Culver, commissioner of agriculture, ascribes the small attendance to the state farmers' convention at Montgomery to hard times very largely. He says he has hundreds of letters from persons in all parts of the state expressing their heartiest sympathy in the movement, in fact, declaring their enthusiastic interest in it, but saying that, not having got any money out of the sale of their 5-cent cotton, they could not afford to make the trip. Major Culver is confident the small beginning will eventually develop a great society which will accomplish an abundance of good for the state.

Improvement of the Tennessee.

In an interview with Col. Harvey Lewis, superintendent of the American Oak Extract Company of Decatur, in reference to the Tennessee river convention at Chattanooga last week, he said:

"In my opinion congress will allow the $2,000,000 for the improvement of the Tennessee. If this amount were spent on improving the river it would be navigable the year round, and would be worth more to Decatur than forty railroads. In order to put the river in a navigable condition the year round it will be necessary to put in a system of slack-water navigation. Nature has given us one of the most beautiful and useful rivers in the United States, and by the aid of man it can be made one of the greatest commercial rivers in the land."

A Novel Scheme.

Among the novel cotton schemes proposed to Hon. H. D. Lane, president of the American Cotton Growers' Protective association, within the past few days, is the following from a Louisiana planter:

"Plant enough land in cotton to grow one-half the number of bales grown last year and devote the difference in acreage to food and hay crops. Buy for future delivery one-half the number of bales grown last year and the profit on the future deal will make the half crop of spot cotton worth as much as was the large crop of last year."

Race of Millions.

A railroad building race, involving the expenditure of $16,000,000, has been commenced by two wealthy corporations, each of which desires to own the first railroad into the Yukon country. Each road will be about 400 miles long, running from Pyramid, near the head of the Lynn canal, to points on the Lewis river, below Five Finger Rapids.

James B. Simpson, one of Alabama's brightest journalists and recording secretary to Governor Johnston, died at Montgomery the past week.

INTERNATIONAL LESSON COMMENTS FOR JANUARY 23.

Lesson Text: "The Beatitudes," Matt. v., 1-12—Golden Text: Matt. v., 14—Commentary on the Lesson of the Day by the Rev. D. M. Stearns.

1. "And seeing the multitudes He went up into a mountain and when He was set His disciples came unto Him." It would be most instructive to gather together all the mountain scenes and incidents of Scripture and contrast them with those of the plains. In connection with this lesson one might glance forward to the mountain scenes in the life of Christ, the mount of prayer, the mount of transfiguration, the mount of ascention.

2. "And He opened His mouth and taught them, saying." It seems to me very plain that He taught His disciples these things and that this is a sermon for those who have received Him and are willing to be His disciples. All who truly receive Him are saved, but to be a disciple one must be willing to be given up wholly to Him, to be taught by Him, and to be an apostle one must be willing to go anywhere for Him. There are few among the saved who by word and deed proclaim Jesus Lord to the glory of God the Father (Phil. ii., 11). Do you?

3. "Blessed are the poor in spirit, for theirs is the kingdom of heaven." In Jas. ii., 5, we read of the poor of this world rich in faith and heirs of the kingdom. In Zeph. iii., 12, we read of an afflicted and poor people who trust in the Lord. But it is not their poverty, but their faith, that unites them to Christ. Our Lord speaks of the poor and contrite spirit that trembles at His Word; the broken and contrite heart that is acceptable to Him (Isa. lvii., 15; lxvi., 2; Ps. li., 17).

4. "Blessed are they that mourn, for they shall be comforted." If we consider the kingdom and the glory of the King, yet to be manifested, and then see Him as the Teacher sitting here in humiliation uttering these words, we shall be greatly helped in our meditation thereon. Of all the sorrowful people that ever lived on earth He was pre-eminently the man of sorrows and acquainted with grief (Isa. liii., 3), and yet He is the Father of mercies and God of all comfort (II Cor. i., 3), who comforts us even here, that we may comfort others while we wait for the fullness of comfort at His coming (I Thess. iv., 18).

5. "Blessed are the meek, for they shall inherit the earth." His glory shall be the fullness of the whole earth, all the kingdoms of the world shall be His and ours with Him (Isa. xl., 3, margin; Rev. xi., 15; John xvii., 22; Rom. viii., 17, 18). None on earth, not even Moses, meekest of men of his time (Num. xii., 3), was ever as meek as Him, who said I am meek and lowly in heart. Since the earth is ours we can afford to let others have it just now if necessary and be miscalled and misunderstood for so doing.

6. "Blessed are they which do hunger and thirst after righteousness, for they shall be filled." We must still keep before us the kingdom when the earth shall be filled with the knowledge of the glory of the Lord and the King who is righteousness itself, the Lord our righteousness, the righteous Lord, who loveth righteousness (Jer. xxiii., 6; Ps. xl., 7). Of course there is in each case a present application while waiting for the kingdom, and every disciple may daily be filled with the Spirit (Eph. v., 18).

7. "Blessed are the merciful, for they shall obtain mercy." Part of His name is the Lord, the Lord God, merciful and gracious (Ex. xxxiv., 6). He delights to exercise mercy or loving kindness (Jer. ix., 23, 24), and the earth shall yet be filled with it, but now He longs to find those who will be the bearers of it to others. Whenever anyone is willing to show mercy to others, they shall obtain freely an abundance of it to pass on. It is a great mistake to desire anything just for one's own use. Our Lord never lived unto Himself, but having all things in Him, if we are willing to be channels of blessing to others He will see that the channel is filled.

8. "Blessed are the pure in heart, for they shall see God." He alone was truly pure in heart, and He was God. When we see Him, we see God. Some day we shall see Him and be like Him, even as to our bodies (I John iii., 2; Phil. iii., 21). Now we are to behold Him in the glass of His word (II Cor. iii., 18), and in proportion as we do we shall be changed into His image, so that others seeing Him in us shall want to know Him.

9. "Blessed are the peacemakers, for they shall be called the children of God. As God is the God of Peace and the Lord Jesus the Prince of Peace, we are acting very much like children of God when we carry peace everywhere. When the kingdom comes there will be peace on earth, war no more. As those to whom the kingdom belongs we are to carry samples of it in our daily life—love, joy, peace for all. We are children of God by faith in Christ Jesus (Gal. iii., 26), and there is no other way to become a child of God. But being such we are to manifest it and yield so fully to God that He may do all He desires to through us to carry peace through Christ to all people.

10. "Blessed are they which are persecuted for righteousness' sake; for theirs is the kingdom of heaven." The world will not tolerate this kind of life any more than it tolerated John the Baptist or the Lord Jesus. In the eyes of the world, even the religious world, this life of the kingdom with its lowliness, sorrow for sin, meekness, righteousness, mercy, purity and peace, is simply ridiculous, fanatical, not fit for the times, may do well enough for old people and little children, but men and women who are men and women indeed (in their own estimation) will not put up with it, or even suffer it to be taught if they can help it.

11. "Blessed are ye when men shall revile you and persecute you and shall say all manner of evil against you falsely, for My sake." In other words, if, for Christ's sake, you are lied about (see margin), misrepresented, slandered, falsely accused, things said about you without a particle of foundation, you are a blessed person, for you are thus privileged to have intimate and wondrous fellowship with your Lord, great is your reward in heaven, for so persecuted they the prophets which were before you." Fellowship with the prophets and with Christ and with God Himself—do we in any sense appreciate it or are we inclined to murmur at these things when they come to us and say, "How unjust, how unreasonable, how strange! We will not stand it!" and thus by the lack of meekness and patience miss His present approval and also the reward which He would gladly give us in that day if we would only put up with things for His sake? See the special reward for enduring in Jas. i., 12; Rev. ii., 10, and trust Him for grace to accept anything for His sake if only He can be glorified.—Lesson Helper.

EMINENT DIVINES' SERMONS

DISCOURSES BY TWO ABLE WORKERS IN GOD'S VINEYARD.

The Ninth of the New York Herald's Competitive Sermons Is Entitled "Sunshine, But a Cloud; a Cloud, But Sunshine"—Dr. Talmage on Club Evils.

Text: "He was a mighty man in valor, but he was a leper."—II Kings v., 1.

Over every human life, however bright its sunshine, a cloud may come. Every person covets what he chooses to consider success; some riches, some fame, some pleasure, some domestic felicity. No one, however, realizes all his ambitions—indeed, not all are worth realizing. There is always a something which mars happiness; possibilities of anguish in every condition, spots weaker than others in the strongest bar of steel, the capability of tarnish in the purest gold, spots on the sun. A person's weaknesses—consequently his sources of suffering—may lie just beside his strongest traits of character. He may be honest, but over exacting; strong-willed, but obstinate; economical, but penurious; just, but unmerciful; courageous, but censorious; affectionate, but passionate. Unselfishness may sharpen daggers that pierce the heart, and intensity of affection may be a pledge of keenest pangs.

A person, it may be, acquires riches, but health is gone, or domestic happiness has taken departure, or waters of grief are flooding the soul. Pre-eminently successful along some lines, he is conspicuously unsuccessful along others. It takes but little to render a person miserable; it takes much to render some happy. As it needs only a trifle to prevent wealth from producing contentment, is it a mark of wisdom to sacrifice for its acquisition that which is of more value—health, comfort, reputation, character, principle, conscience—the hope of an eternal world? "A man's life consisteth not in the abundance of the things he possesseth." Does the river consist in the driftwood it is carrying to the ocean? "Fine feathers make fine birds," but a fine residence and a fine equipage are not capable of always making the heart merry.

Of those who covet fame, some win the prize, but cares increase, responsibilities augment, disappointments multiply and arrows of envy become keener and more numerous. He who courts public favor courts a fickle damsel, one who, disqualified to bestow happiness, may flatter littleness and condemn greatness. In history there are few sadder chapters than those which record the cares, worries and reverses of some who acquired prominence. Moses was a mighty man, but he was driven into exile, and sleeps in an unknown grave. Elijah was a rare specimen of true greatness, but Ahab's folly and Jezebel's hatred came near driving him to suicide. Daniel was a great man, but for his peculiar species of greatness, Nebuchadnezzar thought a lion's den the fittest place. Isaiah was a man of rare strength of character, but Manasseh laid him between two planks and sawed him in twain.

Such as desire to see the emptiness of human greatness would do well to read the biographies of the kings, sixty in number, who during six hundred years ruled the Eastern Roman empire, its capital Constantinople, and they may be inclined to thank God that they are permitted to live in obscurity. To some politicians we might say, "Thy god, O sycophant, hath cast thee off"—and there are more to follow in Greater New York and boss ridden Philadelphia, men in the sunshine of prosperity, but leprous all over. Is the Scriptural admonition, "Be humble," unworthy of notice? The man who is on his back in the cellar can get no lower—one thing for which he may be thankful. The man on the housetop may grow dizzy and, falling, may suddenly terminate his exalted career. Most persons desire to be on the mountain summit; few prefer the valley, though the winds are less fierce and the storms less violent.

On every human life, however dark the everlasting cloud, there may be sunshine. It is never so dark that it can be no darker. Discouragements are never so many that there are no grounds for thankfulness. A cloud on every pathway, and sunshine possible in every heart. A burden on every life, and no soul that may not thrill with joy. A crook in every lot, and no crook so tortuous that it may not end in celestial bliss. No trial without its alleviations. Poverty inspires energy, fosters self-reliance, prompts to industry and teaches us to prize the blessings we have without murmuring over those we have not. Ill-health forces attention to the laws of health, sweetens the disposition and directs attention to the nearness of eternity's curtain. Bereavements have their alleviating compensations. Obscurity has its special advantages. Physical disabilities have their compensations. The deaf are saved from hearing much that is better never heard. The blind can see no frowns. The cripple is excused from running errands. The person who cannot read is delivered from the temptation to read the account of the last football game, the last pugilistic encounter, the most recent testimony in the Nack-Thorn trial and the pious gush emitted in prison walls over criminals.

It is well to observe that each person's lot, all things considered, is not widely different from that of others. The mountain has both rocks and sunshine; the valley floods as well as waving harvests. The eyes that shed tears can beam love.

CLUB EVILS.

Moral Lessons Drawn by the Rev. Dr. Talmage.

Text: "Let the young men now arise and play before us."—II Sam. ii., 14.

There are two armies encamped by the pool of Gibeon. The time hangs heavily on their hands. One army proposes a game of sword-fencing. Nothing could be more healthful and innocent. The other army accepts the challenge. Twelve men against twelve men, the sport opens. But something went adversely. Perhaps one of the swordsmen got an unlucky clip, or in some way had his ire aroused, and that which opened in sportfulness ended in violence, each one taking his contestant by the hair, and then with the sword thrusting him in the side; so that which opened in innocent fun ended in the massacre of all the twenty-four sportsmen. Was there ever a better illustration of what was true then, and is true now, that that which is innocent may be made destructive?

At this season of the year the club-houses of our towns and cities are in full play. I have found out that there is a legitimate and an illegitimate use of the club-house. In the one case it may become a healthful recreation, like the contest of the twenty-four men in the text when they began their play; in the other case it becomes the massacre of body, mind and soul, as in the case of these contestants of the text when they had gone too far with their sport. All intelligent ages have had their gatherings for political, social, artistic, literary purposes—gatherings characterized by the blunt old Anglo-Saxon designation of "club."

During the day they are comparatively lazy places. Here and there an aged man reading a newspaper, or an employe dusting a sofa, or a clerk writing up the accounts; but when the curtain of the night falls on the natural day, then the curtain of the club-house hoists for the entertainment. Let us hasten up, now, the marble stairs. What an imperial hallway! On this side there are reading-rooms, where you find all newspapers and magazines. On that side there is a library, where you find all books, from hermeneutics to the fairy tale. Coming in and out there are men, some of whom stay ten minutes, others stay many hours. Some of these are from luxurious homes, and they have excused themselves for a while from the domestic circle that they may enjoy the larger sociability of the club-house. These are from dismembered households, and they have a plain lodging somewhere, but they come to this club-room to have their chief enjoyment. One blackball amid ten votes will defeat a man's becoming a member. For rowdyism, for drunkenness, for gambling, for any kind of misdemeanor, a member is dropped out. Brilliant club-house from top to bottom. The chandeliers, the plate, the furniture, the companionship, the literature, the social prestige, a complete enchantment.

But the evening is passing on, and so we hasten through the hall and down the steps and into the street, and from block to block until we come to another style of club-house. Opening the door, we find the fumes of strong drink and tobacco, something almost intolerable. These young men at this table, it is easy to understand what they are at, from the flushed cheek, the intent look, the almost angry way of tossing the dice, or of moving the "chips." They are gambling. At another table are men who are telling vile stories. They are three-fourths intoxicated, and between 12 and 1 o'clock they will go staggering, hooting, swearing, shouting on their way home.

As the hours of the night go away, the conversations becomes imbecile and more debasing. Now it is time to shut up. Those who are able to stand will get out on the pavement and balance themselves against the lamppost, or against the railings of the fence. The young man who is not able to stand will have a bed improvised for him in the clubhouse, or two not quite so overcome with liquor will conduct him to his father's house, and they will ring the door bell, and the door will open, and the two imbecile escorts will introduce into the hallway the ghastliest and most hellish spectacle that ever enters a front door—a drunken son.

But I make a vast difference between clubs. I have belonged to four clubs: A theological club, a ball club, and two literary clubs. I got from them physical rejuvenation and moral health. What shall be the principle? If God will help me, I will lay down three principles by which you may judge whether the club where you are a member, or the club to which you have been invited, is a legitimate or an illegitimate clubhouse.

First of all, I want you to test the club by its influence on home, if you have a home. I have been told by a prominent man in club life that three-fourths of the members of the great clubs of these cities are married men. That wife soon loses her influence over her husband who nervously and foolishly looks upon all evening absence as an assault on domesticity. How are the great enterprises of art and literature and beneficence and public weal to be carried on if every man is to have his world bounded on one side by his front doorstep, and on the other side by his back window, knowing nothing higher than his own attic, or nothing lower than his own cellar? That wife who becomes jealous of her husband's attention to art or literature, or religion, or charity, is breaking her own scepter of conjugal power. Let any Christian wife rejoice when her husband consecrates evenings to the service of God, or to charity, or to art, or to anything elevated; but let not men sacrifice home life to club life. I can point out to you a great many names of men who are guilty of this sacrilege. They are as genial as angels at the club-house, and as ugly as sin at home. They are generous on all subjects of wine suppers, yachts and fast horses, but they are stingy about the wife's dress and the children's shoes. That man has made that which might be a healthful recreation an usurper of his affections, and he has married it, and he is guilty of moral bigamy.

Another test by which you can find whether your club is legitimate or illegitimate—the effect it has on your secular occupation. I can understand how through such an institution a man can reach commercial successes. I know some men have formed their best business relations through such a channel. If the club has advantaged you in an honorable calling it is a legitimate club. But has your credit failed? Are bargain-makers more cautious how they trust you with a bill of goods? Have the men whose names were down in the commercial agency A1 before they entered the club, been going down ever since in commercial standing? Then look out! You and I every day know of commercial establishments going to ruin through the social excesses of one or two members.

A third test by which you may know whether the club to which you belong, or the club to whose membership you are invited, is a legitimate club or an illegitimate club, is this: What is the effect on your sense of moral and religious obligations? Now, here are two roads into the future, the Christian and the unchristian, the safe and the unsafe. An institution or any association that confuses my idea in regard to that fact is a bad institution and a bad association. I had prayers before I joined the club. Did I have them after? I attended the house of God before I connected myself with the club. Since that union with the club do I absent myself from religious influences? Which would you rather have in your hand when you come to die, a pack of cards or a Bible? Who would you rather have for your eternal companions, those men who spend their evening, betting, gambling, swearing, carousing and telling vile stories, or your little child, that bright girl whom the Lord took?

I am going to make a very stout rope. You know that sometimes a rope-maker will take very small threads and wind them together; until after awhile they become ship cables. And I am going to take some very small, delicate threads and wind them together until they make a very stout rope. I will take all the memories of the marriage day, a thread of laughter, a thread of light, a thread of music, a thread of banqueting, a thread of congratulation, and I twist them together and I have one strand. Then I take a thread of the hour of the first advent in your house, a thread of the darkness that preceded and a thread of the light that followed, and a thread of the beautiful scarf that little child used to wear when she bounded out at eventide to greet you, and then a thread of the beautiful dress in which you laid her away for the resurrection. And then I twist all these threads together and I have another strand. Then I take a thread of the scarlet robe of the suffering Christ, and a thread of the white raiment of your loved ones before the throne, and a string of the harp cherubic and a string of the harp seraphic, and I twist them all together and I have a third strand. "Oh!" you say, "either strand is strong enough to hold fast a world." No, I will take these strands and I will twist them together, and one end of that rope I will fasten, not to the Communion table, for it shall be removed—not to the pillar of the organ; wind it 'round and 'round the cross of a sympathizing Christ, and, having fastened one end of the rope to the cross, I throw the other end to you. Lay hold of it! Pull for your life! Pull for heaven!

TRADING STAMPS LEGAL.

Law Against Them in California Declared Unconstitutional.

The law prohibiting merchants from making gifts as an inducement to trade, which was primarily aimed at trading stamp enterprises, has received a knockout blow by Judge Campbell, of San Francisco, Cal., who decided the law to be unconstitutional, as an unwarranted invasion of the liberties of the citizen.

The decision affects a number of Eastern companies which have recently commenced operations there.

LIEN ON FALSE TEETH.

A Dentist Thinks His Work as Good as That of a Carpenter.

"Say," he said, as he broke ruthlessly into a lawyer's office. "I've got a job for you."

"That's what I'm here for," said the lawyer. "State your case and I'll make a fee pretty quick."

"Well, it's this way," said the dentist, for that's what he was, "I made a set of false teeth for a scalawag a few weeks ago, and made 'em on the installment plan. The feller paid me a dollar down, and he was to pay me a dollar a week for ten weeks, and I was to have a lien on the teeth until they were paid for. Now he's quit paying and won't let me have the molars. Says they hurt his jaw, but I take notice they never affected his cheek very much."

"Did you give him a bill for 'em?"

"No. Never gave him anything but the teeth."

"Have no agreement in writing for a chattel mortgage specifying the kind of plates, and the gums, and the number of teeth?"

"No. I tell you I didn't have anything, and I ain't got anything yet. What I want to know is, haven't I got a mechanic's lien on them teeth? Didn't I work on 'em, and isn't my work as good as a carpenter's or a bricklayer's?"

"Well, I hardly think a mechanic's lien covers your case. I don't think you can get them back."

"What would they do to me if I held him up and took 'em out of his mouth and went off with 'em?"

"Maybe they could hold you for petit larceny. If you can catch him in his room asleep, and attach them by getting out a writ, maybe you can get him to come to taw, but that would cost you more than the teeth are worth. I guess you're in for it this time."

"Well, I won't get in that kind of a hole again, I'll bet you. I'll go to some of these fellers running for the Legislature, and I'll make them promise to pass a law giving us dentists a lien on the teeth we make, good till they're paid for."

"That's right; that's a good idea. Two dollars, please. Call again."

"I had a strong appetite for liquor, which was the beginning of the breaking down of my health. I was also a slave to tea and coffee drinking. I took the gold cure, but it did not help me."

This is a portion of an interview clipped from the Daily Herald, of Clinton, Iowa. It might well be taken for the subject of a temperance lecture, but that is not our object in publishing it. It is to show how a system, run down by drink and disease, may be restored. We cannot do better than quote further from the same:

"For years I was unable to do my work. I could not sleep nights or rest days on account of continuous pains in my stomach and back. I was unable to digest my food. Headaches and painful urination were frequent, and my heart's action became increased. I left my farm and retired to city life, for I was a confirmed invalid, and the doctors said I would never be well again.

I RETIRED TO CITY LIFE.

"Soon after I happened to use four boxes of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People, and since then I have been free from all pain, headache and dyspepsia. I eat heartily and have no appetite for strong drink or tea or coffee, and feel twenty years younger.

"My weight has increased 48 pounds. I cannot say too much for Dr. Williams' Pink Pills and claim that they have cured me.

Music is rather more difficult to transmit than articulate speech, so that the recent experiments of transmitting music 860 miles is unique. This was between San Diego and San Francisco, the San Diego State Guard Band playing to a San Francisco audience. It is stated that the transmission was remarkably fine, the music being very plainly heard at the end of the line.

It is estimated that to about 2,500,000 persons in this country electricity contributes a means of livelihood.

A central station in Berlin, Germany, is distributing electric power to 1,700 motors, aggregating ... horse power.

The ... transmission now commercially carried on between St. Louis and Boston, a distance of 1,400 miles, is the longest telephonic service in the world.

The magnitude of the street railway mail service is shown by the fact that this year a full $250,000 has been appropriated for electric and cable mail service.

BISHOPS DON'T LIE.

A Legacy from Two Bishops.

Two of the brightest lights the Southern Methodist Church has ever had were the late Bishops Doggett and Kavanaugh, who, before they went to their reward, left Dr. M. A. Simmons Liver Medicine a legacy which has not only been of value to us, but has proven a boon to suffering humanity.

Below we give their own words in which they made the bequest:

From Bishop Doggett:

RICHMOND, VA., July 23rd, 1880.

"Your Liver Medicine has been of great service to myself and family. We find no substitute for it. The parcel which you generously sent us a few years ago is nearly exhausted. We can't do without it. I wish you to send us another supply. IT IS INVALUABLE." Very respectfully,

D. S. DOGGETT.

From Bishop Kavanaugh:

The following is from Rev. Bishop H. H. Kavanaugh, D. D., to Dr. M. A. Simmons, March, 1881: "I confess that I have been reluctant to figure in advertisements in regard to medicines, but feel myself so much a debtor to your "VEGETABLE LIVER-MEDICINE," that I feel it a sense of gratitude on my own part, and justice to the public requires that I should waive this objection, and allow you to publish whatever I may have written in regard to the character and value of your medicines. May many a sufferer be as much benefited by them as I have been." H. H. KAVANAUGH.

Presbyterians Believe In It.

Rev. Dr. Crisman cured of Dyspepsia and Rheumatism.

Edgefield Cumberland Presbyterian Church, E. B. Crisman, D.D., Pastor, Nashville, Tenn., Oct. 14, 1889.

I am still using Simmons Liver Medicine. It is invaluable to me. I began its use eight years ago and it cured me of both dyspepsia and rheumatism and keeps me in perfect health. I prefer to order it from you direct for I know then that I get the genuine and get it fresh. I am to start on the 22d inst. to a meeting of the Synod of Tennessee at Cleveland. If I can serve you in any way on the trip I will be glad to do so. Respectfully,

E. B. CRISMAN.

An Eminent Baptist Has Spoken.

Rev. J. R. Graves, editor and proprietor of "The Baptist," Memphis, Tenn., says: "To M. A. Simmons, M. D., Iuka, Miss.: I received a package of your Liver Medicine and have used half of it. It works like a charm. I want no better Liver Regulator and certainly no more of Zeilin's mixture."

J. R. GRAVES, Memphis, Tenn., Nov. 11, 1876.

Catholics Endorse It.

St. John's Hospital, Cor. 23d and Morgan Sts., St. Louis, Mo.

Respected Sirs—"We have found your Liver Medicine very beneficial as an Aperient and Liver Regulator. It does all that it is recommended to do." Respectfully, SISTERS OF MERCY.

On the trial of our case against Zeilin & Co. their counsel said: "When Simmons' ancestors were cracking hickory nuts with their teeth in the forests of Germany, Zeilin's ancestors were Princes in the House of Israel." While we make no claim to Jewish origin, much less to being "Princes in the House of Israel," we prefer an ancestry of honest Americans to the highest seat in the synagogue of unrighteous Jews.

Beware of any article called "Simmons Liver Medicine" which has on it the name of "J. H. Zeilin & Co.," or "A. W. Simmons' & Co.," or "T. F. Cheek & Co.;" and especially beware of any article represented as "the same," or "just as good" as the original Dr. M. A. Simmons Liver Medicine.

Be sure you get the original which has the name, picture and autograph of Dr. M. A. Simmons on the wrapper, countersigned by C. F. Simmons Medicine Co., St. Louis.

McELREE'S

Wine of Cardui

has demonstrated ten thousand times that it is almost infallible

FOR WOMAN'S PECULIAR WEAKNESSES,

irregularities and derangements. It has become the leading remedy for this class of troubles. It exerts a wonderfully healing, strengthening and soothing influence upon the monatrual organs. It cures "whites" and falling of the womb. It stops flooding and relieves suppressed and painful menstruation. For Change of Life it is the best medicine made. It is beneficial during pregnancy, and helps to bring children into homes barren for years. It invigorates, stimulates, strengthens the whole system. This great remedy is offered to all afflicted women. Why will any woman suffer another minute with certain relief within reach? Wine of Cardui only costs $1.00 per bottle at your drug store.

For advice, in cases requiring special directions, address, giving symptoms, the "Ladies' Advisory Department," The Chattanooga Medicine Co., Chattanooga, Tenn.

Rev. J. W. SMITH, Camden, S. C., says: "My wife used Wine of Cardui at home for failing of the womb and it entirely cured her."

A $2,000 Word!

This paper announces, in connection with The Atlanta Weekly Constitutution, a new offer in which everyone may have a chance to supply the missing word in this sentence:

"AT FIRST IT WAS CONSIDERED BY THE '_____' AS A GOOD OMEN."

The sentence is taken from a well-known publication. The word is a familiar one, and it may readily suggest itself.

Contest Began Jan. 1--Ends March 1, '98

TO ENTER THIS CONTEST YOU MUST SUBSCRIBE FOR

THE ATLANTA CONSTITUTION

IN CONNECTION WITH

THE BANNER,

AT THE EXTREMELY LOW PRICE OF $1.50

In connection with this Clubbing Rate, we will, if you send your guess with the subscription price, forward all for you and thus

GIVE YOU A CHANCE AT THE MISSING WORD FUND

At the end of period covered by this contest The Constitution will pay out to the successful party or parties the full prize amount that has accrued in the contest. The plan is simple and these contests have become so popular and have been conducted with such absolute fairness to all that they have been widely copied after, but none have become equal to The Constitution's great original series.

IN ONE YEAR THE CONSTITUTION HAS PAID OUT

NEARLY $6,000 IN CASH

in these missing word contests. It sets aside 10 per cent of the subscription fund received from subscribers guessing at the missing word, and this fund is given to the successful guesser or guessers in the contest. The fund is distributed with absolute fairness, and the fact that The Weekly Constitution has MORE THAN 175,000 subscribers and that it puts exactly 10 per cent from a thousand subscribers into this distribution fund shows that the amount to be divided at each interval is large enough to be worth trying for. It is not a catch-penny or a deceit, but genuine, fair, square and simple, and IS ADMITTED to the mails by the Post Office Department as a meritorious contest.

☞ The book from which the sentence is taken is deposited in a safety vault, under seal, and will be opened at the close of the contest before a committee, which makes the award after an examination of the subscription books.

In one of these contests there was only one successful guesser, who received more than $1,000, and in addition to this in one year $5,000 has been distributed among successful guessers.

Remember that whether the missing word is supplied or not, it costs nothing to guess, and even though not successful, the guesser gets

THE GREATEST OF ALL WEEKLY NEWSPAPERS FOR ONE YEAR

Keep that in view and send your guess with your clubbing subscription for your home paper and The Weekly Constitution.

Should you already be a subscriber to your home paper, remit $1 to this paper for The Weekly Constitution for one year, and it will be forwarded to The Constitution with your guess.

The Constitution guarantees that the amount of the award will not be less than $500 in cash, and it may be as much as $2,000. THE WEEKLY CONSTITUTION IS THE MOST WIDELY CIRCULATED WEEKLY NEWSPAPER IN THE WORLD. IT HAS TWELVE PAGES, SEVEN COLUMNS TO THE PAGE NEWSPAPER, containing EIGHTY-FOUR COLUMNS every week. It has no equal as a Weekly Newspaper in America; its news reports cover the world, and its correspondents and agents are to be found in almost every bailiwick of the South-ern and Western States.

AS A MAGAZINE it prints more matter than is ordinarily found in any magazine in the country.

AS AN EDUCATOR it is unsurpassed, as not a reading of The Constitution is a liberal education.

ITS SPECIAL FEATURES comment is especially to every farm home in America.

ITS FARM AND FARMERS' DEPARTMENTS, its Woman's Department and Its Children's Department, are all under able editorial management and are specially attractive to those to whom these departments are addressed. The Constitution is Democratic in Politics, and it is a thoroughgoing advocate of the principles enunciated in the National Platform of the Party.

THE FOLLOWING ARE THE CONDITIONS OF THE CONTEST

Ten Per Cent of the Guessers Subscriptions goes to the Fund to be divided among the successful guesser or guessers. If this Subscription Fund amounts to $20,000 for this contest, then the fund to go to the successful guesser would be $2,000.

THE CONSTITUTION PUTS 10 PER CENT of the amount it receives for subscriptions from parties entering the Missing Word Contest into a fund for distribution among those who name correctly the missing word. If only one contestant gets the right word, he or she will be given the entire fund. If more than one supplies the missing word, the same will be proportionately divided among the successful guessers.

THE CONDITION PRECEDENT FOR SENDING A GUESS at the Missing Word is that each and every guess must be accompanied by a year's subscription to The Weekly Constitution. If sent through the paper publishing this advertisement in acceptance of our clubbing offer the guess at the missing word will be forwarded. The guess must be sent with the subscription. Should one person send more than one answer, he or she will be entitled to a share of the fund for each correct answer. There will be no capital prize—everyone will get a first prize. Persons may guess as many times as they send subscriptions.

IN MAKING YOUR ANSWER you need not write the sentence out in full—just say the Missing Word for the above partly blank period designating it as "_____."

Merit Means Money Made.

You cannot advertise money out of people's pockets all the time; you may do it now and then, but if you don't give them something of absolute merit in return, advertising will never prove successful. The kind of advertising that pays is advertising a good thing. As it has merit the people will use it again and again. Never has this been better illustrated than in the great success of Cascarets, candy cathartib, that we have been lately advertising in this paper. All druggists call Cascarets, repeaters, that is, people buy them, like them, and buy them again and recommend them to their friends. THE AMERICAN MONTHLY REVIEW OF REVIEWS

It is impossible to promise particular features that will appear in the "AMERICAN MONTHLY" during the coming year, for it is, as the Bookman says, "a great monthly newspaper." As such, it prints for its readers an illustrated account of the notable things which make the history of the month, of the political, the economic, and literary happenings which are of value to intelligent men and women. The Editor's "Progress of the World" tells succinctly an illustrated story of the month. The "Leading Articles" give the best thought and information of the current magazines in five continents; the contributed articles furnish the character sketches of the man of the month, and give timely discussions by authorities on any question of immediate serious import.

"We know of no review published in this country or in Europe, which combines so successfully as the AMERICAN MONTHLY the alertness, timeliness, and energy of journalism with the sound judgment, carefully weighed opinion, exact knowledge, and well-chosen English of the chiefly literary periodical."—The Outlook.

The result of this comprehensive effort to edit in one monthly volume the information needed by intelligent people of "live" instincts is best gauged by the opinions which the readers of the AMERICAN MONTHLY have seen fit to express. These are thinking business men, clergymen, editors, lawyers, professors, engineers, the wide-awake women of America. They write that the AMERICAN MONTHLY "is indispensable"; "is simply invaluable"; "is a generous library in itself"; is "a historical cyclopedia of the world"; "the best means of aid for a busy man"; "the best periodical of the kind we have ever had"; "a triumph of editorial genius"; "the world under a field-glass," etc., etc.

GUAQUEROS OF COLOMBIA.

Men Who Hunt For Gold Buried With the Ancient Inhabitants of the Country.

The burial places of the ancient inhabitants of Colombia, more particularly in the provinces of Antioquia and Cauca, have for more than three centuries afforded a precarious livelihood, first to some of the Spaniards who colonized the country and then to some of the present inhabitants, for the Indians of Colombia followed the custom of burying the dead with their possessions and treasures. In Antioquia and Cauca an Indian tomb is known as a guaca and a group of tombs as a pueblo. The guacas are said to be rich when they contain a large amount of gold, poor when they contain little and empty when they contain only bones and pottery.

"The art of the guaquero, or grave searchers," says Don Manuel Uribe, a quaint writer of a century ago, "has perfectly plain rules, easy to be understood, whose application is so certain in its results that they are almost exact."

Of the men themselves he says: "Like all who seek treasure, their life is enthusiastic and full of dreams that too often are dispelled and replaced by painful realities. There is in the Antioquian guaquero something strange and typical that makes its impress on his character and gives him a peculiar physiognomy. Light hearted and observant, he is always sanguine of finding enormous treasures, he speaks of his occupation with pride, praises it, defends it with tenacity, and often shows signs of a kind of insanity which might well be called huacophagomania."

The don might have added that once a guaquero always a guaquero, and that the guaqueros are the only miners in all the country who can not obtain credit. This is saying a good deal, for in Colombia every retail as well as every wholesale merchant expects to give from 6 to 12 months' credit.

The searchers claim to be able to locate a guaca with unfailing accuracy, but the writers has seen them fail too many times to believe it to be other than a matter of great luck. The sole indication of a guaca so far as an outsider can learn, is a sinking of the ground corresponding to the size of the grave, but in the course of centuries such indications have disappeared to a large extent. The tools required are few, a crowbar, shovel, a botera for washing the dirt, and a block and tackle if the grave be deep.

Having located his guaca, the guaquero can, after digging a little, tell pretty nearly what he may expect. If he finds a stone wall or signs of steps, he may be pretty sure that the grave is of some one of importance. If the wall is of hewn stone, well joined, he knows it must be of a great chief or cacique. By the hardness and compactness of the soil he knows whether the grave is very ancient or comparatively modern. By the kind of utensils found he can tell whether the grave is that of a man or woman. He can also tell whether the grave has been previously robbed and whether by Indians or Spaniards. This he determines by indications that would appeal very forcibly to Sherlock Holmes. The ancient Indians were extremely careful in filling the grave to place the different earths generally black, bluish gray, and brown, in the exact order in which they occurred. If the grave was subsequently robbed by Indians, the bones and pottery would be carefully replaced, but the same care would not be exercised in replacing the earth. If the grave was robbed by Spaniards the grave would be hurriedly filled with bones, broken pottery, and earth indiscriminately.

When it becomes evident to the guaquero that he is nearing the bottom, the earth is removed in thin slices and every piece is carefully examined. When the bones are discovered, the place about the head is searched for earrings and nose rings. The pottery is broken and washed for gold fishhooks or rings, but if under the body that the largest quantity of gold is generally found. If the amount found is satisfactory the guaquero fills up the grave, and the time praising and flattering the memory of the dead, his ancestors and heirs; but if the grave is empty the dead man is cursed and his bones are left to fall to pieces.

The greatest find of this kind recorded by history was that of D

GUAQUEROS OF COLOMBIA.

Men Who Hunt For Gold Buried With the Ancient Inhabitants of the Country.

The burial places of the ancient inhabitants of Colombia, more particularly in the provinces of Antioquia and Cauca, have for more than three centuries afforded a precarious livelihood, first to some of the Spaniards who colonized the country and then to some of the present inhabitants, for the Indians of Colombia followed the custom of burying the dead with their possessions and treasures. In Antioquia and Cauca an Indian tomb is known as a guaca and a group of tombs as a pueblo. The guacas are said to be rich when they contain a large amount of gold, poor when they contain little and empty when they contain only bones and pottery.

"The art of the guaqueros, or grave searchers," says Don Manuel Uribe, a quaint writer of a century ago, "has perfectly plain rules, easy to be understood, whose application is so certain in its results that they are almost exact."

Of the men themselves he says: "Like all who seek treasure, their life is enthusiastic and full of dreams that too often are dispelled and replaced by painful realities. There is in the Antioquian guaquero something strange and typical that makes its impress on his character and gives him a peculiar physiognomy. Light hearted and observing, he is always sanguine of finding enormous treasures; he speaks of his occupation with pride, praises it, defends it with tenacity, and often shows signs of a kind of insanity which might well be called sarcophagomania."

The don might have added that once a guaquero always a guaquero, and that the guaqueros are the only miners in all the country who cannot obtain credit. This is saying a good deal, for in Colombia every retail as well as every wholesale merchant expects to give from 6 to 12 months' credit.

The searchers claim to be able to locate a guaca with unfailing accuracy, but the writers has seen them fail too many times to believe it to be other than a matter of great luck. The sole indication of a guaca, so far as an outsider can learn, is a sinking of the ground corresponding to the size of the grave, but in the course of centuries such indications have disappeared to a large extent. The tools required are few—a crowbar, shovel, a botea for washing the dirt, and a block and tackle if the grave be deep.

Having located his guaca, the guaquero can, after digging a little, tell pretty nearly what he may expect. If he finds a stone wall or signs of steps, he may be pretty sure that the grave is of some one of importance. If the wall is of hewn stone, well joined, he knows it must be of a great chief or a cacique. By the hardness and compactness of the soil he knows whether the grave is very ancient or comparatively modern. By the kind of utensils found he can tell whether the grave is that of a man or a woman. He can also tell whether the grave has been previously robbed and whether by Indians or Spaniards. This he determines by indications that would appeal very forcibly to Sherlock Holmes. The ancient Indians were extremely careful in filling the grave to place the different earths, generally black, bluish gray, and brown, in the exact order in which they occurred. If the grave was subsequently robbed by Indians, the bones and pottery would be carefully replaced, but the same care would not be exercised in replacing the earth. If the grave was robbed by Spaniards the grave would be hurriedly filled with bones, broken pottery, and earth indiscriminately.

When it becomes evident to the guaquero that he is nearing the bottom, the earth is removed in thin slices and every piece is carefully examined. When the bones are uncovered, the place about the head is searched for earrings and nose rings. The pottery is broken and washed for gold fishhooks or rings, but it is under the body that the largest quantity of gold is generally found. If the amount found is satisfactory, the guaquero fills up the grave, all the time praising and flattering the memory of the dead, his ancestors and heirs; but if the grave is empty, the dead man is cursed and his bones are left to fall to pieces.

The greatest find of this kind recorded by history was that of Don Pedro de Heredia, who left Cartagena for El Dorado in 1534. The party came across an Indian town called Zemi, and from a large graveyard or pueblo near it they obtained so much gold that Don Pedro divided $400,000 among his followers, after deducting the royal fifth and a fair share for himself.—New York Sun.

Masters With Big Salaries.

At the top of the scholastic profession are the head masters of the great public schools. Some of these draw incomes almost equal to those of judges or bishops.

The head master at Eton gets about £4,500 a year. The head master at Harrow gets a salary of £1,500, plus the profits of a boarding house of 64 boys at £90 each—gross, £7,260. The total income of the head master of Charterhouse is about £6,042 10s.

Rugby may be classed with Harrow as a paying school. Winchester is not so good. A house master at Eton has 40 boys—£111 for board, and £21 each pupil, if the master is a classical man and not only a "dame;" gross, £4,440. Assistant masters at Eton get £300 for the first two years; afterward the fees bring the amount up to an average of about £800.—Strand Magazine.

Feeling His Way.

A little boy about 5 years old, too tired for anything but sleep, refused one night to say his prayers. His uncle, who was present, said, "Oh, Harry, would you go to sleep without asking God to take care of you during the night?"

The little fellow answered, "I didn't say 'em last night; I ain't doin to say 'em tonight, and I ain't doin to say 'em tomorrow night, and then, if nothin don't det me, I ain't doin to say 'em no more."—Troy Times.

Narrow Streets.

In Mainz, Germany, some of the streets are so narrow that wagons and bicycles are not allowed in them. Special permission is to be given, however, to physicians who use wheels to enter them, and as policemen cannot know a physician by instinct these wheels have to have a special mark and number.

A Woman's Label League.

It is stated that a league is to be started in New York city whose object shall be to have union labels put on all articles manufactured by women. There are women's label leagues in Cincinnati and other cities, and the movement has been growing, especially in the west.—New York Sun.

A HEALTHY WIFE

Writes of Dr. Hartman's Free Home Treatment.

Mrs. F. M. Badgett, 819 New street, Knoxville, Tenn., writes a letter for publication, which she desires all her suffering sisters to read. She writes: "When I was 16 years old, I suffered with female weakness of the worst kind and spent all I had in trying to get cured. I tried several of the best physicians but they all failed to cure me. I gave up all hope of recovery. Finally Dr. Hartman's treatment was recommended to me by my teacher, who also lent me the money to get the medicine which Dr. Hartman prescribed. I took the treatment and it cured me. I am now a healthy woman, weighing 194 pounds, and I owe it all to Dr. Hartman's treatment. I am sure I would not be living now if it had not been for his treatment. I cannot help recommending it to all sufferers, and will answer all inquiring letters."

Any woman wishing to apply for Dr. Hartman's free home treatment has only to send age, symptoms, duration of disease, when the doctor will prescribe the proper treatment. The medicine can be obtained by each patient at the nearest drug store. Each woman should have a copy of Dr. Hartman's latest books on the diseases peculiar to women, called "Health and Beauty." Jemison, Jan. 24, 1898

Editor BANNER: We are truly glad to see your worthy correspondent wishing to discuss the establishment of small cotton mills and factories in Chilton county. The suggestions offered in that article demand careful attention. And as he says, if any one can offer anything better, let us see it. The proposition to discuss this industry in the County Alliance was fitly written.

If the Alliance had maintained its proper strength and working capacity, we could very soon have this matter voiced throughout the county. We may expect opposition in this, which should double the diligence of all who favor home industries. The advantages which might accrue are almost innumerable, and would develop as time rolls on. Experience and energy would unfold much that now lies back in the dark. The advancement of such an enterprise would be a fort to many. May the alliance look searchingly into this matter.

Mrs. IRA CAMPBELL.

Turn-Round Topics.

Indeed am I glad to make known to the public that the body of poor unfortunate Ellis Jones was found last Friday, 21st instant, at about one o'clock in the afternoon at Wadsworth's boom, four miles below where he was drowned. The route being so rough for wagons, the corpse was carried on Wadsworth log train to Johnson's Crossing. From thence it was conveyed to Corinth cemetery. Interment took place at about 2 o'clock, p. m. Saturday, Rev. E. L. Manning conducting the funeral services. The body was found the thirteenth day and was floating on the water.

The progressive ladies of Westfield Ind., issued a "Woman's Edition" of the Westfield News, bearing date of April 3, 1896. The paper is filled with matter of interest to women, and we notice the following from a correspondent, which the editors printed, realizing that it treats upon a matter of vital importance to their sex: The best remedy for croup, colds and bronchitis that I have been able to find is Chamberlin's Cough remedy. For family use it has no equal. I gladly recommend it." 25 and 50 cent bottles for sale by J. S. Johnson Jr. Druggist.

The Power of the Press.

One of the most remarkable successes in the history of advertising is that of Cascarets Candy Cathartic, the famous ideal laxative now found in every home, absolutely unknown two years ago, this wonderful preparation achieved a sale in 1897 of over 3,000,000 boxes, and indications are that over 5,000,000 boxes will be sold in 1898. It is a case of undoubted merit made known to the world by the use of printer's ink. The best article in the world will not sell unless its virtues are spread broadcast through the newspapers. No better illustration could be found, on the other hand, of the success awaiting any one who has a good preparation and will advertise it than Cascarets Candy Cathartic, the most perfect preparation of the day.

A Sure Thing for You.

A transaction in which you cannot lose is a sure thing. Biliousness, sick headache, furred tongue, fever, piles and a thousand other ills are caused by constipation and sluggish liver. PUBLISHED WEEKLY.

CLANTON, - ALABAMA.

Another "new vocation" for women has been started by a New York widow, who proposes to make a business of furnishing bachelor apartments. But is any business to be encouraged which will make things easier for bachelors? asks the Louisville Courier-Journal. Is not the only furniture with which a widow should furnish bachelor's apartments a widow?

In a genealogical way the funniest thing on record is that Menelik, Negus of Abyssinia, insists on his descent in a straight line from Solomon and the Queen of Sheba. If this were questioned the august Negus would have your head cut off, or if you hinted that there was a bar sinister somewhere you might be impaled. There is, however, a noble family in France, the Counts of Noe, who show on their family blazon the Ark and that most adventurous voyager, Noah, and they claim that veteran seaman as their remote ancestor.

American labor is acknowledged to be more efficient than the labor of any other country. We are fortunate in the possession of a race of skilled mechanics who are endowed with sufficient brains and adroitness to quickly master the most intricate machines. Our common school system, which has been maintained for forty years, has laid the foundation for such an average intelligence, and the numerous excellent technical schools and schools of technology afford the utmost opportunity to boys of a studious and mechanical turn of mind.

Says the New York Tribune: "A contemporary states that it is hoped to be a convicted murderer in the United States than an innocent man, and submits these data as to it: Not one convicted murderer in fifty is hanged or killed by electricity, so the men lynched a much larger proportion than 1 in 50 was innocent. We have no means at hand for verifying these figures, nor are we able to determine what proportion of the population are convicted murderers or what proportion are unjustly executed. The conclusion, merely from casual observation, seems plausible; the logic is sound. Still, if it be not too optimistic, we should like some more data to guide us."

After all, schools are the greatest civilizers, exclaims the New York Mail and Express. Secretary Bliss, of the Interior Department, reports 26,000 Indian children enrolled in the schools last year. Tribal relations are being broken up and Indian lands divided into severalty. The aborigine, however, has not yet been educated up to the point of holding on to the land, and as a consequence it soon passes into the hands of his white brothers, notwithstanding the paternal restrictions thrown round him by the government. The Indian has not yet learned the necessity of promptly meeting taxes, and [illegible] to his failure to come to time with respect to this exaction, a consi[illegible]ount of his lands, in Min[illegible]d from him [illegible]ter learns [illegible]t other [illegible] have [illegible] for his [illegible]oducts Office at [illegible]port which [illegible] on the yield United States, [illegible]ork Sun. Mr. [illegible]ledge in this spec[illegible]r years at the service [illegible]tates Geological Sur[illegible] becomes part of official [illegible]e. The report for 1896, just published, contains a table of values as represented by the various gems discovered in the United States during the year. It is interesting to observe how the values are apportioned. Here are a few items:

Turquoise	$40,000
Sapphire	10,000
Gold quartz	10,000
Tourmaline	3,000
Garnet	2,500
Ruby	1,000
Amethyst	500
Topaz	200
Opal	200
Emerald	None
Diamond	None

The list includes many precious minerals which would not strictly be classed as gems, and the total value assigned is a little under $100,000. The prominence of the turquoise in the American list is recent, the yield being large in Arizona and New Mexico.

A BRIEF RESUME OF STATE NEWS.

Big Trade in Coal With the Planters of Louisiana---President Culver Appoints His Committee for the Alabama State Agricultural Society---New Code for Alabama to Go Into Effect---Indian Head Cotton Mills Put in Operation---Desperate Attempt of a Burglar---A Wild Man.

AGRICULTURAL COMMITTEE.

President Culver Has Made His Appointments.

The Alabama State Agricultural Society is perfecting itself, and will soon be a power in the state for the good of the farmers and land owners.

Commissioner of Agriculture Culver, as president of the agricultural society, has appointed the following executive committee:

First district—Hon. Mims Walker, of Marengo, and J. R. Cowan, of Clarke.

Second district—M. B. Houghton, of Montgomery, and John T. Dale, of Wilcox.

Third district—C. H. Franklin, of Bullock, and John B. Ward, of Henry.

Fourth district—John F. Burns, of Dallas, and J. M. Thornton, of Talladega.

Fifth district—J. H. Harris, of Chambers, and W. W. Walden, of Coosa.

Sixth district—C. P. Mills, of Sumter, and N. N. Clements, of Tuskaloosa.

Seventh district—J. J. Mitchell, of Lauderdale, and J. P. Hampton, of Madison.

Ninth district—Sam Will John, of Jefferson, and W. C. Tunstall, of Hale.

NEW CODE OF ALABAMA.

Gov. Jhonston Issues a Proclamation for It to Go Into Effect February 17.

Governor Johnston Friday issued a proclamation under the terms of which the new code of Alabama goes into effect on Feb. 17. The code is now being distributed to the judicial and other officers entitled to it.

The new code is believed to be an exceedingly satisfactory compilation of the laws of the state. It was prepared by former Attorney-General Wm. L. Martin, Judge A. D. Sayre and Hon. P. C. Massie, all of Montgomery. These gentlemen have spent a large part of the past two years in perfecting the compilation and arrangement of the laws and have given especial attention to the preparation of a satisfactory index, a feature in which the old code is sadly lacking.

The new volume is larger than the old by reason of the fact that the state has more laws than it had ten years ago.

Indian Cotton Mill in Operation.

The big Indian Head cotton mills at Cordova was put in operation Monday. In the amount of floor space these mills are larger than the Avondale mills at Birmingham, but the number of spindles is somewhat smaller, being 25,000. One thousand looms are in the mills. These mills will use 10,000 bales of cotton a year. The plant has been constructed by a number of Eastern capitalists and so assured are they of its success that they will soon begin work on another cotton mill equally as large as the one just completed. The principal product of the Indian Head mills will be heavy sheetings and almost the entire output will be shipped to China.

Good Roads Convention.

It is expected that there will be more than three hundred delegates in attendance at the good roads convention to be held in Anniston on February 16. Already a number of counties have appointed delegates. The anniversary carnival and trades' display, to be held on the same day, will be the biggest thing of the kind ever attempted in that city. Sixty business houses have consented to have floats in the parade.

New Police Commissioners.

Governor Johnston has appointed Ex-Mayor David J. Fox and Ex Alderman John M. McCartin, police commissioner of the city of Birmingham, who will fill the vacancies on the board caused by the expiration of the terms of Colonel A. H. Stevens and M. C. Reynolds, whose incumbency was at an end on December 31 1897.

Shot in the Back.

James Bald, a mine boss at Ishkooda, Jefferson county, was shot in the back Friday and is in a critical condition and may not live. The shooting was done by Frank Simmons, a 19-year-old white youth. What led up to the shooting is not known and there seems to be some mystery connected with the affair. It is stated that young Simmons walked into the mine office, where Mr. Bald was at work on a tally sheet. The two had some words, the substance of which is unknown, and Simmons drew a revolver and shot Bald in the back. As soon as the shot was fired Simmons fled, and has thus far succeeded in eluding capture.

A Woman Dies of Exposure.

At Stanton Thursday night, Mattie McPherson, an aged and decrepit negress, asked for food and shelter at the house of Ike Smith, colored. She was refused, but lingered about the house until nightfall, when she was ordered off. Protesting that she was too feeble to go elsewhere, she was hustled out of the gate and was left lying by the fence. It was a stormy night with heavy rains and the following morning the old woman was found dead at the gate. Her death was evidently caused by exposure.

GOLD BONDS ISSUED

By the Avondale Cotton Mills at Birmingham—Will Start in May.

The stockholdors of the Avondale Cotton Mills, Birmingham's new half million dollar enterprise, at a meeting held Friday afternoon, authorized the issuance of $100,000 6 per cent. five year gold bonds. The entire issue was at once taken by Major J. M. Lewis. The treasurer was also instructed to sell off $100,000 more if in stock, at not less than par and $10,000 if it was taken on the spot by one individual. The remainder will be disposed of in a very few days. When this is done $500,000 of stock and bonds will be outstanding. The affairs of the company, which is controlled by Birmingham and Eastern capitalists, were found to be in excellent shape. The mills, which will be among the largest in the South, are almost complete, and will begin operation May 1. Their output has already been sold for several months ahead.

BRIEFLY MENTIONED.

The boiler works at Sheffield are in active operation.

Morris Franklin, city sexton of Montgomery, died the past week.

Jefferson alias Jack Knight was hanged at Mobile Friday for the murder of Frank Dantzler.

Work is well advanced on the Mobile and Ohio bridge over the Alabama river at Montgomery.

Andrew Nixon, colored, while coupling cars at Montgomery, fell and was ground to death under the wheels.

The Central Alabama stock show, a Selma institution, has been wound up, and 37 per cent refunded to subscribers.

The date for the hearing of the contested election case of Goodwyn vs. Brewer, Fifth district, has been set for February 9.

James Bald, a clerk in the commissary at Smith's Mines, Jefferson county, was fatally shot by Charley Simmons last Friday.

L. J. Fuller has been convicted of the murder of Thomas Henry, at Fruithurst in 1895, and sentenced to thirty years in the penitentiary.

J. Sternfield, an attorney of prominence and ability, of Montgomery, has been appointed district attorney for the middle district of Alabama.

Anthony Stribbling, the engineer who was fatally hurt in a wreck on the Kansas City, Memphis & Birmingham railroad last week, died from the effects of his injuries.

Desperate Attempt of a Burglar.

An attempted murder took place Saturday night at Stockton mines, near Coalburg. Two negroes broke into the house of Frank McNamara, a well known mine contractor, for the purpose of robbery. While they were in the midst of their search Mr. McNamara returned to the room and discovered them in the act. As he entered the door he was shot by one of the desperate characters with a 44-calibre pistol, the ball taking effect in the abdomen and inflicting a dangerous wound, which it is thought will prove fatal. The negroes secured $300 and immediately fled.

Failed to Appear.

Three cases against Oscar W. Cowan, at Birmingham, charging embezzlement and grand larceny, were set for trial, but the defendant failed to answer and a forfeiture was issued against his bondsmen. Cowan is under a $500 bond in each case.

Laying Off Vinemount Colony.

Engineer Rivers Carter is busy laying off the land for Vinemount colony near Cullman. The task will occupy about six months. A portion of the land is being divided into town lots, while much of it will be reserved for vineyards and fruit farms.

Plowman Loses His Seat.

Elections committee No. 3 met Friday and decided to report to the house a resolution seating Aldrich and unseating Plowman as the duly elected representative from the Fourth Alabama district. The vote in the committee was strictly a party one, the democrats voting to allow Plowman to retain his seat and the republicans in favor of the resolution seating Aldrich. The committee will make a report in about three weeks.

A New Health Resort.

Chicago capitalists have begun work on a big sanitarium at Pinnacle, Ala., on the top of Sand Mountain near Cullman.

Woodstock Furnace Banked.

Colonel H. Atkinson, of Anniston, Ala., received a telegram Thursday from President Probst, New York, stating that the directors had decided to have the furnaces of the Woodstock Iron Works banked for sixty days, and directing that it be banked at once. This temporary shut-down is due to the sluggish demand for the high grade of iron made by the Woodstock Iron Works, and not to the fact that the furnace is not able to make money at the price for which its iron sells in the markets.

BIG TRADE IN COAL

Is Being Worked Up by Alabama Operators With Louisiana Planters.

The shipment of Alabama coal down the Mississippi river for consumption on Louisiana plantations is about to begin again on a large scale. The first tow of the new year consisting of 6,000 tons will move southward from Greenville Miss., the western terminus of the Southern railway, next week. The coal is from the Walker county mines and is now being loaded on the barges at Greenville. The Southern railway has recently completed splendid facilities for handling coal at Greenville and loading it on the barges, and it is expected that a large business will be done in the movement of the Alabama black diamond this winter. Heavy orders are coming in from the Louisiana sugar planters and towns along the river and the outlook is for a big trade. Pittsburg operators are also moving a large amount of coal down the Mississippi, but with the improved facilities at their command and lower freight rates which have been granted, the Alabama producers feel able to share very largely in the river trade. Alabama's river shipments this winter and spring will it is figured be about 150,000 tons.

Committee Meeting Changed.

Chairman Knox, of the state democratic executive committee has issued the following: "Inasmuch as a conflict in the date designated for the meeting of the state democratic executive committee, and as the date fixed for mardi gras at Mobile and Birmingham will prevent some members from being present, the time of the meeting of said committee is hereby changed from February 22, 1898, to February 15, 1898. Members of the committee will please take notice of this change."

Suicide at Steele.

James Hood, a young man of Steele, committed suicide Saturday morning by shooting himself through the heart in his room. He was in town early and in the best of spirits. On his way home he had some words with an Alabama Great Southern railroad section hand and knocked the negro down. He thought he had killed the negro and went directly home and shot himself through the heart.

Forbids Increase of Rates.

The state railroad commission of Alabama has issued an order forbidding the railroads to increase the local freight rates 4 per cent per 100 in less than-carload-lots, as has been attempted by several lines recently. The rates on carloads and less than carloads in Alabama thus remain the same, which is a big victory for Alabama jobbing interests.

Mysterious Wild Man.

A mysterious wild man has caused a great deal of excitement among the residents of the northern part of Huntsville. The man is an old one, and generally goes about in his shirt sleeves. A party of young men were held up by the wild man and chased for some distance Thursday night. He carried a large pistol.

Two Cruisers for Mobile.

Representatives Taylor and Underwood called at the navy yard and requested that several war vessels be sent to Mobile next month to take part in the mardi gras festivities. Secretary Long has promised that two cruisers from the white squadron now in southern waters shall be ordered to Mobile.

TERSELY TOLD TELEGRAMS.

M. Ernest Bazin, the inventor of the roller steamer, died in Paris.

The Citizens bank of New Louisville, Ark., closed its doors Friday.

Hon. Allen D. Candler will be a candidate for governor of Georgia.

It is estimated that one case of smallpox at Elberton, Ga., cost the town $2,500.

Dr. William A. Love, one of the foremost Masons in the United States, and one of the oldest and best known physicians in the south, died at his residence in Atlanta last week, aged 74.

The Indian Head Cotton Mill company at Cordova, Ala., proposes to build 250 cottages. They are to be eight-room double cottages, and will be rented at 85 cents a room a month.

Senator Finck's bill to gerrymander the congressional districts of Ohio was introduced Friday before adjournment. The purpose of the bill is to legislate Congressman Grosvenor out of office and put a democrat in his place.

The Fishery Congress.

The National Fishery Congress was called to order Thursday morning by Chairman Gillett, mayor of Tampa, who delivered an address of welcome. The committee on permanent organization reported and presented Hon. A. N. Cheney, of New York, as permanent chairman, and Dr. Hugh W. Smith, of the United States Fish Commission of Washington, permanent secretary. The nominations were accepted.

G. H. Smith, the Nominee.

G. H. Smith defeated W. P. Gladdis for the nomination of mayor of Wetumpka by nineteen votes.

Ninety-Nine-Year Sentence.

At Selma Jonas Bates has been convicted of the murder of H. C. Randall and sentenced to ninety-nine years in the penitentiary.

Rice Farming.

Over 2,500 bushels of upland rice was shipped in one day of last week from Daphne. It brought 90 cents a bushel. The farmers about Daphne will cultivate a larger acreage this season.

To Erect a Large Saw Mill.

Messrs. Hunnicut & Neil have leased a place at Centreville for the location of a saw mill, all the necessary arrangements having been made, and they propose to have a $30,000 plant erected and ready for business by the time the first schedule train on the Mobile & Ohio reaches that place.

Donations for State Normal Schools.

Superintendent of Education Turner says he has received up to date $2,3?6 of the Slater fund and $3,050 of the Peabody fund as donations to the state normal schools. These amounts are about half the respective sums annually appropriated to the schools of Alabama, and it is expected the remaining half will be sent in within a short time.

Debt Caused a Killing.

A personal altercation between D. P. Vickory, lawyer, and Dr. J. C. Taylor occurred at Haleyville Monday in which the former was shot and killed. Vickory was indebted to Taylor and Taylor attacked Vickory on last Saturday. Monday the latter came to town to seek revenge, and when they met a fight with pistols ensued, in which Vickory was shot and instantly killed.

Three Stills Raided.

Deputy Collector W. C. Hanlin has reported the raiding of the following stills during the past week: Three miles south of Edwardsville, one fifty-gallon copper still, five fermenters and one flake stand; four miles west of Oak Level, one fifty-gallon still, 1,000 gallons of beer, seven fermenters and one flake stand; four miles south of Oak Level, one fifty-gallon still.

Miss Martin Killed Near East Lake.

In a runaway on the highway four and a half miles above East Lake, Sunday evening Miss Melissa Martin was killed and Miss Hattie Chamblee painfully but not seriously injured. A horse attached to a carriage took fright from the carriage pressing on him as he was going down a hill and ran away. The two ladies leaped out, Miss Martin striking on her head, who received wounds from which she died a few minutes after.

TO DEVELOP COAL LANDS.

A Tract of 5,000 Acres Near Hanceville Will be Tapped by the L. & N.

Messrs. Robert Stevens and associates, of Birmingham, are going to make some extensive mine developments in Blount county.

It is stated that a corps of engineers left Birmingham this week for Hanceville, where it is said Stevens and associates contemplate opening up extensive mines. The new company, which is to be organized at once, will build a branch line of road from a point one mile south of Hanceville, on the Louisville & Nashville railroad, to a point twelve miles in a westerly direction. Here, it is said, the syndicate has bought or obtained options on four to five thousand acres of coal land. The seam is about four and a half feet thick, and the coal found is of the very best domestic kind. This property is to be extensively developed by the new company.

May Build a Steel Plant.

It has been reported that English capitalists has about decided to invest a million dollars in a steel plant in the Birmingham district. Definite arrangements have not completed, but it is learned that the English syndicate, who had an agent in this district part of last spring looking at the resources of Alabama, has been so well satisfied with the report made by this agent that it has practically determined to erect a mammoth steel plant. It is stated that the agent of the syndicate gave the district a most enthusiastic indorsement for such a project.

Improved Cotton Seed.

Commissioner of Agriculture Culver has received an immense quantity of the improved Truitt cotton seed from LaGrange, Ga., and within a few days will send two bushels to each probate judge in the state for distribution among the leading planters. The seed is a new variety to this section and possesses some good, productive qualities. It was also learned from the commissioner's office that the sale of fertilizer tags continues to decrease. This evidences a decrease in the cotton acreage for the year.

Sassafras Oil Manufactory Established.

A plant called the Essential Company has been established at Fayette for the manufacture of sassafras oil. The machinery is in full operation, and has turned out oil of an excellent quality. The owners pay $3.00 per ton for sassafras roots, out of which they distill the oil.

Three Porkers.

Mr. P. F. Allen, of Oxford, recently killed three Poland China hogs, which he raised, and which weighed as follows: One 268, one 449 and one 662 pounds. From the last two he obtained about 425 pounds of lard.

APPRECIATIVE "THANK YOU."

It Is the Smallest Courtesies That Make Life Worth Living.

"On every hand one hears of the neglect to say 'thank you,'" writes Edward W. Bok on "The Saying of 'Thank You'" in the Ladies' Home Journal. "I wonder sometimes if some people really know how little of what comes to them is their due and right, and how much of what comes to them is by favor and courtesy. The vast majority of things which come to us come by pure favor, by courtesy. And we should recognize this. No act of kindness, however slight, should go unnoticed. A 'thank you' is a simple thing to say; it requires but a few moments to write it, but it often means much; it means everything sometimes to the person receiving it. It means a renewed faith in human nature in some cases. A word of thanks is never lost, never wasted. If it sometimes seems to be lost upon the person to whom it is directed, its expression has not been lost upon some one else who has heard it. It is certainly not lost upon ourselves. The most of us are quick enough to thank some one who does us great service. But the small courtesy, just as great as the large service in reality, we overlook. It doesn't seem worth while to give thanks for small things. And yet what would we be to-day, and where would some of us be but for the small courtesies of life? They are what make life worth living.

"* * * It is all very well to have the last Thursday of each November set apart as a day of Thanksgiving. But it would be far better if a great many of us carried the spirit of the day into all the other days. Perhaps, if we did so we might have more mercies to be thankful for on Thanksgiving day.

"* * * Do not let the spirit of thanks stop with nightfall on Thanksgiving day. Let us extend it to all the other days of the year, to the people whose lives touch ours. When we receive a favor at the hands of any one, no matter how small it may be, let us say the words, 'Thank you.' If they should be written let us write them. Let us not delay them, but take advantage of the instant when our heart is touched. Let there be more 'thank yous' said by everybody—thousands of them. And the world will be a better, brighter and happier place to live in because of them."

Bloody Battles.

More lives were lost in the battle of Leipsic than at any other. It took place Oct. 16, 18 and 19, 1813, between the French and the Austrians, Prussians and Russians. The French were 160,000 strong, the allies 240,000. More than 80,000 men perished, and the French were defeated. Such losses throw into the shade the losses of the American war. At Gettysburg 39,000 were killed and wounded; at Chickamauga, 28,000. In the battles of the Wilderness 6,788 men were killed and at Spottsylvania 6,286. In the final attack on Kars, during the Russo-Turkish war of 1877 8,000 men fell. The losses in the attacks on the Shipka pass amounted to about 20,000 men, and before Plevna some 30,000 men perished. Marius' victory over the Cimbri and Teutones at Vercellae, B. C. 101, is said to have cost the lives of 200,000 persons.

At Their Word.

There is a kind of blunt, rude traveler that well deserves such a reproof as is mentioned in the Golden Penny: A party of English visitors were being shown round a famous Scotch abbey, and one of them said to the guide, "Now, old fellow, we don't want any of your cock-and-bull stories about this place! Tell us what you are sure is true."

"Ay, sir!" quietly replied the guide, and he walked on in silence.

He led the party through the abbey, and said, "Ye've seen the old abbey."

"Yes," said the Englishman. "Can't you tell us anything about it?"

"The exact truth," returned the Scot, "is that 'the abbey is old,' and I canna swear to any more aboot it," and he left them.

THE JOURNAL'S FLOP.

MOST BRAZEN PROPOSITION OF W. R. HEARST.

Would Abandon the Cause of Financial Reform to Appease the Palmer-Buckner Traitors — Eastern Democrats Overwhelmingly for Bimetallism.

Of course, the New York Journal, while abandoning bimetallism, claims that it is working in the interests of harmony and victory.

Upon what basis such a claim can rest has not as yet been made apparent. One thing alone has been alleged by the Journal, and that is the necessity of democrats abandoning their demand for the free coinage of silver at a ratio of 16 to 1. In the Journal's eyes a ratio of 30 to 1 would not be objectionable, and such a concession as that simply adds the Journal to the list of gold standard newspapers.

Attention has been called in these columns to the result of the vote in the electoral college, showing that the east could not claim the right to dictate policy, as its electoral vote in 1896 had been unanimously republican.

Now, a glance at the record of popular sentiment, as expressed by the vote of the eastern states, will show whether the Fusionists and Democrats are in favor of bimetallism and a ratio of 16 to 1, or of the Journal's gold monometallism at any old ratio based on the commercial value of silver. The popular vote of the eastern states for Bryan on the one hand and Palmer on the other was as follows:

Popular Vote.	Bryan.	Palmer.
New York	551,513	18,972
New Jersey	113,975	6,373
New Hampshire	21,650	3,420
Pennsylvania	427,127	11,000
Vermont	10,607	1,329
Massachusetts	105,711	11,749
Maine	34,504	1,864
Delaware	16,615	956
Connecticut	56,740	4,336
Total	1,338,142	59,999

If, in 1896, the eastern states gave a popular vote of 1,338,142 for William J. Bryan and the free and independent coinage of silver at a ratio of 16 to 1, while only 59,999 votes were polled in these states for the advocate of the monetary theory now proclaimed by the Journal, what assurance has the Journal to give that it is not advising the democratic party to alienate one million three hundred thousand voters to secure the support of a scant sixty thousand?

It cannot be denied that the democracy of the east is on record for bimetallism. How does the Journal expect to reverse the verdict of 1896?—Chicago Dispatch.

A Chance to Open the Mills.

"Never in the history of New England has there been a shut-down so complete as that now in operation in the cotton mills of New Bedford. Not a spindle is turning nor a loom in motion. There are eighteen mills involved in the strike and a pay roll of $70,000 a week is affected. Dispatches from Boston say: 'A reduction in the wages of about 125,000 operatives employed in nearly 150 cotton mills in New England, which the manufacturers decide upon as a temporary remedy for the widespread depression in the cotton goods industry of the north, has gone into effect in a majority of the mills. At several of the mill centers, namely, New Bedford, Biddeford, Saco, and Lewiston, Me., dissatisfaction among the mill hands is intense.

"The situation in New Bedford is viewed from a very gloomy light by the business men of that city many of whom have not altogether recovered from the depression which followed the failure of six mill corporations last spring. The strike was begun in spite of the efforts of these men, of the pulpit, of the city, of the board of trade, and the state board of arbitration, to bring about a settlement. The operatives are advocating the abolition of the fining systems in addition to restoration of wages.

"The cut amounts to about 10 per cent in many places, but in several centers it is 11 1-9 per cent, and even higher, while in a few mills it is only about 5 per cent. Over production, the keen competition of the south, low prices, and a generally demoralized cotton goods market, are said to be the leading causes which are assigned for the attack on the wage schedule. Many manufacturers claim that a decrease in the cost of production will greatly improve the situation, while others deny that the cut will do any good. The policy of most manufacturers seems to be in the direction of keeping the mills running during the winter months at least, the objection to a shut-down being based on the theory that it would have no other effect than to increase the production in the south.—Chicago Dispatch.

Butterworth a Victim.

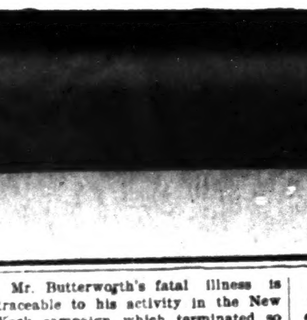
Benjamin Butterworth, who served repeatedly in congress from a Cincinnati district, though always a Republican, did not always vote for Republican measures. He was not an extreme protectionist and his voice and vote were given upon occasion in opposition to monopolists.

In an interview of Mr. Butterworth's public service he was creditably associated with the Columbian exposition, first as secretary and afterward as solicitor. He was painstaking, thorough and at the same time unfailingly affable. Some years ago he was a member from the house of representatives of the board of visitors at West Point and discharged the duties of the place as laboriously and conscientiously as though the duties of that board were of the utmost moment instead of being as they are in fact, a perfunctory and pleasant incident.

Mr. Butterworth's fatal illness is traceable to his activity in the New York campaign which terminated so disastrously to Gen. Tracy and the Platt machine. While commissioner of patents he entered the canvass bearing a message from the President of the United States to the Republicans of Greater New York, which he delivered publicly. It was that the President was profoundly interested in the outcome, desiring above all things Republican success. There was no withdrawal by McKinley of these words, but some of McKinley's friends endeavored to represent Butterworth in a role entirely foreign to him—that of a busybody who was speaking without authority. Mr. Butterworth would never have publicly stated that the President had told him that he earnest desired Tracy's success if such message had not been intrusted to him. He labored in that campaign under the humiliation of partial repudiation of himself and before its close went heavy-hearted to Ohio, where he still further labored in the Republican cause. At Cleveland he was stricken with pneumonia, which was the precursor of his death.

Butterworth, a kindly, earnest, truthful man, was in a sense a victim of his zeal for McKinley and the treachery of McKinley's friends, who were anxious that he should not be identified, as Butterworth on undoubted authority had identified him, with Platt's canvass in New York.—Chicago Chronicle.

The New Dollar Mark.



Cutting Down Wages.

Those who are on the ground take a condemnatory view of the wage reduction in New England. No doubt business for the cotton mills is bad; no doubt the protection which fails to protect is being practically condemned, but must the wage workers be forced to bear all the burdens? This is a question which is attracting the attention of intelligent men in the east. It has been asked by the operatives and it is repeated by the press—at least, that part of the press which is not the mere echo of plutocratic sentiments. In discussing the matter the Boston Post says:

"If there ever was a case in which a cutdown from 10 per cent in the wages of labor was unjustifiable, it is the case of those cotton mills in New Bedford, which have paid large dividends for many years up to and including the year 1897 just closed. Profits which permit the payment of dividends of 6, 9, 12 and even 16 per cent do not call for a reduction of the labor cost of production."

But those profits have been converted into the treasury of the mills. The managers see before them a dull period of business. Superintendents must have salaries of $10,000 to $20,000 a year. How are they to get them if the wage of the operatives is not reduced? However, the Post fails to see it in that light, and says, with much emphasis: "The managers of these great and prosperous New Bedford mill corporations are this time clearly in the wrong, whatever may be said about the situation elsewhere. They have the support neither of the business community of New Bedford, nor of the public at large, nor, as appears more clearly from day to day, of many of their own stockholders, and even directors." In the meantime, however, the workmen's wages have been cut and a strike is on.—Chicago Dispatch.

Indiana Populist Convention.

To the Members of the People's Party of Indiana: The state central committee of the People's party hereby order that a convention of the party be held on Tuesday, Feb. 22, 1898, at 10 a. m. in Indianapolis for the purpose of nominating candidates for the various state offices to be held in November, 1898, and for the purpose of selecting a new state central committee.

District organization meetings will be held at 7:30 o'clock the previous evening. The basis of representation to said convention shall be as follows: Each political township and ward to be entitled to one delegate and one alternate. No person will be recognized as a delegate or alternate unless he presents credentials from his county chairman, who are directed to call county conventions on the first Saturday in February to select such delegates and alternates to the state convention. A cordial invitation is extended to all who are dissatisfied with their past political connections to take part in the various county conventions.

Like an Advance Agent.

It is stated that Maj. McKinley may visit New York this month to attend a manufacturers' dinner. There is no improbability in the announcement. The President does not like to stay many weeks continuously in Washington. He has a roving spirit, which induces him to accept any possible excuse for getting out on the road. He labored hard to get into the executive office and now that he is there is quite willing to swing around the circle on the slightest provocation.—Ex.

STORY OF TWO YOUNG MEN.

One Defended His Country on the Field of Battle—The Other Robbed It—Yet the Former Is Pointed Out as an Anarchist by the Latter—The Slumbering Form of Justice Shows Signs of Awakening.

From New Time.

This young man did not give himself to his country in the war of the rebellion. He had $40,000 in gold, and when government bonds went down to 40 he bought $100,000. Uncle Sam has paid the interest, $6,000 per annum, in gold ever since, and exempted him from all taxation which we will say, is equal to 2 per cent. more, which makes his yearly pension for investing in a "sure thing" $8,000. But even this is not good enough for this man. Our Uncle Sam therefore gave him back $90,000 in national bank notes, every one of which was indorsed by Uncle Sam. Thus, in addition to his pension of $6,000 a year in gold, with exemption from taxation, risk, worry, care and labor, he has enjoyed the use and increment of $90,000 for over thirty years. And besides all this, this "patriotic" citizen who is so very jealous of the "nation's honor" still has his bond yielding him six thousand 200-cent dollars every year, and his $90,000 bank notes, which yield as much more at least. Then we find his present worth to be as follows:

His bond, which is still yielding him six thousand 200-cent dollars per year at market value, about	$118,000
National bank notes	90,000
Profits bank notes thirty years, estimated	180,000
Saved in taxes thirty years	60,000
Interest on bond	180,000

Now we find him worth.....$628,000

Reader, do you think he has been fully paid for his kind of patriotism? Or do you think he deserves still further favors for his unspeakable patriotism. If so, do you think our present system of finance is "the best the world ever saw?" Are you willing to have our government make so much difference between its rich and poor citizens? How do you suppose the legislation, the workings and results of which are here illustrated, was obtained? Bondholder is worth, bonds and interest, $628,000.

He belittles the soldier and calls him an anarchist. But he does this merely to hide his own iniquities. Some day his guilt will find him out. Then the soldier will put a rope around his neck and hang him for treason to our flag and our country. The days of the bondholder are about numbered. The time is near at hand when he will have to go to work.

This young man had no money, so he gave himself, with all that that implies, to his country. He sacrificed loving sweethearts, friends, home, business and all things both profitable or pleasant. He shouldered his musket and went South to do and dare that our country might live and that the Declaration of Independence and our Constitution might not become obsolete rubbish. Can pen or tongue ever tell what he suffered. Of the long marches of the lying under fire for weeks in the trenches; of the hunger, cold thirst and heat; of the lonely perilous hours on picket; the terrific charges; the hellish fighting where his comrades were left in piles. He was following the stars and stripes. "How he shouted as he saw Old Glory pressing on to victory! How his blood tingled as he read in the papers the fulsome praise of the boys in blue! He was one of the nation's defenders. He was fighting for his country. He was earning the gratitude of coming generations. He fought at Shiloh until a bullet wound in the shoulder laid him low. He spent two months in hospital and rejoined his regiment in time to fight for months in front of the heights of Vicksburg. He risked his life on a score of battle fields. He contracted rheumatism from sleeping on the steaming, blood-drenched ground. But his patriotism never faltered. For all this he received the munificent salary of thirteen 35-cent dollars per month which was finally raised to $16! If he had saved all this money till the "cruel war" was over he might have had as much as $600. Just think of it! He might have got as much for his four years' service as his rich brother received for interest, etc., in nearly four fortnights! Then added to all this munificence and "paternalism" our government has given him a pension of $12 per month ever since 1890. Over six whole years. Then it follows that the old soldier's pension for a month is nearly half that of the bondholder's for a day. Old soldier is worth in wages and pension, neither having been used, say $1,400. Yet the old soldier dearly loves the bondholder. He believes that the bondholder did a patriotic thing when he loaned that $40,000 to Uncle Sam. He never dreams that the bondholder is a greater enemy to the country than was the slave power. But he is learning the truth now. The slumbering form of justice has begun to show signs of awakening.

REDEEM IN SILVER.

REAL MISSION OF THE STANDARD DOLLAR.

How It May Be Used to Protect the Treasury from Bank Sharks—Extract from an Article by Senator Teller—The Way to Bimetallism.

From an article by Senator Teller: The retirement of the greenbacks, and the substitution of national bank notes to make up the amount lost by their withdrawal, appears to be the present scheme of the administration. Such a proposition will never receive the sanction of congress. It may be put through the house by republican votes, but if it came to a direct vote in the senate it could not pass. It is foolish, in the first place, to suppose that the national banks would increase their circulation. To retire the greenbacks and treasury notes means a contraction of $500,000,000. The circulation of national bank notes is less than $250,000,000, and if any man believes those institutions would swell their circulation to $700,000,000 and guarantee to redeem every dollar of it in gold across their counters he is financially unsound. If required by law, it would not be done, for the banks would simply go out of business. The idea of retiring the greenbacks is based upon a desire to get rid of the constant drain upon the treasury for gold. If our treasury were to adopt the policy of France that drain would stop instantly. When a holder of paper currency goes to the Bank of France to have it redeemed he does not know whether he is to get gold or silver. The bank exercises its option, and our law contemplates that our treasury should exercise its option, but it does not, and right there is the trouble. Offer silver for those greenbacks once and the drain would stop. This, of course, would not solve the whole situation, but it would accomplish much, and should be done. But it will not be so long as the gold men dominate our treasury.

Thanks to Dingley.

Prosperity and the Dingley tariff are linked together. First came the Dingley bill and then followed dollar wheat. When the great and all-powerful tariff act became a law the farmers of Europe announced that they had no wheat to sell; indeed, they had none for home consumption. Prices for the cereal went up, and the Republicans sang a pean of praise and said, "Thanks to Dingley." Sugar stock jumped 40 per cent and Standard Oil stocks climbed 50 per cent, while Metropolitan Railroad stock in New York sells for 150 per cent—thanks to Dingley. Trusts were never so numerous and never so profitable as they are now. Never were so many new combinations of capital formed; never were the rich favored as they are at present—thanks to Dingley. Senator Hanna missed a point when he telegraphed McKinley to the effect that "God rules and the Republican party still lives." He should have simply said with truth and brevity: "Thanks to Dingley." Seldom has there been a more genial and kindly winter. The mercury has gone up with a cheerful persistency, and enthusiastic Republicans can but recognize in this another proof of the upward trend of all things since the g. o. p. went into power. Surely they are justified in saying, "Thanks to Dingley."

"How Much?"

Senator Chandler is a good Republican, but he has no love for Hanna, nor for Hanna's especial brand of Republican doctrine. After Hanna's great victory at Columbus he received a large number of congratulations by telegraph. Among them, it is alleged, was the following:

"M. A. Hanna, Columbus, Ohio: I congratulate you on this latest victory for sound money. How much?

"William E. Chandler."

There can be no doubt that "sound money" won the senatorship for Mark Hanna, and if Senator Chandler sent the telegram alleged to have been sent his curiosity to know "how much" is natural and entirely justifiable. But Hanna has not answered that question.

Need of a Merchant Marine.

The development of the merchant marine of the United States has been in inverse ratio to its progress in other lines. In 1845 American ships handled 81 per cent of our imports and exports. In 1855 the figures had been reduced to 75.6 per cent; in 1860 to 65.5 per cent; in 1870 to 35.6 per cent; in 1880 to 17.4 per cent; in 1890 to 12.9 per cent, and in 1895 to 11.7 per cent. For 1896 the percentage of imports and exports handled by American ships was 12, and for 1897 the figures were about 11.5 per cent.

TEMPERANCE TOPICS.

NOTES OF INTEREST TO THE ANTI-LIQUOR LEAGUERS.

Wine Being Served at the White House Dinners—A Suggestion That Liquor Fiends Be Not Permitted to Vote—The Greed of the Saloonkeepers.

A Sacred Melody.

O'ER bright stars which gem the night
Be each a blissful dwelling sphere,
Where kindred spirits reunite,
Whom death has torn asunder here.
How sweet it were at once to die,
And leave this blighted orb afar,
Mixed soul with soul, to cleave the sky,
And soar away from star to star.

But, O! how dark, how drear, how lone
Would seem the brightest world of bliss,
If, wandering through each radiant one,
We fail'd to find the loved of this!
If there no more the ties should twine,
Which death's cold hand alone can sever,
Ah! then these stars in mockery shine,
More hateful, as they shine forever.

It cannot be! each hope and fear
That lights the eye or clouds the brow,
Proclaims there is a happier sphere
Than this bleak world that holds us now:
There is a voice which sorrow hears,
When heaviest weighs life's galling chain;
'Tis heaven that whispers, "Dry thy tears:
The pure in heart shall meet again!"

A Sad Surprise.

The correspondent of the Chicago Record in Washington is authority for the following startling paragraph, which appears in one of his daily letters to that paper:

"President McKinley gave a dinner at the White House tonight in honor of the prime minister of Canada and his associates in the seal conference. The affair was important because of the high rank of the guests of honor, because it was the first state dinner of the season and because for the first time in the McKinley administration wine was served. The decorations for the table were not elaborate. Autumn leaves were arranged about the center pieces and glasses were set for claret and champagne."

The fact that this information is furnished by William E. Curtis, one of the most trustworthy of newspaper correspondents, and that it was published in one of the most trustworthy papers of which American journalism can boast, gives no ground for reasonable doubt that the above words reveal a sad and surprising reality. It is both sad and surprising that a president who was thought to represent the highest moral hope of the nation, is in reality a patron of an industry which is wasting the character and riches of our republic.

When, a few months since, a paragraph similar to the above was published, we were tempted to express the same regret that we do now; but on second thought concluded that it would be more fair to address a respeectful inquiry to the private secretary of the White House, and be enabled by his answer to reassure the people that their president was neither a wine bibber nor a purveyor of drink to his neighbor's lips. No answer to that letter has ever been received, and we are compelled to infer that the present administration is willing to stand committed as a sponsor and defender of the horrible rum iniquity and its interests, rather than as a representative and defender of the home.—Ram's Horn.

"Let No Drunkard Vote."

I wish to say that as far as my observation goes as touching the drink traffic, I agree with some of the suggestions made by Mr. McDuckwall in your issue of Sept. 4, 1897. A law providing that no man in the habit of getting drunk could vote or hold office, or teach school, would be a most excellent provision, if it could be enforced, but such a provision would be an impossibility so long as the executive force and police power of municipalities are manned by political parties and bosses under saloon or license domination. No such provision would even be submitted to a vote of the people without attaching to it a disguised vicious substitute by which the liquor business would be fastened into the constitution with still deeper malignity. As long as the state legalizes the sale of drink for beverage purposes, she is responsible for the crimes resulting from drink, and has no more right to punish the drunkard than she has to punish lunatics and imbeciles.

Mr. McDuckwall says "a law to disgrace the drunkard would be more effective and more easily enforced than one to inflict other penalties." The present license laws disgrace the citizenship of the state by permitting sober men to drink. If disfranchisement can be made operative, when once the state has enacted a prohibitory law, then we say amen, but first of all we want the legislature composed of men who believe that it is a crime to disgrace the citizenship of the state by the licensed sale of a poison beverage.

The way to purify politics is to vote for men who have enough gumption to respect the Bible, and its claims above the success of any party, thus will "good well meaning people" begin to purify politics, and clean up God-forsaken parties and their bosses, then there will be a chance for sober, sensible legislation against, and not in favor of, the drink curse.—A. S. Baumgardner, Elliotsburg, Pa.

The Ways of Sin.

Liquor dealers do not wait for the youth of the land to reach years of manhood and responsibility before they seek to lay their destructive hands upon them. A few months ago we called attention to an address delivered before a liquor dealers' association, in which the speaker emphasized the fact that the present army of tipplers would soon pass away, and unless it was recruited from the ranks of the young, the liquor business must die with this generation of tipplers. This need occasion no surprise. Instances of the use of such methods have come again and again to our notice. A new one is afforded us just now by the allied trade of tobacco. From the Atlanta Constitution we learn that a tobacco firm has been distributing among the public school children of that city packages of fine cut tobacco. These packages are branded as "free samples" for school boys, and bear the further announcement that each one contains a coupon which calls for a handsome article. The matter has been brought to the attention of the city council of Atlanta, and it is to be hoped that preventive measures will be taken.

In the meantime this should serve as another warning, an added lesson to our temperance women; a warning never to relax our vigilance, a lesson that our war is one of utter extermination. Compromise with such foes only gives them vantage ground for further conquests. They have but one purpose in view—absolute dominion. We can have but one—the utter destruction of both the liquor and the tobacco traffic. But eternal vigilance is the price of success. Unless we are constantly on the defensive we shall lose all we have gained. Unless we are constantly on the offensive we shall never make another advance.—Union Signal.

Study of Alcohol.

The study of alcohol by physicians is becoming more and more important. At the International Medical Congress, held this summer at Moscow, the question was considered of sufficient importance to have a section set apart for its consideration, and nine different papers were presented. I am sorry to say the writers of the papers neglected to furnish abstracts and the difficulties of taking notes were too many to be overcome, so that I can present the conclusions of only one paper, that by Dr. A. Korowine of Moscow, "The Hygiene of the Conflict Against Alcoholism."

The doctor truthfully says that the drink question is one for doctors rather than clergymen or mere philanthropists, and urges that all physicians should first be able to recognize "moderate drinkers" from "alcoholics;" second, that physicians should study the effects of the exhibition of alcohol for disease in abstainers and non-abstainers; third, physicians should make widely known the urgent need that chronic alcoholics be treated in asylums, because they belong to the insane classes; fourth, the medical profession should take more direct notice of all the disastrous results of alcoholism upon the community—the ills to the nation direct and indirect that accrue through its drunkards, and to lend the aid of the profession to all organizations working for temperance.—Exchange.

The People Vs. Rum.

When will the authorities give effect to the verdict rendered by the jurors who have heard the evidence in the case of the People versus the Liquor Traffic? It may not be urged in favor of delay that the guilt has been proclaimed by ignorant jurymen; men of the clearest intellect and noblest impulses—patriots and statesmen—have adjudged it the enemy of the home, the church and the nation. Here are a few authorities whose opinions are entitled to some weight:

"The mother of sins"—Southey.

"Stupefies and besots."—Bismarck.

"A scandal and a shame."—Gladstone.

"The devil in solution."—Sir Wilfrid Lawson.

"A huge nuisance and misery."—London Times.

"Devilish and destructive."—Lord Randolph Churchill.

"Liquid fire and distilled damnation."—Robert Hall.

"The mother of, want and nurse of crime."—Lord Brougham.

"A poison in politics as well as in society."—Sir W. Harcourt.

"The nation is being throttled by the traffic."—Lord Rosebery.

A Curious Monkey.

Curiosity seems to be the great failing—or virtue—of monkeys. A story is told of an Englishman who had a south African monkey which had traveled with him around the world. When his bachelor days were over he took his young wife to a lovely old manor house in the south of England and, Englishman-like, kept several barrels of good "home-brewed" ale in the cellar. On returning from church one Sunday morning he noticed that the cellar door was open and started on a tour of investigation. As he went down the steps "Jenny," the monkey, rushed up and he found that she had set all the spigots running. The door had been inadvertently left open and Jenny doubtless went prying into the semi-lighted place. Turning one spigot on produced such a rushing stream that she tried the others also, much to the waste of the liquor. It may be added that when the Englishman's first-born appeared and monopolized attention Jenny got such a fit of jealousy that she was at once sent to the secluded but more congenial society to be found in the monkeyhouse of the London zoological gardens.

THE BANNER,
Clanton, Ala.

Latham, Alexander & Co., who are considered the best authority on cotton have this to say: By systematic and co-operative action of the merchant and the planter the cotton crop must be kept within reasonable trade demands or else destroy the most valuable source of profit to the mercantile and agricultural interests of the south. For the good of all concerned it would be infinitely better any year to make a million bales less than to make half million bales more than necessary." Sound advice from level headed men like these should not fall on deaf ears.

THE BANNER is pleased to see the question of establishing cotton mills and other factories in Chilton county being discussed by our citizens. That the establishment of any manufacturing enterprise would be of inestimable benefit to the county we think none will deny. Whether the suggestion made by Mr. A. G. Dake in last week's BANNER is practicable is for the citizens of the county to determine. We would be inclined to favor the formation of a co-operative company with shares of small amount, and believe that at least one mill could be set in operation by this means. This would also induce outside capitalists to invest in the county, as nothing more tempts capital than the knowledge that a community has faith in its own resources. Let us hear from others on the subject.

Hurrah for Aldrich! Again W. F. Aldrich has vindicated the right of the citizens of this district to have their votes counted fairly and honestly. The elections committee has reported W. F. Aldrich duly elected to congress from this district and Capt. Plowman loses his seat. This is the second time Mr. Aldrich has got the best of the ballot-box stuffers. He deserves the thanks of all who favor honest elections in Alabama, for exposing the frauds practiced in this district. But a stigma is thrown upon the district, which is notorious throughout the United States for its fraudulent election practices, and it is greatly to be hoped that future elections will be conducted honestly. At all events, if such unfair means are resorted to again, those indulging in them may expect to have their rascality exposed to the world. Though they may temporarily triumph their ultimate defeat is inevitable. The sooner it is stopped the better for all parties concerned.

The action of the Alabama railroad commission in refusing to allow the railroads to advance their local rates on certain classes of freight for less than car load lots was just what the Louisville and Nashville railroad is shrewdly striving for years. The wholesale grocers of Montgomery led the war on the Louisville and Nashville because it would not do just what the state railroad commission says none of the roads must do. The wholesale grocers wanted the railroads to advance the rates on less than car load lots or reduce the rates on car load shipments. When the Louisville and Nashville declined to grant their request the wholesale grocers organized a boycott against the road. They stopped their freight for other lines and did all they could to force the road to give them an advantage over the small grocers who could not buy a whole car load of groceries at the time. After a big boycott the railroad agreed to make the distinction demanded. That is boycott's way of settling things. Now the commission says that the railroads must not advance their local rates 4 cents per 100 pounds on grain, flour, meat and meat products and on a dozen other commodities on which some of the roads had asked permission to advance the local rates 4 per cent per 100 pounds.

EXPERIMENTS WITH COTTON.

Below is given a summary of Bulletin No. 89 of the Alabama Experiment Station, Auburn, Ala. The Bulletins of the Station giving detailed results of these and other experiments will be sent to those who apply for them:

The group of varieties yielding most lint were Texas Oak, Griffin, Hawkins, Deering, Mell Cross No. 15, Jones Reimproved, Duncan, Hutchinson, Peterkin, Watley, Truitt.

Seed of the same original stock, but grown for one year in different parts of the cotton belt, when planted at Auburn showed no marked differences in productiveness.

The yields obtained by planting fresh, one-year-old and two-year-old, seed were identical.

With late cultivation the yield of cotton was slightly larger than with ordinary cultivation.

Truitt cotton, in narrow rows on upland of medium quality, gave practically the same yields whether the single plants stood 12, 18 or 24 inches apart in the drill. The yield decreased when the distance between plants was increased to 30 or 36 inches. The crop matured earlier with thick planting.

Topped cotton plants yielded less than those not topped.

The use of 640 pounds slaked lime, applied broadcast in 1896, failed no increase the crop that year. But cotton following broadcast cow peas turned under in the spring of 1897, afforded a larger yield on the plot limed the previous year than on the plot not limed.

Subsoiling in January 1896, was decidedly beneficial to the first crop of cotton, but afforded no increase in the second crop, grown in 1897.

A mixture of stable manure, cottonseed meal and acid phosphate, applied without composing, afforded a slightly larger yield than did exactly the same materials made into compost about one month before using.

Composting increased the efficiency of Florida soft phosphate, but not of acid phosphate.

Slightly larger yields were obtained by bedding on all the fertilizer than by reserving one-fourth and applying this portion in the seed drill at planting time.

One hundred and fifty pounds per acre of cotton seed meal afforded a larger yield of seed cotton than 316 pounds of cottonseed, or 704 pounds of nitrate of soda. These amounts of the above named fertilizers contained equal quantities of nitrogen; hence cottonseed meal was the source whence the most effective form of nitrogen was obtained.

Acid phosphate was more effective pound for pound than Florida soft phosphate or Tennessee phosphate, except when these last named crude phosphates were employed in composts.

A mixture of acid phosphate and Florida soft phosphate was less effective than an equal weight of acid phosphate, and more valuable than an equal weight of Florida soft phosphate.

Acid phosphate alone failed to increase the yield. Cottonseed meal was highly beneficial. Kainit, alone and in combination greatly increased the yield. Kainit decreased the injury from "black rust," and this is apparently the explanation of the large increase in yield on the plots receiving kainit.

The Surprise of All.

Mr. James Jones, of the drug firm of Jones and Son, Cawden, Ill., in speaking of Dr. King's New Discovery, says that last winter his wife was attacked with La Grippe, and her case grew so serious that physicians at Cowden and Pana could do nothing for her. It seemed to develop into Hasty Consumption. Having Dr. King's New Discovery in store, and selling lots of it, he took a bottle home, and to the surprise of all she began to get better from first dose, and half dozen dollar bottles cured her sound and well. Dr. Kings New Discovery for Consumption, Coughs and Colds is guaranteed to do this good work. Try it. Free trial bottle at J. S. Johnsons Drug Store.

The Republican State committee met in Birmingham January 23, 1898, and ordered the State Republican convention to be called, to assemble in Montgomery April 28.

The Republican Committee of the Fourth district has called a delegated convention to meet at Calera March 8 for the purpose of nominating a candidate for Congress in this district.

Senator Teller's resolution making goverment bonds payable in silver dollars has been favorably reported to the senate.

Chairman Jones, of the Democratic National committee, advises fusion with Populists and Silver Republicans, in Minnesota.

Michigan Populists are watching with interest Governor Pingree's latest attacks on the Republican party and declare if he will sever his connection with the G. O. P. they will place him at the head of their ticket.

Committeeman Kurtz, of Ohio, is about to lose his official head as a result of his recent efforts to defeat Hanna for the Senate.

Senator Stewart, of Nevada, favors the annexation of Hawaii to the United States.

The last of the cotton mills not already closed at the home town of protective-tariff Dingley, closed their doors January 18 as a result of a cut in wages that the operatives could not stand.

At a meeting of the Indiana state Democratic meeting at Indianapolis, January 18, it was decided "not to offend the Populists," but on no account to agree to any plan of fusion that would call for a division of the offices.

Mrs. Anna L. Diggs, State Librarian of Kansas, has refused to move the books belonging to the state until suitable shelves are provided and she is sustained in her position by several of the other state officials.

The state Democratic committee of Kansas will meet at Topeka February 22. The nomination of the Populist ticket entirely, or in part, and a banquet presided over and under the management of Hon. David Overmeyer, are the two leading events promised for that occasion.

The People's Party state convention of Kansas will be held June 29.

The same old fight is promised in the Seventh Congressional District of Kansas as the Republicans will again nominate Chester I. Long to run against Jerry Simpson. A. R.

Novel Purses.

The very latest thing is to have a purse made of the same material as the street dress. And not only that, but the purse must be mounted with a gold clasp and have the initials of the owner in gold letters upon it.

Another possibility which it is whispered may descend upon us in fact is to have walking shoes made in dyed leather to match the walking costume. This is a pretty fancy, at all events, and has probably come about from the tremendous and universal success of the tan shoe, which is so much softer and prettier than black, and threatens to be worn in winter as well as for outing and summer wear.—Cincinnati Enquirer.

Newark Clubwomen.

Newark (N. J.) clubwomen are determined to have clean streets. Mrs. Woodruff has charge of this department of work, and she is marshaling her forces for a systematic cleaning that is to result in attractive and healthful streets. Newark has 15 wards and 6 districts in each ward. Mrs. Woodruff will appoint a woman chairman for each ward and a woman for each district, and they will all work in harmony.

Worn Out?

Do you come to the close of the day thoroughly exhausted? Does this continue day after day, possibly week after week? Perhaps you are even too exhausted to sleep. Then something is wrong. All these things indicate that you are suffering from nervous exhaustion. Your nerves need feeding and your blood enriching.

Scott's Emulsion

of Cod-liver Oil, with Hypophosphites of Lime and Soda, contains just the remedies to meet these wants. The cod-liver oil gives the needed strength, enriches the blood, feeds the nerves, and the hypophosphites give them tone and vigor. Be sure you get SCOTT'S Emulsion.

An "Alleged" Scare.

There are some advantages in the use of the word "alleged" in order to avoid libel. A reporter had been incautious in a statement, possibly true enough, but had been warned to be more careful. The reporter in this way extended the application of "alleged:"

"Alleged Mad Dog Scare at Hampstead.—An alleged mad dog, said to be the property of an alleged butcher named Frost of Atlantic avenue, is alleged to have broken his chain yesterday afternoon and attacked the alleged daughter of Thomas Drewsbury, who claims to be a tailor in the same street. The girl is alleged to have been treated by Dr. Tupper, an alleged local practitioner, for the alleged severe bites in the hands and legs. It is further alleged that the alleged butcher was last year sent to goal for a week by the alleged magistrate of the Northwestern police court for not keeping his alleged ferocious dog under proper control."

That young man had the bump of caution too abnormally developed, and he was soon no more in the subeditor's room.—Nineteenth Century.

'Twas Ever Thus.

Alas, my new umbrella—I miss it with a sigh. The day I rashly bought it a friend was standing by. Next day it rained. He borrowed it, to be returned that night, but since that fatal moment it hasn't blessed my sight. He lent it to a neighbor's wife, and to increase my woe she lent it to the minister, and it's still upon the go. He lent it to a student, who lent it to a friend, and still it's going, going, gone. I wonder where 'twill end. But through the cloud of borrowers one ray of hope I see—perhaps I may be lucky and it will be lent to me.—Chicago News.

Two Sides.

"I don't know. The stars in their courses fought against Sisera. They fought. How like a church choir!"—Chicago Tribune.

HOW TO FIND OUT.

Fill a bottle or common glass with urine and let it stand twenty-four hours; a sediment or settling indicates an unhealthy condition of the kidneys. When urine stains linen it is positive evidence of kidney trouble. Too frequent desire to urinate or pain in the back, is also convincing proof that the kidneys and bladder are out of order.

WHAT TO DO.

There is comfort in the knowledge so often expressed, that Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, the great kidney remedy fulfills every wish in relieving pain in the back, kidneys, liver, bladder and every part of the urinary passages. It corrects inability to hold urine and scalding pain in passing it, or bad effects following use of liquor, wine or beer, and overcomes that unpleasant necessity of being compelled to get up many times during the night to urinate. The mild and the extraordinary effect of Swamp-Root is soon realized. It stands the highest for its wonderful cures of the most distressing cases. If you need a medicine you should have the best. Sold by druggists, price fifty cents and one dollar. You may have a sample bottle and pamphlet both sent free by mail. Mention THE BANNER and send your address to Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N.Y. The proprietor of this paper guarantees the genuineness of this offer.

Commissioner of Agriculture Culver has received an immense quantity of the improved Truitt cotton seed from LaGrange, Ga., and within a few days will send two bushels to each probate judge in the state for distribution among the leading planters. The seed is a new variety to this section and possesses some good, productive qualities. It was also learned from the commissioner's office that the sale of fertilizer tags continues to decrease. This evidences a decrease in the cotton acreage for the year.

After years of untold suffering from piles, B. W. Tursell of Knittersville, Pa., was cured by using a single box of DeWitt's Witch Hazel Salve. Skin diseases such as eczema, rash, pimples and obstinate sores are readily cured by this famous remedy. Stanfield & Matthews.

A Shattered Nervous System.

FINALLY HEART TROUBLE.

Restored to Health by Dr. Miles' Nervine.

MR. EDWARD HARDY, the jolly manager of Sheppard Co's. great store at Braceville, Ill., writes: "I had never been sick a day in my life until in 1890. I got so bad with nervous prostration that I had to give up and commence to doctor. I tried our local physicians and one in Joliet, but none gave me any relief and I thought I was going to die. I became despondent and suffered untold agony. I could not eat, sleep nor rest, and it seemed as if I could not exist. At the end of six months I was reduced to but a shadow of myself, and at last my heart became affected and I was very miserable. I took six or eight bottles of Dr. Miles' Nervine. It gave me relief from the start, and at last a cure, the greatest blessing of my life."

Dr. Miles' Remedies are sold by all druggists under a positive guarantee, first bottle benefits or money refunded. Book on diseases of the heart and nerves free. Address,

Sheriff's Sale.

By virtue of an order of sale issued out of the Circuit Court of Chilton county, and State of Alabama, and to me directed, whereby I am commanded to make the amount of a certain judgment recently obtained against Sallie Hanlin, by the sale of the following described property, to wit:

Commencing at the south-east corner of the south-west quarter of south-west quarter of section twenty-one, township twenty-one, north, range sixteen east, and running thence in a westerly direction forty feet, thence north one hundred and five feet, thence east four hundred and twenty feet, thence south one hundred and five feet, and thence west to point of beginning, containing one acre, and also the mill-dam, mill-house and mill-race situated on said land, and lying and being in Chilton county, Alabama.

Therefore, according to said command I shall expose for sale, at public outcry, to the highest bidder, for cash, all the right, title and interest of the above named Sallie Hanlin in and to the above described property, on during the legal hours of sale, at the Court House door in Clanton, Alabama.

MONDAY, FEBRUARY 14, 1898.

Dated at Clanton this 6th day of January, 1898. J. T. COOLEY, Sheriff.

We shall be pleased to publish contributions at all times, and request that the friends of the BANNER send us all the items of news that come within their notice, and thus assist us to make the BANNER the newsiest as well as the most popular paper of Chilton county.

An Old Idea.

Every day strengthens the belief of eminent physicians that impure blood is the cause of the majority of our diseases. Twenty-five years ago this theory was used as a basis for the formula of Brown's Iron Bitters. The many remarkable cures effected by this famous old household remedy are sufficient to prove that the theory is correct. Browns' Iron Bitters is sold by all dealers.

THE CROSS AND CROWN

Is the title of a treatise on the doctrine of perfection or sanctification, by A. L. Pattillo, of Verbena, now in the press. It is written in a plain, homely fashion by one deeply impressed with the necessity of Christians living a perfect life, who desires to see all professing religion imbued with the same spirit. The Author, who is also a poet, has written several poems, all on religious subjects. The whole when complete will make a book of over 200 pages, bound in a stiff board cover, which at the small charge of 50 cents, should speedily exhaust the edition.

This book has a double claim on the people of Chilton county and should find a place in every home in the county, from the fact that it is entirely a home production, being the first book ever written, printed, bound and published in Chilton. It will be ready early in October. Price only 50 cents. Orders can be sent to THE BANNER, Clanton, or to A. L. Pattillo, Verbena.

Notice to Non-Resident.

The State of Alabama, Chilton county.
In Chancery at Clanton, Alabama, Seventh District, North-eastern Chancery Division. December 14, 1897.

W. M. Pylant, complainant, vs. Fannie Pylant, defendant.

In this cause it is made to appear to the Register, by the affidavit of A. C. Smith, Esq. that the Defendant, Fannie Pylant, is a non-resident of the State of Alabama, and that her post office address and residence are unknown to affiant and further, that in the belief of said affiant, the Defendant is over the age of twenty-one years.

It is therefore ordered by the Register that publication be made in the Banner, a newspaper published in Clanton, once a week for four consecutive weeks, requiring her, the said Fannie Pylant, to answer or demur to the same within thirty days after the 17th day of January 1898, and failing so to do a decree pro confesso will be taken against her in said cause.

Done at office in Clanton, Alabama, this 14th day of December, 1897.

W. E. STEWART,
Register in Chancery.

CANDY CATHARTIC Cascarets CURE CONSTIPATION

10¢ 25¢ 50¢ ALL DRUGGISTS

CANDY CATHARTIC	.....CASCARETS taste good. But them like candy. They remove any bad taste in the mouth, leaving the breath sweet and perfumed. It is a real pleasure to take them instead of nauseating liquids or cannon-ball pills.
PURELY VEGETABLE	.....CASCARETS are purely vegetable and contain no mineral or other mineral poison. They are made of the latest remedies discovered and are a scientific combination never before put together in any form.
ANTISEPTIC LAXATIVE	.....CASCARETS are antiseptic. That means they stop undigested food from souring in the stomach, prevent fermentation in the bowels and kill disease germs of any kind that breed and feed in the system.
LIVER STIMULANT	.....CASCARETS are the most natural bowel and stimulate the lazy liver, making it work. They strengthen the bowels and put them into vigorous, healthy condition, making their action easy and natural.
BOON FOR MOTHERS	.....CASCARETS increase the flow of milk in nursing mothers. A little taken by the mother makes her milk mildly purgative and has a mild but certain effect on the baby, the only safe laxative for the babe-to-arms.
PLEASE THE CHILDREN	.....CASCARETS are liked by the children. They taste good and do good, stop wind-colic and cramps, and kill and drive off worms, and all kinds of parasites that live in the bowels of the growing child.
CURE GUARANTEED	.....CASCARETS, taken judiciously, persistently, are guaranteed to cure any case of constipation, no matter how old and obstinate, or purchase money will be cheerfully refunded by your own druggist.
HEALTH FOR 10 CENTS	.....CASCARETS are sold by all druggists for 10c, 25c, 50c a box, according to size. A 10c box will work. The box will prove their merit and put you on the right road to perfect and permanent health. Don't risk delay.

Don't judge CASCARETS by other medicines you have tried. They are new, unlike anything else that's sold, and infinitely superior. Try a 10c box to-day, if not pleased get your money back! Larger boxes, 25c or 50c. Sample and booklet mailed free. Address

WEEKLY REVIEW OF TRADE.

The Volume of Business is Remarkable for the Time of the Year.

FLATTERING OUTLOOK FOR STEEL TRADE.

The Industrial Situation, with the Single Exception of the Cotton Industry, is One of Exceptional Strength—Decrease in Business Failures.

Bradstreet's weekly review of trade says:

A large measure of activity in business and industrial lines, while, in in some instances, previous records have been passed and very general steadiness in prices of staples, is perhaps the most notable feature of the trade situation this week. Quotations of cereals show the most aggressive strength, while those of some makes of pig iron betray rather more decided weakness than they did a week ago. Mild weather is frequently mentioned as an influence tending to check retail distribution of seasonable goods, chiefly because of the effect on country roads. Spring trade opens slowly, as usual at this time of the year, but confidence is still unimpaired. As already intimated, the immense current production of pig iron, amounting to fully one million tons per month, has begun to exercise an influence upon the price of that staple, but decreases reported are still only fractional. The outlook in the steel rail trade is reported as a flattering one. Higher prices for wool abroad, based partly on short yield reports, are reflected in the firmness of domestic quotations.

The industrial situation, with the single exception of the cotton industry, is one of exceptional strength. As yet the strikes in this branch of trade, however, are largely confined to Massachusetts. Men's wear woolens are moving fairly well. At the west distributive trade is slowly improving; while at the south a fair January trade is reported, particularly in the Mississippi valley. Good returns from last year's Louisiana sugar crop find expression in higher prices for sugar lands. The good export demand for cotton precludes too heavy accumulation at primary points in spite of the crop movement.

Total shipments of wheat, flour included, from the United States and Canada amounted to 3,926,000 bushels, against 2,916,000 bushels a year ago. Indian corn exports were 3,486,000 bushels this week, against 3,520, last year.

A further falling off in the number of business failures is reported in the United States this week, the total being only 309, against 323 last year and 429 a year ago.

STRIKE AT CRITICAL STAGE.

There is But Little Change on the Surface in the Strike Towns.

A special from Boston says: While on the surface the strike situation in the cotton industry shows little change, there is apparently an undercurrent of unrest which denotes that the strain, on the employes side at least, is beginning to be surely felt. The joint committee on behalf of the strikers at New Bedford issued an appeal for financial assistance and at Biddeford arrangements are being made for the issuance of soup to the non-union help out of work.

The strike at Fall River appears also to be advancing toward a critical stage, and the minor strikes which have occurred there lead to the belief that the labor leaders may not be able to hold back the operatives in that city, and that a break may occur there at any time which will not only affect the 30,000 employes in that city, but every mill city in New England. The strike among the spoolers at the Narragansett mill in Fall River shows the growing sentiment in that city.

To Receive President Dole.

The representatives of the president and of the United States who will receive President Dole and his party left Washington Friday for Chicago. They were accompanied by Mr. Hatch, the Hawaiian minister. It has been settled that the dinner to be given by the president in honor of his visitor shall take place Tuesday, February 1.

Negro Murderer to Hang.

Bill Scott, a negro farm laborer, who murdered John C. Singley, a wealthy planter and his wife and son, by cutting their throats one night early in December, was convicted at Greensboro, Ala., and sentenced to hang Feb. 25. Scott pleaded guilty. The motive of the murder was robbery.

Cuban Crisis Imminent.

A special from Jacksonville, Fla., says two United States cruisers sailed for Havana in extreme haste Saturday night, and great excitement prevails over rumors of violence to Consul-General Lee and other Americans.

Dr. Talmage Marries Again.

Rev. T. DeWitt Talmage, the noted divine of Washington and Mrs. Elsie McCutheon Collier, of Allegheny City, were married last week. The wedding, which came as a great surprise to the many friends of the couple, was, on account of a recent death in the family, an extremely quiet affair. This is Dr. Talmage's third wife.

Hon. T. H. Yarborough, the first probate judge of Geneva county, Alabama, and one of the oldest citizens, died at noon Thursday, aged 84.

HITT'S SIGNIFICANT STATEMENT.

Indications That the President is Preparing for War with Spain.

The high water mark in Cuban excitement was reached Thursday at Washington. The debate on the Cuban subject was of little importance in comparison with the interest attached to the words uttered by Chairman Hitt, of the foreign affairs committee, Thursday afternoon, when considered along with the orders given by Secretary Long. Mr. Hitt made the following remarks:

"When you know the critical events that are passing; when you think of the vast responsibility that rests upon the executive, and which does not rest upon us; while we are making speeches to get applause, when we remember the immediate and grave consequences to ensue, we can feel the strong assurance that we have a faithful, able captain at the helm; that the ship may be near the rapids, but his hand is firm and his eye sure. We should all of us be ready to do our duty like patriotic Americans, standing firmly behind the president, when he takes a step necessary for the vindication of the honor and protection of the interests of our country, a step made necessary by duty in view of the troubles, the confusion, the destructions and the hopeless condition of things in the island so adjacent to our shore.

"General Lee, an officer of experience and ability, is at Havana in constant communication with the president, and our great ships are not far away. They ought not to be far off at such a time. It is not proper to anticipate or pretend to have knowledge of particular events or intentions, in the future, but I am sure that all Americans who love their country can be relied on to stand by the president when he may take the next step before him in pursuance of the same line which he has followed in the last eight months."

This statement would not have been of such paramount interest had it not become known that the navy department had telegraphed and cabled, putting every ship and cruiser under emergency orders.

Secretary Long revoked the order for the Nashville to proceed to the European squadron. He stopped the Helena by cable, which is now on its way to China. He cabled Commodore Dewey to hold the Asiatic squadron prepared to return to this country by the shortest route, which means that each ship must be heavily laden with coal.

The present uneasiness may serve to be only another war scare, yet it would not surprise any one to hear that a declaration of war was made at any moment over the Cuban question.

ANTI-JEW DEMONSTRATIONS.

Sixty Students Arrested at Paris—Disturbance at Epinal.

Over 2,000 students started a demonstration Thursday evening on the Boulevard St. Michel. They tried to cross the River Seine, but the police prevented them. About sixty of the students were arrested. There have been no serious disorders. Numbers of bands of students (as this dispatch is sent) are still parading the Latin quarter. A dispatch from Epinal, situated about 190 miles from Paris, says the first anti-Hebrew demonstration took place there Thursday. Placards bearing the now popular cries, denouncing Zola and the Hebrews and upholding the army, were posted in front of the Hebrew stores.

SENATOR WHITE CHOSEN

As Chairman of the New Democratic Congressional Committee.

The new democratic congressional committee at Washington Thursday night elected as chairman Senator White, of California. Senator White was supported by the friends of Representative Bailey who were favorable to that gentleman's candidacy in case the next house is democratic.

An unexpected dark horse developed in Senator Cockrell, of Missouri, who was defeated by Senator White by the narrow margin of 18 to 15. The meeting adopted a resolution reaffirming its adherence to the Chicago platform.

The election of Senator White is regarded as a distinct triumph by the silver men, who were anxious to have a chairman whose record on the subject of 16 to 1 was unquestioned.

PREPARING FOR THE RUSH.

Fifty Thousand People Expected to Leave Frisco for Alaska.

The local transportation companies at San Francisco are preparing to accommodate the rush to the Klondike. The Pacific Coast Steamship company has arranged a schedule that will give a five-day steamship service between San Francisco and Alaskan ports. The company expects to handle 10,000 passengers out of San Francisco city next month, and during the entire season the total tonnage in this port is calculated to accommodate 50,000 people.

Colonel Stubbs Resigns.

Colonel James N. Stubbs, accepting the finding of the advisory council held at Lynchburg, Va., Friday, as final, has addressed a letter to Adjutant General Ellett, tendering his resignation both as grand commander of the grand camp Confederate Veterans of Virginia and as member of the history committee of that organization.

The action of the Dingley tariff has caused a crisis in the orange and lemon trade in Sicily.

TWO KILLED IN A COLLISION

And a Score or More of Others Badly Injured.

LIST OF THE DEAD AND INJURED.

The Wreck Occurred on the Coast Line System Near Columbia, S. C., While the Trains Were in Full Motion. A Fog Prevailed at the Time.

The Florida special over the Atlantic Coast Line system collided with the local passenger train between Charleston, S. C., and Columbia, Friday morning. The track is a straight one at that point for several miles, but owing to a heavy fog neither engineer could see the approach of the other train until the engines were almost together. The local had just shut off its steam and whistled down brakes for the siding when the vestibule limited crashed into it. Both the conductors allege they were running strictly on their schedule time.

The dead are: Robert James, fireman on No. 37, the special; Wesley Bishop, fireman on No. 52, the local.

The injured are: Engineer J. W. Neely, scalded, internally injured; will probably die; T. E. Dix, colored, left leg badly crushed, bodily injuries; E. B. Liles, baggage master, left leg broken, numerous bruises; Electrical Engineer F. R. Clark, bruised and cut; Conductor J. B. Bullock, cut about the face; Engineer E. F. Hall, left arm broken; Mail Clerk J. H. Bingham, left leg and left arm broken; M. McDuffie, baggage master, bruised about the head; J. A. Powell, express messenger, leg and ribs broken; A. J. Gourdion, of Charleston, cut in head; J. W. Hood, traveling salesman of Knoxville, Tenn., cut on the head and injured about the body; J. R. Morrer, of Ridley, S. C., cut on the face and head; Jake Williams, train hand, cut on the head; E. Paschan, flagman, badly bruised.

When the collision occurred the special was running nearly fifty miles an hour, while the local was slowing up for the siding.

SPANISH CAPTURE CUBAN CAPITAL

Insurgents Are Said to Have Lost Their Governmental Home.

According to information from Spanish sources at Havana, Gen. Castellano, being aware that the insurgent government was established at Ezperanza, seventeen leagues from Puerto Principe, at the extreme west end of the Cubitas ridge, proceeded in that direction with 2,200 infantry, 400 cavalry and two field cannon. After a three days' trying march he forced a difficult position and overcame the obstinate resistance of 1,000 insurgents, pursuing them six miles and destroying and burning the houses at Esperanza, including the insurgent government buildings.

On the following day Gen. Castellano engaged the reunited insurgents, 2,500 strong, near Esperanza, routing them after two hours' combat. The insurgents left fifty-seven dead on the field. The Spanish lost five killed and thirty-one wounded; among the latter being Lieut.-Col. Perez Monto.

The insurgents, under Monteagudo, attacked the town of Esperanza, Santa Clara, but were repulsed, leaving nine dead.

A Good Showing.

The state board of convict inspectors of Alabama held their quarterly meeting at Montgomery. The reports showed a most favorable condition of affairs in every department of the convict service. Dr. Blake, the physician inspector, made a phenomenal showing for the health of the convicts, the health record for the last quarter being better than for any quarter in the history of the bureau.

Suicide by Suggestion.

Miss Harriet Keith Owens committed suicide near Washington, Ky., last week. She had been in poor health for some time. She read the account of the shooting of ex-Senator Jo Blackburn's daughter, Mrs. Lane, after which she went to her brother's room, and securing his pistol, placed it to her temple and fired the fatal shot. Death was instantaneous.

Balloting for a Senator.

The democratic legislative caucus of Tennessee held to select a candidate for the United States senate, met and began balloting. The first ballot resulted: McMillan, 37; Turley, 32; Taylor, 19. Fourteen ballots were taken, with practically the same result. There is a growing belief that a dead lock is imminent.

Miss Media McNeal, assistant superintendent of the Augusta, Ga., hospital committed suicide Friday by opium poisoning. She had previously been in the Emergency hospital, Washington, D. C. Despondency was the cause of the suicide.

Preparing for War.

A fleet of nine warships will leave Yokohama in the course of a week for Chinese waters. Decrees have been issued appointing Lieutenant General Viscount Kawakami chief of staff and creating a supreme military advisory council.

Deaths From Bubonic Plague.

During the past week the deaths from the bubonic plague at Bombay, India, numbered 831. The exodus is increasing and business is stagnant.

FIFTY-FIFTH CONGRESS.

House—Tuesday.

The first contested election case of the present congress was disposed of by the house today. Chairman Taylor of the committee on elections No. 2 reported that Thomas F. Clark, who filed contest against Jesse F. Stallings (representing the Second Alabama district) had abandoned his contest, and the committee therefore unanimously reported a resolution declaring Mr. Stallings entitled to the seat.... The house then resumed the consideration of the army appropriation bill, which was passed, and the diplomatic consular appropriation bill taken up. The bill carries $1,729 008. As soon as the enacting clause had been reached, Mr. DeArmond, of Missouri, offered an amendment to recognize the Cuban insurgents as belligerents. Mr. Hitt raised the point of order that the amendment was new legislation and obnoxious to the rules of the house which precipitated an animated debate over Cuban recognition, consuming the time until the house adjourned.

The Senate.

Mr. Gallinger today reported favorably to the senate a bill providing for an investigation of the subject of leprosy, and it was placed on the calendar.... Mr. Vest, for the finance committee, reported the Teller resolution, which was adopted by that committee, and gave notice that he would call it up at an early date.... The resolution presented to the senate yesterday calling upon the secretary of the treasury for reasons why the item of $11,000,000 due the United States from the Pacific railroads had been dropped from his statement, which went over under objection, was agreed to.... Mr. Allen, of Nebraska, called up his resolution calling for an investigation by the pension committee as to the authority of the commissioner of pensions to promulgate an order that no consideration should be given to applications for increases of pensions within twelve months after the last application had been made. It was agreed to.... In accordance with notice previously given, Mr. Hale, of Maine, called up the urgent deficiency bill. The bill, as it passed the house, carried $1,741,843; as it was reported to the senate it carries $1,891,923, an increase of $150,080.... Senator Morgan occupied the attention of the senate during the entire time of the executive session today in the presentation of his views on the subject of annexation of the Hawaiian islands. This was the second installment of the senator's speech and when he concluded, a few minutes after 5 o'clock, he had not then reached the end. He spoke for about three hours and his speech was a general presentation of the importance of the islands to the United States.

The House—Wednesday.

All day long the question of granting belligerent rights to the Cuban insurgents was argued in the house, but, as on yesterday, the minority hurled itself against a stone wall. The only vote taken today—on a resolution designed to overrule the decision of the speaker and direct the committee on foreign affairs to report without further delay the Cuban resolution passed by the senate at the last session—the republicans stood solid and voted to sustain the chair. The debate will close tomorrow at 4 o'clock, under the arrangement made today, when a final test will be made on a motion, of which Mr. Williams, of Mississippi, gave notice today, to recommit the bill, with instructions to report back the Cuban resolution as a rider.

The Senate.

After the reading of the journal in the senate today, Mr. Vest, gave notice that he would at the conclusion of the morning business move to take up the Teller resolution, which was reported by the finance committee yesterday. A bill authorizing the attorney-general, the secretary of the treasury and the secretary of war to compromise and adjust certain claims of the United States against the state of Tennessee, and the state of Tennessee against the United States, was passed.... Mr. Hoar offered a resolution relative to the recent order of the postmaster-general reducing the number of letter carriers in some of the large cities on account of a deficiency in the free delivery appropriation, the resolution providing that the committee on postoffices and postroads should immediately ascertain what amount was necessary to preserve the postal free delivery service of the country. The resolution went over.... After several resolutions of minor importance the senate went into executive session, in which Senator Morgan continued his speech in advocacy of the ratification of the Hawaiian annexation treaty. He announced at the conclusion of today's session that he would probably require one more day in which to complete his presentation of the subject. He dealt with the agricultural and commercial possibilities of the islands, with the character of the present government and the position of the residents of the islands on the subject of annexation.

The House—Thursday.

Before the Cuban debate was resumed in the house today Mr. Lacey, of Iowa, chairman of the committee on public lands, called up a bill to extend the public land laws of the United States and to grant a right of way under certain restrictions to any railroad organized under the laws of any state in the union. It was explained that the right of way granted was 100 feet on each side of the road, but that all mineral deposits were specifially reserved. Without completing the consideration of the bill it went over, and the house went into committee of the whole and resumed the consideration of the diplomatic and consular appropriation bill. Brief Cuban speeches were made by Messrs. Clark of Missouri, Williams of Mississippi, Simpson of Kansas, Robinson of Indiana, and Creheran of Missouri.... At 4 o'clock the committee rose under the arrangements made yesterday and reported the bill to the house. One of the most dramatic and sensational episodes of this congress followed. The speakar of the house and Mr. Bailey of Texas, the democratic leader, clashed on a question of veracity, and the excitement was intense. Finally a vote on the bill was reached, which passed by a vote of 158 to 95, and at 4:40 p. m. the house adjourned.

The Senate.

The senate, by a vote of 41 to 25, passed the Teller resolution, which provides: "That all bonds of the United States, issued or authorized to be issued under the said acts of congress hereinbefore recited, are payable, principal and interest, at the option of the government of the United States, in silver dollars of the coinage of the United States containing 412½ grains each of standard silver, and that to restore to its coinage such silver coins as a legal tender in payment of said bonds, principal and interest, is not in violation of the public faith nor in derogation of the rights of the public creditor.... Mr. Mills, of Texas, secured the passage of a resolution directing the secretary of war to make an examination of the Port Arthur ship canal, with a view to its extension to deep water.... Mr. Pettigrew secured the passage of a resolution directing the secretary of the interior, and the attorney-general to inform the senate what steps the government had taken concerning the killing of a woman in Oklahoma territory by Seminole Indians, and the burning of two Seminole Indians in the same territory.... Senator Morgan concluded his four days' speech to the senate in executive session on the Hawaiian question. He spoke for almost four hours.... The senate, at 4:45, adjourned.

The House—Friday.

The stormy scenes of the last few days in the house of representatives were followed by comparative quiet today.... At the opening of the session a bill was passed to grant the commissioners of Dale county, Alabama, the right to construct two bridges across the Choctawatchie river.... The Senate Nicaragua Canal Commission's amendment was non-concurred in. One of the senate amendment was concurred in with an amendment to appropriate $15,000 for the repair of national cemetery at Fort Smith, Ark.... The main fight came on the senate amendment striking out the provision in the bill requiring depositors of bullion hereafter to pay the cost of transportation from the assay offices to the mint. It was agreed to without division in the committee of the whole.... Mr. Cannon said he would demand and aye and nay vote in the house. The vote in the committee was confirmed on a yea and nay vote in the house, 144 to 112. The bill was sent back to conference.... The house then went into committee of the whole, where the pending question was a point of order raised against the motion of Mr. Cooper, of Texas, to substitute for the senate bill to refer the claim of the Book Publishing Company of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, to the court of claims, the house bill to adjust the whole claim by the payment of $288,000. There was considerable parliamentary sparring, and finally, at 4:45, the house adjourned without action on the bill.

The Senate.

The senate proceedings today were devoid of interest. The resolution of Mr. Allen, of Nebraska, calling upon the secretary of the interior for the papers in the case of the dismissal of Mrs. M. E. Roberts from the pension office, was laid before the senate. Mr. Allen spoke briefly upon the matter. The resolution was referred to the committee on civil service and retrenchment.... Mr. Lodge moved that the senate go into executive session.... The senate devoted its principal attention to the confirmation of Attorney-General McKenna to be a justice of the supreme court of the United States. When the doors were closed the Hawaiian treaty was laid aside in order to afford an opportunity to consider the McKenna and other nominations. An effort was made to secure the confirmation of the nomination of General Longstreet to be commissioner of railroads, but it went over until another day. The nomination of Attorney-General McKenna was then called up and, after a three hours' speech by Mr. Allen, attacking confirmation, the vote was taken, which was overwhelmingly favorable to confirmation.

The House—Saturday.

In the house today some odds and ends of legislation were cleaned up by unanimous consent. A resolution requesting the state department to transmit to the house all information in its possession relative to the military execution of Colonel Ruiz, a Spanish envoy to the insurgent camp of Aurangueren was adopted. A resolution calling on the state department for a draft of the Hawaiian annexation treaty and for information as to what constitutional authority the president had to contract for the payment of a Hawaiian debt of $4,000,000 out of the treasury, after discussion, was laid on the table by a vote of 124 to 110.... Mr. Alexander, of New York, secured the passage of a bill to suspend the federal laws against the sale of spirituous liquors to Indians so far as they relate to the Indians of New York state, and substitute therefor the laws of the state.... At this point, Mr. Bailey, of Texas, rose to a question of [illegible] privilege in connection with his controversy with Speaker Reed. The close of the Cuban debate was reached today and spoke briefly.... At the house adjourned.

Fowl for Three.

An old farmer in Southern Illinois became an unwilling host to a circuit-riding preacher, who arrived simultaneously for dinner. The fare was low and the dinner consisted of a single fowl. The farmer asked the first sky pilot what portion of the fowl he would have.

"I said Number 1.

"Number 1 what you have?" asked the farmer, turning to Number 3.

"I said leg, thank you," repeated the preacher.

"Number 3 leg, if you please," said the farmer.

EMINENT DIVINES' SERMONS

DISCOURSES BY TWO ABLE WORKERS IN GOD'S VINEYARD.

"The Law of Kindness" is the Title of the New York Herald's Tenth Competitive Sermon—Dr. Talmage Preaches a Sermon to the Feminine Toilers.

Proverbs xxxi., 26.

There are two superficial and somewhat prevalent notions of kindness which overlook the truth of a law of kindness and hinder the fulfilment of that law. The first is that kindness is a happy accident of temperament. When Charles Lamb died Henry Crabb Robinson went to visit Mary Lamb, and she said to him: "Now, I call this very kind of you, not good natured, but very, very kind." Her distinction is just. Kindness is more than constitutional good naturedness. It implies discipline and culture.

The second notion associates kindness with Christian etiquette and deportment, with something amiable and desirable, perhaps, but rather ornamental than essential. Consequently many religious and devout people are unkind in words and actions without any feeling of sinfulness on that account. Put away the notion of kindness which regards it as merely an external grace of character or a useful lubricant wherewith to reduce the frictions of social intercourse and conceive it as an essential element of all goodness, divine or human, and as comprehended under God's law of human life. Unkindness, like any other transgression of moral law, is wickedness. Nor is it enough to try and not be unkind, for unless one tries to be kind he not only fails of duty but will be unable to guard himself from actual unkindness.

Kindness has its root in kinship. It implies relationship and affinity. Men are children of a common Father, and therefore brethren. Therein lies the significance of all that the Scriptures teach concerning the essential, exceeding and everlasting loving kindness of God. There is kinship between Him and men, created in His image. Therein is grounded our human kinship and the law of brotherly kindness for all men, than which no law of human life has higher authority or sacredness.

As no one can be as good as he should and may be, so no one can do good as he should and may without striving to fulfil this law of the cultivation and manifestation of kindness. There is nothing else so powerful for good unless it be love, and love, as St. Paul says, is kind. It disarms prejudice and hatred, it converts distrust into confidence, it overcomes all manner of evil with good. It brings out as nothing else can the latent and potential good ... in people. Men have ... to recognize and act upon this principle in their ... and training of animals. How much more effective will be the training of children and the treatment of all human beings when based upon kindly sympathy! The safest assumption that can be made in all such matters is that kindness ...

Kindness has insight and can detect signs of ... in the unpromising, while under ... influences of delicate ministration these signs become ... and the ... begin to be fulfilled. What else gives so great encouragement to the many who are struggling with adversity or temptation, correcting and changing just those depressed feelings of loneliness and neglect wherein the power of evil finds its most favorable conditions? Wordsworth speaks of

"That best portion of a good man's life—
His little, nameless, unremembered acts
Of kindness and of love."

How suggestive that is of what is possible in this way of kindness, which works with magic power to transmute apparent trifles into priceless treasures—as St. Zita's cup of cold water given to a dusty and weary pilgrim proved to be, as he drank it, a cup of precious wine. Kind words often, as Dante says of Beatrice's words, "more ... than spoken!" Kind actions, costing little but bestowing much! How easily they might be multiplied to the immeasurable cheer and comfort and enrichment of life! They make the gloomy smile, the angry grow meek, the suffering to cease from groaning, they light up hope, sweeten bitter thoughts, console sorrow, strengthen the faint and turn from sin; and they reach and move those whom no other good influences affect and conquer such as have resisted all other powers of grace.

Bitter and all too frequent are our regrets and repentances, as we recall, perhaps too late for aught but regret and remembrance, the unkind things said or done by us, or the kind things we might and should have said and done, but left unsaid and undone. In our cups of recollection overflowing with divine tender mercies and loving kindnesses there is no bitterer ingredient than this. But seldom, if ever, do we recall any error of ours on the part of kindness or find any occasion for regretting merciful allowances, favorable interpretations or whatever a spirit of kindness may have prompted. We have never stood by a coffin or a grave and repented of any ... or even unrequited kindness shown ... person at rest there.

... of Christ is precious because ... of the "exceeding great kindness ... toward us" in Christ, and because ... while aiming to touch and waken the chords of human sympathy in our hearts and in bringing us under the law and into the spirit of brotherly kindness to make us know and rejoice together in ... loving kindness of our God. Of this ... we can all be ministers, and the ... and most useful portion of our lives ... our little, nameless, unremembered acts of kindness and of love."

... since the time is short, "Be ... make haste to be kind!"

EDWIN BOND PARKER.

Pastor of the Second Church in Hartford, Conn.

LEARN PRACTICAL THINGS.

Dr. Talmage Preaches Directly For the Benefit of the Women.

Text: "Every wise woman buildeth her house."—Prov. xiv., 1.

Woman is more adjunct to man, an appendix to the masculine volume, an appendage, a sort of afterthought, something thrown in to make things even—that is the heresy entertained and implied by some men. This is evident to them, because Adam was first created, and then Eve. ... read the whole story, or they would find that the porpoise and the bear ... were created before Adam ... argument, drawn from priority ... might prove that the sheep and ... were greater than man. No, woman ... independent creation, and was intended, if she chose, to live alone, to work alone, act alone, think alone, and fight her battles alone. The Bible says it is not good for a man to be alone ...

A woman's ... marriage ... better off than a woman ... married. Many an attractive woman, of good sound sense, has married a man to reform him. What was the result? Like when a dove ... that a vulture ... and said: "I have ... and I like peace and ... quiet of a dove ... vulture to the ... him." So, one day, after the vulture declared he would give up his carnivorous habits and cease ... for blood of flock and herd, at an altar of rock covered with moss and lichen, the twain were married, a bald-headed eagle officiating, the vulture saying: "With all my dominion of earth and sky, I thee endow, and promise to ... But one day the dove in her fright saw the vulture busy at a carcass, and cried "Stop that! Did you not promise me that you would quit your carnivorous and filthy habits if I married you?" "Yes," said the vulture, "but if you don't like my way you can leave," and with one angry stroke of the beak, and another fierce clutch, the vulture left the dove eyeless and wingless and lifeless.

Many a woman who has had the hand of a young inebriate offered, but declined it, or who was asked to chain her life to a man selfish, or of bad temper, and refused the shackles, will bless God throughout all eternity that she escaped that earthly pandemonium.

In addressing those women who have to battle alone, I congratulate you on your happy escape. Rejoice forever that you will not have to navigate the faults of the other sex, when you have faults enough of your own. Think of the bereavements you avoid, of the risks of unassimilated temper which you will not have to run, of the cares you will never have to carry, and of the opportunity of outside usefulness from which married life would have partially debarred you, and that you are free to go and come as one who has the responsibilities of a household can seldom be. God has not given you a hard lot, as compared with your sisters. When young women shall make up their minds at the start that masculine companionship is not a necessity in order to happiness, and that there is a strong probability that they will have to fight the battle of life alone, they will be getting the timber ready for their own fortune; and their saw and ax and plane sharpened for its construction, since "Every wise woman buildeth her house."

As no boy ought to be brought up without learning some business at which he could earn a livelihood, so no girl ought to be brought up without learning the science of self-support. The difficulty is that many a family goes sailing on the high tide of success, and the husband and father depends on his own health and acumen for the welfare of his household, but one day he gets his feet wet, and in three days pneumonia has closed his life, and the daughters are turned out on a cold world to earn bread, and there is nothing practical that they can do.

How is this evil to be cured? Start clear back in the homestead and teach your daughters that life is an earnest thing, and that there is a possibility, if not a strong probability, that they will have to fight the battle of life alone. Let every father and mother say to their daughters: "Now, what would you do for a livelihood if what I now own were swept away by financial disaster, or old age, or death should end my career?"

My advice to all girls and all unmarried women, whether in affluent homes or in homes where most stringent economies are grinding, is to learn to do some kind of work that the world must have while the world stands.

O young women of America! as many of you will have to fight your own battles alone, do not wait until you meet with disaster and your father is dead, and all the resources of your family have been scattered; but now, while in a good house and environed by all prosperities, learn how to do some kind of work that the world must have as long as the world stands. Turn your attention from the embroidery of fine slippers, of which there is a surplus, and make a useful shoe. Expend the time in which you adorn a cigar case in learning how to make a good, honest loaf of bread. Turn your attention from the making of flimsy nothings to the manufacturing of important somethings.

"But," you ask, "what would my father and mother say if they saw I was doing such unfashionable work?" Throw the whole responsibility upon us, the pastors, who are constantly hearing of young women in all these cities, who, unqualified by their previous luxurious surroundings for the awful struggle of life into which they have been suddenly hurled, seemed to have nothing left them but a choice between starvation and damnation. They go along the street at 7 o'clock in the wintry mornings, through the slush and storm, to the place where they shall earn only half enough for subsistence, the daughters of once prosperous merchants, lawyers, clergymen, artists, bankers and capitalists, who brought up their children under the infernal delusion that it was not high tone for a woman to learn a profitable calling. Young woman! take this affair in your own hand, and let there be an insurrection in all prosperous families on the part of the daughters of this day, demanding knowledge in occupation and styles of business by which they may be their own defence and their own support if all fatherly and husbandly and brotherly hands fail them. I have seen two sad sights, the one a woman in all the glory of her young life, stricken by disease, and in a week lifeless in a home of which she had been the pride. As her hands were folded over the still heart and her eyes closed for the last slumber, and she was taken out amid the lamentations of kindred and friends, I thought that was a sadness immeasurable. But I have seen something compared with which that scene was bright and songful. It was a young woman who had been all her days amid wealthy surroundings, by the visit of death and bankruptcy to the household turned out on a cold world without one lesson about how to get food or shelter, and into the awful whirlpool of city life, where strong ships have gone down, and for twenty years not one word has been heard from her. Vessels went out on the Atlantic Ocean looking for a shipwrecked craft that was left alone and forsaken on the sea a few weeks before, with the idea of bringing it into port. But who shall ever bring into the harbor of peace and hope and heaven that lost womanly immortal, driven in what tempest, aflame in what conflagration, sinking into what abyss? O God, help! O Christ, rescue! My sisters, give not your time to learning fancy work which the world may dispense with in hard times, but connect your skill with the indispensables of life.

Let me say to all women who have already entered upon the battle of life that the time is coming when women shall not only get as much salary and wages as men get for certain styles of employment women will have higher salary and more wages, for the reason that for some styles of work they have more adaptation. But this justice will come to women not through any sentiment of gallantry, not because woman is physically weaker than men, and therefore ought to have more consideration shown her, but because through her finer natural taste and more grace of manner and quicker perception, and more delicate touch and more educated adroitness she will in certain callings be to her employer worth ten per cent. more, or twenty per cent. more than the other sex. She will not get it by asking for it, but by earning it, and it shall be hers by lawful conquest.

TO CULTIVATE SUGAR BEETS.

Syndicate With $15,000,000 Formed to Operate in California.

A cablegram from London announces the success of the mission of Willard H. Green, who recently left for Europe in the interest of the ... sugar syndicate, which has been negotiating for lands in the Sacramento valley, California. Satisfactory arrangements have been made, and all that remains is to secure the proper persons to cultivate the beet.

Contracts have been signed by which 150,000 acres of land near Chico, Marysville and Red Bluff has been secured, and the work of erecting three immense sugar factories will be started at once. The syndicate has a capital of $15,000,000, and intends making the venture a success if money and experience can do it. The land secured embodies tracts from the Glenn ranch, the Bidwell ranch and the Phelan estate and the Stanford estate, with other tracts in smaller quantities.

SUNDAY SCHOOL.

INTERNATIONAL LESSON COMMENTS FOR JANUARY 30.

Lesson Text: "How to Pray," Matt. vi., 5-15—Golden Text: Matt. vi., 6—Commentary on the Day's Lesson Written by the Rev. Dr. D. M. Stearns.

5. "And when thou prayest thou shalt not be as the hypocrites, for they love to pray standing in the synagogues and in the corners of the streets, that they may be seen of men. Verily I say unto you, They have their reward." Dr. Weston says concerning this sermon that Christ here draws the picture of the person who is to be the result of His work, the ideal man whom the Saviour is to make actual by saving him from sin. The only and indispensable condition of admission to such a life is the consciousness of utter spiritual poverty, absolute destitution, a beggar with no power to alter his condition or make himself better. No man on earth, be he who or what he will, is excluded, and the character described in the beatitudes is within the reach of every man.

6. "But thou when thou prayest enter into thy closet, and when thou hast shut thy door pray to thy Father, which is in secret, and thy Father, which seeth in secret, shall reward thee openly." All benevolence is not to be hidden, for when our good works glorify God we are to let our light so shine. No one is forbidden to pray in public, nor even to let it be known that we are fasting if God can be glorified thereby. What is forbidden is our own glory or advantage in anything. What is required is the glory of God in all things. See I Cor. x., 31; Pet. iv., 11; John xiv., 13, 14.

7. "But when ye pray use not vain repetitions, as the heathen do, for they think that they shall be heard for their much speaking." There is nothing here forbidding us to repeat the same petitions in our prayers, but what is forbidden is vain repetition or thinking that there is benefit or merit in saying the same words over and over. True prayer is the utterance of heart desires for the glory of God in the name of Jesus Christ.

8. "Be not ye therefore like unto them, for your Father knoweth what things ye have need of, before ye ask Him." We are not forbidden to ask because our Father knows, but we are to ask as children who have confidence in a Father's love and wisdom. Children who tease and torment their parents do not credit either to themselves or to their parents; parents who permit it are not wise, and children who do it do not honor their parents. Confidence in God will meekly ask and be sure that if it is best it shall be given.

9. "After this manner therefore pray ye, Our Father which art in heaven, hallowed be Thy name." I have met many who use no more this form of words and perhaps they do no sin by this omission; as for myself I never expect to pray better or with more understanding or more in accord with the will of God then when I use these very words. I would not rob Israel, nor put myself under any bondage, but if Israel has a good thing which I, too, can enjoy, surely our Father would like me to enjoy it. How very near Jesus took Mary and us to His heart when He said, "Go to My brethren and say unto them, I ascend unto My Father, and your Father, and to My God and your God" (John xx., 17).

10. "Thy kingdom come, Thy will be done in earth as it is in heaven." When, after the thousand years, satan shall have been sent to the lake of fire, and all things shall have been subdued unto Christ, then He shall hand over the kingdom unto God the Father that God may be all in all (Rev. xx., 10; I Cor. xv., 28), and this prayer shall be answered.

11. "Give us this day our daily bread." Our Father knows our need in this matter and will not withhold any good, yet it is His pleasure that we ask Him for all that is included in this phrase "our daily bread," and inasmuch as we have already learned that man shall not live by bread alone, but by every word that proceedeth out of the mouth of God (Chapter iv., 4), the phrase must include a great deal.

12. "And forgive us our debts as we forgive our debtors." Forgiveness of sins in His name is what we are to preach everywhere (Luke xxiv., 47), and when we receive Him we are assured that our sins are forgiven for His name's sake and shall no more be remembered (I John ii., 12; Isa. xliii., 25), but while we are in these mortal bodies we shall need constant forgiveness; hence the comfort of the assurance that "if we confess our sins He is faithful and just to forgive us our sins and to cleanse us from all unrighteousness." It is the sense of the vast forgiveness which we enjoy from Him that enables us to be kind one to another, tender hearted, forgiving one another, even as God for Christ's sake has forgiven us (Eph. iv., 32.

13. "And lead us not into temptation, but deliver us from evil, for Thine is the kingdom, and the power and the glory forever. Amen." God never tempts any one to do wrong (Jas. i., 13), but He does try men for their present and eternal good, and for His great glory, and it is blessed to be tried and receive grace to endure (Jas. i., 12). He will never try us above what we are able (I Cor. x., 13). As to the evil one, He will deliver us from every evil and preserve us unto His heavenly kingdom (II Tim. iv., 18). The kingdom is His, the power is His, and the glory. Salvation and service from beginning to end are all His, and of Him, and it becomes us ever to say, "Thine O Lord, is the greatness and the power and the glory and the victory and the majesty, for all that is in the heaven and in the earth is Thine; Thine is the kingdom, O Lord, and Thou art exalted as head above all."

14. "For if ye forgive men their trespasses your Heavenly Father will also forgive you." Fellowship with God depends upon our being one with Him in all things. We may walk with Him, and He will dwell in us and walk in us (II Cor. vi., 16), but we must be willing to humble ourselves and agree with Him in everything (Mic. vi., 8, margin; Amos iii., 3).

15. "But if ye forgive not men their trespasses, neither will your Father forgive your trespasses." When Peter asked how often he should forgive his brother and suggested seven times as a possible extreme, our Lord answered, "Until seventy times seven." He then told of one who was forgiven 10,000 talents, but would not forgive his fellow a hundred pence; hence he was severely punished. Our Lord added, "So likewise shall My Heavenly Father do also unto you if ye from your hearts forgive not everyone his brother their trespasses" (Matt. xviii., 21-35). Again it is, as always, "Not I, but Christ." "Not I, but the grace of God." Nothing for self, not even anything in the way of justice as a primary thing, and never revenge, but always the glory of God that He may be magnified.—Lesson Helper.

Chronic Rheumatism.

From the Industrial News, Jackson, Mich.

The subject of this sketch is fifty-six years of age, and actively engaged in farming. When seventeen years old he hurt his shoulder and a few years after commenced to have rheumatic pains in it. On taking a slight cold or the least strain, sometimes without any apparent cause whatever, the trouble would start and he would suffer the most excruciating pains.

He suffered for over thirty years, and the last decade has suffered so much that he was unable to do any work. To this the frequent occurrences of dizzy spells were added, making him almost a helpless invalid.

IN ALL SORTS OF WEATHER.

He tried the best physicians but without being benefited and has used several specific rheumatic cures, but was not helped. About one year and six months ago he read in this paper of a case somewhat similar to his which was cured by Dr. Williams' Pink Pills and concluded to try this remedy.

After taking the first box he felt somewhat better, and after using three boxes, the pains entirely disappeared, the dizziness left him and he has now for over a year been entirely free from all his former trouble and enjoys better health than he has had since his boyhood.

He is loud in his praises of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People and will gladly corroborate the above statements. His post-office address is Lorenzo Noeley, Horton, Jackson County, Michigan.

All the elements necessary to give new life and richness to the blood and restore shattered nerves are contained, in a condensed form, in Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People. All druggists sell them.

JACKSON LIMBLESS COTTON.

Committee Report of the Interstate Cotton Growers' Association on the Jackson African Limbless Cotton, That Met In Atlanta, Ga., Dec. 14, 1897.

We, the undersigned Committee, appointed by the Interstate Cotton Growers' Association, held in Atlanta, Ga., December 14th, 1897, to investigate and report on the Jackson Limbless Cotton, beg leave to submit the following report:

After a thorough and careful examination and investigation made of the cotton in the field, which we visited in person, and carefully looking into the matter, we unhesitatingly pronounce it the best variety of cotton ever grown in the South. From what the Committee learned from a conversation with Mr. Jackson, it seems that the cotton, with careful cultivation, will yield three bales per acre easily, and the evidence of such fact has presented itself to us after safe investigation. The cotton itself is absolutely without limbs, the bolls maturing on little prongs two or three inches long, known as "fruit spur," with no other limbs, there being from two to five bolls on each spur. The stalks in the field examined by us, are from four to ten feet tall, according to the fertility of the soil, as fruited from the ground up. We found on a great many stalks, bolls which contain five and six pods, which we consider very unusual, the size of the bolls being very fine average, the lint and staple being fine and silky, an average of one to one and a half inches. It is the opinion of your Committee that no cotton of this variety has ever been grown in the South before, and is of superior quality to anything we have ever seen grown. The land upon which the cotton examined was grown, is ordinary red gravelly upland well manured. WM. P. CALHOUN, Chairman, Ga. RICHARD CHEATHAM, Committee, Miss.

When your Committee visited the Jackson farm, the following gentlemen members of the Atlanta Convention from the States designated under their names, accompanied your Committee, all being practical farmers, and endorse the above report, as evidenced by their signatures. M. T. LEACH, North Carolina. JOHN E. BRADLEY, W. J. BRADLEY, S. C.

The seed from this wonderful cotton are put up 200 select seed to each package for $1.00, six packages $5.00, one pound $7.00. For sale by J. C. MAYFIELD, MANAGER, Atlanta, Ga.

A $2,000 Word!

This paper announces, in connection with The Atlanta Weekly Constitution, a new offer in which everyone may have a chance to supply the missing word in this sentence:

"AT FIRST IT WAS CONSIDERED BY THE ——— AS A GOOD OMEN"

The sentence is taken from a well-known publication. The word is a familiar one, and it may readily suggest itself.

GIVE YOU A CHANCE AT THE MISSING WORD FUND

At the end of period covered by this contest The Constitution will pay out to the successful party or parties the full prize amount it has accrued in the contest. The plan is simple and these contests have become a popular and have been conducted with such absolute fairness to all that they have been widely copied after, but none have become equal to The Constitution's great original series.

IN ONE YEAR THE CONSTITUTION HAS PAID OUT
NEARLY $6,000 IN CASH

in these missing word contests. It sets aside 10 per cent of the subscription fund received from subscribers guessing at the missing word, and this fund is given to the successful guesser or guessers in the contest. The fund is distributed with absolute fairness, and the fact that The Weekly Constitution has MORE THAN TWICE as many subscribers and that it puts as its 10 per cent from all guessers for this distribution fund shows that the amount to be divided at each interval is large enough to be worth striving for. It is not a catch-penny or a deceitful proposition, but the plan is open and simple and IS ADMITTED to the mails by the Post Office Department as a meritorious contest.

☞ The book from which the sentence is taken is deposited in a safety vault under seal, and will be opened at the close of the contest before a competent committee, which makes the award after an examination of the subscription books.

In one of these contests there was only one successful guesser, who received more than $1,000, and in addition to this in one year $5,000 has been distributed among successful guessers.

Remember that, whether the missing word is supplied or not, it costs nothing to guess, and even though not successful, the guesser gets

THE GREATEST OF ALL WEEKLY NEWSPAPERS FOR ONE YEAR

Keep that in view and send your guess with your clubbing subscription for your home paper and The Weekly Constitution.

Should you already be a subscriber to your home paper, remit $1 to this paper for The Weekly Constitution for one year, and it will be forwarded to The Constitution with your guess.

The Constitution guarantees that the amount of the award will not be less than $500 in cash, and it may be as much as $2,000.

THE WEEKLY CONSTITUTION IS THE GREATEST WEEKLY NEWSPAPER IN THE WORLD. It is a TWELVE-PAGE, SEVEN-COLUMNS-TO-THE-PAGE NEWSPAPER, containing EIGHTY-FOUR COLUMNS every week. It has no equal as a Weekly Newspaper in America; its news reports cover the world, and its correspondents and agents are to be found in almost every hailwick of the Southern and Western States.

AS A MAGAZINE it prints more matter than is ordinarily found in any magazine in the country.
AS AN EDUCATOR it is a schoolhouse in itself; a year's reading of The Constitution is a liberal education.
ITS SPECIAL FEATURES commend it especially to every farm home in America.
ITS FARM AND FARMERS' DEPARTMENTS—Its Woman's Department and Its Children's Department are all under able direction, and are specially attractive to those to whom these departments are addressed. The Constitution is Democratic in Politics, and it is a hearty advocate of the principles enunciated in the National Platform of the Party.

THE FOLLOWING ARE THE CONDITIONS OF THE CONTEST

Ten Per Cent of the Guessers' Subscriptions goes to the Fund to be divided. In other words if this Subscription Fund amounts to $20,000 for this period then the fund to go to the successful guesser would be $2,000.

THE CONSTITUTION PUTS 10 PER CENT of the amount it receives for subscriptions from parties entering the Missing Word Contest into a fund for distribution among those who guess correctly the missing word. If only one contestant gets the right word, he or she will be given the entire fund. If more than one supplies the missing word, the same will be proportionately divided among the successful guessers.

THE CONDITION PRECEDENT FOR SENDING A GUESS in the Missing Word is that each and every guess must be accompanied by a yearly subscription to The Weekly Constitution. If sent from the paper clubbing this advertisement in accordance of our clubbing offer, the guess of the missing word will be forwarded. The guess must be sent with the subscription. Should one person send more than one answer, he or she will be entitled to a share of the fund for each correct answer. There will be no capital prize—everyone will get a first prize. Persons may guess as many times as they send subscriptions.

IN MAKING YOUR ANSWER you need not write the sentence out in full—just say the Missing Word for the above paragraph, period, comma, thing it is.

THE AMERICAN MONTHLY REVIEW OF REVIEWS

It is impossible to promise particular features that will appear in the "AMERICAN MONTHLY" during the coming year, for it is, as the Bookman says, "a great monthly newspaper." As such, it prints for its readers an illustrated account of the notable things which make the history of the month, of the political, the economic, and literary happenings which are of value to intelligent men and women. The Editor's "Progress of the World" tells succinctly an illustrated story of the month. The "Leading Articles" give the best thought and information of the current magazines in five continents; the contributed articles furnish the character sketches of the man of the month, and give timely discussions by authorities on any question of immediate serious import.

"We know of no review published in this country or in Europe which combines so successfully as the AMERICAN MONTHLY the keenness, timeliness, and energy of journalism with the sound judgment, carefully weighed opinion, exact knowledge, and well-chosen English of the purely literary periodical."—The Outlook.

The result of this comprehensive effort to edit in one monthly volume the information needed by intelligent people of "live" instincts is best gauged by the opinions which the readers of the AMERICAN MONTHLY have seen fit to express. These are thinking business men, clergymen, editors, lawyers, professors, engineers, the wide-awake women of America. They write that the AMERICAN MONTHLY "is indispensable"; "is simply invaluable"; "is a generous library in itself"; is "a historical cyclopedia of the world"; "the best means of aid for a busy man"; "the best periodical of the kind we have ever had"; "a triumph of editorial genius"; "the world under a field-glass," etc., etc.

THE HOUSEHOLD.

A Few of the New Designs In Decorative Lamps—Rose Leaves at Weddings—Black Fruit Cake.

There are few entertaining rooms where lamps are not in general use, and in many instances they may certainly lay claim to being quite decorative features. All depends upon their suitability for the position they occupy. The one best adapted for the hall or dining room would be decidedly incongruous in the drawing room, for instance.

For the drawing room the standard lamp is most in favor and diffuses a very becoming light when prettily shaded. The design should be light and graceful, in copper or brass in preference to wrought iron. A very choice lamp is made in these metals combined, the stem and feet being of brass and the ornamentation in copper. In a room of any size it is necessary to have one or two portable lamps in addition to the standards, and these are most effective in the candlestick design. A very beautiful one is in the Adams' style (silver plated), another in the old English period, and a third belongs to Louis XV. These, of course, should be used in rooms furnished in the particular period, but there are many of the same design which are quite suitable for rooms of modern fashion.

The lamp for the dining room is very different in character, and, the light being required over the table, a center pendant is by far the most appropriate with one or two brackets over the side table. A very uncommon design is in oxidized silver with a dome shaped shade finished by green silk fringe, while another is in copper and rather more severe in design. It is suspended by chains from a copper rose fixed in the ceiling and can be regulated in height the same as a chandelier.

The hall, if only of ordinary dimensions, will require at least two lamps, the one a pendant and the other a bracket, and in wrought iron there are many suitable designs, the lantern shape, fitted with squares of cathedral glass, being perhaps among the best. Wrought iron lamps are again very well adapted for library use, and the portable standard, with one or two reading lamps, will furnish the most satisfactory light. These are only a few of the many various new designs which are entitled to make themselves known.

Rose Leaves at Weddings.

It is not considered good form now to throw rice at weddings. Prospective bridegrooms will undoubtedly welcome this news, because men say that fully one-half the rice thrown at a wedding finds its way down the bridegroom's collar, rendering him utterly miserable for the first few hours of his wedding journey. Some women say that they dislike the idea of substituting anything for rice, as they really think that the little white grains carry luck with them and are emblematic of plenty. All the same, rice has to go. Rose leaves are now used instead by fashionable folks. If any color scheme is carried out in the decorations or gowns of the bridesmaids, the color of the rose leaves used for this purpose is the same. Just as the bride and bridegroom leave the house a pretty willow basket filled with fresh rose leaves to be thrown at them is presented to each member of the bridal party. It is much better to go away in such a shower of beauty and fragrance than it is to be followed by rice, paper confetti and old shoes, says the New York Sun.

Black Fruit Cake.

Good Housekeeping gives a recipe for a famous fruit cake that will keep all winter:

A pound of flour, a pound of sugar, a pound of butter, 3 pounds of raisins, a pound of figs, a pound of citron, one-half pound of almonds, 10 eggs, one-half pound of pecans, a tablespoonful of ginger, a tablespoonful of allspice, a tablespoonful of cinnamon, a teaspoonful of cloves, a teaspoonful of mace, a grated nutmeg. Cut up the raisins and figs and soak them in half a goblet of good whisky 12 hours before making the cake. Beat the eggs separately. Cream butter and sugar together. Sift the spices into the flour. Bake in a square mold if one is convenient; if not, a round mold will do as well.

Nut Cones.

Mix together nine ounces of finely shredded nuts with the same quantity of powdered sugar, three whole eggs and a teaspoonful of vanilla. Pile this mixture in little cones on a buttered baking tin and bake in a moderate oven.

Maplesville.

Since every male American can aspire to the presidency, so every female American can hope to get into the White house as wife and they are coming on to supply the demand. Beautiful little girls have come to the homes of Mr. and Mrs. Dawson Williams, Mr and Mrs. T. DuBose, Mr. and Mrs. Pat Blackman and Mr. and Mrs. R. D. Martin.

Mr. W. D. Martin had the misfortune to have his cotton gin burned last week, supposed to have caught from the boiler room; fortunately no other buildings caught from the flames.

We had most violent wind and rain storm the 19th ult., and the next morning a colored woman was found dead in the road between here and Stanton. She was often demented and it is supposed she wandered from her home and died in the storm.

Mrs. N. A. Goodwin is now with mother, Mrs. Betsy McCary, who is very sick. We sincerely hope our good old friend may recover, a better woman never lived.

The hog cholera is with us again; anyone knowing a remedy would be doing a good deed to publish it.

The friends of Mrs. Lily Perry were pleased by a visit from her, we heartily wish inducements could be offered her to stay among us.

Our town now presents a most business-like look, being filled with railroad men at work to complete our new railroad at the earliest day.

On the 20 ult., at the home of her mother Mrs. M. E. Glover, was married Miss Willie Minnie Glover to Mr. Frank Mathews of Montgomery, Rev. W. Taylor of Verbena, officiating. Our community has sustained a heavy loss in Miss Glover since she was ever ready to help in every good cause. The bride received several very handsome presents.

Mrs. Brand and Miss Allie, of Randolph, Mrs. Paisley of Selma, Rev. W. Taylor and Mr. C. H. Dansby of Verbena, and Mr. T. Merriwether of Matthews were guests of Mrs. Glover at the marriage of her daughter.

Briarfield.

Farmers are busy preparing for their crop for '98, which we hope will prove a good one.

The young people of our school had a fine time last Friday night at the society hall. The recitations and songs were well rendered and much enjoyed by the large audience.

The following officers of the society were elected for the ensuing term: President, W. J. Billingsley; vice pres., Frank Wilson; secretary, Miss Lucy Rice; Editor, Miss C. Mahan. STUDENT.

AFFECTS EVERY ORGAN.

Does That Most Dreadful of Diseases—Chronic Catarrh.

Over half of the people have catarrh in some form or another, and yet probably not a tenth of these people know that their disease is catarrh. One person says he has Bright's disease; another liver complaint; another consumption; another female complaint. These people would be very much surprised to hear that they were all suffering with chronic catarrh; but it is so, nevertheless. Each one of these troubles, and a great many more, are simply catarrh; that is, chronic inflammation of the mucous lining of whichever organ is affected. Any internal remedy that will cure catarrh in one location, will cure it in any other location. This is why Pe-ru-na has become so justly famous in the cure of catarrhal diseases. It cures catarrh wherever located. Its cures remain. Pe-ru-na does not palliate; it cures.

Dr. Hartman has recently compiled into book form several of his lectures on chronic catarrh, which he has delivered at different times at the Surgical Hotel. This book is called "Winter Catarrh," and will be sent free of charge on application to the Pe-ru-na Drug Manufacturing Company, Columbus, Ohio.

Jemison, Jan. 31, 1898

Editor BANNER: We notice that most of the counties of Alabama are calling conventions or making arrangements for primary elections so as to get their candidates before the people at an early day. Why should not Chilton be making a move in this direction? It is certainly getting time that our county committee should be called together with a view of coming to an understanding relative to the ensuing campaign. If there are any aspirants for office in our county, the people will very soon want to know who they are; and should there be none, it is time the people was looking up some good material to take the places of those whose time will soon expire. We trust our chairman will soon call the committee out so that we may prepare for the fray.

We desire to see a peaceable and harmonious campaign without envy, malice or bitterness toward anyone. Let peace and goodwill be our motto. We want good and true men in the field, none but thoroughbred Populists. With us principles are preeminently above men or party and our candidates should be men who are willing to vindicate the principles of the People's Party at all times and in all places. The prophets who reside in the camps of our enemies are again predicting the final death of the Populist party in the near future. But they have already prophesied falsely so often that, under the law of Moses, they would be stoned to death. Through our glasses, the reform movement is seen stronger to day than it ever has been and is gaining recruits faster than ever before. We still have life enough to be a terror to both Dems and Reps. The days of fusion are over. The days of milk and cider are past. And with our principles fairly inscribed upon an unfurled banner (like our Chilton BANNER) we will march right on to victory. I. C.

While Captain William H. Bates was Commissioner of Navigation he said that "an average of $150,000,000 annually, for thirty years, has been paid by us to foreign ships for ocean transportation."

In British India no one can carry warlike weapons without a license, and a law of this kind would be desirable in many States of the Union. Deprive the Italian of his stiletto and he would become a peaceful citizen.

It is said the Tilden-Astor-Lenox Library of New York, when opened, will contain 450,000 volumes. This will be a most excellent showing. The Boston Public Library, an old institution, has only 673,736 volumes.

The past summer there occurred in Germany, according to the New York Independent, on an average over one accident on the railways a day; and it is conceded that want of proper machinery and the needful number of hands is to blame for the catastrophies.

A country school ma'am, who teaches northeast of Emporia, Kan., has adopted a novel method to bring her literary productions before the public. She writes her own poetry and compels the poor children to recite it before the school. The trustees do not know anything about it.

Gullible farmers, of Allen County, Ohio, have been buncoed by a swindler who went through the country exhibiting an enormous ear of corn, from which he sold choice kernels at choice prices for seed. The ear was made from several smaller ears carefully cut up and ingeniously glued together in the natural form of a big ear.

The English sparrow is disappearing from New York. In places that used to see and hear much more of this noisy bird than was compatible with peace of mind, there is now no sign of him. He has either moved or been served to gourmands as a reed bird. It is about twenty-five years since the English sparrow was brought to New York to kill the worms that hung on webs from the ailanthus shade trees and caught in the hats or clothing of passers-by. He did that job well, but he multiplied so fast that he became a nuisance, not only in New York, but in most other Eastern cities and villages, where, among other sins, he is held accountable for the retreat of garden songbirds into the fields and woods. Hence a good riddance for his going.

The almost incredible story that comes from Washington about the finding of a large amount of money, in coin, bills, orders and notes, in the desks and drawers formerly used by Congress Librarian Spofford, everybody will hope to be true who knew or had dealings with that long-term official, now retired in disgrace from the place he occupied so many years, observes the Chicago Record. "The discovery of this money, if indeed the account be a true one, is less surprising than was the charge of defalcation under which he left his old office. We could all more easily believe that the old gentleman was absent-minded than that he was intentionally a defaulter. At the time his accounts were found to be short there was a surprise and sympathy, but no idea that he could have merely misplaced missing valuable papers. He simply could not produce them, and he was put out and forgotten. Everybody wondered but nobody upbraided; they were all too astonished for that. And now they find thousands of dollars in those old desks and drawers, the miscellaneous receipts of twenty-seven years! The fees for copyrights of a generation, which he had acknowledged to have received, but which he had never credited on his books, are said to be there. It is an extraordinary story of senility and carelessness. It is to be hoped that all the circumstances will clear the reputation of this old man, of whom all the world thought so well. He can afford to be charged with want of carefulness, but not with want of honesty."

SOUTHERN COTTON MILLS.

Some Interesting Figures Concerning the Building of Mills in Alabama.

The growth of the cotton mill industry in the south for 1897 was nothing short of phenomenal. In Alabama alone over $1,500,000 was expended on new cotton mills.

At Birmingham the Avondale cotton mills were erected, and will make print cloths. Capital stock, $600,000. It contains 35,000 spindles and 1,100 looms.

At Cordova—The Indian Head cotton mill will manufacture sheeting. Capital stock, $600,000; spindles, 25,000; looms, 800.

At Montgomery—The People's cotton factory, with a capital of $200,000. It contains 10,000 spindles.

At Oxford—The Blue Springs Cotton Manufacturing Company, to make yarns. Capital stock, $50,000; spindles, 5,000.

At Speigner's—The state prison mill, to manufacture sheeting. It contains 5,000 spindles.

At Anniston—The knitting mills of the Anniston Hosiery Company, to manufacture children's hosiery. Removed from Jacksonville, Ala.

At Huntsville—The Huntsville knitting mills; 16 knitting machines.

The following enlargements and improvements were made:

At Piedmont—The Coosa Manufacturing Company added 5,000 spindles.

At Tuskaloosa—The J. Snow Hardware Company added 80 looms.

A number of new mills and improvements are projected, and it is probable that those here given will be built this year:

A duplicate of the Indian Head cotton mill at Cordova.

At Greenville—The Wellchester cotton mill.

The Birmingham Cotton Manufacturing Company will double its plant.

The Selma Cotton Mill Company will double its present capacity of of 5,000 spindles.

At Thomasville—The Magnolia Manufacturing Company; capital stock, $150,000; 10,000 spindles.

At Decatur—Knitting mills; capital, $16,000.

The following new mills were erected in the south last year:

Alabama—Mills, 5; spindles, 80,000; looms, 2,292.

Florida—Mills, 1; spindles, 2,000; looms, ——.

Georgia—Mills, 7; spindles, 45,000; looms, 626.

Louisiana—Mills, 1; spindles, 1,500; looms, 10.

North Carolina—Mills, 9; spindles, 38,000; looms, 80.

South Carolina—Mills, 11; spindles, 95,000; looms, 2,472.

Tennessee—Mills, 3; spindles, ——; looms, 192.

Total mills, 37; total spindles, 256,780; total looms, 5,672.

ALABAMIANS.

Are Officers on the Big Battleship Maine.

It may be of local interest that most of the officers on the battleship Maine, now in Havana harbor, are southern men. Two of them are from Louisiana—Wat T. Cluverius, appointed from the Second congressional district, 1891, and graduated third in his class in 1895; David F. Boyd, Jr., a native of Louisiana, but appointed from the Third Alabama district. Both of these are naval cadets. Two others are lieutenants, one of them being John Hood, of Florence, Ala., and I. J. Blandin, of South Alabama. Another Alabamian among the officers is Arthur Crenshaw, appointed to Annapolis from the Second district.

Good Roads for Morgan.

Morgan county has made a decided move in the direction of good roads by appropriating $15,000 to be expended each year upon the roads of the county, and the first work was done on them the past summer.

Industrial Activity in Franklin.

The Midland Ore Company, a corporation organized recently with large financial resources, has leased the property of the Hamilton Creek Ore Company, located at Hematite, Franklin county, and will soon be running and shipping ore at the rate of 400 to 800 tons per day. During the last year the latter company has expended over $1,000,000 building a washing machine, constructing railway tracks, etc., and in all its business transactions never had a law suit nor a strike, and doesn't owe a dollar. Fully 400 laborers will be employed. The ore will be consumed by the Sheffield furnaces.

Bryan's Birmingham Visit.

The Jefferson County Bimetallic club is arranging for William Jennings Bryan to visit Birmingham and deliver a speech in the Auditorium the day after Mardi Gras. Mr. Bryan was coming anyhow about the last of February, but the club will try to have him there at Mardi Gras, when the town will be full of people attending the carnival. It is stated that Mr. Bryan has practically agreed to come at that time, and will probably enter the city with Rex Vulcan III, king of the carnival.

ALABAMA GOLD.

Sixteen Mines Are in Operation, Employing Many Thousands.

There is extraordinary activity in the Alabama gold fields in Cleburne county. The mines are all working a good force of men, and the output is the greatest in their history. A large number of new faces were seen in the Arbacoochee and Fruithurst regions this week, prospectors from the east being most in evidence. Among recent transactions was the purchase of several mines by English prospectors. Sixteen mines are in active daily operation and fine quartz has been discovered at some of them. The Endora mine has recently put in machinery and electric dynamos, and many others are preparing to do the same thing. Several thousand men are in the field and the force is increasing daily. The industry has developed slowly and gradually for three years, but now appears to be firmly and successfully established.

BRIEFLY MENTIONED.

Huntsville now claims a population of 14,000.

Selma is shipping cotton direct to Japan. Twelve bands are put upon each bale.

The body of an unknown man was found in Limestone Creek in Limestone county.

The Dallas county court house is to have a new fire proof vault. The cost is to be $5,000.

St. Stephens is soon to be connected with the outer world by telephone line to Carson, on the Mobile and Birmingham railroad.

J. W. Ferguson, of Aurora, lost $1,350 in greenbacks from his pocket while driving from Aurora to Guntersville. The money has not yet been recovered.

Flomaton and vicinity is now undergoing a thorough system of disinfection at the hands of the United States Marine Hospital Service, in charge of Past Assistant Surgeon Oakley.

The body of J. Shelby McCown, formerly of Tullahoma, Tenn., was found in a creek near Belle Mina, Madison county, last week. It had probably been in the water for a month.

A. O. McCord, a prominent citizen of Guntersville, and agent for the Southern Express Company and N. C. & St. L. R. R., skipped from that place the past week with the proceeds of twenty bales of cotton.

M. & O. Extension Nearing Completion.

The building of the Montgomery extension of the Mobile & Ohio railroad is progressing very rapidly. Track is laid twenty-five miles east of Tuskaloosa, and will reach Centreville, or the Cahaba river, early next week. The bridge at Tuskaloosa is nearly complete. All the false work has been torn away, and about all that remains to be finished now is the painting. The depot buildings, shops, round houses, etc., are being rapidly completed, the brick walls of these buildings being now complete. Messrs. M. T. Lewman & Co., contractors for all the depot buildings on the line, are having all the buildings framed at this point, which means the expenditure of an immense amount at Tuskaloosa. One hundred and forty-nine buildings are to be erected.

Lively Traffic in Cattle.

A stock train was handled by the Louisville and Nashville railroad, starting from Calera, thirty miles below here, the past week. There were seventeen cars of stock in the train, twelve of which will come from Selma and the other five cars from Montgomery. The train, as far as local officials are aware, will be run to Louisville. The stock is but another lot of the number of shipments of cattle made out of this state in the past few months to the west.

Convention Delegates Appointed.

The governor has appointed the following delegates to the southern interstate quarantine convention: Hon. John B. Knox, of Anniston; Dr. H. A. Moody, of Mobile; Hon. H. A. Sharpe, of Birmingham; Mr. W. F. Vandiver, Montgomery; Capt. John M. Bridges, of Selma.

Pierced With a Rifle Ball.

Milton West, a prominent farmer of Mountainsboro, was out in the woods looking after some timber. Bill Massey, one of his neighbors, slipped up behind him and shot West through the head with a rifle. No cause for the deed can be learned.

Finds Fine Specimens of Gold.

Deputy United States Marshal D. R. Burgess, while on a recent raid, found some very fine specimens of gold within a few miles of Anniston. One of the specimens was a nugget of virgin gold as large as a walnut, and the other was a piece of gold-bearing quartz.

ALDRICH IS GIVEN THE SEAT.

House Committee Severely Arraigns Alleged Alabama Frauds.

An unusually severe arraignment of alleged election frauds is made in the report filed by the house committee on elections No. 1, in the case of William F. Aldrich against Thomas S. Plowman, from the fourth district of Alabama.

Mr. Plowman is the sitting member, but the committee submits a recount of the vote giving Aldrich, republican and populist candidate, the seat.

The report says in part:

"We shall endeavor to demonstrate by what methods the will of the people was thwarted. In doing so, not all of the frauds perpetrated will be referred to; only salient features can be touched and representative instances cited.

"If the election laws of Alabama had been designed to encourage fraud and thwart the people's will, they could not have been in some respects more happily framed to meet that purpose."

After criticising the Alabama election as putting the honest vote at the mercy of dishonest markers, the report says:

"When it is known that the condition for such a state of facts exists, it is not strange that illiterate voters should remain away from the polls, in the hope that they would at least not furnish ammunition for their political opponents. But this made little difference to the democratic managers in Dallas county. They voted the illiterate colored men, present or absent. The machinery was simple and effective. Fortunately it has been discovered, and the details of its operations laid bare. Fraud is everywhere; not lurking or secret, but bold and insolent. It is chiefly of five kinds:

"1. Fraudulently padding the poll list with names of persons not registered; sometimes of fictitious persons and sometimes of persons who did not live in the precinct.

"2. By padding the poll list with names of persons on the registration list who did not vote.

"3. By imposing on illiterate voters.

"4. By the old-fashioned method of falsely recording voters.

"5. By refusing to hold any election at all in certain strong republican precincts."

After going into much detail on alleged frauds, the committee says it has revised the vote on the most conservative lines, giving Aldrich a plurality of 542, whereas the election of Plowman was claimed by 2,967 plurality.

FORESTALLING BRITAIN.

Alabama Shipping Coal to Central American Ports.

Alabama's export coal trade is on a boom again. So heavy has the movement become that the Louisville and Nashville railroad has put on two extra freight trains to handle the business to gulf ports. The coal is being shipped to Mobile, Pensacola, Port Tampa and Brunswick, where it is loaded to Central American points. Belize, which has heretofore been supplied by the English, is now buying from Alabama, and there are prospects of building up a large coal trade in the Latin-American countries. The recent granting of a differential in all rail and water rates has served to boost export coal movements.

Will Shake Up the Boys.

It is understood that it is the intention of Governor Johnston to have a rigid inspection and examination of all the companies comprising the Alabama National Guard, and to see that the laws are faithfully executed. Companies that have negligently lost arms and accoutrements, that have failed to comply with the law in reference to drills, and have allowed their numbers to fall below the minimum will be disbanded. There are a number of applications for enlistment so that there will be no trouble to supply any needed vacancy.

Will Report Against Buckley.

A report came from Washington that Postmaster Buckley, of Montgomery, is going to be turned down. Buckley was nominated for the Montgomery office during the recess and has been dispensing the mail since then. His nomination is one of many pending before the senate committee on postoffices and its confirmation has been bitterly fought by some of his fellow republicans on charges involving irregularities of several kinds. His case, with others from Alabama, was referred to a sub-committee, that committee agreed to report it adversely.

Montgomery Will Own Its Waterworks.

The city council has been offered par for its $600,000 issue of 30-year 4½ per cent. waterworks bonds and has by resolution accepted the proposition. Sperry, Jones & Co., of Baltimore, are the bidders. By direction of the council a final proposition of $350,000 has been made Mr. Rice, the owner of the present system of waterworks, and it is believed he will accept, in which event the $250,000 balance accruing from the sale of the bonds will be expended in extending and perfecting the system.

Will Establish a Masonic Home.

The Masons of Jefferson county, have taken steps to establish a home for the widows and orphans of members of the order and for aged and infirm Masons in Birmingham.

Probably Suicided.

The mysterious disappearance of A. O. McCord from Guntersville, is exciting comment and many think he has committed suicide. His accounts with the railroads and express company are straight.

Alabama Election Cases.

The Aldrich-Plowman contested election case comes up in the house Thursday. Two hours will be allowed each side for debate, when the vote will be taken.

A report in favor of Underwood will probably be made in the Crowe-Underwood case this week.

Birmingham's Bank Clearings.

The Birmingham clearing house receipts for the month of January, 1898, showed a very healthy and prosperous condition of the banking business of that city, and makes a very propitious beginning for the financial year of 1898. The figures are $2,162,039.69, as against $1,684,268.97 for January, 1897, an increase of $477,770.72.

Bill to Appropriate Land.

Senator Pettus introduced a bill in the senate Monday to grant to the Alabama Normal College 23,040 acres of public lands in Alabama. He also introduced a bill directing the secretary of the treasury to pay to the state of Alabama as trustee the net proceeds of the sale of coal and iron lands in Alabama which under the act passed in 1882 are required to be sold. The money is to be used as a state school fund.

For Congress.

Hannis Taylor, former minister to Spain, has announced for congress in the First district. Congressman G. W. Taylor will, it is understood, stand for re-election.

C. I. W. H. Denson is out for the democratic nomination in the Seventh district, now represented by M. W. Howard, populist. Colonel Denson served one term in congress from that district, but was defeated by Howard in 1894.

Killed a Corn Thief.

At Collinsville one night the past week Farmer Frank Bates heard someone about his barn; he took his gun and walked out; seeing three men with sacks filled with corn, he tried to halt them, but they ran; Bates fired and killed one of the men, named Traffenstedt, who is Bates' third cousin; another of the men was wounded. Bates and a man named Smith, who was with him at the time of the shooting, have been arrested.

Working for an Extension of the L. & N.

Montevallo has inaugurated a movement to get the Louisville & Nashville railroad to extend its mineral branch from Calera on to Montevallo and tap the Montevallo coal mines at Aldrich and the Montevallo Lump Coal Company's mines at Dogwood and on to the coal fields beyond. This extension has been talked of for some time, but the matter is now taking definite form and bids are being made to induce the Louisville & Nashville to come in.

Big Steel Plant May Be Built.

Information comes from New York that the Tennessee Coal, Iron and Railroad company has a representative in that city at this time endeavoring to place $500,000 of bonds with a view to building a big steel plant in the Birmingham district. It is further said that one man has agreed to take $100,000 of the bonds, which, if it develops that they can be placed, will be issued soon. Just how much truth there is in the story cannot be stated, as it has not yet been confirmed by officials of the company.

Investigating Alabama's Resources.

The Swedish-American Press Association composed of editors from the great northwest, are now making a tour of Alabama. The party consists of about twenty-five, and is composed of some very prominent men from that section of the country.

They will visit Thorsby, where there is a large Swedish colony. From there they will go to points in South Alabama, Georgia and Florida. They are gathering all the data they can as to the advantages this state offers to settlers from the northwest and from the old country.

State Credit at High Water Mark.

The auditor and treasurer of the state of Minnesota are in Montgomery this week and have spent most of their time at the capitol. They are here to register $505,000 of Alabama bonds, which Minnesota has recently bought as a permanent investment for her public school fund.

Minnesota has previously invested $25,000 in the securities and for this last half million paid 113, which is the highest price at which Alabama bonds have ever been sold. The bonds bear 5 per cent interest. The credit of the state is now at high water mark.

Busy Bismarck.

Mr. Meisner, manager of the Bismarck City Land Company, has just returned from a successful trip to St. Louis, where he went to organize the company to take up the lands. He is in fine spirits over the proposed company. Already a large number of the small farms lying adjacent to the city property have been sold, and a number of families are now on the ground, and others will follow.

The colony near Rowland, four miles south of Athens, is being augmented daily, and that barren section that has hitherto not been considered at all valuable is being rapidly brought into a high state of cultivation, and lands are advancing in price every day.

Candidates With race.

F. Boykin, Jr., S. H. Holt and J. F. Melbourne have withdrawn from the race for Probate Judge in Dallas. W. P. Mallitte, R. D. Berry and R. D. Wood, present incumbent, are left in the race.

Still Critical.

The condition of Hon. Hector D. Lane at Athens continues very bad, and his friends and physicians are greatly alarmed about him. He requires constant attendance from his physicians and is being carefully nursed by skilled attendants. He has not gained any ground, but they keep him from going down any.

Found in a Cistern.

The body of a woman was found in a cistern at Uniontown. Bruises on her body indicate that she was murdered and thrown in the water.

FOURTEEN BIDS ARE OPENED

For the Location of the Government Armor Plate Plant.

In accordance with advertisements issued by the navy department, proposals were opened by Secretary Long for the construction of a government armor plant, for the sale to the government of sites suitable for such a plant and for machinery and buildings necessary, if the government decides to make its own armor.

There were twenty-nine bids, and they covered every phase of the advertisement. Many of the proposals were merely offers to donate sites to the government, conditional upon the erection of the plant; a number of others were for the supply of machinery.

There were only two bids to furnish a complete plant, and only one of these named a figure. The two companies now engaged in the manufacture of armor for the navy did not submit proposals.

The Huntington, W. Va., chamber of commerce offered to follow every specification of the board and build a complete plant for $3,325,905, including site, buildings and plant.

Offers of sites for a plant gratis, or for a nominal sum of money, came from Muskegon, Mich.; Youngstown, O.; Escanaba, Mich.; Duluth, Minn.; Ensley, Ala.; Loraine, O.; Winthrop Harbor and Dock Company of Chicago; Sheffield, Tenn.; Waukegan, Ill.; Detriot, Mich.; Peoria, Ill.; Marquette, Mich., and Anniston, Ala.

It will take some time to schedule all these bids, but as soon as all those can be arranged they will be sent to congress by Secretary Long for the information of that body in case it desires to embark the government in the manufacture of armor.

SEACOAST DEFENSES.

A Bill Carrying $4,144,912 for This Purpose Referred to the House.

The fortifications appropriation bill providing for the executive system of seacoast defenses now in the course of completion, was reported to the house Saturday. It carries $4,144,912 as against estimates made by the war department of $13,378,571. The principal amounts allowed by the bill for the main items are as follows:

Gun and mortar batteries $1,000,000; sites for fortifications $300,000; torpedoes for harbor defense $150,000; armamen of fortifications, $2,033,778; field guns and other miscellaneous items $300,000 and ordnance and fortifications board $100,000.

Provision is made that the armament shall be of American make except when it is to the manifest interest of the government to purchase limited quantities abroad.

PROTECT AMERICAN INTERESTS.

A Man of War to be Sent to the Samoan Waters.

The American flag will soon be displayed in Samoan waters by a man of war. The vessel will be the Mohican, which has been converted into a training ship.

Since the arrival in Washington of former Consul General Churchill, the president and Assistant Secretary of State Day have become convinced that American interests require that the American warship visit Samoa.

Mr. Churchill has told them that the natives have no respect for the American government because it has never sent a man of war to support any steps for the protection of American interests which its representative in Apia might take.

ANTI-TRUST BILL

Introduced in the House by Mr. Greene of Nebraska.

An anti-trust bill, explicit in its terms and making a penalty of $10,000 fine or from two to fifteen years imprisonment, has been introduced in the house by Mr. Greene, of Nebraska.

It makes it a felony to monopolize or to attempt to monopolize or combine or conspire with any others to monopolize any part of the trade or commerce among the states or with foreign nations, and the making of every contract against, or combination entered into by any persons, firms, corporations or combinations of persons as a trust or otherwise, to restrain trade or commerce or limit or control the output or price of any article of commerce.

Introduced in the House by Mr. Greene of Nebraska.

An anti-trust bill explicit in its terms and making a penalty of $10,000 fine or from two to fifteen years imprisonment, has been introduced in the house by Mr. Greene, of Nebraska.

It makes it a felony to monopolize or to attempt to monopolize or combine or conspire with any others to monopolize any part of the trade or commerce among the states or with foreign nations, and the making of every contract against or combination entered into by any persons, firms, corporations or combinations of persons as a trust or otherwise, to restrain trade or commerce or limit or control the output or price of any article of commerce.

Rear Admiral Braine Dead.

PUBLIC OWNERSHIP.

OF RAILROADS AND MUNICIPAL UTILITIES.

Senator Allen's Statistics of Foreign Railroads as Given to the Senate—Brilliant Success of Public Ownership of Street Railways in Glasgow.

Senator Allen of Nebraska in a speech delivered in the United States senate, gave a list of governments who own, or partly own their railways as follows:

The Argentine Republic owns 620 miles of railway. Five-sixths of the railways of Australia belong to the various colonial governments.

In Austria-Hungary about 40 per cent of the mileage is owned and about 73 per cent is operated by the state. Three-fourths of the mileage of Belgium is owned and operated by the state. The state owns one-fourth of the total mileage of Brazil and does one-half of the entire railway mileage of the country. In Canada one-tenth of the mileage is owned and controlled by the government. One half of the railways of the Cape of Good Hope, of English South Africa, is owned by the government. In Columbia the railways have been subsidized by the government with the understanding that at a certain period they will become government property. Denmark owns and controls three fourths of the total mileage of her railways. Egypt owns and operates its railways. In France the railways are ultimately to become the property of the government. They have a mixed system of state and private ownerships. Ninety per cent of the railway mileage of Germany is owned by the government. In England, by the act of 1844, it was provided that the government should have the right to acquire any railroad constructed with its aid, of purchasing the same for a sum equal to twenty-five years of annual divisible profits estimated on the annual profits for three years preceding the date of purchase. A part of the railways of Greece are owned by the government. Guatamala owns and operates a part of her railway system. Holland owns one-half of her system. Two thirds of the railways of India belong to the government.

In Mexico the charters granted to all railways contain a provision by which all shall revert to the government in fifty years from the date of the charter.

The roads of Nicaragua are owned by the government. Norway's railways are owned by the government and so are Paraguay's. Thirty-eight per cent of the mileage of Portugal is owned by the government, and the laws provide that all railways shall revert to the government in 99 years. In Russia the government owns and operates 40 per cent of the mileage. The railway mileage of Turkey belongs to private companies, but Turkey is the sick man.

The municipal ownership of street railways has proved successful in many instances. The latest success has been achieved in Glasgow. It was in July, 1894, that the city declared its independence of the companies that leased its lines. Mr. B. O. Flower says in the New Time that the inception of the venture was looked upon with some doubt. He narrates the circumstances which led up to it as follows:

"The lease would probably have been renewed if the company had treated its servants with greater consideration. About six winters' long hours and low wages led the men to strike, and before the struggle was over a strong body of public opinion was created in favor of municipalizing the tram traffic at the first opportunity.

"The city extended its lines, reduced fares, and the returns have fully justified the course that was taken. From July, 1894, to June, 1895, the city cleared over $100,000 above all expenses. For the succeeding year the amount earned above expenses was more than $400,000. As it is now the employes are better treated, the fares are greatly reduced, the service has been wonderfully improved, the lines have been extended, and the public has been benefited prodigiously by the change. Glasgow has certainly accomplished great things, and her example could be followed with profit by other cities."

A Screw Loose.

Corporations do not pay high wages simply because they are able to. In Detroit street car employes can get 25 cents per hour with three-cent car [illegible] and in Cleveland 21 cents an hour with five-cent fares.

EDITORIAL COMMENT.

Nothing definite has been heard from Secretary of the Treasury Gage since Samuel Gompers, cigarmaker, published his letter on the evils of the gold standard as advocated by Mr. Gage and his silent partner, Mr. McKinley.

Of course, Tammany and other New York and New England political influences will do what they can to defeat the will of the people. Few are now simple enough to put any trust in politicians; especially New York politicians.

"Imperative mandate" means that when executive and judicial officials are unfaithful to their trusts they may be removed by a popular vote.

Practically all of the existing daily newspapers are plutocratic organs. Therefore, the Loud bill, which, among other nefarious objects, is designed to prevent the establishment of new daily newspapers, is certainly a measure which will serve the interests of plutocracy. Let us see how many so-called free silver senators vote for it.

We are not suffering from acute business depression. It has become chronic.

The Nebraska State Journal, plutocratic, says, editorially: "Every psychologist knows that when you employ a man in resultless labor, you destroy within him all ambition and hope and make him a wretched slave. It is not necessary to cite particulars, for the proposition has been scientifically demonstrated." Perfectly true. Yet the whole influence of the Journal is on the side of a social system in which the trusts and monopolies absorb the lion's share of all wealth produced, and in which the masses will be condemned to resultless labor.

All the land between London and Liverpool—a distance of 200 miles—legally belongs to six men, whose only claim to it is that they are the oldest sons of their fathers.—Commonwealth. The same men own still more land in the United States, and the sons and daughters of a great many Americans will work for the benefit of their oldest sons.

Organized labor is waking up. President Gompers of the American Federation of Labor wired the following to the Rocky Mountain News: "The plans for our political action in the interest of labor are only in a tentative state at present. The American Federation of Labor proposes, however, to take such political action as will compel the lawmakers, the executives and the judiciary to enact, to enforce and to define laws in the interest of our people. We shall elect our own representatives wherever possible, and at all times defeat the enemies of our cause irrespective of party. To achieve these purposes, however, we realize that it is necessary for the workers of our country, east, west, north and south, to unite and concentrate our entire efforts to attain the greatest success." And one of their cardinal principles, it should be remembered, is free coinage. Farther than this, the platform of the American Federation of Labor is practically the same as the People's party platform.

Senator Butler has introduced a constitutional amendment to limit federal judicial tyranny by providing that the terms of all United States judges shall be eight years. The present system of life tenure is undemocratic and entirely out of place except in a despotism.

The President says: "I speak not of forcible annexation (of Hawaii), for that cannot be thought of," but of those "who come of their own free will to merge their destines in our body politic." Now it has been proved that only two per cent of the adults of Hawaii are permitted to vote, and not all of these are for annexation. No test by direct vote has ever been talked about, but so far as can be known, an annexation proposition voted upon by all adult white and Hawaiian males would be "snowed under." On the other hand annexation would probably carry by about ten to one in Cuba; but no one connected with this administration speaks up for Cuba.

LIKE HEROD OF OLD.

IMPERIALISM REIGNS AT THE WHITE HOUSE.

The Hosts of Plutocracy Make High Jinks at the Expense of the People—What the Ladies Wore—A National Disgrace.

The capital is itself again. Our Republican court has cast aside the trappings and the suits of woe and appears in sables. Let the devil wear black! as the Prince of Denmark explained. Mourning after the manner of royal courts is at an end. Our mighty chief magistrate agrees with the prince's mother—"but to persevere in obstinate condolement is a course of impious stubbornness." Shine out, fair sun! On with the dance!

It was a great function, the first of the McKinleys' high jinks, the gayety that banished official mourning. It was resplendent. Were there sighs in Cuba? They were not heard in the heavily perfumed salons of the executive mansion. Were cotton operatives suffering in New England? Let them eat cake if they cannot get bread. It was a time for brocades and satins, not for prints, and it signalized prosperity. There was no Jeffersonian simplicity. The scene was one of more than imperial splendor. The vulgar herd was excluded. None but our "best people" were permitted to bask in the bright effulgence of the sun of Canton. But yesterday that demigod was in the hands of a receiver, so to speak. He couldn't meet his obligations and a local newspaper was crying aloud for a popular subscription in his behalf. But Hanna's broad shoulder was put to the wheel and the stalled McKinley was, like Richard, himself again.

The Marine band, erstwhile by government command at a horse show, burst into triumphant strains as the presidential party, whose coming was announced by a bugle call and, preceded by two flunkeys in the uniform of United States officers, entered the reception room. The period of mourning was over—of financial mourning particularly. The "first lady of the land," we are assured by administration Jenkinses, wore a dream of a gown, the lace vest of which sparkled with diamonds. What a blissful change from the day when the major couldn't meet his notes!

Jenkins advises us also that it was the most brilliant reception ever held in the White House. We may readily believe the assertion from a description of the gowns. The terms may not be intelligible, but the impression is therefore all the more dazzling. For instance:

"Mrs. Hobart's gown was worthy of a queen's drawing room. It was of white bengaline, trimmed about the skirt with white ostrich tips, aigrets of which ran from the left side at the waist line across the front to the hem. A splendid aigret sparkling with diamonds ornamented the left breast of the low-neck corsage, while a diamond star fastened the aigret on her head. A double necklace of strands of immense soltaires and pearl completed the costume. She carried a white ostrich feather fan."

And the treasury was there:

"Mrs. Gage wore a splendid directoire kown of cerise velvet that made her look as though she had just stepped out of a painting. Down the left side from the waist was a wall of Troy design in brilliants, each section fastened with a sparkling buckle of brilliants. The ostrich tip aigrets on the left breast and in the hair were fastened with a diamond star. A necklace of diamonds completed the costume."

And for those citizens of America who fancy this sort of thing what happiness in the assurance conveyed by Mark Hanna's recent dispatch, omitting the audacious and egotistical blasphemy, "The Republican party still lives!"

Prosperity Notes.

Tackmakers' wages of Massachusetts reduced.

Union Pacific employes at Cheyenne, Wyo., reduced 30.

Eighty per cent of the tin can makers have been discharged to make room for the new machine.

Ninety per cent of the can labelers have been laid off. A new machine does the work.

The striking glass workers of Kokomo, Ind., have been forced to accept the reduction given by their masters.

The Rod Mill and the Wire Drawers' union of this country have amalgamated. It will do them no good unless they go into politics.

The girls of the shoe factory at Charleston, S. C., are on a strike. They get less than 3 cents for preparing the uppers for the soles!

Another strike in the Indiana and Illinois coal fields is predicted by the operators. They know.

Humbug of Free Seed.

This ridiculous extravagance has gradually enlarged itself from a modest beginning until it now represents an expenditure of $130,000, that being the sum called for in the agricultural bill before the present congress. There is as much reason why the government should furnish farmers with their agricultural implements or their domestic animals as there is for this free distribution of seeds. We know of nothing in the written or unwritten law of the land which suggests, even indirectly, such a custom. It is paternalism in its most vicious and demoralizing form.

A "Touching" Event.

Mark Hanna's victory was not without its pathetic features. It was indeed a "touching" affair.

POINTS FROM THE PRESS.

Tell us the difference between Cleveland's hard time and panics and McKinley's prosperity and reduction in wages.—Silver Knight-Watchman.

Suicides occur among a people who do not have firesides oftener than anywhere else, or under all circumstances. It is seldom that the occupant of a good home, who feels there is no claim upon it, commits suicide. A home is a place to quiet nerves; it is next to heaven in its influence.—Colusa Sun.

The most troublesome problem before the country now is that of the unemployed. Roving bands of idle men are moving about from place to place preying on their fellows because they have nothing of their own and to use. Despair and pauperism are growing, burglary is frequent, larceny is common, and men and women who once had no need to take thought of the morrow are now driven by want into dissipation and crime.—Topeka Advocate.

It is beginning to dawn upon Mark Hanna that he is not the "whole thing;" that "there are others."—Grand Rapids Chronicle.

The work of devastating and almost exterminating the forests of the United States goes on at a rate so rapid that the young men of the country will live to see the end. Under such circumstances, it would be a better policy to offer a bounty for the importation of Canadian lumber than to shut it out altogether with a prohibitory tariff.—Yolo Democrat.

In 1894 the Department of the Interior paid the Bell Telephone Company an average (including salary of woman operator) of $75 to each 'phone. The department put in a system of its own, 140 lines connecting scattered buildings in Washington, and the cost to the department now (including extra electrician and help) is only $10.25 per 'phone. Still the capitalists tell us there is no economy in public ownership.—Social Democrat.

The percentage of bank failures to all banks was 1.06 in 1896, before "confidence" was restored and in the absence of "General Prosperity," but after "confidence and "General Prosperity" were fairly installed in 1897 the percentage increased to 1.25.—San Francisco Star.

Gage has not ventured an answer to Gompers. We are curious to see what reply he can make to the strong argument of Gompers. Of course it would be simply predictions and empty phrases about "sound money," "safe currency," "national honor," etc. However, let us have a response.—Silver Knight-Watchman.

Money cannot buy honor in the administration of public affairs as long as the administration of public affairs is for the secure division of the dishonorably gotten spoils of labor.—The People.

The results which the senatorial election in Ohio has thus far had, inspire the belief in certain minds that popular election of members of the upper house of Congress will be hastened thereby. Our own opinion is quite the contrary. The debauchery and corruption inseparable from the present system of choosing United States senators merely recommend it to the exploiters of the people. The men who run our political machines know that as long as the present senatorial election system prevails they can hope to retain control of the senate. Allow the people to elect the senators and there is a possibility that men of the Hanna type may be defeated. Consequently, the financiers and the corporations will insist upon the maintenance of things as they are. The more corrupt and debasing an institution is, the more likely it is to survive among us.—Twentieth Century.

It is also objected that a certain class will not work, if given an opportunity, but we believe that there are few indeed who will not do enough work to earn food and shelter; and we at least do our part when we give the opportunity. Governor Pingree's experiment in Detroit certainly proves that a very great percentage of the unemployed will seize hold of the offer to work for food. The strongest point the governor made was that it made independent men and women of them.—Colusa Sun.

Lucinda B. Chandler says: "Oh, for an impulse that shall revive the spirit of '76, that shall renew and strengthen our loyalty to the principles which, in the Declaration of Independence, were made the germ of our national existence." We have it, Lucinda. It has come in the shape of injunctions.—Peoria Labor Gazette.

An Australian Experiment.

Premier Reid, of New South Wales Australia, did not favor the partial adoption of the single tax in that state but he now speaks very heartily in its favor and is in favor of its future extension. He says there are 124,000 land-owners, of which 88,000 pay no land tax at all, and the remainder paid $1,300,000 last year, which they were exceedingly able to do, and will pay more hereafter. This $1,300,000 is equal to $1 per capita of all the people, but is $35 per capita for the large landholders, or holders of valuable lands, the owners of ordinary farms and homes coming within the exemption. In this way it has virtually the effects of a graduated income tax, but is more cheaply and certainly collected than an income tax, and no part of it is shifted to labor.—Topeka Advocate.

TEMPERANCE TOPICS.

NOTES OF INTEREST TO THE ANTI-LIQUOR LEAGUERS.

"Man's Inhumanity to Man Makes Countless Thousands Mourn"—A Startling Discovery—A Bacterium Which Lives and Grows in Alcoholic Drink.

Remorse.

AD is the thought of sunniest days
Of love and rapture perished,
And shine through memory's tearful haze
The eyes once fondliest cherished.
Reproachful is the ghost of joys
That charmed while life was wasted.

But saddest is the thought of joys
That never yet were tasted.

Sad is the vague and tender dream
Of dead love's lingering kisses,
To crushed hearts haloed by the gleam
Of unreturning blisses.
Deeep mourns the soul in anguished pride
For the pitiless death that won them—
But the saddest wail is for lips that died
With the virgin dew upon them.

Man's Inhumanity to Man.

It is my conviction that much of the hopelessness of inebriety depends upon man's inhumanity to man. It is necessary to isolate people not only on account of the promptings of their own cravings, but also on account of the promptings of their friends. One of the earliest cases that called my attention to the evils of drink occurred in Hardwick Hospital while I was resident there; a man was discharged one morning convalescent after a severe attack of delirium tremens; his friends met him at the gate, and took him from public house to public house, and so celebrated his recovery until the evening, that they were then able to return him suffering from a relapse—a relapse which ended fatally in a few days.

This is an extreme example of a common occurrence. I have often convinced people that their only chance of safety lay in total abstinence, and my efforts have been frustrated by so-called friends and relatives whose constant cry was, "A little can do you no harm. The little has too often been taken, and the flood gates have been opened.—Dr. Macdowell Cosgrave.

A Startling Discovery.

A startling discovery has been announced, one over which the liquor fraternity is considerably agitated. It is stated on scientific authority, and chronicled by the liquor press itself, that there is a bacterium which lives and grows in alcoholic drinks. The fact is naturally characterized in these same papers as "somewhat remarkable," they being evidently of the same opinion as "temperance fanatics" with regard to the destructive nature of alcohol. The discoverer regards this micro-organism as a "new species." Might we not suggest that it is the nineteenth century incarnation of the adversary? The public is promised later on a fuller account of the development of this remarkable microbe and the "chemical changes it produces"—in the drinks. It would be more to the purpose to know its effects upon the human organism. At any rate alcoholic beverages can no longer be recommended as safer than water because of their freedom from the "deadly bacteria."—Union Signal.

Among the "Upper Set."

Her Majesty's Inspector of Retreats under the Inebriates' Act makes some rather startling statements in his annual report just issued as a parliamentary paper. Here is one: "There is an easy optimism which is fond of repeating the statement that excessive drinking has ceased among the 'upper' classes, and will in time die out likewise among the 'lower orders.'" There is painful reason to believe the statement to be fallacious. Less wine is drunk at the dinner table, but it may be otherwise at the club, billiard room, the smoke room and the bar. There is ground for believing that immoderate drinking, though frightfully common among the industrial classes, is yet more prevalent in the classes usually contrasted with them." Another is that "among women, also, of all classes, it appears certain that drunkenness is on the increase." These, be it remembered, are the conclusions of no so-called "fanatic," but of an experienced the matter-of-fact government official.—Westminster Gazette.

"A Peculiar Scene."

The Halifax (N. S.) Recorder relates the following: "A peculiar scene was witnessed in a northend barroom on Saturday evening. A man, after leaving work, and while on his way home with his wages, called in at a saloon which he frequently patronized and called for a pint of beer. While he was drinking it a woman walked in, and, touching him on the arm, said: 'Well, are you going to give me a glass, also?' The man looked as if he had lost his senses. The woman, who was his wife, asked him why he did not answer. Still no reply. The woman remarked that they had a hard enough time to live without him throwing away his money on beer. The husband did not make any reply, and, with his head down, left the saloon with his wife.

A Sharp Contrast.

The New Jersey synod of the Presbyterian church among others has spoken its mind in regard to the signing of petitions for license to sell intoxicating liquors, and Grover Cleveland has also spoken his. They contrast like light and darkness. The church body says:

"The synod finds occasion to reiterate the judgment often expressed by the General Assembly and this synod, that the renting of property for the sale of intoxicants, and the signing of applications to sell intoxicating beverages, is inconsistent with Christian character and harmful to the cause of religion, and calls the attention of all its presbyteries and sessions, its ministers, teachers and church members, to this matter."

Grover Cleveland says:

"I do not care if all the synods and Presbyteries in the country were to offer an adverse decision, it would be no good reason why I should alter my opinion. I am very sorry that Dr. Shields has been bothered over this matter, as he is an old and very dear friend of mine. Otherwise the action of the Presbytery does not affect me in the least. When I signed the petition for the liquor license for the Princeton Inn I in no sense committed a wrong, and if the same proposition came up for my consideration again, I would do the same thing."

Just so. We do not for a moment doubt Mr. Cleveland's word, and hundreds of others will do the same thing. So long as this government is a partner in the business, and to sell liquor is a legitimate enterprise, church men may resolve and resolve, but all to no purpose.

Public Opinion and Temperance.

Our work in many places must seem slow and discouraging. The great mass of public opinion that rises up like an impregnable fortress before us, appears often impossible to overcome; and the victory for which we wait is yet distant; but I believe more absolutely than ever in the final triumph of all good over all evil; and while I think that time may appear to "drag its lengthening chain" to our finite minds, by and by when we understand the workings of those plans which comes from the Infinite, we shall realize how this slow evolution has been the training school for that eventual good which is working out in this world, and which I believe is preparing us for the wider work that awaits us beyond.—Lady Henry Somerset.

Modern Temperance Reform.

In reply to a query as to the status of the "modern temperance reform" our editor-in-chief sent out the following: 1. I take it that what we now mean by the temperance reform is personal prohibition, legal prohibition, political prohibition and prohibition by woman's ballot. 2. Its present status is like that of John Brown's soul, it still "goes marching on." 3. The duty of its friends is to illustrate and enforce its fourfold lines of work by means of voice and pen and prayer. Religion, science, common sense and the steadily growing sentiment of human brotherhood are all with us. The cause can no more fail than gravitation can petrify.—Union Signal.

CANDIDATES in Elmore county have announced themselves for some of the offices, and the Pops are in it.

IN Shelby county the Populists have decided to hold a primary election on March 19. Several candidates have already annouced for the various offices.

AUTAUGA county has four Democratic candidates for probate judge already announced. If there are any Populist candidates they are keeping in the dark.

CHILTON county should be represented at the Good Roads convention to be held at Anniston, February 15 and 16. There are worse roads to be found than those in this county, but our roads might easily be improved. Let us send a delegation to the convention.

THIS cold spell is an undoubted blessing to the South. With several cases of yellow fever in Mississippi in January it is probable an epidemic of the dread disease may be looked forward to this summer. But this severe weather will do more good than all the quarantine connections can accomplish.

The policy of waiting for everyone else to act has not been a success in recent elections, and it would not appear that anything is to be gained in Chilton by waiting for anything or anyone. It would seem very desirable for the County Executive Committee to meet and come to some decision. Is it to be a primary election or a convention?

ONE of the first things we hope to see the new Clanton town council proceed with is the establishment of a volunteer fire department. There is no need for an expensive outfit, but the town could, and should, purchase a large number of water buckets and some well-made light ladders and a truck. These kept in some convenient place and in charge of someone appointed for that purpose, with the aid of a well drilled bucket company, would reduce the risk of a disastrous conflagration to a minimum.

German Crosby has surrendered to serve out the ten years sentence imposed upon him by the circuit court at its fall term, 1895. It will be remembered that Germen Crosby and William Martin, both convicted of murder, escaped jail soon after their conviction by sawing the bars of their cell in the jail at Clanton. Martin was soon afterward caught and is now serving his 15-year sentence, while Crosby enjoyed freedom's air until a few days since, when he voluntarily surrendered to serve out his sentence, going to the Hand Lumber Company at Dolive, Ala., who employ state and county convicts. He is at present working there.

Mr. Ward L. Smith, of Fredericktown, Mo., was troubled with chronic diarrhoea for over thirty years. He had become fully satisfied that it was only a question of a short time until he would have to give up. He had been treated by some of the best physicians in Europe and America but got no permanent relief. One day he picked up a newspaper and chanced to read an advertisement of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy. He got a bottle of it, the first dose helped him and its continued use cured him. For sale by J. S. Johnson, Jr., druggist.

MULES AS TIMEKEEPERS.

When They Have Done Their Trick on the Towpath, They Quit.

It was just before 7 o'clock in the morning and the sun had just come enough way from across the sea to climb up part way on the big globe and cast a pale gray light over the awakening city. Laborers and shopgirls were hurrying to work, shivering in the chill air that marked the sudden appearance of winter.

On the bridge crossing the canal at the weighlock two men stood watching the approaching boats, and yawning and stretching in contemplation of another day's work. One was a canal employee.

"See those sleepy mules," said he, as he stretched himself again sympathetically. "See that clock over there in the tower of the railroad station across the river. Two minutes of 7. Bet you those mules will give the time first before the whistle blows. They're great on time. Know it better'n you do. Just watch."

The three gaunt beasts, with their ears flapping in apparent forgetfulness, were urged into a trot over the bridge, and the two men dodged the towline that slipped over the bridge railing to the other side of the canal.

It was one minute of 7. The mules stopped on the towpath.

All three loudly brayed, and the chorus of "Enh hows" awoke the sleeping people along the canal bank for hundreds of yards. And then the whistles in all the factories sent out steam into the cold air and in tones shrill and somber sounded the beginning of the day's work.

"Wot I tell you? Them mules beat 'em out by a minute," remarked the canal employee leaning on the railing of the bridge. "They won't go no further. They know it's time for feed and rest. See the boatman. They're going to take a stub and put on a new team."

Lines were thrown and in a few minutes the canalboats were tied fast to the bank. Three dejected looking mules, still munching a wisp of hay, scrambled up the gangplank, and their places in the stable of the forward part of the boat were soon taken by the timekeepers.

"Way, those mules," remarked the canal man on the bridge, as he watched the new team starting under way and the towline stretching as the lines were cast off, "know more about the time of day than you do unless you look at your watch. They work just so many hours. They go along the towpath with heads cast down and ears drooping, to be awakened occasionally with the whip, when they have to hustle across bridges and take up the slack of the towline, but when breakfast or dinner or supper time comes, why you can bank all your money on it every time that they'll holler within a minute of the right time whether it rains or snows, whether it's dark as pitch or the sun shines out clear and bright. They may call 'em jackasses, but there's wuss that wears pants."—Rochester Union and Advertiser.

How to Look Good.

Good looks are really more than skin deep, depending entirely on a healthy condition of all the vital organs. If the liver be inactive, you have a bilious look; if your stomach be disordered, you have a dyspeptic look; if your kidneys be affected, you have a pinched look. Secure good health, and you will surely have good looks. "Electric Bitters" is a good Alterative and Tonic. Acts directly on the stomach, liver and kidneys. Purifies the blood, cures pimples, blotches and boils and gives a good complexion. Every bottle guaranteed. Sold at all Drug Stores

A newspaper in Ohio recently brought suit against 43 men who did not pay their subscription and obtained a judgment in each case for the amount of each claim. Of these, 28 made affidavit that they owned no more than the law allowed, thus preventing attachment. Then under a decision of the supreme court, they were arrested for petit larceny and bound over in the sum of $300 each. All but six went to jail. The new postal law makes it larceny to take a paper and refuse to pay for it—Ex.

Political Pointers.

People's Press Bureau, St. Louis, Mo., Feb. 2, 1898.

Lyman J. Gage, secretary of the treasury, has recently been up to Philadelphia, where he addressed the commercial clubs and asserted that in spite of free silver heresies and Bryanism, prosperity has returned. He further declaired that larg numbers of factories had increased wages, many returning to the wage schedule of '93. These remarks were not applauded.

In spite of protestations from men of every party President McKinley has seated Jos. McKenna of California, on the Supreme bench. It is a bit of the irony of fate that the first matter submitted to this tool of the trust should be the constitutionality of the Texas anti-trust law.

The manifesto—joint or separate—to be issued by the chairmen of the Populist, Democratic and Silver Republican national chairmen is looked for with great interest, although the union they will recommend is already a foregone conclusion among reformers.

The Populists and Silver Republicans of Illinois have served notice on the Democratic state committee that they will, if not recognized, fight the Democrats.

The State Democratic committee of Missouri at its meeting in St. Louis, January 24, passed resolutions commending the Populists for what they had done to help redeem the state from Republican misrule and advised fusion on honorable terms in future with both Populists and Silver Republicans.

Mrs. Mary Ellen Lease, once of Kansas, now of Greater New York, recently occupied the pulpit of Rev. Dixon of that city, preaching to a crowded house on the theme "Christ or Ceasar."

The Monetary convention met at Indianapolis, January 25, and proceeded to lay plans for regulating and putting on a "sound" basis the finances of this country. Hugh H. Hanna, brother of the recognizable Mark, was the presiding officer. About 400 delegates were in attendance.

Caller—Excuse the lateness of the hour, Mr. Homeleigh, but I could not resist the temptation to be the bearer of good news. You will be glad to hear the supreme court has just handed down a decision in the case we have been conducting for you, and that it is in your favor. I congratulate you, my dear sir, on the successful termination of your long struggle, and I trust you may live many years to enjoy the large fortune of which you may now at any time take possess—

Consumption

Will SCOTT'S EMULSION cure consumption? Yes and no. Will it cure every case? No. What cases will it cure then? Those in their earlier stages, especially in young people. We make no exaggerated claims, but we have positive evidence that the early use of of Cod-liver oil with Hypophosphites of Lime and Soda in these cases results in a positive cure to a large number. In advanced cases, however, where a cure is impossible, this well-known remedy should be relied upon to prolong life surprisingly.

HOW TO FIND OUT.

Fill a bottle or common glass with urine and let it stand twenty-four hours; a sediment or settling indicates an unhealthy condition of the kidneys. When urine stains linen it is positive evidence of kidney trouble. Too frequent desire to urinate or pain in the back, is also convincing proof that the kidneys and bladder are out of order.

WHAT TO DO.

There is comfort in the knowledge so often expressed, that Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, the great kidney remedy fulfills every wish in relieving pain in the back, kidneys, liver, bladder and every part of the urinary passages. It corrects inability to hold urine and scalding pain in passing it, or bad effects following use of liquor, wine or beer, and overcomes that unpleasant necessity of being compelled to get up many times during the night to urinate. The mild and the extraordinary effect of Swamp-Root is soon realized. It stands the highest for its wonderful cures of the most distressing cases. If you need a medicine you should have the best. Sold by druggists, price fifty cents and one dollar. You may have a sample bottle and pamphlet both sent free by mail Mention THE BANNER and send your address to Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N.Y. The proprietor of this paper guarantees the genuineness of this offer.

REDEMPTION.

MORNING.

I will sing you a song of a beautiful dream
Which came with the morning's birth,
A dream of a babe with eyes tinged blue,
Red lips bestowing warm smiles on you
And a crown of elves of a golden hue
With a halo of sinless mirth.

NOON.

I will wail you a sob of a sorrowful dream
Which came with the noonday's glare,
A dream of a youth with eyes flushed red,
Blue lips exuding blood grapes had shed
And a crown of imps on indulgence fed
With a halo of sin's despair.

NIGHT.

I will moan you a dirge of a horrible dream
Which came with the day's demise,
A dream of a man with eyes blanched white,
Pale lips and palsied with guilty fright
And a crown of lambent satanic light
With a halo of hellish guise.

DAWN.

I will chant you a psalm of a glorious dream
Which came with the stars' decline,
A dream of a soul with eyes grace dried,
Meek lips repentance had sanctified
And a crown of mercy which Christ supplied
With a halo of love divine.

Railroad Engineer

Testifies to Benefits Received From Dr. Miles' Remedies.

THERE is no more responsible position on earth than that of a railroad engineer. On his steady nerves, clear brain, bright eye and perfect self command, depend the safety of the train and the lives of its passengers. Dr. Miles' Nervine and other remedies are especially adapted to keeping the nerves steady, the brain clear and the mental faculties unimpaired.

Engineer F. W. McCoy, formerly of 1323 Broadway, Council Bluffs, but now residing at 3110 Humboldt St., Denver, writes that he suffered for years from constipation, causing sick, nervous and bilious headaches and was fully restored to health by Dr. Miles' Nerve & Liver Pills. I heartily recommend Dr. Miles' Remedies.

No More to See.

A young fellow who drank much more than was good for him was advised by his friends to take the gold cure, but he refused. "But," protested his friends, "your physician says that if you keep on drinking you will surely soon go blind. Now, the question is simply this, Do you prefer being cured of the drink habit and retaining your sight, or do you prefer to keep on drinking and go blind?" The young man paced the floor for some time, and was in a brown study. Finally he turned to his friends, and, with a resigned expression of countenance, replied, "Well, I guess I've seen about everything."—San Francisco Argonaut.

THE CROSS AND CROWN

Is the title of a treatise on the doctrine of perfection or sanctification, by A. L. Pattillo, of Verbena, now in the press. It is written in a plain, homely fashion by one deeply impressed with the necessity of Christians living a perfect life, who desires to see all professing religion imbued with the same spirit. The Author, who is also a poet, has written several poems, all on religious subjects. The whole when complete will make a book of over 200 pages, bound in a stiff board cover, which at the small charge of 50 cents, should speedily exhaust the edition.

This book has a double claim on the people of Chilton county and should find a place in every home in the county, from the fact that it is entirely a home production, being the first book ever written, printed, bound and published in Chilton. It will be ready early in October. Price only 50 cents. Orders can be sent to THE BANNER, Clanton, or to A. L. Pattillo, Verbena.

Notice to Non-Resident.

The State of Alabama, Chilton county.

In Chancery at Clanton, Alabama, Seventh District, North-eastern Chancery Division. January 29, 1898.

Nannie Davis, complainant, vs. A. Oscar Davis, defendant.

In this cause it is made to appear to the Register, by the affidavit of W. M. Adams, that the Defendant, A. Oscar Davis, is a non-resident of the State of Alabama, and that his residence and post office address is Comanche, Comanche county, State of Texas, and further, that in the belief of said affiant, the Defendant is over the age of twenty-one years.

It is therefore ordered by the Register that publication be made in the Banner, a newspaper published in Clanton, once a week for four consecutive weeks, requiring him, the said A. Oscar Davis, to answer or demur to the same within thirty days after the 1st day of March, 1898, and failing so to do a decree pro confesso will be taken against him in said cause.

Done at office in Clanton, Alabama, this 29th day of January, 1898.

GET WELL

If you are weak and thin, nervous, dyspeptic and generally run down you need a tonic which will make good blood and build you up.

DR. HARTER'S IRON TONIC

has restored thousands of sufferers to health—will cure you. One of the thousands of grateful testimonials we have received in the last 42 years.

Convalescent Home, New Orleans, La.

I used one bottle of Dr. Harter's Iron Tonic for nyself. I was weak from overwork. It braced me up and set my nervous system right, and now I am as strong and well as ever. I then had another bottle on a weak patient's recommend and nearly walked an attack of malaria. He gained strength and soon was at work as well as ever. I can truthfully recommend Dr. Harter's Iron Tonic to be the best I have ever tried, and hope it will be the good fortune of many to get its benefits as I have done.

ALL DRUGGISTS

CANDY CATHARTIC

..... CASCARETS taste good. So do they like candy. They remove any bad taste in the mouth, leaving the breath sweet and perfumed. It is a real pleasure to take them instead of nauseating liquids or unpleasant pills.

PURELY VEGETABLE

..... CASCARETS are purely vegetable and contain no mercurial or other mineral poison. They are made of the latest remedies discovered and are a scientific combination never before put together in any form.

ANTISEPTIC LAXATIVE

..... CASCARETS are antiseptic. That means they stop undigested food from souring in the stomach, prevent fermentation in the bowels and kill disease germs of any kind that breed and feed in the system.

LIVER STIMULANT

..... CASCARETS tone the stomach and bowels and stimulate the lazy liver, making it work. They strengthen the bowels and put them into vigorous healthy condition, making their action easy and natural.

BOON FOR MOTHERS

..... CASCARETS increase the flow of milk in nursing mothers. A tablet eaten by the mother makes her milk mildly purgative and has a mild but certain effect on the baby, the only safe laxative for the babe-in-arms.

PLEASE THE CHILDREN

..... CASCARETS are liked by the children. They taste good and do good, stop wind-colic and cramps, and kill and drive off worms, and all kinds of parasites that live in and feed on the bowels of the growing child.

CURE GUARANTEED

..... CASCARETS, taken patiently, persistently, are guaranteed to cure any case of constipation, no matter how old and obstinate, or your purchase money will be cheerfully refunded by your own druggist.

HEALTH FOR 10 CENTS

..... CASCARETS are sold by all druggists for 10c., 25c., 50c. a box, according to size. A 10c box will prove their merit and put you on the right road to perfect and permanent health. Don't rush today.

Don't judge CASCARETS by other medicines you have tried. They are new, unlike anything else that's sold, and infinitely superior.

CANDIDATES in Elmore county have announced themselves for some of the offices, and the Pops are in it.

IN Shelby county the Populists have decided to hold a primary election on March 19. Several candidates have already annouced for the various offices.

AUTAUGA county has four Democratic candidates for probate judge already announced. If there are any Populist candidates they are keeping in the dark.

CHILTON county should be represented at the Good Roads convention to be held at Anniston, February 15 and 16. There are worse roads to be found than those in this county, but our roads might easily be improved. Let us send a delegation to the convention.

THIS cold spell is an undoubted blessing to the South. With several cases of yellow fever in Mississippi in January it is probable an epidemic of the dread disease may be looked forward to this summer. But this severe weather will do more good than all the quarantine connections can accomplish.

The policy of waiting for everyone else to act has not been a success in recent elections, and it would not appear that anything is to be gained in Chilton by waiting for anything or anyone. It would seem very desirable for the County Executive Committee to meet and come to some decision. Is it to be a primary election or a convention?

ONE of the first things we hope to see the new Clanton town council proceed with is the establishment of a volunteer fire department. There is no need for an expensive outfit, but the town could, and should, purchase a large number of water buckets and some well-made light ladders and a truck. These kept in some convenient place and in charge of someone appointed for that purpose, with the aid of a well drilled bucket company, would reduce the risk of a disastrous conflagration to a minimum.

German Crosby has surrendered to serve out the ten years sentence imposed upon him by the circuit court at its fall term, 1895. It will be remembered that German Crosby and William Martin, both convicted of murder, escaped jail soon after their conviction by sawing the bars of their cell in the jail at Clanton. Martin was soon afterward caught and is now serving his 15-year sentence, while Crosby enjoyed freedom's air until a few days since, when he voluntarily surrendered to serve out his sentence, going to the Hand Lumber Company at Dolive, Ala., who employ state and county convicts. He is at present working there.

Mr. Ward L. Smith, of Fredericks-town, Mo., was troubled with chronic diarrhoea for over thirty years. He had become fully satisfied that it was only a question of a short time until he would have to give up. He had been treated by some of the best physicians in Europe and America but got no permanent relief. One day he picked up a newspaper and chanced to read an advertisement of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy. He got a bottle of it, the first dose helped him and its continued use cured him. For sale by J. S. Johnson, Jr., druggist.

MULES AS TIMEKEEPERS.

When They Have Done Their Trick on the Towpath, They Quit.

It was just before 7 o'clock in the morning and the sun had just come enough way from across the sea to climb up part way on the big globe and cast a pale gray light over the awakening city. Laborers and shopgirls were hurrying to work, shivering in the chill air that marked the sudden appearance of winter.

On the bridge crossing the canal at the weighlock two men stood watching the approaching boats, and yawning and stretching in contemplation of another day's work. One was a canal employee.

"See those sleepy mules," said he, as he stretched himself again sympathetically. "See that clock over there in the tower of the railroad station across the river. Two minutes of 7. Bet you those mules will give the time first before the whistle blows. They're great on time. Know it better'n you do. Just watch."

The three gaunt beasts, with their ears flapping in apparent forgetfulness, were urged into a trot over the bridge, and the two men dodged the towline that slipped over the bridge railing to the other side of the canal.

It was one minute of 7. The mules stopped on the towpath.

All three loudly brayed, and the chorus of "Enh hows" awoke the sleeping people along the canal bank for hundreds of yards. And then the whistles in all the factories sent out steam into the cold air and in tones shrill and somber sounded the beginning of the day's work.

"Wot I tell you? Them mules beat 'em out by a minute," remarked the canal employee leaning on the railing of the bridge. "They won't go no further. They know it's time for feed and rest. See the boatman. They're going to take a snub and put on a new team."

Lines were thrown and in a few minutes the canalboats were tied fast to the bank. Three dejected looking mules, still munching a wisp of hay, scrambled up the gangplank, and their places in the stable of the forward part of the boat were soon taken by the timekeepers.

"Why, those mules," remarked the canal man on the bridge, as he watched the new team starting under way and the towline stretching as the lines were cast off, "know more about the time of day than you do unless you look at your watch. They work just so many hours. They go along the towpath with heads cast down and ears drooping, to be awakened occasionally with the whip, when they have to hustle across bridges and take up the slack of the towline, but when breakfast or dinner or supper time comes, why you can bank all your money on it every time that they'll holler within a minute of the right time whether it rains or snows, whether it's dark as pitch or the sun shines out clear and bright. They may call 'em jackasses, but there's wuss that wears pants."—Rochester Union and Advertiser.

How to Look Good.

Good looks are really more than skin deep, depending entirely on a healthy condition of all the vital organs. If the liver be inactive, you have a bilious look; if your stomach be disordered, you have a dyspeptic look; if your kidneys be affected, you have a pinched look. Secure good health, and you will surely have good looks. "Electric Bitters" is a good Alterative and Tonic. Acts directly on the stomach, liver and kidneys. Purifies the blood, cures pimples, blotches and boils and gives a good complexion. Every bottle guaranteed. Sold at all Drug Stores

A newspaper in Ohio recently brought suit against 43 men who did not pay their subscription and obtained a judgment in each case for the amount of each claim. Of these, 28 made affidavit that they owned no more than the law allowed, thus preventing attachment. Then under a decision of the supreme court, they were arrested for petit larceny and bound over in the sum of $300 each. All but six went to jail. The new postal law makes it larceny to take a paper and refuse to pay for it—Ex.

People's Press Bureau, St. Louis, Mo., Feb. 2, 1898.

Lyman J. Gage, secretary of the treasury, has recently been up to Philadelphia, where he addressed the commercial clubs and asserted that in spite of free silver heresies and Bryanism, prosperity has returned. He further declaired that larg numbers of factories had increased wages, many returning to the wage schedule of '93. These remarks were not applauded.

In spite of protestations from men of every party President McKinley has seated Jos. McKenna of California, on the Supreme bench. It is a bit of the irony of fate that the first matter submitted to this tool of the trust should be the constitutionality of the Texas anti-trust law.

The manifesto—joint or separate—to be issued by the chairmen of the Populist, Democratic and Silver Republican national chairmen is looked for with great interest, although the union they will recommend is already a foregone conclusion among reformers.

The Populists and Silver Republicans of Illinois have served notice on the Democratic state committee that they will, if not recognized, fight the Democrats.

The State Democratic committee of Missouri at its meeting in St. Louis, January 24, passed resolutions commending the Populists for what they had done to help redeem the state from Republican misrule and advised fusion on honorable terms in future with both Populists and Silver Republicans.

HOW TO FIND OUT.

Fill a bottle or common glass with urine and let it stand twenty-four hours; a sediment or settling indicates an unhealthy condition of the kidneys. When urine stains linen it is positive evidence of kidney trouble. Too frequent desire to urinate or pain in the back, is also convincing proof that the kidneys and bladder are out of order.

WHAT TO DO.

There is comfort in the knowledge so often expressed, that Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, the great kidney remedy fulfills every wish in relieving pain in the back, kidneys, liver, bladder and every part of the urinary passages. It corrects inability to hold urine and scalding pain in passing it, or bad effects following use of liquor, wine or beer, and overcomes that unpleasant necessity of being compelled to get up many times during the night to urinate. The mild and the extraordinary effect of Swamp-Root is soon realized. It stands the highest for its wonderful cures of the most distressing cases. If you need a medicine you should have the best. Sold by druggists, price fifty cents and one dollar. You may have a sample bottle and pamphlet both sent free by mail. Mention THE BANNER and send your address to Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N.Y. The proprietor of this paper guarantees the genuineness of this offer.

REDEMPTION.

MORNING.

I will sing you a song of a beautiful dream
Which came with the morning's birth,
A dream of a babe with eyes tinged blue,
Red lips bestowing warm smiles on you
And a crown of elves of a golden hue
With a halo of sinless mirth.

NOON.

I will wail you a sob of a sorrowful dream
Which came with the noonday's glare,
A dream of a youth with eyes flushed red,
Blue lips exuding blood grapes had shed
And a crown of imps on indulgence fed
With a halo of sin's despair.

NIGHT.

I will moan you a dirge of a horrible dream
Which came with the day's demise,
A dream of a man with eyes blanched white,
Pale lips and palsied with guilty fright
And a crown of lambent satanic light
With a halo of hellish guise.

DAWN.

I will chant you a psalm of a glorious dream
Which came with the stars' decline,
A dream of a soul with eyes grace dried,
Meek lips repentance had sanctified
And a crown of mercy which Christ supplied
With a halo of love divine.

No More to See.

A young fellow who drank much more than was good for him was advised by his friends to take the gold cure, but he refused. "But," protested his friends, "your physician says that if you keep on drinking you will surely soon go blind. Now, the question is simply this, Do you prefer being cured of the drink habit and retaining your sight, or do you prefer to keep on drinking and go blind?" The young man paced the floor for some time, and was in a brown study. Finally he turned to his friends, and, with a resigned expression of countenance, replied, "Well, I guess I've seen about everything."—San Francisco Argonaut.

THE CROSS AND CROWN

Is the title of a treatise on the doctrine of perfection or sanctification, by A. L. Pattillo, of Verbena, now in the press. It is written in a plain, homely fashion by one deeply impressed with the necessity of Christians living a perfect life, who desires to see all professing religion imbued with the same spirit. The Author, who is also a poet, has written several poems, all on religious subjects. The whole when complete will make a book of over 200 pages, bound in a stiff board cover, which at the small charge of 50 cents, should speedily exhaust the edition.

This book has a double claim on the people of Chilton county and should find a place in every home in the county, from the fact that it is entirely a home production, being the first book ever written, printed, bound and published in Chilton. It will be ready early in October. Price only 50 cents. Orders can be sent to THE BANNER, Clanton, or to A. L. Pattillo, Verbena.

Notice to Non-Resident.

The State of Alabama, Chilton county.

In Chancery at Clanton, Alabama, Seventh District, North-eastern Chancery Division, January 20, 1898.

Nannie Davis, complainant, vs. A. Oscar Davis, defendant.

In this cause it is made to appear to the Register, by the affidavit of W. M. Adams, that the Defendant, A. Oscar Davis, is a non-resident of the State of Alabama, and that his residence and post office address is Comanche, Comanche county, State of Texas, and further, that in the belief of said affiant, the Defendant is over the age of twenty-one years.

It is therefore ordered by the Register that publication be made in the Banner, a newspaper published in Clanton, once a week for four consecutive weeks, requiring him, the said A. Oscar Davis, to answer or demur to the same within thirty days after the 1st day of March, 1898, and failing so to do a decree pro confesso will be taken against him in said cause.

Done at office in Clanton, Alabama, this 20th day of January, 1898.

Convalescent Home, New Orleans, La.

I used one bottle of Dr. Harter's Iron Tonic for myself. I was weak, run down by overwork. It braced me up and set my nervous system right, and now I am as strong and well as ever. I used another bottle on a weak patient of mine, and quickly was after an attack of malaria. He gained strength and soon was at work as well as ever. I can truthfully recommend Dr. Harter's Iron Tonic to be the best I have ever tried, and hope it will be the good fortune of many to get its benefits as I have done.

Yours truly, R. PARKER, Founder.

CANDY CATHARTIC

Cascarets

CURE CONSTIPATION

10¢ 25¢ 50¢

ALL DRUGGISTS

CANDY CATHARTIC — ..... CASCARETS taste good. Eat them like candy. They remove any bad taste in the mouth, leaving the breath sweet and perfumed. It is a real pleasure to take them instead of nauseating liquids or common pill.

PURELY VEGETABLE — ..... CASCARETS are purely vegetable and contain no mercurial or other mineral poison. They are made of the latest remedies discovered and are a scientific combination never before put together in any form.

ANTISEPTIC LAXATIVE — ..... CASCARETS are antiseptic. That means they stop undigested food from souring in the stomach, prevent fermentation in the bowels and kill disease germs of any kind that breed and feed in the system.

LIVER STIMULANT — ..... CASCARETS tone the stomach and bowels and stimulate the lazy liver, making it work. They strengthen the bowels and put them into vigorous, healthy condition, making their action easy and natural.

BOON FOR MOTHERS — ..... CASCARETS increase the flow of milk in nursing mothers. A tablet eaten by the mother makes her milk mildly purgative and has a mild but certain effect on the baby, the only safe laxative for the babe-in-arms.

PLEASE THE CHILDREN — ..... CASCARETS regulated by tastefulness. They taste good and do good. Stop wind-colic and cramps, and kill and drive off worms, and all kinds of parasites that live in the bowels of the growing child.

CURE GUARANTEED — ..... CASCARETS, taken patiently, persistently, are guaranteed to cure any case of constipation, no matter how old and obstinate, or purchase money will be cheerfully refunded by your own druggist.

HEALTH FOR 10 CENTS — ..... CASCARETS are sold by all druggists for 10c., 25c., 50c. a box, according to size. A 10c box will prove their merits and put you on the right road to perfect and permanent health. Don't rush doing.

Don't judge CASCARETS by other medicines you have tried. They are new, unlike anything else that's sold, and infinitely superior.

The only genuine. Beware of imitations!

HUNDREDS OF PEOPLE DYING

From Cold and Starvation on the New Foundland Coast.

ICE PACKS CUT OFF ALL COMMUNICATION

Harrowing News of Suffering Brought by the Steamer Portia—Vessels Penned in Huge Arctic Floes, and Many Succumb to the Cold.

The Red Cross Line steamer Portia arrived here four days overdue from St. Johns, New Foundland, and Halifax, after a desperate encounter with pack ice off the New Foundland coast, and with a harrowing tale of blizzards and destitution in the coast section of that country.

Hundreds of women and children, dead or dying from exposure and starvation with abundance close by, and hundreds more threatened with like fate, are the details of the condition of affairs brought by the Portia.

For four days the Portia was penned in by huge Arctic floes in plain sight of St. Johns, unable to move. She managed to escape by the merest accident.

Many other craft, several of them relief vessels, sent by Canadian government to succor the destitute fishermen, had to abandon their errands of mercy and return to St. John, where they were still in the ice when the Portia struggled into clear water.

ENCOURAGING INCREASE

In the Volume of Business Throughout the South, Says the Tradesman.

Business among Southern industries for the first month of the new year, as reported by the Tradesman's special correspondents, is very satisfactory, showing an encouraging increase in volume over the same period in 1897.

There is a large demand for all kinds of manufactured products. Prices, however, show but little change, though the tendency is upward.

The movement in iron is still characterized by activity, many mills being crowded beyond their capacity. Prices for the most part are firm and operators are confidently expecting an advance.

Among the most important new industries for the week the Tradesman reports the following: Brick works at Huntsville, Ala.; a $12,000 flour and grist mill at Gulfport, Miss., and flouring mills and Zolfo, Fla., Mint Hill, N. C., and Inman and New Market, Tenn.—ice factories at White Castle, La., Raleigh, N. C., and Graham, Va.; coal mines at Hanceville and Tuscumbia, Ala., and a quarry at Charleston, S. C.

A wheel factory will be established at Little Rock, Ark.; a 40-ton oil mill at Opelika, Ala., and one to cost $50,000 at Sherman, Tex. A sugar mill will be erected at Abbeville, La.; a $200,000 cotton yarn mill at Rossville, Ga.; another to cost the same amount at Albemarle, N. C., and a $16,000 knitting mill at Atlanta, Ga.

The Chronister Lumber Company, capital $50,000, has been chartered at Forest, Tex.; the Northwest Arkansas Lumber Company, capital $50,000, at Springfield, Ark.; a $25,000 saw and planing mill at Centreville, Ala., and other wood-working plants at Wynne, Ark.; Scranton, Miss., and High Point, N. C.

Concession From Venezuela.

Ex Representative Tazwell Ellett, of Virginia, has obtained from the Venezuelan government a concession for an American company to manufacture for a period of years in Venezuela alcohol and all alcoholic products, exempt from taxation of any kind. The concession granted Mr. Ellett enables the company to take into the country everything needed by them in the manufacture of liquor, free of duty.

An Order From Africa.

The Bloomsburg (Pa.) Car Manufacturing company has been awarded the contract to build 100 gondola cars by the Orange Free State Railway company, of South Africa. They will also build for the same company fifteen passenger cars similar to an American passenger coach, excepting a little smaller. These will be the first cars of this description built in America for use in Africa.

Suicide of a Train Wrecker.

Henry Goettel, a young German baker, after making a confession to the sheriff to the effect that Herman Breetz and himself wrecked a passenger train near Rivera, Fla., on the Florida East last Tuesday, committed suicide by hanging himself with a towel in the jail early Monday morning.

Louisianian Assassinated.

Sunday night John S. Hutchinson, a quiet and peaceable farmer, living two miles west of Tickfaw Station, in Tangipahoa parish, La., was murdered on his own front gallery by an unknown assassin. No theory can be advanced for his assassination. The murderer escaped.

AGED COUPLE MURDERED.

One Was Eighty and the Other Seventy Years of Age.

"Virginia Bill" Friley, aged 80 years, and his wife, about 70 years of age, were murdered Monday night at their home in Elliott county, Ky., and robbed of from $800 to $1,200. There is no clue to the murderers. A maul was the instrument used. No one was at home except the old couple. The crime is shrouded in mystery.

BIG COTTON MILL FOR GEORGIA.

A Northern Company Will Build a Large Mill in the South.

A decision has been reached by the New York Cotton Mills Company of Utica to practically move its colossal plants to Georgia. In Utica, N. Y., there are four large cotton mill companies, the Mohawk Valley, Utica Steam Cotton, the Capron and the New York mills. Together their series of mills are Utica's principal industry and more than 5,000 persons are employed there.

The New York Mills Company has decided to meet the southern competition by establishing an immense mill in Georgia. The company's plans have not been entirely made public, though an announcement to that effect has been given out, but the exact location is withheld. The capitalization will be $1,000,000.

FIFTY-FIFTH CONGRESS.

The House—Monday.

In the house today Mr. Boutelle, of Maine, reported back the two resolutions calling on the secretary of the navy for information as to the suitability of sites for an armor plate factory in the south, with the recommendation that they lay on the table. The report called attention to the fact that invitations had been issued for sealed proposals for the land, buildings and machinery for a government armor plate factory, which would be opened January 29, 1898, and that the secretary, when these were opened, would send a special report to congress containing all information.... Mr. Curtis, of Iowa, claimed the day for business from the District of Columbia committee, which consumed two hours ... The house then went into committee of the whole and resumed consideration of the Indian appropriation bill, and after completing seven pages the house adjourned.

The Senate.

At the opening of the senate today Mr. Walthall, of Mississippi, presented the credentials of H. D. Money to succeed the late Senator George and the oath of office was administered to Mr. Money.... Mr. Walthall presented a joint resolution adopted by the legislature of Mississippi urging the United States to intervene in the Cuban war. Referred to committee on foreign relations.... The Teller resolution was then laid before the senate. Mr. Turpin addressed the senate in support of the resolution.... Mr. Morgan rose under a question of personal privilege to reply to a published statement of Mr. Cleveland concerning Hawaiian annexation... The pension appropriation bill was called up and debated, but no action taken, and at 5 p. m. the senate adjourned.

The House—Tuesday.

In the house today a bill was passed granting American registration to the foreign built steamer Navajo. The house then went into committee of the whole and resumed consideration of the Indian appropriation bill. Mr. Smith, of Arizona, made an attack on the present system of educating the Indian. He declared that the Carlisle and Hampton schools were a mistake; that an Indian could not be civilized by teaching him how to read and write and sing psalms. The Indian, he said, must receive an industrial education, but it must be given him in the vicinity of his home; not in the east. In this bill he said $2,500,000 was wasted. .... A political debate was precipitated over the existence of prosperity. Among those who spoke were Messrs. Terry of Arkansas, Sims of Tennessee, Underwood and Wheeler of Alabama, and others.... Without reaching a vote on any of the bills the house adjourned.

The Senate.

The senate, on motion of Mr. Hoar, went into executive session today as soon as it convened.... At 12:15 p. m. the doors were opened and the senate proceeded to general business. Mr. Quay secured the passage of a bill to indemnify the state of Pennsylvania for money expended in 1864 for militia called into service by the government. The amount involved is $46,000.... Mr. Quay also reported the army appropriation bill.... Mr. Butler, of South Carolina, offered an amendment to the postoffice appropriation bill providing for an extension of the experiment of rural free delivery to every state and territory of the union, and to as many sections of those states and territories as possible.... Mr. Perkins called up the pension appropriation bill. The amendment proposed by Mr. Allen providing that the lowest pension paid by the government be $8 a month was ruled out of order and the bill was passed.... The Teller resolution was laid before the senate, over which a general debate arose. The remainder of the session was taken up in the discussion.

The House—Wednesday.

Without any preliminary business the house today went into committee of the whole and resumed consideration of the Indian appropriation bill. The pending amendment was that to strike out the appropriation for the Carlisle Indian school. The amendment was defeated by a vote of 29 to 65. On motion of Mr. Griffin, of Wisconsin, an amendment was adopted to appropriate $10,000 for an Indian school building at Tomah, Wis.... The conference report on the urgent deficiency bill was submitted and agreed to.... Several minor provisions in the Indian bill were ruled out on points of order. In all, ten pages of the bill were disposed of today. At 5:32 p. m. the house adjourned.

The Senate.

At the opening of the senate today Mr. Hale, of Maine, presented the report of the conferees on the urgent deficiency appropriation bill and the report was agreed to.... Upon motion of Mr. Vest the senate took up the Teller resolution. The debate was opened by Mr. Teller, the author of the resolution, who was followed by others, and after an extended discussion of the silver question the senate went into executive session and ten minutes later adjourned.

The House—Thursday.

In the house today a bill was passed making Santa Fe, N. M., the permanent capital of the territory.... The Lewis resolution calling upon the president for the authority under the constitution under which he negotiated a treaty that will bind the treasury to pay $4,000,000 to Hawaiian bondholders was tabled by a vote of 143 to 101.... The house then went into committee of the whole and resumed consideration of the Indian appropriation bill.... Mr. Hartman, silver republican from Montana, got the floor on a pro forma amendment, and made a fiery attack upon the republican party, relating to bimetallism.... Without further amendment the committee rose and the Indian bill was passed. The house then immediately went back into committee and took up the District of Columbia appropriation bill. The general debate drifted quickly into the question as to whether prosperity had come with the Dingley law.... At 5 o'clock the house adjourned.

The Senate.

After transacting some minor business the Teller resolution was laid before the senate, and after considerable discussion, it was agreed that the vote should be taken at 6 o'clock tomorrow afternoon, the last four hours of debate to be under the fifteen minutes rule. After this agreement had been reached Mr. Daniel resumed his speech began last evening. He was followed by Messrs. Lodge and Lindsey, of Kentucky, the latter with a set speech in support of the pending resolution. At the conclusion of a speech by Mr. Cockrell the senate adjourned.

The House—Friday.

This was private bill day in the house under the rules, but Mr. Grout, of Vermont, in charge of the District of Columbia appropriation bill, attempted to supplant the regular order with the consideration of that bill. This immediately caused a renewal of the fight over the bill to pay the book publishing company of the Methodist Episcopal church, South, $288,000 for damages sustained by it during the war, which had already consumed the entire time of two private bill days. The friends of the latter measure, under the leadership of Mr. Cooper, of Texas, rallied in opposition to the motion and defeated it on a rising vote—72 to 129. The roll call developed such an overwhelming majority in favor of the bill (the vote being 75 to 168) that Mr. Dalzell offered to make terms with the friends of the bill for the relief of the Methodist Book Publishing company and it was finally arranged that after debate until 4 o'clock, a vote should be taken directly on the bill. At 4 o'clock the bill was favorably reported to the house and on the demand of Mr. Dalzell, the vote on its passage was taken by yeas and nays. The bill was passed, 188 to 67.... The house then took a recess until 8 o'clock. The night session was devoted to pension legislation. No disposition to contest developed and the entire calendar of twenty-nine bills was cleared before the hour of adjournment, 10:30, arrived.

The Senate.

In accordance with agreement the senate convened at 10 a. m. today. By unanimous consent the routine business was waived, and Mr. Stewart, of Nevada, opened the last day's discussion of the Teller resolution. The entire day was devoted to the discussion, during which time many amendments to modify the resolution were made and put to a vote, all of which went down under the formidable silver majority in the senate. When the final vote was taken the vice president announced that "the yeas are 47 and the nays 32, and the resolution is agreed to." The Teller resolution is a practical reaffirmation of that of Stanley Matthews in 1878, and is as follows: "That all the bonds of the United States issued, or authorized to be issued, under the said acts of congress hereinbefore recited, are payable, principle and interest, at the option of the government of the United States in silver dollars or the coin of the United States, containing 412½ grains each of standard silver; and that to restore to its coinage such silver coins as a legal tender in payment of said bonds, principle and interest, is not in violation of the public faith nor in derogation of the rights of the public creditor."

The vote in detail:

Yeas—Messrs. Allen, Bacon, Bate, Berry, Butler, Cannon, Carter, Chandler, Chilton, Clark, Clay, Cockrell, Daniel, Gray, Harris, Heitfeld, Jones (Ark.), Kenny, Kyle, Lindsay, McEnery, McLaurin, Mallory, Mantle, Martin, Mills, Mitchell, Money, Morgan, Murphy, Pasco, Pettigrew, Pettus, Pritchard, Rawlings, Roach, Shoup, Smith, Stewart, Teller, Tillman, Turpie, Turner, Vest, Warren, White and Wolcott—47.

Nays—Messrs. Aldrich, Allison, Baker, Burrows, Caffery, Chilton, Davis, Fairbanks, Foraker, Gallinger, Gear, Hale, Hanna, Hansbrough, Hawley, Hoar, Lodge, McBride, McMillan, Mason, Morrill, Nelson, Perkins, Platt (Conn.), Platt (N. Y.), Quay, Sewall, Thurston, Wellington, Wetmore and Wilson—32.

Turley with Deboe, Faulkner with Elkins, Gorman with Frye, Jones (Nev) with Proctor, Walthall with Spooner.

The first named would in each case have voted with the sustaining the resolution and against the resolution and for the amendments.

There was no demonstration on the announcement, and at 7 p. m., on motion of Mr. Allison, the senate adjourned until Monday.

The House—Saturday.

At the opening of the session of the house today a bill to permit the building of a dam across the Mississippi river at Coon Rapids, at the northern limits of the city of Minneapolis, was passed. Immediately afterward the clerk of the senate appeared and transmitted the Teller resolution, which passed the senate last night. The announcement was greeted by a terrific outburst of applause from the democratic side of the house. No motion was made at the time and the resolution remained on the table.... The fortification appropriation bill was reported, and then on motion of Mr. Grout the house went into committee of the whole and resumed consideration of the District of Columbia appropriation bill. The general debate was not confined to the general subjects dealt with by the bill. It covered a wide range. The Teller resolution, the Cuban question, Hawaiian annexation, the tariff and other political topics were discussed. After completing seventeen pages of the bill the house at 5 p. m. adjourned.

The House—Monday.

The Teller resolution from the senate, declaring the bonds of the United States payable in either gold or silver at the option of the government, was taken up in the house today. There was a great deal of activity among the leaders of both sides before the house met in anticipation of a very exciting debate over the resolution, which those in control had decided to defeat before sundown. The members on both sides had been notified in advance and the attendance on the floor was very large. The struggle opened immediately after the journal, when Mr. Dingley of Maine, chairman of the ways and means committee, reported back the resolution with the recommendation that "it do not pass." The debate consumed the entire day, when at 5 o'clock the vote was taken, resulting in its defeat by a vote of 182 to 132. Party ranks were held intact on the vote and only three breaks occurred. Republicans cheered long and loud over their victory, and then at 5:35 the house adjourned.

The Senate.

John C. McLaurin was sworn in as senator from South Carolina to fill the unexpired term of the late Senator Earle.... The bill introduced by Mr. Allen, of Nebraska, providing that all pensioners now receiving less than $10 per month receive that amount after the bill's passage was reported adversely.... The agricultural appropriation bill was placed on the calendar.... Mr. Morgan presented a resolution requesting the president, if consistent with public service, to send to the senate the correspondence relating to the negotiations and exchange of ratifications upon a treaty between the United States and Great Britain relating to compensation for the seizure of British ships in Bering sea.... Mr. Foraker called up the bill providing for the purchase of the Kansas Pacific branch of the Union Pacific railroad. The bill went over.... The army appropriation bill was passed, carrying $23,143,492.... The legislative, executive and judicial appropriation bill, with slight amendments, was passed. The bill carried $21,505,245.... The senate then went into executive session and soon after adjourned.

THEY ARE DETERMINED.

Although Feeling Privation Deeply the Strikers Will Keep Up the Fight.

All is quiet in the New England strike cities. Although the operators are beginning to feel privation sharply there seems to be no wavering in their determination to keep up the fight. At New Bedford a larger number applied for aid at the offices of the overseers of the poor than at any time since the strike began. There several cold weather caused great suffering.

In view of various rumors about a compromise petition which was circulated at Biddeford, the strikers have again decided by a formal vote not to return to work except under the old schedule of wages.

How Aranguren Died.

The Herald's Havana correspondent gives these details of the killing of General Nestor Aranguren, the Cuban insurgent leader: Aranguren, with a small band, was surprised in a well concealed hut in Tapaste hills by Reina battalion under command of Colonel Benedicto. The insurgent general was seated at a table writing when the Spanish troops surrounded the house. At the first volley several of the rebel band fled, but Aranguren with four others was shot.

Five Months More.

General Arlons, at Havana, has said that Spain cannot carry on war in Cuba beyond July, and if by that time Cuba is not pacified Spain will be obliged to abandon it for lack of funds. He also expresses the belief that Senor Sagasta, the Premier, and the Minister of Colonies intend to abandon the island by July next.

Forty Below Zero.

Belated reports from remote places in northern New England show that the temperature was the lowest known in many years. In Lancaster, N. H., the mercury broke all records of the past twenty-five years. Forty below zero was reported from a number of places in Maine, New Hampshire and Vermont.

Lumberman Killed in Collision.

At Estell, Miss., an extra and a regular freight train on the Yazoo & Mississippi Valley railroad collided. As a result Jack W. Aldrich, a lumberman, was killed and Fireman Williams was seriously injured.

Almost Wiped Out of Existence.

The first fire that Ashburn, Ga., has ever had that amounted to anything occurred Monday. The fire started in the roof of Jeffrey & Robbins' store and in less than one hour and a half everything from J. S. Betts & Co's. brick store to the corner of North street was burned. Eleven stores, one warehouse and two dwellings were burned. The loss is estimated at $50,000.

Russians for the Far East.

The Odessa correspondent of The Times says a volunteer fleet will convey in the quickest time practicable over 10,000 Russians to the far east. The first cruiser, with 2,000 men, will leave within a few days.

Snow comes down in the winter and we goes up in the summer.

SUNDAY SCHOOL.

INTERNATIONAL LESSON COM... FOR FEBRUARY 6.

24. "No man can serve two masters: either he will hate the one and love the other; or else he will hold to the one, and despise the other. Ye cannot serve God and Mammon." There are but two masters, Christ and satan, God the Father and His Spirit, who in Christ have manifested their love for us and seek our eternal welfare, with all we need here, and sure to us, and the devil, who controls the world and the flesh and seeks our eternal ruin, giving us as a bait some of the things of earth for a season. The children of the King, on having received the Lord Jesus Christ as being made to Him a wisdom, righteousness, sanctification and redemption, are begotten of God, heirs of God, and joint heirs with Christ, being made to Him a new creation, and are looking for the city, and like Abraham, have respect unto the recompense of the reward and be laying up treasures not on the earth, affection set on things above, not on things on the earth, and are not seeking to please Him who hath called us.

25. Therefore I say unto you, take no thought for your life, what ye shall eat, or what ye shall drink, nor yet for your body, what ye shall put on. Is not the life more than meat, and the body than raiment? This is a wonderful saying unto you, is it not? In fact, too. He had got the Old Testament equivalent of "Thus saith the Lord" and should carry with it all confidence, for there is in it all power. I think I hear you saying the generations of all the fellows, and was counting on it will find it fourteen times in this one magnificent success Boston merit!

26. "Behold the fowls of the air: for they sow not, neither do they reap nor gather into barns, yet your Heavenly Father feedeth them. Are ye not much better than they? Are not five sparrows sold for two farthings, and not one of them is forgotten before God?" (Luke xii. 6). But you say life will not withhold food from the life, and He who made the body will surely supply raiment to clothe it. Do you who worry about these things realize that they have a Father in heaven who spared not His own Son, but delivered Him up for us all. Now shall He not with Him also freely give us all things? (Rom. viii. 32.)

27. "Which of you, by taking thought, can add one cubit unto his stature?" What shall we eat, or what shall we drink, or wherewithal shall we be clothed?" Not in your heart nor give utterance to such thoughts. Fret not is a command, given three times in Ps. xxxvii., 1, 7, 8, also one of "Trust in the Lord and do good; so thou dwell in the land, and verily thou shalt be fed." In Phil. iv., 6, it is written: careful (or anxious) for nothing." Weston says: "Anxiety for the things of this life is unnecessary and profitless, for our royal fiddler, the duke of Saxe-Coburg Gotha, is reported to have paid $5,000 knows, and God loves." He will provide for a Stradivarius violin. for His name is Jehovahjireh (Genesis 14, margin).

32. "For after all these things do the gentiles seek), for your Heavenly Father knoweth that ye have need of all these things." Leaves all worry and cares to them who have no father in heaven, but as children seemed worried and anxious that we might not feed and clothe them, still more so if they should go to others for these things, for which they should look to us alone.

33. "But seek ye first the kingdom of God and His righteousness, and all these things shall be added unto you." If I have been troubled with sciatic rheumatism and have been taking Hood's Sarsaparilla. I implored every day and now understand this, it means that having been made as well as I ever was in my life. I feel an heir of God through faith in Christ, we are to make it our one great business to years younger than I did before taking hasten His kingdom and the time when He shall reign in righteousness by letting Hood's Sarsaparilla. Wm. O'Brien, 2515 us use as He may please for any matter of Avenue, West Troy, New York. service in the matter of making Him known to all the world. When individual believers and churches and Sunday-schools do this for their own benefit, but to obey the commission of Math. xxviii., 19, 20; Mark xvi., 15; Luke xxiv., 47, then we shall have His exceeding abundance of blessing in every necessary way.

Make thou His service thy delight,
He'll make thy wants His care.

34. "Take therefore no thought for the morrow, for the morrow shall take thought for the things of itself. Sufficient unto the day is the evil thereof." The thought in last lesson on living by the day are appropriate here also. "We are not to worry about to-morrow we will do thus and so, but as the Lord will we shall live and do this or that" (Jas. iv., 13-15). Neither are we to borrow trouble about to-morrow's cares, but just to-day live with Him "in quietness and in confidence" (Isa. xxx., 15). "Doing as occasion serves you for God is with thee" (I Sam. x., 7).

Strength for to-day is all we need, for never shall be a to-morrow.
To-morrow shall prove but another to-day,
with its measure of joy or sorrow.

Receiver Asked For.

In the chancery court at Huntsville Austill filed a bill praying for a receiver for the Mobile, Jackson and Kansas City railroad, alleging that the road is insolvent and not able to pay its debts. He claims that he is a stockholder to the amount of $5,000, and that the road is otherwise indebted to him for services rendered as president in the sum of $25,000.

Demands Weyler's Imprisonment.

The public prosecutor of Spain demands a sentence upon Lieutenant General Weyler of two months' imprisonment.

Great Gathering of Game.

J. Tracy, of Stacyville, Maine, had an interesting and rather exciting experience a short time ago while in the woods on an exploring trip. He was in his camp by the side of a small pond about fifteen acres in extent, which abounds in trout, and is a favorite place for big game. He was sitting near this pond when he saw at one time fourteen deer, three moose, four black ducks, all within rifle shot.

Clothes.

"Coasting" on the Ice.

A friend of the listener is seen a night down in Maine. At a place which needn't be named there lives a small boy named Jonathan fellow, who is a third or fourth in of the poet, and he is a great too. One day this friend of the other was dozing past Jonathan's and saw the boy engaged at a distance in sliding down hill on a very crust on something that was sled. What could it be? Evident the scrutiny of the passer-by was observed by the boy, for he stopped his sliding and called out aloud: "I'm coasting on the Bible! And it's the fact, too. He had got the Old Testament equivalent of "Thus saith the Lord" and should carry with it all confidence, for there is in it all power. I think I hear you saying the generations of all the fellows, and was counting on it will find it fourteen times in this one magnificent success Boston merit!

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for testimonials. Address

EMINENT DIVINES' SERMON.

DISCOURSES BY TWO ABLE WORKERS IN GOD'S VINEYARD.

The Eleventh of the New York Herald's Competitive Sermons is on "The Sin of Despising Others"—Dr. Talmage Preaches on "Traps For the Unwary."

"He that despiseth his neighbor sinneth." Prov. xiv., 21.

There is a great deal of sin in the world which the ordinary conscience neither recognizes nor condemns. With most of us the standard of right and wrong is purely conventional. If we do not break the letter of the Ten Commandments; if we keep clear of acts which public opinion forbids; if we maintain a character upon which society sets no brand, then we feel at peace within ourselves and make sure that we are God's elect.

We do not see what subtle and far-reaching things good and evil are—how they interweave themselves into all our acts, our words and motives, and secret thoughts even; and how they depend not upon the fashion of the hour or the place, but upon eternal and unchangeable principles. An enlightened and sensitive conscience would see sin in a thousand things which pass with the majority as indifferent, if not actually praiseworthy. It is not in nice points of religious observance that places our moral character above suspicion half so much as in those weightier matters of justice and mercy and truth which are involved in all the business and intercourse of daily life. Thousands who would tremble to participate in any of the so-called amusements of society, and who are as strict and ostentatious as the Pharisees in regard to prayer and other duties are yet living in such an atmosphere of uncharitableness and wrong that they are actually further from the kingdom of heaven than the very publicans and harlots. In a terse, direct and emphatic way a form of guilt is pointed out by Solomon which we seldom think of, yet which we are all very prone to fall into, and which is one of the peculiarly besetting sins of that large class of men who are disposed to be religious without being godly. The chief characteristic of these people is to trust in themselves that they are righteous, and to treat others in a way which unmistakably declares, "Stand aloof, for we are holier than you," and they are so far from thinking such spiritual haughtiness sinful that they regard it as an actual proof of their divine sonship. Such conduct never fails to insure moral resentment and to elicit the rebuke, "He that despiseth his neighbor sinneth."

The parable of the Good Samaritan supplies a most beautiful explanation of the word "neighbor." It teaches that every man with whom we come in contact or relation is to be regarded and treated as our "neighbor." The fact that I know of a man's existence, and that I can in any way touch and influence him, is enough to bring me under responsibility in regard to him. The broad Atlantic may roll between us; whole continents and burning deserts and deadly swamps may separate us; but if there is any channel of communication between us any electric current, so to speak, by which sympathy may be created and love may act that man is as truly my neighbor as if we met in the same market or lived in the same street.

Notice what it is to despise our neighbor. To entertain mean and contemptuous thoughts of our neighbor is obviously to despise him. We should always remember that there is vastly more in common than there is of difference between the highest and most cultivated and the lowest and most ignorant. Frequently, however, we forget this, and from mere diversity of outward circumstances we look upon each other with feelings of haughty superiority and contempt. As a consequence the rich and the great sometimes undervalue and insult the poor and the lowly; and the poor and the lowly in return hate the rich and the great, and ascribe all their importance solely to their wealth and rank. Surely, in both cases, this is despising their neighbor forgetting their common humanity, their common dignity and their common origin.

To treat your neighbor with indifference, as if there were no ties binding you together, and no sympathy due from one to the other, is to despise him. The affinities of human nature are such that it is treason to place ourselves in proud isolation from the race to which we naturally belong, and grace upon the sufferings and helplessness of our kind with stoical indifference. Such conduct is not only reprehensible, it is actually sinful. It is sinful because it is a great wrong done to humanity. It rouses within man bitter, bad, resentful feelings, which sets class against class. Its tendency is to destroy self respect, and let a man once lose that and there is no telling what he may become.

Again, to despise one's neighbor is an offense against social unity. The social organism can only be held together by a true and proper recognition of the usefulness and necessity of each individual to the whole. Society is one only. Its members are manifold, but they are all knit together in the closest bonds.

There is no such thing as real independence. And hence for any man to despise his neighbor is just as wrong and foolish as it would be for the head to say to the feet, I have no need of you; for his influence, as far as it goes, operates to the disorganization of society, to the breaking up of that unity and sympathy upon which the general happiness and well being depend. Despising your neighbor is to sin against your own soul. By such conduct the good steps ever operating for the formation of your own character and the shaping of your own destiny are undervalued. We should act on each other. Every offense is felt by the whole. God, Humanity, is His child, the just and the sinful as well as the poor. If you despise his child, He says, "Inasmuch as ye have done it unto one of the least of these ye have done it unto Me."

TRAPS FOR THE UNWARY.

Various Pitfalls Exposed by the Rev. Dr. Talmage.

"I" said he, "did but taste a little honey with the end of the rod that was in my hand, and, lo, I must die." I Samuel xiv., 43.

The honey bee is a most ingenious architect. Who first taught the Greeks and Romans, and Germans, and Americans, and Britons, and Italians, and Spaniards, and Frenchmen how to build their hives? Who among insects, geometry drawing hexagons and pentagons, a freemason rearing the fields of poppies and aroma, wild-rose creature of God whose biography, written by Huber and Swammerdam, is an entertainment for any lover of nature.

Do you know that the swarming of the bees is divinely directed? The mother bee starts for a new home, and the noise of this flight rouses all the hives, and they must all swarm at that moment when it is the heat of the day, some say at noon, and they must die unless they leave their filled apartments, and they follow the mother bee and alight on the branches of a tree, and cling to each other and hold on until a committee of two or three scouts are sent to explore the region and found the pool, or a tree or rock not far off from a stream of water, and they hereset up a new colony, and ply their aromatic industries, and give themselves to the manufacture of the sacchariferous fluid. Bee who can tell the chemistry of that mixture of sweetness, part of it the very life of the bee, and part of it the life of the fields!

Plenty of this luscious product was hanging in the woods of Bethaven during the time of Saul and Jonathan. Their army was in pursuit of an enemy that by God's command must be exterminated. The soldiery were positively forbidden to stop to eat until the work was done. If they disobeyed they were accursed. Coming through the woods they found a place where the bees had been busy—a great honey manufactory. Honey gathered in the hollow of the trees until it had overflowed upon the ground in great profusion of sweetness. All the army obeyed orders and touched it not save Jonathan, and he not knowing the military order about abstinence dipped the end of a stick he had in his hand into the candied liquid, and as yellow and tempting it glowed on the end of the stick he put it to his mouth and ate the honey. Judgment fell upon him, and but for special intervention he would have been slain. In my text Jonathan announces his awful mistake: "I did but taste a little honey with the end of the rod that was in my hand, and lo, I must die." Alas, what multitudes of people in all ages have been damaged by forbidden honey, by which I mean temptation, delicious and attractive, but damaging and destructive.

Corrupt literature, fascinating but dreadful, comes in this category. Where one good, honest, healthful book is read now, there is a hundred made up of rhetorical trash consumed with avidity.

Corrupt literature is doing more to-day for the disruption of domestic life than any other cause. Elopements, marital intrigues, sly correspondence, fictitious names given at postoffice windows, clandestine meetings in parks, and at ferry gates, and in hotel parlors, and conjugal perjuries are among the ruinous results. When a woman, young or old, gets her head thoroughly stuffed with the modern novel she is in appalling peril. There is a wealth of good books coming forth from our publishing houses that leave no excuse for the choice of that which is debauching to body, mind and soul. Go to some intelligent man or woman and ask for a list of books that will be strengthening to your mental and moral condition. Life is so short and your time for improvement so abbreviated that you cannot afford to fill up with husks and cinders and debris.

Stimulating liquids also come into the category of temptation delicious but deathful. You say, "I cannot bear the taste of intoxicating liquor, and how any man can like it is to me an amazement." Well, then, it is no credit to you that you do not take it. Do not brag about your total abstinence, because it is not from any principle that you reject alcoholism, but for the reason that you reject certain styles of food—you simply don't like the taste of them. But multitudes of people have a natural fondness for all kinds of intoxicants. They like it so much that it makes them smack their lips to look at it. They are dyspeptic and they like to aid digestion; or they are annoyed by insomnia, and they take it to produce sleep; or they are troubled, and they take it to make them oblivious; or they feel happy, and they must celebrate their hilarity. They begin with mint julep sucked through two straws in the Long Branch piazza and end in the ditch, taking from a jug a liquid half kerosene and half whisky.

One would suppose that men would take warning from some of the ominous names given to intoxicants, and stand off from the devastating influence. You have noticed, for instance, that some of the restaurants are called "The Shades," typical of the fact that it puts a man's reputation in the shade, and his morals in the shade, and his prosperity in the shade, and his wife and children in the shade, and his immortal destiny in the shade. Now, I find on some of the liquor signs in all our cities the words "Old Crow," mightily suggestive of the carcass and the filthy raven that swoops upon it. Men and women without number slain of rum, but buried, and this evil is pecking at their glazed eyes, and pecking at their bloated cheek, and pecking at their destroyed manhood and womanhood, thrusting beak and claw into the mortal remains of what once was gloriously alive, but now morally dead. "Old Crow!" But alas! how many take no warning. Remember Jonathan and the forbidden honey in the woods at Bethaven.

Furthermore, the gamester's indulgence must be put in the list of temptations delicious but destructive. You who have crossed the ocean many times have noticed that always one of the best rooms has, from morning until late at night, been given up to gambling practices. I meet of men who went on board with enough for an European excursion who landed without money to get their baggage up to the hotel or railroad station.

State Legislatures have again and again sanctioned the mighty evil by passing laws in defense of race tracks, and many young men have lost all their wages at such so-called "meetings." Every man who voted for such infamous bills has on his hands and forehead the blood of these souls.

Stock-gambling comes into the same catalogue. It must be very exhilarating to go into the stock market and, depositing a small sum of money, run the chance of taking out a fortune. Many men are doing an honest and safe business in the stock market, and you are an ignoramus if you do not know that it is just as legitimate to deal in stocks as it is to deal in coffee, or sugar, or flour. But nearly all the outsiders who go there on a financial excursion lose all. The old spiders eat up the unsuspecting flies. I had a friend who put his hand on his hip-pocket and said in substance: "I have there the value of two hundred and fifty thousand dollars." His home is to-day penniless. What was the matter? Stock-gambling. Gambling is gambling, whether is stocks or breadstuffs, or dice, or race horse betting. Exhilaration at the start, but a raving brain, and a shattered nervous system, and a sacrificed property, and a destroyed soul at the last. Young men, buy no lottery tickets, purchase no prize packages, bet on no baseball games or yacht racing, have faith in live, square business, no mysterious circulars, proposing great income for small investments, drive away the buzzards that hover around our hotels trying to entrap strangers. Go out and make an honest living. Have God on your side, and be a candidate for heaven. Remember all the paths of sin are thronged with thieves at the start, and therefore plenty of helpful hands to fetch the gay charger to your door and hold the stirrup while you mount. But further on the horse plunges to the bit in a slough of despair.

The best honey is not like that which Jonathan took on the end of the rod and brought to his lips, but that which God puts on the banqueting table of mercy, at which we are all invited to sit. When a man may sit at the King's banquet, why will he go down the steps and contend for the refuse and bones of a hound's kennel? "Sweeter than honey and the honeycomb," says David, is the truth of God. "With honey out of the rock would I have satisfied thee," says God to the repentant. Here is honey gathered from the blossoms of trees of life, and with a rod made out of the wood of the Cross I dip it up for all your sons.

LITTLE BOY SAVES THREE.

Hero of Ten Years Pulls Playmates Out of the Water.

Through the heroism of Jimmie Quick, a lad of ten years, the lives of three little boys ranging from five to nine years old, were saved from drowning in Underhill Pond, in Hudson, N. Y.

The ice gave way while the lads were riding on hand sleds, and they all fell in the water.

Young Quick, who had been skating nearby, heard their cries for help and hurried to the spot. He threw himself upon his breast, and crawling to the edge of the hole, with a "shinny stick," succeeded in pulling the three lads, one after the other, out of the water to a place of safety.

Chester Thornton, age five, had gone down twice, and it was with the greatest exertion and at the risk of his own life that Quick finally pulled him out. An application will be made to the Volunteer Life Saving Corps at Washington to present to young Quick a medal for his brave deed.

SIGNALS FOR COACHMAN.

How His Movements May Be Controlled by a Push Button Device.

The luxurious French having tasted of the comfort and desirability of electric lamps in their railroad coaches and automobile carriages have now adopted it for use on ordinary horse-drawn cabs. While the storage batteries necessary for this are quite an additional load for the cabs, yet anything to surpass one's neighbor is fashion's dictum the world over. Added to this innovation is a method of signaling the driver instead of having to twist one's neck into a most uncomfortable position to speak to cabby through the little trap-door. The proposed Parisian improvement provides a small box in front of the driver, on which, by pressing various buttons inside the cab, the following words appear in a red light: "Left," "right," "walk," "faster," "stop," "turn," "home" and "slower."

As the electric power is required for the lamps, this little signal box consumes but an inappreciable amount of current and is of the greatest assistance.

NEWEST UNICYCLE.

Boston Man Cleverly Treats This Fascinating Subject.

Just what value there is in a unicycle has never been successfully proven, yet inventors go on turning out new examples with striking regularity. Mr. Thos. Tolson, of Boston, is the creator of the latest example in unicycles, which has been described as follows:

Within the outer rim is arranged a triangular frame, with a guide wheel at each point, the lower one of the three wheels serving as a driving wheel in addition.

Each crank of the driving sprocket has a double arm pivoted to its outer end. The downwardly extending arm has a stirrup to be operated by the foot, and the upwardly extending arm has a handle for hand service. The saddle is arranged to be moved back and forth on its carrying bar.

A Benefactress' Kind Act.

From the Evening News, Detroit, Mich.

Mrs. John Tansey, of 130 Baker Street, Detroit, Michigan, is one of those women who always know just what to do in all trouble and sickness. One that is a mother to those in distress. To a reporter she said:

"I am the mother of ten children and have raised eight of them. Several years ago we had a serious time with my daughter, which began when she was about sixteen years old. She did not have any serious illness but seemed to gradually waste away. Having never had any consumption in our family, as we come of good old Irish and Scotch stock, we did not think it was that. Our doctor called the disease by an odd name, which, as I afterward learned, meant lack of blood.

"It is impossible to describe the feeling John and I had as we noticed our daughter slowly passing away from us. We finally found, however, a medicine that seemed to help her, and from the first we noticed a decided change for the better, and after three months' treatment her health was so greatly improved you would not have recognized her. She gained in flesh rapidly and soon was in perfect health. The medicine used was Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People. I have always kept these pills in the house since and have recommended them to many people. I have told many mothers about them and they have effected some wonderful cures.

"Every mother in this land should keep these pills in the house, as they are good for many ailments, particularly those arising from impoverished or diseased blood, and weakened nerve force."

Enforced Agreement.

"Briggs and his wife seem to be a very congenial pair. What he says she agrees to, and what she says he backs up."

"Yes; but it's simply necessary in their case."

"How's that?"

"They live in a flat, and, of course, there's no room for argument there."

Her Opinion of Him.

Nan—Really now, Laura, Mr. Soppy seems greatly attached to you.

McELREE'S
Wine of Cardui

has demonstrated ten thousand times that it is almost infallible

FOR WOMAN'S PECULIAR WEAKNESSES,

irregularities and derangements. It has become the leading remedy for this class of troubles. It exerts a wonderfully healing, strengthening and soothing influence upon the menstrual organs. It cures "whites" and falling of the womb. It stops flooding and relieves suppressed and painful menstruation. For Change of Life it is the best medicine made. It is beneficial during pregnancy, and helps to bring children into homes barren for years. It invigorates, stimulates, strengthens the whole system. This great remedy is offered to all afflicted women. Why will any woman suffer another minute with certain relief within reach? Wine of Cardui only costs $1.00 per bottle at your drug store.

For advice, in cases requiring special directions, address, giving symptoms, the "Ladies' Advisory Department," The Chattanooga Medicine Co., Chattanooga, Tenn.

Rev. J. W. SMITH, Camden, S. C., says: "My wife used Wine of Cardui at home for falling of the womb and it entirely cured her."

A $2,000 Word!

This paper announces, in connection with The Atlanta Weekly Constitutution, a new offer in which everyone may have a chance to supply the missing word in this sentence:

"AT FIRST IT WAS CONSIDERED BY THE _____ AS A GOOD OMEN"

The sentence is taken from a well-known publication. The word is a familiar one, and it may readily suggest itself.

Contest Began Jan. 1--Ends March 1, '98

TO ENTER THIS CONTEST YOU MUST SUBSCRIBE FOR

In connection with this Clubbing Rate, we will, if you send your guess with the subscription price, forward all for you and thus

GIVE YOU A CHANCE AT THE MISSING WORD FUND

At the end of period covered by this contest The Constitution will pay out to the successful party or parties the full prize amount that has accrued in the contest. The plan is simple and these contests have become so popular and have been conducted with such absolute fairness to all that they have been widely copied after, but none have become equal to The Constitution's great original series.

IN ONE YEAR THE CONSTITUTION HAS PAID OUT NEARLY $6,000 IN CASH

in these missing word contests. It sets aside 10 per cent of the subscription fund received from subscribers guessing at the missing word, and this fund is given to the successful guesser or guessers in the contest. The fund is distributed with absolute fairness, and the fact that The Weekly Constitution has MORE THAN DOUBLE subscribers and pays it its patronizes no other paper from all guessers' subscriptions for this distribution fund shows that the amount to be divided at each interval is large enough to be worth striving for. It is not a catch-penny or a deceitful proposition, but the plan is open and simple and IS ADMITTED to the mails by the Post Office Department as a meritorious contest.

☞ The book from which the sentence is taken is deposited in a safety vault under seal and will be opened at the close of the contest before a competent committee, which makes the award after an examination of the subscription books.

In one of these contests there was only one successful guesser, who received more than $1,000, and in addition to this in one year $5,000 has been distributed among successful guessers.

Remember that, whether the missing word is supplied or not, it costs nothing to guess, and even though not successful, the guesser gets

THE GREATEST OF ALL WEEKLY NEWSPAPERS FOR ONE YEAR

Keep that in view and send your guess with your clubbing subscription for your home paper and The Weekly Constitution.

Should you already be a subscriber to your home paper, remit $1 to this paper for The Weekly Constitution for one year, and it will be forwarded to The Constitution with your guess.

The Constitution guarantees that the amount of the award will not be less than $500 in cash, and it may be as much as $2,000.

THE WEEKLY CONSTITUTION IS THE GREATEST WEEKLY NEWSPAPER IN THE WORLD. It is a TWELVE PAGE, SEVEN COLUMNS TO THE PAGE NEWSPAPER, containing EIGHTY-FOUR COLUMNS every week. It has no equal as a Weekly Newspaper in America; its news reports cover the world, and its correspondents and agents are to be found in almost every hailiwick of the Southern and Western States.

AS A MAGAZINE it prints more matter than is ordinarily found in any magazine in the country.
AS AN EDUCATOR it has done more to help himself, herself or family than a liberal education.
ITS SPECIAL FEATURES commend it especially to every farm home in America.
ITS FARM AND FARMERS' DEPARTMENT, its Woman's Department and its Children's Department are conducted under able editors and are especially attractive to those to whom these departments are assigned. The Constitution is Democratic in Politics, and it is a hearty advocate of the principles enunciated in the National Platform of the Party.

THE FOLLOWING ARE THE CONDITIONS OF THE CONTEST

Ten Per Cent of the Guessers' Subscriptions goes to the Fund to be divided. In other words if this Subscription Fund amounts to $20,000 for this period, then the fund to go to the successful guesser would be $2,000.

THE CONSTITUTION PUTS 10 PER CENT of the amount it receives for subscriptions from guessers entering the Missing Word Contest into a fund or distribution among those who name correctly the missing word. If only one contestant gets the right word, he or she will receive the entire fund. If more than one supplies the missing word, the same will be proportionately divided among the successful guessers.

THE CONDITION PRECEDENT FOR SENDING A GUESS at the Missing Word Contest and every guess must be accompanied by a yearly subscription to The Weekly Constitution. If sent through clubbing rates, the subscription in accordance of our club list offer, then as soon as the missing word will be forwarded. The guess must be sent with the subscription. Should one person send more than one answer he also will receive that his share of the fund for each correct answer. There will be no capital prize—everyone will get a first prize. Persons may guess as many times as they send subscriptions.

IN MAKING YOUR ANSWER do not write the sentence out in full—just say the Missing Word for the above particular period, designating it by

is the greatest Labor Organization the world has ever seen.

It is the only organization which, while striving to secure for wage-workers the best possible terms as to wages, hours and conditions, aims at reforming the causes of industrial injustice.

It secures to each trade and locality absolute control over its own trade or local affairs, yet its perfect organization enables its members to act unitedly, promptly, and, therefore, effectively when concentrated action becomes necessary to remedy injustice or to resist oppression.

It is pledged to work for the overthrow of the capitalistic system of production and exchange, yet, realizing that reforms can only be beneficial and permanent when they rest upon the convictions of a wisely educated people, it seeks to accomplish its objects only by appeals to reason and to science—never by force.

It is a secret organization only so far as secrecy is necessary to protect its members from wrong and persecution, and can never be used to shield wrong-doing.

Its doors are open to all who labor honestly and usefully either by hand or brain, without question or discrimination on account of creed, race or nationality.

WATCHING EMPLOYEES.

How Financial Institutions and Others Keep Track of Their Men.

It has become the custom elsewhere, and it is generally true in this city, that the employees in financial institutions are required to give bond, the amounts varying with the degree of responsibility of the duties which they perform. In addition to this, however, a supervision, varying in method, is maintained over each employee.

It is believed that the cultivation of expensive habits, the contraction of debts which indicate that employees are living beyond their salaries, and the association with undesirable characters all may be looked upon as furnishing ground for suspicion that, if the employee has not actually committed a breach of trust, he is in a fair way to meet a temptation which may prove too much for him.

It is therefore not unusual for an employee in such an institution to receive a summons to appear before the controlling official, and kindly, but firmly, to be given the option to change his course of life or to leave the institution.

It is also felt by those who are interested in the management of such enterprises that the confidence of the public is apt to be impaired when they know that men of bad habits and those keeping improper company are employed in that concern. It is therefore on this ground, as well as for the better security of the funds which are intrusted to their keeping, that financial institutions are in the habit of keeping such a close watch over the daily lives of their employees.

In the case of mercantile establishments, both large and small, in this city, it is not the custom to require bonds of employees except in the cases of a few. Nevertheless, the proprietors of such establishments find it necessary to guard against the danger of the dishonesty of employees, and it is stated that one of the best methods known to modern business men is that of noting the habits and the way of living of the employees.

In all large establishments there are a certain number of employees who occupy confidential positions. They are supposed to keep the members of the firm posted in regard to what is going on among the force of employees, and they, in turn, are inspected by the members of the firm. It is a matter of everyday occurrence that the head of a large establishment is notified that some employee has made some purchase or acquired some article, perhaps of small importance as wearing apparel, which seems to be an indication of extravagance.

Such a hint is very apt to lead to an investigation, and the head of the house is soon put in possession of facts which show how the suspected employee spends his time outside of business hours, who are his associates and other facts of a similar character. If what is learned seems to warrant it, the employee is informed that he must change his mode of life. It is believed that by following such methods the beginnings of wrongdoing are checked, and employees having a knowledge of the requirements of the firm in particular are in a measure forced to resist temptation to fail in their ways.—Washington Star.

A Charming Authoress.

She wasn't down on the programme, but all that the most interesting man at a Sorosis meeting recently was the author of "Some Emotions and a Moral." She sat upon the platform, and, like a lot of a bit like a woman would choose "John Oliver Hobbes" for a pen name. She was of medium height, plump in figure and possessed a pair of bright, rather restless brown eyes. Her hair was also brown and her complexion brilliant. When complimented upon her clever stories, she replied: "Oh, you are very kind, but I feel one bit clever over here. Everything's so clever. Why, I haven't met a stupid woman since I landed in America." Mrs. Craigie expressed herself especially delighted with Sorosis.—New York Evening Sun.

Poster Artists.

Only four or five women so far have been able to catch the peculiar artistic quality needed to produce a successful poster of the sort which modern advertising demands. HAPPY WEDDINGS.

MULLINS—JOHNSON.

Marriages are made in heaven, and it sometimes happens on this sublunary sphere that a wedding occurs which affords unqualified satisfaction not only to the contracting parties, but also to all their friends and well-wishers. Of such a nature was the union of hands and hearts last Thursday night when Mr. Tipton Mullins and Miss Roberta A. Johnson became man and wife, Rev. B. D. Gray, of Birmingham, coming down especially to perform the ceremony. Everyone in Chilton knows Mr. Mullins, and his diligent application and close attention to his profession is rapidly leading him to the front ranks of the bar. While his bonny bride's devotion to her father have endeared her to all acquainted with her. Such filial devotion assures a good wife, and THE BANNER heartily wishes the happy couple many years of unalloyed happiness.

STANFIELD—THOMPSON.

On Tuesday last Mr. John W. Stanfield and Miss Maggie Thompson were happily married at the home of bride's sister at Sylacauga. Mr. Stanfield's handsome face and genial disposition have made him one of our most popular young business men, and all his friends are congratulating him upon bringing such a charming bride to adorn Clanton society. That this is one of those unions made above is an evident fact, and in welcoming the fascinating bride to her new home we only voice the sentiments of all our citizens in wishing both bride and groom a long life together replete with happiness and prosperity.

ROBINSON—KILLGORE.

This evening in the court house Probate Judge Honeycutt had the pleasure of joining together in holy matrimony Mr. J. B. Robinson and Miss L. B. Killgore, daughter of our esteemed friend Mr. Moses Killgore. Immediateiy after the ceremony the happy couple left to pass the honeymoon at Elmore. In extending congratulations we wish them all possible happiness and long life together.

A CLOUD OF WITNESSES.

Catarrh Can Be Permanently Cured.

C. W. Knaner, of Sheldon, Ia., was troubled with catarrh for over two years so that he could only work a few days at a time; tried various doctors without relief. Pe-ru-na cured him permanently. Mrs. Thomas Walz, New Brighton, Pa., suffered with aggravated sore throat which the doctor could not cure. Three bottles of Pe-ru-na cured her. Bernard King, National Military Home, Leavenworth, Kas., neglected a severe cold which developed chronic catarrh. Tried everything he saw advertised, to no avail. Pe-ru-na not only cured the catarrh, but an old case of bronchitis. A. F. Carlson, Lindstrom, Minn., took a course of treatment with Pe-ru-na for catarrh of the head and was cured. He delayed reporting for several months in order to see if cure was permanent; no symptoms reappearing, he has concluded that the cure is permanent. H. Cox was troubled with catarrh of the head and bowels. Six bottles of Pe-ru-na cured him, after fourteen years of enforced idleness.

A 32 page pamphlet containing several hundred testimonials, accompanied by a pen portrait of the writer, covering cures of catarrh in all forms and stages by Pe-ru-na, will be sent free to any who desire it by the Pe-ru-na Drug Manufacturing Company, Columbus, Ohio.

Clanton, Ala., Feb. 7, 1898

Editor BANNER:

I notice many articles from various correspondents discussing the cotton question. Please allow me to offer a few suggestions. Let us not depend upon public sentiment alone in this case, but let each one take into consideration the question of the cost of raising and the price of cotton; and then ask ourselves can we afford to raise it? Farmers often say they are compelled to have money, and raising cotton is the only way they have to get it. This is a very poor excuse. How many of them ever get a cent for their cotton? It is generally turned over to the merchant for supplies and fertilzer that have already been consumed; and the merchant has to take chances to get his money back. Then the farmer begins to complain of hard-times, oppression and Providence if there was a drouth or a little too much rain during the year, when the fault is to a great extent in his management. It seems to me that to make a support for a family is a much better subject for discussion than raising four cent cotton.

I wish to offer a few thoughts for consideration upon the subject. Let every tiller of the soil try to raise every thing he needs at home. Be sure to plant enough land to make more than will be required for his own use, and the remainder cotton. Then if there should be a short crop it would not be felt so much. We need not fear over-production. If we make more than enough for ourselves, there are the cities, towns and public works filled with non-producers who are compelled to have a support. If we cannot sell all we make, we can feed it to our stock and have better stock and plenty of good home-raised meat and richer milk and butter. And don't plant the best land in cotton, but select two small patches of the best land you have, one in dry soil and the other in damp. Watch the seasons and plant in dry soil when it is very wet and when the weather gets very dry and hot plant in damp spots. Plant a small portion about every two weeks. Try it, and you are almost sure to have plenty of nice vegetables all the season, and they are a great help. There is another thing that farmers should begin to practice, and that is raising wheat and building wheat mills. If the people would adopt this plan I believe the merchants would give them a chance to redeem themselves instead of taking their homes, for they surely know that if experienced farmers can't make money farming the can't. I heard a merchant say a few days ago that if the people do not go to planting more corn and making more of that they use at home they would have to quit advancing to them. It is an evident fact that if farmers persist in the course they have pursued for the last fifteen years the country will be bankrupt. The country merchant and farmer will all go under together. D. F. J.

Robbed The Grave.

A startling incident of which Mr. John Oliver of Philadelphia, was the subject, is narrated by him as follows: "I was in a most dreadful condition. My skin was almost yellow. Eyes sunken, tongue coated, pain continually in back and sides. No appetite—gradually growing weaker day by day. Three physicians had given me up. Fortunately, a friend advised trying "Electric Bitters" and to my great joy and surprise, the first bottle made a decided improvement. I continued their use for three weeks and am now a well man. I know they saved my life, and robbed the grave of another victim." No one should fail to try them. Only 50 cents per bottle at J. S. Johnson's Drug Store.

Dolive, Baldwin Co., Ala. Feb. 1

German H. Crosby, who was convicted at the fall term, 1895, of the circuit court of Chilton county, and since the 13th day of March, 1896, has been at large, entered Dolive on the 25th of January, and voluntarily surrendered himself to Cap't J. C. Holman, Warden of the State convicts of the Hand Lumber Company, and he is now enlisted for the State, at the saw mill of the Hand Lumber Company.

Many of the readers of the Banner will remember the sad occurrence at Strasburg, on the 7th day of February, 1895, when Mr. W. C. Ogletree was fatally shot in trying to subdue a difficulty, in which pistols were usued, between Mr. J Bice and German H. Crosby, and later the arrest and conviction of German. German is a young man, born and raised in Chilton county, where he is well known and has many friends.

The woods of Baldwin abound with deer, turkey and foxes, hardly a day passes but what can be heard the blow of horns and the musical bark of from ten to fifteen hounds chasing deer or fox. Mr. I. D. Hand accompanied by Gov. Johnston, Col Tripp and Dr Blake of the board of convict inspectors, Hon. Ross C. Smith, railroad commissioner, and Dr. Judkins of Speigner, Ala., returned a few days ago from a three days hunt near Dolive. They report a good time, having jumped thirteen deer, killing five, but do not name the lucky ones who did the killing.

The Hand lumber company and the Carney lumber company each have a fine saw mill and planing mill plant, with abundance of long leaf yellow pine timber. They are running steady every day. A good number of Chilton county people are in their employ.

The weekly visit of the BANNER is looked forward to with great pleasure by more than one in Baldwin county, and no doubt quite a number of new subscribers will be added to its list from Baldwin in the near future.

Abyssinia's social code provides for a fair chance to young married couples by forbidding the bride's mother to visit her daughter till a year after the marriage.

It is thought that the influence of the French language, with its unaspirated h, is the primary cause of that letter being so much ignored by English people. French having been spoken so long in England and the people near the coast having come in contact continually with that language, an indelible impression, it is said, is left upon it, increased now by usage.

Germany's Asiatic policy was not unlooked for. The Kaiser has long been of the opinion that Europe must prepare for trouble with the yellow races. That was the theme of the picture he painted two years ago, wherein Germania was shown standing with drawn sword, among her European sisters, waiting the onset of the Orientals. His recent course in Eastern waters merely shows that he means to take time by the forelock and meet his enemies on their own ground, attacking them, if the way opens, before their military strength becomes too great.

According to the Chief of the Pennsylvania State Bureau of Railroads, the bicycle is hurting the business of the railroads. He says: "In cities like Harrisburg and many others it cannot be gainsaid that the bicycle has become a most serious competitor of the railway. To reinforce this view of the case an observation was made on Third street in that city during the month of October, 1897. The observation covered two days, from seven in the morning to six in the evening. During that time 6078 persons passed a given point, 1962 in the cars and 4116 on bicycles; 67 7-10 per cent. on bicycles and 32 3-10 per cent. on the cars, or more than two to one in favor of the wheel."

Says the Philadelphia Record: Justice Patterson of New York, in a speech before the Law Club of that city recently, deplored the fact that the law had become so largely a trade instead of a profession; and on the following day Dr. Edward Everett Hale, in an address before an educational body in the same city on "Morality in the Public Schools," made the declaration: "There is danger of the managers of a great machine taking more pride in the machine and its workings than in the results it turns out. This is the danger in our public schools." Deplorable Accident in Which a Teacher Accidentally Kills a Pupil—Alabama's Coal Output for the Year 1897—Shipments of Cattle from the State Has Been Very Heavy—An Ex-Tax Collector Short in His Accounts.

STATE'S CLIMATIC CONDITIONS

During the Year 1897 as Compiled by the United States Weather Bureau.

The United States department of agriculture has just issued an annual summary for 1897 for the Alabama section of the climatic and crop service of the weather bureau.

The publication is authorized by the secretary of agriculture under the direction of Willis L. Moore, chief of weather bureau, and is compiled by Frank P. Chaffee, section director, stationed at Montgomery.

The following general climatic summary for the year 1897 for the state of Alabama will prove of interest to every class of citizens, who are subject to climatic influences:

The climatic condition in Alabama during the year 1897 were marked by a wet and backward spring and unseasonably cool and wet spell during the greater part of August and a generally dry and late fall. The late spring was detrimental to cotton, which also received a decided set back by the deficiency in warmth and excess of moisture at its most critical stage in August, but the late fall matured a large portion of the crop, which in the middle of October was not at all promising. The monthly rainfall for March was heavier in many portions of the state than for any March of which the weather bureau has a record, causing almost floods in the larger rivers and submerging lowlands, while during the fall months the deficiency in moisture caused such low rivers that navigation was suspended in the Alabama rivers for several weeks and many small streams and wells were dry. The rainfall for the year was partial to the northwestern and southwestern counties and was least in central portions of the state.

There was but one real severe freeze during the year, which occurred during the last few days of January, and it was not so severe as to seriously damage fruit trees. The month of June was marked by a number of destructive wind storms, which, while causing considerable damage to crops and property in a number of places, were mostly of a local nature, and fortunately caused no loss of life.

Fred Nabors and the two Dempcy boys, all white, aged 12, 9 and 7 years, set on fire two barns in Montgomery Friday morning, which were a total loss. They confessed also to setting on fire the Baptist church the day previous and another stable, besides other attempts at incendiarism. They say did it with coal oil, and wanted to see the fire engines run.

Preparing for the Chautauqua.

Mr. Wellington Vandiver has been elected manager of the Alabama Chautauqua and he will associate with him twenty of Talladega's best business men, who will constitute a board of control. All receipts of the Chautauqua will be retained by the citizens and devoted to the improvement and continuation of the Chautauqua. The manager will conduct it free of charge, and without compensation, except as the board of control may determine. The amount to be paid for talent will be $1,000. The program will last but fifteen days—from June 30th to July 16th. Some of the attractions the management will try to secure will be Hon. Jerry Simpson, of Kansas; James Whitcomb Riley, the Bell Ringers, the Moving Pictures, Eli Perkins, Wm. J. Teacher Accidentally Kills a Pupil.

A deplorable accident occurred at Yantley, Butler county, last week. John D. Phillips, who is teaching at that place noticed two of his scholars quarreling, and went out to quell the disturbance. He told the boys to desist and go into the house. One of them went in very readily, but the other, James Wilson, refused to go. Phillips started toward him to assert his authority as master of the school. Wilson refused and struck him twice with a base ball bat. In the meantime Phillips had picked up another bat and struck Wilson a light blow on the temple, at which he dropped to the ground and became unconscious. He never rallied, and soon after he died.

ALABAMA COAL FIELDS

In Marion and Western Counties Will be Developed.

There is no longer any doubt that the coal fields in the western part of the state in Marion county will be speedily developed and opened up to the world. Captain W. H. Spradin is now at Winfield on the Kansas City, Memphis & Birmingham railroad to make the survey for a railroad from that town to some point where direct transportation can be had to the seaboard. A survey will first be made to Tuskaloosa by way of Fayette. By this route the Winfield coal can be taken to the Warrior river at Tuskaloosa, and loaded on the barges there for Mobile, or distributed throughout the southern part of the state by means of the new Mobile & Ohio extension from Tuskaloosa to Montgomery. Coal could also be shipped from Tuskaloosa down the Alabama Great Southern to New Orleans.

Three other surveys will be made from Winfield, one to Columbus, another to West Point via Vernon, and the third to Aberdeen. For a direct route to New Orleans, the route by way of West Point seems to be the most favorable. At that point it can connect with the Illinois Central.

This scheme is being carried out by the Mississippi Valley Coal and Railway company, and not by the Illinois Central or any other of the big roads, as has been stated. In this company are Henry Wellman, president of the Teutonic Savings bank of New Orleans, and several other capitalists of that city and Mississippi. The object of the company is to get a splint coal into New Orleans that can compete with the Pittsburg product. They sent a coal expert throughout the south to look up the best field of this coal, and the very best quality was found in Marion county. The bed is six by eight miles in size, the seam is from three feet to forty inches thick and is very easily mined. This company bought it all up, 18,000 acres.

Capt. W. H. Spradlin, the chief engineer, who is to make the surveys, is one of the pioneer railroad builders of this state, having had charge of the work on the South & North and other roads in Alabama. He has already sent a carload of surveying and camping implements necessary to make the survey to Winfield.

Will Participate in Democratic Primaries.

Twelve leading populists of Jefferson county have issued a call to the members of the people's party in that county to hold a meeting in Birmingham February 19, to determine whether or not they will participate in the democratic primaries. Following is the list of names signed to the call: G. W. Ellis, M. C. Ragsdale, G. U. Belcher, J. B. M'Cormack, C. P. Ward, R. M. Inzer, T. W. M'Donald, W. A. J. Reed, W. F. Lambert, W. H. Fitzpatrick, M. A. McCutcheon, Jare Fountain.

Six Million Tons.

State Mine Inspector J. D. Hillhouse has received reports from all the coal mines in the state except four on last year's output. The total so far foots up 5,800,000 tons, and Hillhouse says when all are heard from it will go to the six million ton mark. The total output of 1896, heretofore the largest in the state's history, was 5,743,697 tons. Last year's showing even breaks this big record. Alabama's coal industry was never so prosperous before as now.

Marion Nominates City Officers.

As a result of the mass meeting of citizens held in the court house last Friday afternoon to nominate municipal officers to be voted for at the coming election on the 1st day of March. Mr. E. T. Robinson received the nomination for mayor, Messrs. R. B. Wallace, S. A. Nelms, T. T. Daughdrill, James Gregory, W. H. Mason, Sr., and A. L. Pope for councilmen.

Murdered His Parents.

One of the most horrible crimes ever perpetrated in the state took place five miles north of Mulberry, in Franklin county, Arkansas, Thursday night. Sol F. Autrey, a farmer, accompanied by his family, went out to visit his aged father and mother, living neor Mulberry. Shortly after his arrival Autrey became engaged in a religious argument with the old folks. Suddenly he grasped an iron bar, killing his aged father, mother and his 10-year-old son and seriously wounded his wife and three remaining children, two of whom are not expected to live. The murderer is insane, declaring that witches were the cause of the act.

Cost of the Cuban War.

The cost of the Cuban war from February, 1895, to the end of 1897, is officially estimated by the Spanish government at $240,000,000, besides the arrears due from the Cuban treasury, amounting to $40,000,000. WARLIKE PREPARATIONS.

Three Big English Squadrons Have Been Ordered to Be in Readiness.

A special from Shanghai says: "The North China Gazette says the British Indian, Australian and Pacific squadrons have been ordered to be ready to reinforce the fleet in the far East, thus giving the British Admiral a fleet capable of coping with "any combination opposing the British policy."

"In the meanwhile," adds the Gazette, "the British claim in Yang Tse Kiang will be supported by a strong squadron stationed at Chusan, to which place two other warships are en route. In the event of Russia hoisting her flag over the fort at Port Arthur, the British Admiral has been ordered to hoist the English flag over Chusan, and the Japanese fleet will ascend the Yang Tse Kiang so soon as the river rises.

"About 7,500 Russian artillery and cavalry and quantities of stores and munitions have arrived at Kirin, the capital of the Manchurian province of Kirin."

IS IT RETALIATION?

Sixteen Thousand Barrels of American Apples Denied Admittance by Germans.

A special from Berlin says: The Prussian minister of finance, Dr. Miguel, issued a decree the past week, which goes into effect immediately, prohibiting the importation of every kind of American fresh fruit. The decree has been sent to all the German ports and frontier stations excepting Bavaria, Saxony and Wurtemburg.

The United States embassy was not previously warned, and the United States ambassador, Mr. Andrew D. White, sent a formal letter to the foreign office inquiring upon what authority this inimical step was taken.

The United States consul at Hamburg, Dr. Hugh Pitcairn, telegraphs that 16,000 barrels of American apples have been forbidden to be unloaded and that two trains of American fruit have also been forbidden to cross the frontier at Emmerich, which, aside from Hamburg, is the principal place of entry.

BISCUIT TRUST ORGANIZED.

Over 90 Per Cent of All Big Bakeries in the Consolidation.

All the big biscuit and cracker companies between Salt Lake City on the west, Portland, Me., on the east, St. Paul in the north and New Orleans on the south, are now under one management, under the name of the National Biscuit Company. It is capitalized at $25,000,000 of preferred and $30,000,000 of common stock.

Incorporation papers were taken out in New Jersey. The new company has purchased for cash all the assets, bills receivable and operating plants of all the bakeries which were controlled by the American Biscuit and Manufacturing Company, United States Baking Company and New York Biscuit Company.

United States Car Plant Sold.

The properties of the United States Car Company, comprising the plants in Anniston and Decatur, Ala., saw mills and timber lands in Etowah, Calhoun and Cherokee counties, were sold Thursday. The sale was made by J. A. W. Smith, special master, and the property was bought by Richard Reid Rogers, of New York, representing the reorganization committee, for $60,000. The property is now being operated by the Illinois Car and Equipment Company, a corporation formed by the reorganization committee.

Klondike Speculators.

The steamer Queen sailed from Tacoma Friday for Skaguay and Dyea. She carries northward 1,000 passengers, 1,300 tons of freight, 200 dogs, 30 horses and a score of carcasses of dressed cattle, hogs and sheep. The women wore short skirts, knickerbockers and other snug costumes. Nearly all the passengers on the Queen intend to ultimately go to the interior of Alaska. The passengers are from every quarter of the globe.

Reindeer Start for America.

A cablegram received at the war department Friday from Dr. Jackson, at Altens, Norway, announced that the steamship Manitoban, chartered by the United States government, had just sailed from that port for New York with 530 reindeer and 87 Lapp men and women to care for the animals and drive them on the government relief expedition when they arrive in Alaska.

To Investigate Tobacco Culture.

Secretary Wilson, of the agricultural department, will leave Washington in a week or ten days for a visit to the South, his objective points being North and South Carolina and Florida. Probably most of his time will be spent in the latter state, where Secretary Wilson wants to look personally into the question of the raising of high-grade tobacco. He believes the Florida country capable of producing tobacco almost, if not quite, equal to that of the finest raised in Cuba and Sumatra.

Scheme to Settle Americans in Cuba.

Jim Patterson, of Minneapolis, Minn., who is well known throughout the northwest, is in Aberdeen, S. D., working quietly, but persistently, upon a scheme to take 100,000 men to Cuba and land them there on the 4th of July. He says he is backed by a syndicate of Americans, who have large landed interests in the island, and claims these Americans are anxious to cut up their holdings and dispose of small plantations to able-bodied men on long time and at a low rate of interest.

Alaskan Business on the Coast Active—The Export Movement—Cereals Show a Heavy Falling Off—Increase in Business Failures.

"Bradstreet's review of trade for the past week says: Severely cold weather, accompanied by high winds and heavy snow, has been a feature, causing great influence on the movement and distribution of staple goods this week. The Northern and Western states appear to have felt the effects of the storm most severely. In consequence this interruption of business, factory work for the season is reported in most lines, with special activity in iron and steel trades and woolens.

"In the East the distribution of dry goods and wool has been checked, the movement of produce generally interfered with, but the tone of the cotton goods situation is, if anything, improved. In the Middle states and the central West the movement into consumption is still very large, but nervousness as to possible future production affects that market.

Steel is slightly lower at the East, but firmly held at Chicago, while reports advance in iron bars, wire nails. Southern buyers are coming into St. Louis more numerously than usual at this date and the distribution of dry goods, boots and shoes and drugs is active.

At the South trade is reported improved at several important points, and the total of January business is said to be above the average.

Alaskan business on the Pacific coast is still very active, but exports of cereals is small.

Steadiness in prices has been a feature of the week, the only decline noted being in wheat, corn also showing on a speculative reaction, while prices of oats, pork, beef and hogs are higher.

The export movement of wheat shows heavy falling off for the week, but is still ahead of the same week in preceding years. The total shipments of wheat, flour included, amount to 3,433,794 bushels, against 5,... bushels last week and 4,168,0... els in this week a year ago.

At a meeting of the board of directors of the Board of Trade of New Orleans, resolutions were adopted memorializing President McKinley and congress, as well as the secretaries of war and the navy, and Major-General Miles, to place there a adequate force of well drilled artillerymen at points where the new defensive works are to be placed to protect the coast from attacks of foreign fleets.

The preamble of the resolutions point out that the officials themselves have declared the artillery forces inadequate even for peaceful times.

A Good Worker.

We find the following among the resolutions passed by the white Teachers' Institute, of Montgomery county, before they adjourned Friday.

"Resolved third, That thanks be extended to Dr. E. B. Eldridge, president of the Troy Normal State College, for the invaluable services he rendered in making the institute beneficial and interesting. Time will never efface from our minds the important information which he imparted while in our midst."

Dr. Eldridge is an untiring worker in the cause of education and leaves an impress on the minds of teachers wherever he may be called. He is doing a great work for the cause in the state and more especially for the institution over which he presides.—Citizen-Journal, Troy, Ala.

Tom Watson for Governor.

It is announced and from high sources that Hon. Thomas E. Watson will be the populist candidate for governor of Georgia. It is a fact that the state convention, which meets in Atlanta March 16th, will nominate him by a unanimous vote, and that he will accept there is now no doubt.

SOUTHERN PROGRESS.

The New Industries Reported in the South in a Week.

At southern trade centers, business, as reported by The Tradesman's many correspondents shows a healthy increase, with indications favorable for still greater improvement when the spring season opens.

While this is the "waiting season," the demand for iron continues good and the furnaces are well stocked with orders. While the consumption of pig iron is gaining, the production at present somewhat exceeds the demand, though not enough to cause prices to decline. The demand for finished products and car material is especially heavy.

The southern lumber market is firm, the mills are all busy and prices are advancing. An encouraging feature of the trade is the increased demand for common grades of lumber, for which there has heretofore been practically no market.

Business at the coal mines continues active and the textile mills report a good sale for their products.

Among the most prominent new industries for the week The Tradesman reports the following:

The Rose Manufacturing Co., capital, $50,000, Dallas, Tex.; brick works at Natchez, Miss., and brick and tile works at St. Augustine, Fla.; a $25,000 brewery at Louisville, Ky.; the Oak Hill Roller Flouring Mill, capital, $10,000, at Greensboro, N. C., and other flouring mills at Green Forest and Pedro, Ark., High Point, N. C., and Gibbs Tenn., glass works at Morgantown, W. Va.; the Georgetown Ice Co., capital $10,000, at Georgetown, Tex., and two ice factories at Rocky Mount, N. C. The Kellett-Chatham Machinery Co., capital, $50,000, has been chartered at Waco, Tex.; the Gilreath Coal and Iron Co., capital, $25,000, at Birmingham, Ala.; the Copper River Gold Mining and Prospecting Co., at Fort Worth, Tex., and the Alpha Mining Co., capital, $80,000, at Rockford, N. C. The Helena Box Factory, capital, $60,000, has been incorporated at Helena, Ark.; the Velasco, Box Factory, capital, $10,000, at Velasco, Tex., the Brooks Lumber Co., capital, $100,000, at Bath, S. C., and the Lexington Lumber and Manufacturing Co., capital, $20,000, at Lexington, Ky. Saw mills will be erected at Cluttsville and Jemison, Ala., and at Hale, Miss.

Crosby Surrenders.

German H. Crosby, a convicted murderer, in Chilton Co., Ala., who escaped soon after sentenced, has surrendered. The case of Crosby and the circumstances surrounding make it indeed remarkable in view of the fact that he surrendered to serve out the ten years' sentence imposed upon him by the court at its fall term, 1895, not knowing that his case had been passed upon by the supreme court. His case was reversed and remanded and set for a re-hearing.

Japan No Longer Objects.

Japan has been removed as an element in the opposition to the consummation of the annexation of the Hawaiian islands by the United States. This result has been attained by the conclusion of an agreement between our government and that of Japan, presented by Minister Toro Hoshi, which by practically settling the status of the Japanese in Hawaii, removes the only substantial difference that has existed between the two governments.

His Nerve Was a Surprise.

"Boys, string me up if you like, but remember you are hanging the steadiest man with a six-shooter that ever came out of Montana. You say it's all right to hang me, and I guess it is. I am only sorry I did not get the rest of them." These were the last words spoken by Doc Tanner when he faced his executioners near Seattle, Wash., a few days since, who was lynched for the crime of murdering two of his companions.

Southern Labor Organization.

A movement to organize "The Southern Confederacy of Labor" has been started in Atlanta, Ga., and is now so far under way that a convention probably will be held to formally launch the new organization. The plan is to call a convention of the white organizations of the South for the purpose of bringing about harmony and concert of action among them, independent of big labor unions and federations of the North.

New Railroad for Arkansas.

The White River, Lonoke & Western railroad company, with a capital stock of $350,000, has filed articles of incorporation with the secretary of state of Arkansas. It is the intention of the promoters of the enterprise to build the road from a point near Jacksonville, in Pulaski county, to the town of Lonoke; thence in an eastern direction to Arkansas county, on the White river.

Fire in Anniston.

The handsome residence of John B. Knox, at Anniston, Ala., valued at $10,000, was totally destroyed by fire Thursday. It was insured for about one-fourth the value.

A distinct earthquake shock was felt at Lynchburg, Va., Saturday. Telegrams show the disturbances were felt through southwest Virginia. Bedford City reporting that a sound, as if of an explosion, differing from the usual rumbling, preceded the shocks.

George W. Finch, the murderer who broke jail at Fort Scott, Kan., who had been sentenced to hang, called Sheriff Wheeler up on the telephone from Lamonte, Mo. Finch said he had surrendered to a Lamonte constable, and would be brought to Fort Scott at once.

FIFTY-FIFTH CONGRESS.

The House—Monday.

The Teller resolution from the senate, declaiming the bonds of the United States payable in either gold or silver at the option of the government, was taken up in the house today. There was a great deal of activity among the leaders of both sides before the house met in anticipation of a very exciting debate over the resolution, which those in control had decided to defeat before sundown. The members on both sides had been notified in advance and the attendance on the floor was very large. The struggle opened immediately after the journal, when Mr. Dingley of Maine, chairman of the ways and means committee, reported back the resolution with the recommendation that "it do not pass." The debate consumed the entire day, when at 5 o'clock the vote was taken, resulting in its defeat by a vote of 182 to 132. Party ranks were held intact on the vote and only three breaks occurred. Republicans cheered long and loud over their victory, and then at 5:35 the house adjourned.

The Senate.

John C. McLaurin was sworn in as senator from South Carolina to fill the unexpired term of the late Senator Earle.... The bill introduced by Mr. Allen, of Nebraska, providing that all pensioners now receiving less than $10 per month receive that amount after the bill's passage was reported adversely.... The agricultural appropriation bill was placed on the calendar.... Mr. Morgan presented a resolution requesting the president, if consistent with public service, to send to the senate the correspondence relating to the negotiations and exchange of ratifications upon a treaty between the United States and Great Britain relating to compensation for the seizure of British ships in Bering sea.... Mr. Foraker called up the bill providing for the purchase of the Kansas Pacific branch of the Union Pacific railroad. The bill went over.... The army appropriation bill was passed, carrying $23,143,492.... The legislative, executive and judicial appropriation bill, with slight amendments, was passed. The bill carried $21,505,245.... The senate then went into executive session and soon after adjourned.

The House—Tuesday.

The military academy appropriation bill was reported to the house today. The anti-civil service reformers won a slight victory when Mr. Perkins, of Iowa, presented a resolution for printing the hearings of the civil service committee.... A bill was passed authorizing the secretary of the treasury to build or purchase a suitable vessel for revenue cutter service on the Yukon river, to cost not exceeding $40,000.... The senate resolution for the relief of Ex-Senator Call, of Florida, was adopted.... Then at 12:30 p. m. the house went into committee of the whole and resumed consideration of the District of Columbia appropriation bill which was begun on Saturday.... At 1 o'clock the debate drifted into politics.... Mr. Mahany, of New York, presented to the house a petition of 100,000 voters in opposition to the Lodge immigration bill. He made an impassioned speech against the tolerance of those who desired to close the gates to immigration, after which the house adjourned.

The Senate.

At the opening of the session of the senate today Mr. Clark rose to a point of personal privilege to defend his vote for the Nelson amendment to the Teller resolution, providing that gold and silver coins should be maintained at a parity.... The resolution of Mr. Pettigrew declaring it to be the policy of the United States not to acquire territory to defend which a navy would be required, went over until tomorrow at the request of the author.... Mr. Morgan's resolutions presented yesterday calling upon the president for correspondence and information relating to the arbitration of the British seizure claims was adopted.... The senate then, at 12:40 p. m., on motion of Mr. Davis, chairman of the foreign relations committee, went into executive session.... At 4:45 p. m. the senate adjourned.

The House—Wednesday.

At the opening of the session of the house today Mr. Grow, of Pennsylvania, asked unanimous consent for the consideration of a resolution directing the secretary of war to issue medals to 530 Pennsylvania soldiers who belonged to the command which passed through the mob at Baltimore April 13, 1861, and who received the thanks of Congress July 22, 1861. Consideration was objected to, and the resolution went over.... The army appropriation bill was sent to conference.... The house then resumed consideration of the District of Columbia appropriation bill. The bill was completed and passed, after which the house took up the fortification appropriation bill. It was arranged that the general debate should close tomorrow at 3 o'clock. Debate for the day was closed at 5 o'clock and the house adjourned.

The Senate.

In the senate today Mr. Hawley, of Connecticut, secured the adoption of a resolution directing the secretary of the interior to furnish the senate the total per capita cost of educating Indian children at certain schools; the total cost of transporting pupils to and from the schools, including the number transported; approximately what proportion of the children educated in the schools return to the blanket and camp condition, and what can be done to prevent such retrogression and continue the children in the lines of progress on which they have entered.... At 12:35 p. m. the vice president laid before the senate the resolution of Mr. Pettigrew, declaring it to be opposed to the policy of the United States to acquire territory to defend which a navy would be required. On motion of Mr. Hale the senate went into executive session to consider the resolution, which was concluded at 4:20. The senate then proceeded to the consideration of open session business. The agricultural appropriation bill was called up, and after being read, the senate adjourned.

The House—Thursday.

A bill was passed in the house today appropriating $10,000 for a survey and report on the practicability of securing a 35-foot channel in the southwest pass of the Mississippi river. The house then resumed consideration of the fortifications appropriation bill. At 3 o'clock general debate closed and the bill was taken up for consideration under the five minutes rule. Mr. McClellan, of New York, offered an amendment to increase the appropriation for gun and mortar batteries from $1,000,000 to $5,000,000. It was voted down. Without completing the bill, at 5 o'clock the house adjourned.

The Senate.

A bill repealing an act granting American register to the steamers Claribel and others, was reported and passed.... Germany's order prohibiting the importation of American fruits into that empire called out a resolution from Mr. Davis, of Minnesota, calling upon the president to transmit to the senate the correspondence and other information bearing upon the matter in his possession, or in that of the state department. The resolution was agreed to.... Mr. White, of California, introduced the following resolution and asked that it lie on the table: Resolved, That of right, it belongs wholly to the people of the Hawaiian islands to establish and maintain their own form of government and domestic policy; that the United States ought in nowise to interfere therewith and that any intervention in the political affairs of those islands by any other government will be regarded as an act unfriendly to the United States.... Mr. Cullom then called up the agricultural appropriation bill, the reading of which was concluded last evening. An amendment was offered to the effect that $20,000 be included to provide for gathering information and other data on the subject of irrigating arid western lands. The amendment was adopted and the bill carrying $3,527,202 was passed.... A bill providing for the appointment of an additional district judge for Texas was passed.... The senate then adjourned.

The House—Friday.

In the house today a bill was passed to amend the act of January 31, 1895, granting rights of way through the public domain for tramways, canals and reservoirs so as to grant those rights for cities and private corporations.... Mr. Fleming, of Georgia, asked unanimous consent to set aside next Monday for the consideration of the bill reported by the Pacific railroad committee to grant additional powers to the president in the matter of the sale of the Kansas Pacific railroad. It was objected to.... The house proceeded to the consideration of private bills. The private pension bills favorably acted upon at the session last Friday night were first considered. A desultory debate followed upon the measure.... Mr. Fleming during the consideration of one of the pension bills took advantage of the latitude allowed for debate to discuss the question of protecting the government's interests in the approaching sale of the Kansas Pacific road.... At 5 p. m. the house recessed until 8 o'clock, the evening session to be devoted to the consideration of private pension bills.

The Senate.

A bill providing for the erection of a public building at Beaumont, Tex., at a cost not to exceed $100,000, was passed.... Mr. Platt, of New York, offered a resolution which was referred to the committee on military affairs, directing the secretary of war to return to the Seventh regiment artillery (formerly the 113th New York, V. L.), the flags of the regiment.... A bill authorizing the construction of two bridges across the Choctawhatchie river, a navigable stream, in Dale county, Alabama, was passed.... Mr. Lindsay then took the floor to speak on the resolution of the Kentucky legislature asking him to resign, during which he spoke briefly in defense of his course in the senate.... At 12:35 o'clock the senate went into executive session, and at 3:40 p. m. adjourned until Monday.

The House—Saturday.

At the opening of the session of the house today a resolution was presented declaring that in the contest between Samuel Hudson and William McAleer, of Pennsylvania, for a seat in the house Mr. McAleer is entitled to the seat. Without division the report was adopted.... A bill granting to the Gulf, Colorado and Santa Fe Railroad Company the right to construct a branch of its railroad in the Indian Territory was passed.... A senate bill authorizing the Muscogee Coal and Railway Company to construct and operate a railway through the Indian Territory and Oklahoma was passed.... The house then went into committee of the whole and resumed consideration of the fortifications appropriation bill. After several minor amendments were offered and defeated, the bill was passed, and the house adjourned until Monday.

May Exclude American Horses.

Baron Von Hammedstein-Loxten, the German minister of agriculture, at Friday's session of the Prussian diet, declared that American horses developed influenza after importation. He added: "If the importations increase we shall certainly be forced to adopt a suitable quarantine in order to protect ourselves."

JOHN W. TOMLINSON

Feels the Political Pulse at the Nation's Capitol.

Hon. John W. Tomlinson, of Birmingham, has returned from a brief visit to Washington. He was there during the stirring fight in the senate over the Teller resolution and was a guest at the annual banquet of the Grid Iron club Saturday night at the Arlington. Mr. Tomlinson stated to a reporter that he had a lengthy conversation with Chairman Jones, and he said that "systematic work was being quietly but effectively done all over the country in preparation for the great contest in 1900. He declared there must be no wavering in Alabama or any other state, and to prevent this the people should be very careful and select the right men to go to the county conventions and state conventions, and see that the executive committees are made up of the right material.

"What is the sentiment regarding Mr. Bryan?" and before continuing Mr. Tomlinson repeated the question. "The concluding paragraph in an editorial of the Washington Post Sunday expresses the almost universal opinion in Washington, when it says: 'Mr. Bryan is the acknowledged leader of his party, and is daily becoming more securely entrenched in the confidence and affections of the democratic masses.'"

Compressed Flour.

The importance of lightness and compactness in the kit of soldiers has stimulated the manufacturers of army food stuffs to reduce all manner of concentrated products for use on the march or in camp. Of these the latest is compressed flour, which is now being tested by the British War Department. The objection to the establishment of national granaries is the impossibility of storing wheat for any length of time. The grain soon germinates and is ruined. This flour is now molded into bricks by hydraulic pressure, in which shape it is unaffected by damp, is mold-proof and sweet and wholesome. The compression is said to destroy all forms of larval life, and the flour becomes immune against the attacks of insects. Since the cubic space occupied by 100 pounds of loose flour will hold 300 pounds of the compressed flour, it will be seen that the saving instorage is enormous.—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

Plugged with Autograph and Cents.

When the pedestal of the statue of Blair, which Missouri has presented to Statuary Hall, was standing in that hall the other day awaiting its bronze figure, some one noticed that in the center of the stone block was a small square hole. The Missouri delegation was present to watch the placing of the statue, and a congressman, fishing through his pockets, found a cent. He put the coin in the square hole, and also deposited a bit of paper with his autograph.

The example was contagious. Every member of the delegation put in a cent and his name, some curious bystanders did likewise and by the time that the statue was placed in position there was almost enough copper in the pedestal to sheathe a ship.—Washington Post.

Miss Clara Barton, President of the Red Cross Society, is living at Glen Echo, a suburb of Washington, ten miles from the capital, where the headquarters of the society now are. She is attending daily to the work of the Red Cross, and says her health is as good as could be wished for.

Shaker Colony in Georgia.

Brobston & Fendig have formally delivered 10,000 acres of land on the Altamaha river in Georgia, to the Shaker community of Union Village, O. A Shaker colony will be established thereon.

Six Persons Killed at a Fire.

Six firemen, including a district chief, a captain and a lieutenant, were killed at a fire in Boston Saturday morning which burned out the interior of a five-story building on Merrimac street, occupied by G. W. Bent & Co.

To Run McMillin for Governor.

West Tennessee politicians returning from Nashville bring with them a slate they think will heal all wounds caused by McMillin's defeat. They propose to run McMillin for governor, with Taylor in sight for the senatorship, in the spring.

Contracts were let Thursday to Johnson Brothers & Faut, of St. Elmo, Ill., to build 110 miles of railroad between Sapulpa and Oklahoma City.

The Brooklyn Sails for West Indies.

The big armored cruiser, Brooklyn, left the navy yard about 8 o'clock Friday morning on her way to begin her cruise of the West Indies. She first goes to Newport News for a supply of coal.

Senator Walthall Very Ill.

Senator Walthall, of Mississippi, is seriously ill in Washington city. Last Thursday he was seized by a chill in the senate and was forced to leave the chamber. He has since been confined to his bed.

Progress of the A. & A. Air Line.

Contractor Carson, of the Atlanta & Alabama Air Line, has suspended a large part of his force awaiting the arrival of the iron for the first ten miles, which is now graded. The grading has now really reached thirteen miles from Selma, and it will not be long now before trains will be running on the road.

The Cuban relief committee gave out the information that Clara Barton will go at once to Cuba to minister to the starving and dying people.

WHISTLING WELLS.

They Foretell Storms Accurately and Serve as Barometers.

A freak of nature which is attracting considerable attention is a series of blowing or "whistling" wells, located in the northern part of the town of Eureka, in Polk County, Wis. There are six of these hysterical wells, ranging in depth from 120 to 160 feet. The one owned by James Coltin exhibits most remarkable features. This well is 120 feet deep, and was dug fifteen years ago. The first twenty feet was hard pan and the rest coarse gravel.

Before a rain storm the wind blows out of this well with great force, making a roaring sound that can be heard a long distance. This wind is so hot that water placed on the cover of the well will boil. The wind blows out only before a storm, and the severity and duration of the storm are always in exact proportion to the force of this current and its duration before the storm commences. It is, therefore, an accurate and trustworthy barometer, as it foretells a change from cold to hot, or vice versa, with equal accuracy, but remains quiet in settled weather.

In winter a current of air is drawn in before a change of weather, just as forcibly as it blows out in hot weather. This current will freeze the water 120 feet from the surface of the earth as quickly as it would at the surface, and though many attempts have been made to use a pump in the well, they have all failed, and a number of pumps of different makes have been destroyed by the water freezing and bursting the cylinders and pipes.

The other five wells, which resemble this one in many respects, are all located within the radius of about one mile, and vary in depth from 130 to 160 feet. Some of the characteristics are not so pronounced as the one described, while others are even more remarkable. Within half a mile of these wells water is obtained at a depth of from 10 to 30 feet, and the wells exhibit no unusual symptoms.

All sorts of speculations have been indulged in and theories advanced concerning an underground passage, but no outlet has ever been discovered, and if there is one it must be a great distance away in order to foretell the approach of storms so long a time in advance. The weird, unearthly sound produced by the wind blowing in and out of the wells often frightens superstitious persons or those unacquainted with the phenomenon.

Leather Coats.

Leather coats are made of sheepskin, of horsehide, and of dogskin. They are lined with corduroy, with flannel, and with sheep's wool. The corduroy lined coats are made reversible, so that they may be worn either side out. The coats of sheepskin are usually finished black, the horsehide and dogskin coats russet colored. A leather coat of sheepskin, corduroy lined, costs about $5; horsehide coats sell for $12 to $15, and dogskin coats for $18.

Leather coats are worn West by truckmen and policemen and hunters and lumbermen. The leather coat is serviceable and warm, without great bulk. The duck shooter, lying, perhaps, for an hour in a battery, waiting, keeps warm in a leather coat. The sportsman after big game wears a leather coat. It keeps the wearer warm without impeding his movements.

A leather coat is sometimes worn under another coat for the sake of its warmth, as, perhaps, by a policeman. And the leather coat may be worn with the corduroy side out so that more leather coats are worn in cold cities than might be supposed.—New York Sun.

McClellan for Chief Justice.

Oneonta News-Dispatch.

Judge T. N. McClellan of the supreme court of Alabama, ought to be, and will be, overwhelmingly elected chief justice of that court. He is senior justice now, and according to a well established democratic precedent will be promoted to the chief justiceship. Besides, in our judgment he is the ablest jurist on the supreme bench, in fact, one of the ablest in this country. Furthermore, he is in thorough accord with the principles of the party declared in its last national convention in Chicago. He does not merely reluctantly acquiesce in what the convention did and refuse to state whether he stands on the platform adopted by the convention or not, as his opponent does; but he thoroughly approves of the course of that convention and believes in the platform of principles adopted by it, and does not hesitate to say so. He is also in thorough accord and sympathy with the state democratic administration; he favored and worked for the nomination of Governor Johnston in his race for the governorship.

In this district, Judge Tally's judicial district, some have very quietly talked it that Judge Tally and Judge Tally's friends would fight Judge McClellan. We know it to be a fact that such is not the case, Judge Tally himself disclaiming any such purpose. It has been said that some of Judge Coleman's friends have sought to use the decision of the supreme court rendered by Justice McClellan in the Tally case against Judge McClellan in his race for the chief justiceship; but this paper thinks that there is very little of that being done; that if any of it is, it is without the approval of Judge Coleman, who, at the time of said decision, was also associate justice of the supreme court and fully concurred in said opinion and is as much responsible for it as Judge McClellan or Judge Coleman in regard to the decision; and it would be against the best interest of the people to oppose a judge for the honest discharge of his oftentimes unpleasant duties.

We understand the County Executive committee is to be called to meet very soon.

JOHN A. GAFFORD was pronounced guilty of the murder of Francis B. Loyd (Rufus Sanders) and sentenced to death.

YESTERDAY the House of Representatives, by a vote of 143 to 112, declared Mr. Plowman not entitled to his seat, and that Hon. W. F. Aldrich had been duly elected. Mr. Aldrich took the oath and his seat. This is the first election case decided by the present house against the sitting member.

We are glad that such a howl is going up all over the State against the thieving practices which distinguish our elections. The people begin to realize that the "habits" are not commenced and ended at the ballot box. They go into the taxpayers pockets and even rob poor children of their niggardly tuitions. In fact the people begin to realize that a thief is a thief.—Sheffield Reaper, Dem.

Our friends (the Democrats) seem to think that the only object of party organization is to posses the spoils. They ask the Peoples Party to disband, and propose themselves to disband (that is what it amountsto) and without regard to convictions of great and burning govermental questions, unite in a joint primary, solely for the purpose of having the white people once more work in harmony together. They want to revive the Solid South; they want to go back and begin where we began in 1868; they would roll back the wheels of time and knock twenty years of experience—rich experience out of our lives.

We ought to ask ourselves if a united party of all the whites has, in the past, been calculated to promote good government in Butler county. Can these democrats say that the administration of public affairs in Butler, under democratic auspices, during the days when the solid South was in the saddle, was al they would have it be. Could they honestly consent to contrast the best administration of theirs with that of the Populists since that party came into power. We ask them to pick out their best, and say nothing of the others. We would not needlessly inflict pain on any one, but "facts is facts."—Living Truth.

The same period of time cannot be given to studies in the country schools as in the town and city schools. In fact, it has been found that children in the country schools will accomplish more in the same length of time. Whether this is because there is less to attract their attention from their studies or because they concentrate their energies more upon the work before them, is immaterial. The work of the teacher of the country school should be, and generally is, given to the essentials and to the most practical features; information, intellectual power and character.

New and Decorative.

Straw colored cameo glass makes ideal vases for flowers.

Stag horn handles have appeared on silver mounted cut glass jars.

The newest toilet pincushions are not far from 27 inches long and from 6 to 8 wide.

Silver bonbon dishes, richly embossed, are out in novel designs and graduated sizes.

Bronze paperweights from Vienna afford miniature but exceedingly faithful studies of animal life.

Of high artistic quality are the Vienna paintings on wood panels. The same may be said of the enamels on copper.

Maple Springs.

Mr. P. R. DeVaughn, who has been very sick, is now improving and we hope he will be up in a few days.

Mr. Gus Dunlap and Miss Lucinda Mims tied the everlasting knot last Sunday at half past ten o'clock. We wish them much joy through life and hope they will live a happy husband and wife.

Miss Annie Harris is visiting her friends and relatives in Coosa county.

UNCLE SNAP.

Mr. Ward L. Smith, of Fredericks-town, Mo., was troubled with chronic diarrhœa for over thirty years. He had become fully satisfied that it was only a question of a short time until he would have to give up. He had been treated by some of the best physicians in Europe and America but got no permanent relief. One day he picked up a newspaper and chanced to read an advertisement of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhœa Remedy. He got a bottle of it, the first dose helped him and its continued use cured him. For sale by J. S. Johnson, Jr., druggist.

A Rabbit Stopped Family Prayers.

One Sunday we were all at regular family prayer. A sporting friend was visiting me, and he and I knelt, facing a low window, with our elbows upon the sill. And from round a corner, lo, there came unto us a coney, and he reared up not two yards from us, and he hearkened unto the prayers, and he winked his nose at us, till my friend forgot himself and exclaimed, "We kin catch that devil!" I threw up the window so hard that I cracked a pane, and out we leaped in redhot chase. And the dear old archdeacon almost burst trying not to laugh, for he had seen the rabbit and was a keen sporteman withal. We ran that rabbit across four two acre lots as hard as we could split, and at last we got him into deep snow, where he gave up and was captured alive. And on looking back to the first fence we had cleared I saw a fuzz of white whiskers above it and heard a strong old voice shout, "They got him, they got him!"—Ed W. Sandys in Outing.

I have given Chamberlain's Cough Remedy a fair test and consider it one of the very best remedies for croup that I have ever found. One dose has always been sufficient, although I use it freely. Any cold my children contract yields very readily to this medicine. I can conscientiously recommend it for croup and colds in children.—GEO E. WOLFF, clerk of the circuit court, Fernandina, Fla. Sold by Dr. J. S. Johnson, Jr., druggist.

The Reformatory Value of Happiness.

I believe it is Mr. Stevenson who says that the duty of being happy is the most underrated duty in the world. And in spite of all we may wish or assert to the contrary there is indubitable evidence that happiness, up to date, at least, has a basis in physical well being. I supposed one of the reasons why the reformers of the earth have not been notably delightful persons to live with is because they were either too busy or too tired to be happy. And yet a happy man, and especially a happy woman, is a radiating focus of reform, for such a person possesses that gentle and diffused persuasiveness which leads us into willing good endeavor simply because it displays to us the good taste of enjoying fine behavior.—Helen Watterson Moody in Scribner's.

A few months ago, Mr. Byron Every, of Woodstock, Mich., was badly afflicted with rheumatism. His right leg was swollen the full length, causing him great suffering. He was advised to try Chamberlain's Pain Balm. The first bottle of it helped him considerably and the second bottle effected a cure. The 25 and 50 cent sizes are for sale by Dr. J. S. Johnson, jr., druggist.

A POETIC ROMANCE.

(BY LITTLE ETHEL)

"I won't one," the maiden said
To her handsome beau;
"For pa and ma have both forbade
Your presence at our door!"

Up rose her handsome lover,
And brushed away her tear,
And gave her apple to her
And bade her have no fear.

For he had been to Stanfield's drugstore
(Dear me! he had, indeed!)
And bought her ma a peck, or more,
Of Bowen's garden seed.

L'ENVOI.

And they are now in Jumbo,
Where maidens never sigh,
Where lovers all are happy,
And people never die.

Valuable to Women.

Especially valuable to women is Browns' Iron Bitters. Backache vanishes, headache disappears, strength takes the place of weakness, and the glow of health readily comes to the pallid cheek when this wonderful remedy is taken. For sickly children or overworked men it has no equal. No home should be without this famous remedy. Browns' Iron Bitters is sold by all dealers.

Political Pointers.

People's Press Bureau, St. Louis, Mo., Feb. 9, 1898.

Much notice is being given just now to the cotton mills question. The probability of a widespread strike among the New England factory hands has grown to a certainty. The factory owners are but little concerned at this, declaring, the closing of the mills will injure no one but the workers, as a small outpnt insures higher prices; but the condition of the factory hands is deplorable. Many mill owners are preparing to transfer their industry to the South, where labor, cheaper by one-half, can be found among the negroes.

The great bridge between New York City and Brooklyn was built by the people of those cities and is therefore their property, but the municipal "powers that be" have sold to the street car corporation the right to lay its tracks on the bridge. Such tracks render the bridge unsightly and unsafe, and the intelligent and wide-awake portion of the people object but are helpless to hinder, and the track-laying goes on.

The last report as to the condition, earnings and expenditures of the line of railroad, owned and operated by the Canadian government is so favorable that many Canadian newspapers are advocating the purchase by the government of all lines tributary to that already owned. The silence of the United States press on the subject of this success can be felt. Few people know that our Interstate Commerse Commission has had to permit roads that compete with the Canadian government railroad lower their rates in order to hold their business between the Atlantic seabord and Lake and Pacific points.

J. A. Edgerton, State Chairman of the People's Party in Nebraska, and Deputy Labor Comissioner under Gov. Holcomb, is coming to the front as a poet. His verses are along reform lines and are written with much taste and elegance.

A friendly suit in chancery at Pontiac, Mich., threatens to have the Bland-Allison silver act declared unconstitutional, because it does not demand free coinage, but only provides that the government must, with gold, buy silver at its depreciated price and pocket the seignorage.

The Teller resolution making certain United States bonds payable in silver, after having passed the senate was killed in the House January 31. Populists and Democrats voted for, and the Republicans against, the measure. This vote puts the Western Republicans in a bad light with their constituencies, who favor silver almost to a man and who had believed that the Republicans would "do something for silver."

Immediately on hearing of the clear party lines that the vote on the Teller resolution had drawn, Senator Dubois of Idaho, left for Washington, D. C. He is chairman of the executive committee of the Silver Republican party. He stated that he felt the time had come for a union of the Silver forces, but not the disbanding of any organization.

The International Paper Company is a new paper trust in which has been united nearly all the paper mills of this country. The trust opens up with $45,000,000 capital and can turn out 1543 tons of finished goods per day.

J. H. Edmiston, inspector of oils for the state of Nebraska, has defrayed all expenses and turns over to the treasury $1,890 wreress his Republican predecessor had a deficit of $5,000.

In spite of gloomy forebodings and dire prophecy the news comes from all points that the Populists are still at their post, none having given up their principles or deserted their organization and a hot fight in the next election is promised. A. R.

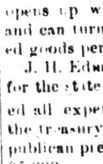
"Just as Good" as Scott's and we sell it much cheaper," is a statement sometimes made by the druggist when Scott's Emulsion is called for. This shows that the druggists themselves regard of Cod-Liver Oil with Hypophosphites of Lime and Soda as the standard, and the purchaser who desires to procure the "standard" because he knows it has been of untold benefit, should not for one instant think of taking the risk of using some untried preparation. The substitution of something said to be "just as good" for a standard preparation twenty-five years on the market, should not be permitted by the intelligent purchaser.



Be sure you get SCOTT'S Emulsion. See that the man and fish are on the wrapper.
50c. and $1.00, all druggists.
SCOTT & BOWNE, Chemists, New York.

HOW TO FIND OUT.

Fill a bottle or common glass with urine and let it stand twenty-four hours; a sediment or settling indicates an unhealthy condition of the kidneys. When urine stains linen it is positive evidence of kidney trouble. Too frequent desire to urinate or pain in the back, is also convincing proof that the kidneys and bladder are out of order.

WHAT TO DO.

There is comfort in the knowledge so often expressed, that Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, the great kidney remedy fulfills every wish in relieving pain in the back, kidneys, liver, bladder and every part of the urinary passages. It corrects inability to hold urine and scalding pain in passing it, or bad effects following use of liquor, wine or beer, and overcomes that unpleasant necessity of being compelled to get up many times during the night to urinate. The mild and the extraordinary effect of Swamp-Root is soon realized. It stands the highest for its wonderful cures of the most distressing cases. If you need a medicine you should have the best. Sold by druggists, price fifty cents and one dollar. You may have a sample bottle and pamphlet both sent free by mail. Mention THE BANNER and send your address to Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N.Y. The proprietor of this paper guarantees the genuineness of this offer.

Cuba, Hawaii, and China furnish the principle topics discussed editorially in the American Review of Reviews for February. There are also a few paragraphs of pointed comment on current domestic politics—the factional differences among Ohio Republicans and the swelling tide of Crokerism in the Democratic party. The editor gives his views on Tammany's attitude toward the New York rapid-transit problem and on the reckless expenditure of canal-improvement funds by the Republican bosses of the State.

What pleasure is there in life with a headache, constipation and billousness? Thousands experience them who would become perfectly healthy by using DeWitt's Little Early Risers, the famous little pills. Stanfield & Matthews.

Chronic Dyspepsia Cured.

AFTER suffering for nearly thirty years from dyspepsia, Mrs. H. E. Dugdale, wife of a prominent business man of Warsaw, N. Y., writes: "For 28 years, I was a constant sufferer from dyspepsia and a weak stomach. The lightest food produced distress, causing severe pain and the formation of gas. No matter how careful of my diet I suffered agonizing pain after eating. I was treated by many physicians and tried numerous remedies without permanent help. Two years ago I began taking Dr. Miles' Nerve and Liver Pills and Nervine. Within a week I commenced improving, and persisting in the treatment I was soon able to eat what I liked, with no evil effects I keep them at hand and a single dose dispels any old symptoms."

No More to See.

A young fellow who drank much more than was good for him was advised by his friends to take the gold cure, but he refused. "But," protested his friends, "your physician says that if you keep on drinking you will surely soon go blind. Now, the question is simply this, Do you prefer being cured of the drink habit and retaining your sight, or do you prefer to keep on drinking and go blind?" The young man paced the floor for some time, and was in a brown study. Finally he turned to his friends, and, with a resigned expression of countenance, replied, "Well, I guess I've seen about everything."—San Francisco Argonaut.

Sheriff's Sale.

By virtue of an order of sale issued out of the Circuit Court of Chilton county, and State of Alabama, and to me directed, whereby I am commanded to make the amount of a certain judgment recently obtained against Sallie Hanlin, by the sale of the following described property, to wit:

Commencing at the south-east corner of the south-west quarter of south-west quarter of section twenty-one, township twenty-one, north, range sixteen east, and running thence in a westerly direction forty feet, thence north one hundred and five feet, thence east four hundred and forty feet, thence south one hundred and five feet, and thence west to point of beginning, containing one acre, and also the mill-dam, mill-house and mill-race situated on said land, and lying and being in Chilton county, Alabama.

Therefore, according to said command I shall expose for sale, at public outcry, to the highest bidder, for cash, all the right, title and interest of the above named Sallie Hanlin in and to the above described property, on

MONDAY, FEBRUARY 14, 1898,

during the legal hours of sale, at the Court House door in Clanton, Alabama.

Dated at Clanton this 6th day of January, 1898. J. T. COOLEY, Sheriff.

The Way To Weigh More

Good weight means good health. Good health means good blood. Good blood is at the bottom of it all. If a man or woman is losing flesh, chances are ten to one that the blood is impure and lifeless. Pure blood builds up good, firm flesh. It makes muscles that you can use. There is no fictitious fat about it. It gives you a balance in the bank of health that you can draw on without fear.

Sarsaparilla is Nature's remedy for impure or impoverished blood. It is just the sort of remedy that grandmother used to dig up in the garden. It is simple, pure, efficient. It puts the digestion into perfect order, stimulates the appetite, assists nutrition, cleanses and purifies the whole body.

The surest and purest and safest and best of all sarsaparillas is

THE CROSS AND CROWN

Is the title of a treatise on the doctrine of perfection or sanctification, by A. L. Pattillo, of Verbena, now in the press. It is written in a plain, homely fashion by one deeply impressed with the necessity of Christians living a perfect life, who desires to see all professing religion imbued with the same spirit. The Author, who is also a poet, has written several poems, all on religious subjects. The whole when complete will make a book of over 200 pages, bound in a stiff board cover, which at the small charge of 50 cents, should speedily exhaust the edition.

This book has a double claim on the people of Chilton county and should find a place in every home in the county, from the fact that it is entirely a home production, being the first book ever written, printed, bound and published in Chilton. It will be ready early in October. Price only 50 cents. Orders can be sent to THE BANNER, Clanton, or to A. L. Pattillo, Verbena.

Notice to Non-Resident.

The State of Alabama, Chilton county.
In Chancery at Clanton, Alabama, Seventh District, North-eastern Chancery Division. January 29, 1898.

Nannie Davis, complainant, vs. A. Oscar Davis, defendant.

In this cause it is made to appear to the Register, by the affidavit of W. M. Adams, that the Defendant, A. Oscar Davis, is a non-resident of the State of Alabama, and that his residence and post office address is Comanche, Comanche county, State of Texas and further, that in the belief of said affiant, the Defendant is over the age of twenty-one years.

It is therefore ordered by the Register that publication be made in the Banner, a newspaper published in Clanton, once a week for four consecutive weeks, requiring him, the said A. Oscar Davis, to answer or demur to the same within thirty days after the 1st day of March, 1898, and failing so to do a decree pro confessso will be taken against him in said cause.

Done at office in Clanton, Alabama, this 29th day of January, 1898.

W. E. STEWART,
Register in Chancery.

HARTER

The nervous system controls the action of the vital organs of the body. Unless they are in a perfect state of health they lose the functions nature intended them for. The nervous system cannot be in proper working order unless properly fed by rich, red and life-giving blood. The blood's active principle is the red corpuscles that contain iron. The white corpuscles are the sewers of the body to carry off impurities. Too few red corpuscles in proportion to white ones means an impoverished condition of the blood that shows itself in the pale face and colorless lips. Dr. Harter's Iron Tonic is a preparation containing iron in such form that it immediately strikes the circulatory system and furnishes what nature has not provided. Dr. Harter's Iron Tonic is put up in a scientific manner. It has had 42 years actual test on the market.

THE GREAT CUTDOWN

REDUCTIONS NOT DUE TO SOUTHERN COMPETITION.

As a Rule the Same Magnates Own the Southern and Northern Mills—The Workers Have to Do More for Less Money.

When it was announced a few weeks ago that 28,000 operatives in the city of Fall River would have their wages reduced 11 per cent there was great surprise. When this was followed by the news of a cut in every textile center in New England the people were dumbfounded.

The excuse, and only excuse, offered is competition with Southern cotton mills. The writer has toiled six years for the greatest cotton corporation in the world. He has also been in some of the largest and best Southern mills. I mention this only that the reader may know that I know of some things in connection with the textile industry. If we take into consideration the kind of work done and the amount turned off per hand, there is no great difference between the Southern and Northern mills. That competition between the said manufacturers, both North and South, is partly the cause of this gigantic cut, is true. Let me add right here that the cotton millionaire lords who own our Northern mills are to a very large extent the very same lords who own the Southern mills. A sort of competition between themselves for revenue only. Well, they can't lay this cut to the tariff, for they have their own sweet tariff. Under our present system we are making more goods than we can sell; this is true of both Northern and Southern mills. In Fall River, a surplus of 75,000 pieces are piled up each week, and the total surplus in that city today is more than 1,800,000 pieces. Goods are being piled up in every textile center.

And even on the same work the worker has to do 30 to 50 per cent more than was required ten years ago. To illustrate: A loom-fixer who received $2.25 per day to look after 40 looms ten years ago looks after 60 today for $1.80; 90 men, women and children do as much in the dye houses as 800 could only fifteen years ago. The Northrup or Draper loom, which was invented some two years ago, promises to revolutionize weaving—at least on plain goods. Thousands of these looms are already in operation. They run 190 picks per minute. One operator can tend, from twelve to twenty looms—an average of sixteen. The loom has two novel features, one is a stop motion by which the loom is stopped when ever the work happens to break, and the other is an arrangement whereby when the filling on a shuttle runs out another is substituted automatically. The loom will run for more than an hour with practically no attention. A good weaver by running sixteen looms can make about $8 per week, the average being about $7. One weaver will weave from 2,000 to 3,000 yards in a week. Compare this with the number of yards your grandmother could weave.

In 1892 gingham weavers received 46 cents per cut—43 yards—for weaving. In 1897 they received 27 cents per cut, now they receive 24 cents. In 1890 there were 137,359 cotton operatives in New England, and the average wage rate was, according to Carroll D. Wright, $356 per year. By 1896 the wage rate had been reduced to $320 per year, while the productivity of the workers had increased more than 20 per cent. The average pay at present is $288 per year. This is for New England. The great 10 per cent reduction which has just taken place affects more than 100,000 textile workers in the six New England states. In round figures these wealth producers will receive $300,000 less wages per month in 1898 than they received in 1897. And they will consume $300,000 less goods per month. This will intensify and make worse the already miserable conditions. During the past dozen years the stock of these New England cotton corporations has averaged six per cent above par.

A history of one of these corporations is a history of all. The great Amoskeag corporation—the greatest cotton manufacturing company in the world, commenced business seventy-five years ago with a capital of $200,000. They bought several thousand acres of land at $3 per acre. They have sold some of that land at $3,000 per acre. The original investment was paid back several times during the first few years of their operation. This great corporation is worth from forty to fifty million dollars, all made by the toilers. The 8,500 wage slaves who create fabulous wealth for the cotton lords are unorganized. They vote the old party tickets, just about half exist, and think "protection to American labor" a great thing.

The condition of the textile workers in America is steadily growing worse. Their average wages are not above $250 per year. In his report for 1890, Carroll D. Wright instances hundreds of cases of wage hands working for 21 cents a day. His investigations were made in twenty states.

Ninety-one per cent of the textile workers are homeless, only nine per cent owning homes of their own. The rapid motion of the textile machinery, the constant application of brain and muscle, depletes the vital energy of the workers. A female weaver who constantly tends six of those rapid Butler looms or sixteen of the Draper looms is completely tired out in a few weeks, and in five or six months 90 per cent of them are either sick or compelled to take a vacation. The discouragement, the hopelessness, the loss of ambition, can only result in a lower standard of morals, an increase of crime, intemperance and prostitution. If the textile workers of America want better conditions, if they want short hours, an abolition of child labor—in a word, if they want justice for themselves and humanity, they must join and vote for the abolition of this miserable system.—F. G. R. Gordon.

POINTS FROM THE PRESS.

We want to move on. The problems of yesterday are not the problems of today. Party managers are relentless autocrats that we shun as we would a venomous serpent; we hate them (in that capacity), as we do the unlawful systems that they perpetuate with their favor.—Pueblo Courier.

J. Pierpont Morgan and a syndicate including the Standard Oil Company have organized a national bank trust, the purpose being to run the small national banks out of existence. The National City Bank of Greater New York with deposits amounting to over $111,000,000, is the hub of this greatest of all concentration plans. The big millionaires have robbed the masses of about all they have and now they purpose to organize to rob each other. —Chicago Express.

Singerly, the Philadelphia banker who failed and swiped about four million of his dupes' money, is a rabid gold bug who supported McHanna for president, because any other course was dishonest and meant repudiation! Of course he is honest. All of them are. Everybody else are rogues. The people took the advice of such men, and behold the glorious results.—Appeal to Reason.

The express companies charge the large daily papers one-half cent a pound for carrying their papers. Our postmaster general wants the postage rates for newspapers raised to eight cents a pound. It would be cruel to suggest that this is a scheme to assist the strong in oppressing the weak. It does not seem to have occurred to the "servants of the people" than an act of congress requiring all common carriers to give the government as favorable rates as they do any private shippers would not only be just and reasonable, but would render an increase of postal rates entirely unnecessary. —Social Democrat.

VERSE FOR THE TIMES.

SHALL GREEDY LORDS THE LAND POSSESS?

What means this cry of dire despair
That rises up on every hand,
And fills the startled ambient air—
Is red war lurking in the land?

No, not a war where swords and guns
And cannons smite and heroes lead;
But where our loved and helpless ones
Are ground beneath the heel of greed.

The money-lender's selfish hand
Is outstretched wide for farms and homes;
Starvation stalks within the land,
Despair throughout the nation roams.

The cry we raise for help, alas!
Our haughty masters proudly spurn;
What power ordained a pampered class
To thankless spend what others earn?

Shall greedy lords and land possess,
And revel in their sordid gains?
Shall those we love, in sore distress,
Toil hopeless on while life remains?

No, by the shade of Lincoln, no!
A proud and fearless patriot band
Shall rise and thwart the common foe,
And rescue yet our native land!

A. O. GENUNG.

HENRY GEORGE.

Hail, friend of man! Hail and farewell!
Unerring prophet of the day to be
When men from landlord's serfdom shall be free.
We who yet tarry, send "God speed" with thee.

Hail, friend of man! Hail and farewell!
There may be other worlds in need of light
Where men are born as here, without the right
To use their planet as free agents might.

Hail, friend of man! Hail and farewell
We soon shall follow who now wait behind
To see thy message sink in every mind:
"Earth is the heritage of all mankind."
—Miles Merander Dawson.

A PERFECT SYSTEM.

We thank thee, Lord, that thou hast sent affliction to the rich—
Dyspepsia, gout, insomnia and other troubles which Disturb their souls by day and night and cause as much or more
Of real distress than do the ills that thou has sent the poor.

We may not have enough to eat. They eat too much, and so
It's just about an even thing which hath the most of woe.
We have no time to rest by day. They cannot rest at night.
So, all in all, it seemeth things are pretty nearly right.

We can't afford to ride, but there, again, their joy we balk
For, oh, thou sendest them the gout, and so they cannot walk.
Thou sendest them rich food and drink, weak stomachs, headaches, wealth.
To us thou sendest poverty, plain living, toil and health.

Oh, glad are we the rich must have, while living, off the fat,
Hay fever, likewise parysis and lots of things like that.
And so we are thankful for our joys, the greater part of which
Is thinking of the many woes thou sendest to the rich.

Nixon Waterman in L. A. W. Bulletin.

Experiments Necessary.

To stop experiment is to stop action, for the modern world is a new world and in it there are no tried and beaten paths. The floods and glaciers of innovation have carried away the ancient landmarks, and by raising new barriers and structures largely shut off from all progressive peoples, even the kindly rays of the lamp of experience. No agitators, but science and invention, have pushed us away from the ancient world, with its well-worn roads and lighthouses, and where we walk now human feet never trod before. The light from our foreheads is our only lamp, and eternal truth our only guide, prefer to experiment, or to be experimented on; to be the surgeon, or the corpse.—Walter Vrooman, in New Democracy.

THE CONSPIRATORS.

WHO ARE CALLED MONETARY COMMISSIONERS.

They Are Like the Fourteen Men Who Swore to Kill Paul—All Their Claims Have Been Refuted and Exploded Long Ago.

There is an account given in the New Testament of fourteen men who bound themselves together by an oath that they would neither eat nor sleep till they had killed Paul. They did not succeed in killing the apostle and were necessarily compelled to break their wicked oath. The reason why these fourteen conspirators desired the death of Paul was that he was preaching against idolatry and other deceptions that were practiced against the people by a corrupt money class who misled the people with false doctrines.

This band of ancient conspirators have something like a prototype in the eleven conspirators who banded themselves together at the instance of the bankers' Indianapolis convention of "sound money" deceivers, and spent weeks in Washington in secret conclave, devising a plan to destroy the liberties of the American people. Vermont's discarded ex-Senator at the head of this band of conspirators. Their work has been laid before the public, and is probably the most ingenious piece of sophistry, false assumption and cunning, innocent appearing assertion, ever produced. The false theories of money invented and practiced by bankers and hoary usurers, and that have been exposed and refuted by undeniable facts a thousand times, are all mustered with inimitable skill. This class base their hopes on the old adage that a lie well stuck to is as good as the truth.

It would be as tedious as unprofitable to follow their long meandering trail through their dissertation on money, and particularly the government money of the United States, which is pronounced as "bad" except its gold coins. The whole contention of the band of conspirators is for "standard" money, and that standard money must be gold, and the continuation of the present gold standard. They attempt to give no reason why gold is a "standard" money or should be a standard, and the only standard money and not silver, except that it is more handy than silver. Silver was as much of a standard money for thousands of years before 1873 as gold, simply because the mints of all countries were open to its coinage, and there was always a demand for the metal beyond the supply. Open them again and the same conditions will produce the same results. There would be the same demand for silver as for gold. Close the same mints against gold and it will fall in price in the bullion market the same as silver has fallen, only a great deal more.

The monetary scheme concocted by the eleven conspirators of the Indianapolis bankers' convention, in principle and object, is the same as the concoction of Secretary Gage and President McKinley's greenback retirement plan, only the former is more ingeniously presented and worked out in detail. The fundamental falsehood on which they are all built, is "a standard of value." There is no standard of value, never has been, and never can be. Value is the relative difference between articles of merchandise or things controlled by the fluctuations of trade. The value of the same articles changes almost daily, influenced by demand and supply, whether that demand be natural or artificial. Money is a medium of exchange and recorder of prices, and it is nothing else unless its legitimate function is abused by cornerers, usurers and speculators. The whole object of the class for whom the eleven conspirators speak, is to make money scarce so they can corner it with facility. Any commodity that can be cornered can be given an artificial price.

The conspirators tell us there are two kinds of money, or rather there are two distinct functions for money. One is the "standard of value," the other a "medium of exchange;" that gold is the only standard-of-value money, and they imply that no other commodity—they acknowledge that gold is a commodity—is endowed by the intrinsic power of constituting standard money. The exchange function they claim inheres in all other kinds of money composed of silver, paper, etc. Gold, while possessing the sovereign power of "standard" money, has also the function of exchange in common with its subject money, as of course the sovereign should have.

It will be noticed that the "divine right" is at the bottom of the gold-bug theory of money. Gold is king, and money created of any other substance must owe its power to exist to the will of the sovereign. All other moneys formed of baser clay must have the consent of the sovereign to exist. The imperial gold must stand ready to "redeem" this half-way or purgatory money from perdition.

The gold-bug idea of government is monarchical, the gold-bug idea of money is monarchical, and the gold-bug idea of the people is that they should be the wage slaves of labor for the class who own the gold and the "obligations payable in gold." The political power of this class is embodied in the Republican party. There is no longer any question or doubt on this subject, since McKinley and all of his Cabinet have proclaimed it, and indorse the work of the eleven Indianapolis convention monetary commission conspirators.

The method to enslave the people under the old feudal and knightly regime was to claim a divine right to tax and enslave the masses for the aggrandizement of their masters. The monetary system of these modern barons of mammon is for the same object.

"There is a clear distinction between the functions of money as a standard of value and a medium of exchange," say the conspirators, but they fail to point out the necessity for such difference, except that bank issued money can never be anything but a "promise to pay" money. From these premises they argue, or assume, that government cannot make a "standard" money out of anything but gold. The term "standard money" is only an ingenious juggle for the term legal tender. They assume to deny the sovereign power of government to "coin money and regulate the value thereof," by claiming in this enlightened age that money is only a commodity having a certain fixed value, and that gold has a fixed value, hence it is the divinely appointed money metal! Prior to 1873 silver possessed this fixed value in France. In the United States it was three per cent above the gold value and was royal "standard" money everywhere in the world. A change in the minting laws of three or four great nations altered the value of silver at once. These stubborn facts upset the flimsy theory of the goldites.

The function to transfer values is the only legitimate function money possesses, and that is given it by law Money is a creation of law as Aristotle proclaimed three thousand years ago, a fact that had never been questioned till Satan raised up the modern gold-bug plutocracy. An to transfer value and record price is all the work money ever did or ever can do.

Gold as a commodity is used to balance accounts between traders of different nations, and so is every other commodity.

It is not used to transfer values between citizens of the same country, but must first be stamped into money by the government. Pound a gold coin into a shapeless mass, and no trader will accept it in satisfaction of his bill. No bank will credit it on a depositor's account. And yet the Shylocks have the brass to gravely tell the people that all money must have a commodity value equal to its money value! Whenever their claims for money are put to the test of analysis every one fails, and proves their claims to be sophistries and a tissue of falsehoods.

"Redemption" is another fake, like the chained lions in Pilgrim's Progress, utterly harmless. Money must be redeemed, declare the conspirators one and all. And it must be redeemed in gold. One simple fact refutes this theory. There is not one dollar of gold to redeem with, to twenty, or probably a hundred of the kind to be redeemed if redemption were a legitimate factor in the money problem. Redemption is a banker's fake. His bills are not money at all, and have to lean on something for support, hence the senseless claim of redeeming true money.

Money is a medium of exchange. A exchanges merchandise with B for money. B has the merchandise and A has received the recorded value in the shape of money, and the same, or similar transactions is repeated a million times. It is going on every hour in the day from year's end to year's end, and the identical same money is doing the work. Where does the "redemption" come in, and what object can there be in redeeming money? Exactly the same object that two men have who are playing poker. One "calls" the other when he believes he has the advantage of him. This redemption poker-money game was played by Pierpont Morgan and Cleveland. Morgan came down with a flush hand of greenbacks, and Cleveland pretended he couldn't see Morgan, and went out and borrowed two hundred and sixty-two millions, giving Morgan notes payable in ten to thirty years on the government. Cleveland, unlike most players, was richer after losing than before. This is the nature and true inwardness of redemption money. The object is to cheat the people.

There is another class of redemptionists. They are not gamblers or rogues, and it would not be just or kind to call them fools. They probably are not well informed. They say money is redeemed every time it is paid in taxes or exchanged for other things. But is it? A carter is hauling sand from the river bank to the masons. When he delivers a load of sand does he redeem his cart? He has made a transfer or exchange of sand from place to place. That is all. His cart is still intact, ready for another load. When the hod-carrier receives his pay from the builder does he go through the process of anything like redeeming? He has exchanged his labor for the money. He will soon exchange the money for groceries. Has gold any other function as money? Can it have any other that is honest, whether used as a commodity or as money?

The entire scheme of these eleven conspirators is to juggle. The people don't want any gold standard money. They want enough of Uncle Sam's full legal-tender money to keep them at work and afford good prices for their products, and they mean to have it.

E. E. EWING.

The Nervy Bankers.

The banks demand that the government furnish them money with which to carry on their business without charge, says the Silver Knight-Watchman. The boldness of the demand makes our head swim. All the tailors in the United States should now demand that the government furnish them cloth to carry on their business, the shoemakers should demand leather, the carpenters wood, the bricklayers bricks, and so on ad infinitum.

IT HAS A WARLIKE RING.

Sagasta's Reply to Woodford Again Declines Intervention.

SAYS HE CANNOT ENTERTAIN SUGGESTIONS

And Refuses to Fix Time for Ending War in Cuba—Sagasta Also Complains of Filibustering—Relations Becoming Strained.

The Madrid correspondent of the London Standard says Senor Sagasta's response to the official note presented yesterday Saturday by General Woodford, United States minister, complains of filibustering expeditions and declares that Spain cannot entertain the suggestion for fixing a date for her completion of the pacification of Cuba.

Pessimist impressions are now current regarding the relations between the United States and Spain and have depressed the Madrid and Barcelona bourses.

Public feeling among all classes is strong against America.

Woodford Ignores Sherman.

Premier Sagasta has declined the third offer of friendly mediation on the part of the United States. This information was conveyed in a cipher message, received from Minister Woodford by President McKinley on Friday.

The message was a most unusual one, instead of being addressed to the secretary of state it was addressed to the president, a thing which has not happened since Consul General Lee's famous cablegrams to President Cleveland of nearly a year ago.

This cablegram from Woodford was not long, but recited the fact that Premier Sagasta refused to admit that Spain had reached the end of her rope in Cuba; that she was unable to suppress the insurrection; that autonomy was a failure, or that she needed the assistance of the United States in bringing the Cubans' struggle to an end.

A CATHEDRAL BURNS.

One of the Finest Ecclesiastical Structures in America a Mass of Ruins.

The magnificent cathedral of St. John the Baptist, at Savannah, the head seat of the Catholic church in the state of Georgia, burned to the ground Sunday night. Fire was discovered by a motorman breaking out through the front of the building shortly before 11 o'clock, and at midnight the destruction of the cathedral was about complete.

The cathedral cost about $225,000 and was insured for $60,000. The convent of St. Vincent de Paul, adjoining the cathedral, was saved because of the fact that the wind was blowing in the opposite direction.

The cathedral was one of the finest ecclesiastical structures in the south. It was built under Cardinal Persico, then bishop of Savannah, and was dedicated in 1876 by Bishop Gross, now archbishop of Oregon. Bishop Becker succeeded to the diocese in 1884.

Another Fire.

Another fire broke out in Savannah at 8 o'clock, doing damage to the amount of $125,000. The fire started in a warehouse on the wharf, and before it could be extinguished had destroyed several brick buildings.

RENEWING HOSTILITIES.

Greek Peasants Rout Turks Who Are Burning Villages.

A special from Athens says: The Turks, after severe fighting, have occupied and burned four villages in the Agrappa district, in the north of Acarnia, about midway between Arta and Peroko. Eight thousand Turkish troops were engaged in the conflicts.

It is reported that in the neighborhood of Paleokastron the Turks were repulsed.

A panic prevails among the inhabitants of the neutral zone. The Greek outposts have been strengthened and the situation is ominous. It is probable that the Cretan question will be dropped until the evacuation of Thessaly has been secured.

Spoilsmen Win a Partial Victory.

Spoilsmen have at last won a part at victory. The president has prepared an order exempting a number of places from the civil service, according to the suggestions of cabinet officers, and it will be published soon. The cabinet officers have been expecting the order to be promulgated for several days. The order is complete and on the president's table.

A Tennesseean Suicides.

W. P. (Buck) Tanner shot and killed himself in Nashville about midnight Sunday. Tanner was treasurer of the Tennessee Centennial, and also held a similar office in the Hermitage club.

Gompers On the Strike.

In an interview after a secret conference of the leaders of the labor organizations at Boston Monday, Samuel Gompers, president of the American Federation of Labor, said unless the hostile factions of the textile unions come to some agreement very quickly the strike at New Bedford would be of little avail. It was for the purpose of harmonizing these unions in the interest of the strikers that Mr. Gompers is now making an extended tour of the textile centers of New England.

MINENT DIVINES' SERMON

DISCOURSES BY TWO ABLE WORK-ERS IN GOD'S VINEYARD.

"Giants" Is the Subject of the Twelfth of the New York Herald's Competitive Series—Dr. Talmage Preaches on the Style of the Christian Character.

"There were giants in those days."—Genesis, vi., 4.

This text represents the wail of the moral man who refuses to enter into the activities of life and finds no fit leadership among the men of to-day. He views the men of yesterday and, by comparing them with his own nothingness, calls them giants. Unwilling to follow his rightful leaders, he pines for the mighty men of the past.

If the wail were only the expression of dissatisfied donothings in the world it would be of little account, but the cry regarding the ancient giants has connected with it an inference that no giants exist today, because there is no opportunity for giant life. This pseudo reverence for the great men of the past carries with it the poisonous pessimism that says, "There can be no giants now." It is discouragement dressed down and sugar-coated with a pious worship of ancient worthies.

Cæsar, Napoleon and Wellington were great generals, but there never will be any more. "There will never be another poet like Homer." "No more orators like Burke, Pitt and Webster." "No more preachers like Wesley, Whitefield and Edwards." "No more statesmen as Madison and Jefferson." There is no chance for such men to-day, society demand for them.

This is a fair specimen of the idle talk of men who pretend to appreciate the greatness of the fathers and with this pious plaint immerse themselves in the worship of yesterday. Were this simply the silly talk of imbecility no protest from the pulpit would be in place but in behalf of discouraged youth I purpose to enter an unqualified denial of the spirit of all this word. Did it not seem too impious rejection of sacred writ, I would affirm that there were no giants in those days. The men of yesterday were not so great as the men of to-day.

Physically men are better than ever before. The average men of to-day is too lazy to wear the English armor discarded by giant warriors of a few centuries back. The collegian of to-day surpasses the ancient Olympian. Cicero and Demosthenes were giants in oratory by comparison. Orators were few and poor at that time, so these were easily noted. There are better preachers to-day than Wesley. Edwards is far surpassed in truthful presentation of the word by modern sermon makers. Bismarck, Blaine and Gladstone overshadow ancient men in statecraft. Macaulay tells us that men usually put the golden age of England at a time "when noblemen were destitute of comforts which would cause rest in a modern workhouse."

So men are constantly raising the age of mental and spiritual greatness in times when men were conspicuous not so much for their own individual merit as because of the lack of ordinary merit among their fellows. In a very true sense we may say that in the light of the nineteenth century men there were no giants in those days. There is a proper egotism which boasts of to-day, and imperiously declares that no such men lived in the past as our generation has produced.

Turning from this, we may bow with deference to the coming man. The youth of to-day may rise above the best of their fathers. There was never a greater call for giants than now, and a giant here and there, but a race of giants. Every profession is crowded with little men and is crying for giants. Professions, like skyscrapers, have vacant rooms on the top floor.

Railroads are anxious for first class men; editorial offices will give handsome salaries to skilful writers; pulpits seek commanding preachers; corporations seek in vain for properly qualified counsel; the nation calls for better statesmen, the colleges for better teachers, the merchants for better salesmen, the manufacturers for better artisans. "Helps wanted for rent" is hung out at every corner, inviting boys who are willing and able to climb the old-fashioned stairs. There is no elevator for carrying the climbers to the top of business and professional life. Men who work at the head of a profession or business must have strength, and that strength best comes by toiling up to the high places.

Giants are not born, they are made. Inherited adaptability will have some bearing, but earned qualities will have more. Common strength, common sense, common honesty are the first requisites. The perils of hard work, frugality of time and power, controlled by an indomitable "I will," must enter into the make-up of a great man. Time, money and nerve power dissipated by young men, not in true recreation and relaxation, but in idle loitering, would, if truly directed, make many great.

Nor will we forget that "Godliness is profitable." The giants spoken of in Genesis were grandsons of God; the giants of to-day are children of God. The strongest men are they that are strong in the Lord. Jesus is the giant of the age, and the nearer related to Jesus the more gigantic is man. Christian qualities are reliable assets, for Christ rules to-day more than all earthly potentates. Men who scoff at religion desire Christlike qualities in their employes.

Faith, hope and charity are fit emblems for the market, for commerce and the professions. There are Calvarys along the road to greatness; men must bear crosses if they would rise. It is good for a man that he bear the yoke in his youth. It is more than good, it is essential, and the first work in the typical emblem by which men may work their lives, by the grace of God to present day giants.

Pastor of First Congregational Church of Newark, N. J.

KIND OF PEOPLE NEEDED.

Dr. Talmage Describes the Style of Christian Character Required To-day.

TEXT: "Who knoweth whether thou art come to the kingdom for such a time as this?"—Esther iv., 14.

Esther the beautiful was the wife of Ahasuerus the abominable. The time had come for her to present a petition to her infamous husband in behalf of the Jewish nation, to which she had once belonged. She was afraid to undertake the work, lest she should lose her own life; but her cousin, Mordecai, who had brought her up, encouraged her with the suggestion that perhaps she had been raised up of God for just a peculiar mission. "Who knoweth whether thou art come to the kingdom for such a time as this?"

Esther had her God-appointed work, and I have ours. It is my business to tell you what style of men and women you ought to be in order to meet the [illegible] of this day. You need to be men and women of [illegible] and you want [illegible] you are to be better [illegible] They are the chief obstacles to the progress of Christ's kingdom at present. I am speaking of another kind of Christians. All the provisions for your coming an earthly Christian are at your hand, and there is a straight path for you into the broad [illegible] God's forgiveness. You may this moment be the bondmen of the world, and the next moment you may be princes of the Lord God Almighty.

But you need to be aggressive Christians, and not like those persons who spend their lives in hugging their Christian graces and wondering why they do not make progress. How much robustness of health would a man have if he hid himself in a dark closet? A great deal of the piety of to-day is too exclusive. It hides itself. It needs more fresh air, more outdoor exercise. There are many Christians who are giving their entire life to self-examination.

This style of self-examination is a damage instead of an advantage to their Christian character. I remember when I was a boy I used to have a small piece in the garden that I called my own, and I planted corn there, and every few days I would pull it up to see how fast it was growing. Now, there are a great many Christian people in this day whose self-examination proved by amounts to the pulling up of that which they only yesterday or the day before planted. Oh, my friends, if you want to have a stalwart Christian character, plant it right out of doors in the great field of Christian usefulness, and though storms may come upon it, and though the hot sun of trial may try to consume it, it will thrive until it becomes a great tree, in which the fowls of heaven may have their habitation. I have no patience with these flower-pot Christians. They keep themselves under shelter, and all their Christian experience in a small, exclusive circle, when they ought to plant it in the great garden of the Lord, so that the whole atmosphere could be aromatic with their Christian usefulness. What we want in the church of God is more strength of piety.

Again, if you want to be qualified to meet the duties which this age demands of you, you must, on the one hand, avoid reckless iconoclasm and, on the other hand, not stick too much to things because they are old. The air is full of new plans, new projects, new theories of government, new theologies, and I am amazed to see how so many Christians want only novelty in order to recommend a thing to their confidence; and so they vacillate and swing to and fro, and they are useless and they are unhappy. New plans—secular, ethical, philosophical, religious, cis-Atlantic, trans-Atlantic—long enough to make a line reaching from the German universities to Great Salt Lake City. Ah, my brother, do not take hold of a thing merely because it is new! Try it by the realities of the Judgment Day. But on the other hand, do not adhere to anything merely because it is old. There is not a single enterprise of the church of the world but has sometime been scoffed at. There was a time when men derided even Bible societies, and when a few young men met in Massachusetts and organized the first missionary society ever organized in this country, there went laughter and ridicule all around the Christian Church.

All the great enterprises in and out of the Church have at times been scoffed at, and there have been a great multitude who have thought that the chariot of God's truth would fail to please if it once got out of the old rut. And so there are those who have no patience with anything like improvement in church architecture, or with anything like good, hearty, earnest church singing, and they deride any form of religious discussion which goes down walking among everyday men, rather than that which makes an excursion on rhetorical stilts. Oh, that the Church of God would wake up to an adaptibility of work! We must admit this simple fact that the churches of Jesus Christ in this day do not reach the great masses. There are fifty thousand people in Edinburgh who never hear the gospel. There are one million people in London who never hear the gospel.

Ah, my friends, there is work for you to do and for me to do in order to this grand accomplishment. I have a pulpit. I preach in it. Your pulpit is the bank. Your pulpit is the store. Your pulpit is the editorial chair. Your pulpit is the anvil. Your pulpit is the house scaffolding. Your pulpit is the mechanics' shop. I may stand in my place and, through cowardice or through self seeking, may keep back the word I ought to utter while you, with sleeve rolled up and brow besweated with toil, may utter the word that will jar the foundations of heaven with the shout of a great victory. Oh, that we might all feel that the Lord Almighty is putting upon us the hands of ordination! I tell you, every one, go forth and preach this Gospel. You have as much right to preach as I have or any man living.

I remark again that in order to be qualified to meet your duty in this particular age you want unbounded faith in the triumph of the truth and the overthrow of wickedness. How dare the Christian Church ever get discouraged? Have we not the Lord Almighty on our side? How long did it take God to slay the hosts of Sennacherib or burn Sodom or shake down Jericho? How long will it take God, when he once arises in his strength, to overthrow all the forces of iniquity? Between this time and that there may be long seasons of darkness, and the chariot wheels of God's Gospel may seem to drag heavily; but here is the promise and yonder is the throne, and when omniscience has lost its eyesight and omnipotence falls back impotent and Jehovah is driven from his throne, then the Church of Jesus Christ can afford to be despondent, but never until then. Despots may plan and armies may march and the Congresses of the nations may seem to think they are adjusting all the affairs of the world, but the mighty men of the earth are only the dust of the chariot wheels of God's providence. And I think before the sun of the next century shall set the last tyranny will fall, and with a splendor of demonstration that shall be the astonishment of the universe God will set forth the brightness and pomp and glory and perpetuity of His eternal government. Out of the starry floors and the emblazoned insignia of this world God will make a path for His own triumph, and returning from universal conquest He will sit down, the grandest, highest throne of earth His footstool.

I prepare this sermon because I want to encourage all Christian workers in every possible department. Hosts of the living God, march on! march on! His Spirit will bless you. His shield will defend you. His sword will strike for you. March on! march on! The despotisms will fall and paganism will burn its idols, and Mahometanism will give up its false prophet, and the great walls of superstition will come down in thunder and wreck at the long, loud blast of the Gospel trumpet. March on! march on! The besiegement will soon be ended. Only a few more steps on the long way; only a few more sturdy blows; only a few more battle cries, then God will put the laurels upon your brow and from the living fountains of heaven will bathe off the sweat and the heat and the dust of the conflict. March on! march on! For you the time for work will soon be passed, and amid the outflashings of the judgment throne and the trumpeting of resurrection angels and the upheaving of a world of graves, and the hosannas and the groaning of the saved and the lost, we shall be rewarded for our faithfulness or punished for our stupidity. Blessed be the Lord God of Israel from everlasting to everlasting and let the whole earth be filled with His glory. Amen and amen.

THE SOUTH'S IRON INDUSTRY.

Faith in It Leads to a Large Investment by Englishmen.

An English syndicate, whose agents first visited the Birmingham (Ala.) district last spring and made a careful inspection of its coal and iron resources, has, it is said, practically completed arrangements for the expenditure there of a million dollar steel plant. It is said, is convinced that Alabama is to be the future seat of the iron and steel industry of the world, and that Alabama offers the best opportunities for cheap steel production.

It is known that extensive options on mineral lands near there have been secured by the foreigners, and that negotiations for the building of the steel plant have been practically concluded.

SUNDAY SCHOOL.

INTERNATIONAL LESSON COMMENTS FOR FEBRUARY 13.

Lesson Text: "The Call of Matthew," Matthew ix., 9-17—Golden Text: Matthew ix., 9—Commentary on the Lesson Written by the Rev. D. M. Stearns.

9. "And as Jesus passed forth from thence He saw a man named Matthew sitting at the receipt of custom, and He said unto him, Follow Me. And he arose and followed Him." The sense, the paralytic, the fever stricken, the possessed with demons, the tenth, the fossil, the blind, the boneless and even the dead are made to know and enjoy His power. The winds and the sea obey Him, so that the people might well ask, "What manner of man is this?" The demons know that He is the Son of God, but the people only marvel at Him. It may be that all these different phases of the devil's work on the bodies of people are very suggestive of the condition of Israel spiritually at that time, and also of the condition of all who are out of Christ to-day, but as then He cast out the spirits with His word and healed all that were sick so He can now deliver from all the power of the enemy, for He is still "this same Jesus." Blessed are the poor in spirit who are humble enough to receive Him, and follow Him, and become His disciples. Undisturbed by the breaking up of the roof, He had just honored the faith of the four who expected Him to heal their friend, and now He chooses Levi (Luke v., 27), or Matthew, to be one of His faithful few. Matthew is to follow Him, not Peter, nor John, nor the others who were called before Him. And so it is still—we are to behold the Lamb of God and see no man save Jesus only, and run with patience looking unto Jesus (John i., 29; Math. xvii., 8; Heb. xii., 2).

10. "And it came to pass as Jesus sat at meat in the house, behold, many publicans and sinners came and sat down with Him and His disciples." This also is a picture of things as they still exist. There are true disciples, but there are many who sit with them in the house of God who might be disciples also if they would; for whosoever may, but they prefer to continue unbelievers. Matthew modestly refrains from telling us that the feast was prepared in his own house, but we find it in Luke v., 29. In the same way John does not tell who the other was who followed Jesus that first day (John i., 40), nor does Luke tell the name of the second who walked to Emmaus (Luke xxiv., 18), nor does Mark tell the name of the young man who fled away naked (Mark xiv., 52), but as in Matthew no doubt less in the others the unbelievers remain.

11. "And when the Pharisees saw it they said unto His disciples, Why eateth your Master with publicans and sinners?" It is not the way of the wisdom of this world to have much to do with those not in their set or circle in society. I am writing this lesson as I cross the sea from Japan to China, and there sits in the social hall with me at another table a young man of Japan, a graduate of the imperial university, a strong Buddhist, who insists that the teachings of the Bible may be necessary for some, but the teachings of Buddhism suit him better, for they are so much more profound in his estimation.

12. "But when Jesus heard that He said unto them, They that be whole need not a physician, but they that are sick." It is difficult for a learned man to think himself intellectually sick, or for a moral man to think himself morally sick, but until one is convinced that he is sick he will not be apt to want a physician. The majority of people are so whole in their own estimation and going about to establish their own righteousness (Rom. x., 3), and it is only the Spirit of God who can convince of sin and show the need of a Saviour (John xvi., 8).

13. "But go ye and learn what that meaneth, I will have mercy and not sacrifice; for I am not come to call the righteous, but sinners to repentance." This is a quotation from Hos. vi., 6, the context of which teaches that Israel, puffed up with pride, continued to offer sacrifices as a religious act, but continued in their sinful ways. The first sacrifice of which we read in Scripture, and which was offered by God Himself on behalf of sinful man (Gen. iii., 21), shows man's utter helplessness to offer God anything, but that God in mercy provides garments of salvation by the shedding of blood for sinful man.

14. "Then came to Him the disciples of John, saying, Why do we and the Pharisees fast oft, but Thy disciples fast not?" They certainly put themselves in poor company when they said, "We and the Pharisees," but perhaps in the matter of fasting they were still very like the Pharisees and fasted as a religious duty. Perhaps they had not heard His teaching as recorded in Matth. vi., 16-18. Their mistake seems also to be that of giving to God instead of first receiving from Him—duty instead of grateful service.

15. "The days will come when the Bridegroom shall be taken from them, and then shall they fast." He is still quoting from Hosea, for there He is both Physician and Bridegroom (Hos. vi., 1; ii., 19). John the Baptist speaks of Him as Bridegroom (John iii., 29). Neither John's disciples nor Jesus' disciples knew of the days of separation that were to intervene before the millennial age. They were happy now with Him, and there was no occasion to fast.

16 17. The patched garments and the old bottles of these verses set forth different phases of the same truth. There is no patchwork or mixing up of old and new in the Lord's work. If any man be in Christ, he is a new creation. The carnal mind, or natural man, is not subject to the law of God and never can be. In our flesh or natural man dwelleth no good thing (II Cor. v., 17; Rom. viii., 7; vii., 18). To become a Christian is to receive from above Him who is in no one as they are born into this world, even Jesus Christ the Son of God (John i., 12; I John v., 12). Then to live a Christian life is to renounce the old, and let the new vessel, the divine nature in us when we receive Christ, be filled with the Spirit of God. Garments and wine are both marriage similitudes. He provides both garments enough and wine in abundance for all who will come to Him. Wine is suggestive of the joy with which He would have us filled, even His own joy, and the garments suggest the life made manifest by the joy within. The inward must be right before the outward can be right. Luther says that the bottles holding the wine are the men wearing the garments. When He has complete possession of us, then it will be manifest in and through us that "the kingdom of God is not meat and drink, but righteousness."—Lesson Helper.

The image of Christ that abides in the world's heart forevermore is of one whose life was filled with busy words and works; going about doing good, now here, now there, beset from morn to night by eager followers, hardly a moment to himself, except in the still night hours when others slept; and yet, one filled with a strange, almost unearthly peace—nay, not peace only, but active and upholding trust. And the lesson is for all of us; the lesson of resting in the Lord even while busily working on; the brain thinking out, the hand reaching out, doing the most and best we can in all the useful business of the world or the great tasks of helpfulness and love—but, at the centre of our busy living, the heart resting on the great Providence of life, owning how little we ourselves can do, owning it not in fretful helplessness, but in happy trust; and so doing that little promptly, faithfully and gladly, sure that it must tell somehow and somewhere; and, for the final outcome, resting in the large, slow, silent working of the infinite life.—Brooke Foss Westcott, D. D., in "Sermons of Courage and Cheer."

An Afflicted Mother.

From the Times, Paw Paw, Ill.

A resident of this town who has lost two children during the past six years, by violent deaths, has been utterly prostrated by the shock, and seriously sick as a result of it. One child (aged 9) was killed by a cyclone in '90 while at school; another, three years later was run over by a Burlington R. R. train. That grief and misfortune may so prey on the mind as to lead to serious physical disorders has been well demonstrated in this case. As a result of them, her health was shattered and she has been a constant sufferer since 1890. Her principal trouble has been neuralgia of the stomach which was very painful, and exhibited all the symptoms of ordinary neuralgia, nervousness and indigestion. Physicians did her no good whatever. She was discouraged and abandoned all hope of getting well. Finally, however, a certain well known pill was recommended (Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People).

She supplied herself with a quantity of them and had not taken them two weeks when she noticed a marked improvement in her condition. She continued taking the pills until seven or eight boxes had been consumed and she considered herself entirely cured. She can now eat all kinds of food, which is something she has not been able to do for years. She is not troubled in the least with nervousness as she was during the time of her stomach troubles.

She is now well and all because of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People a complete cure has been made.

If any one would like to hear more of the details of her suffering and relief gained by the use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People they may be obtained probably, by writing the lady direct. She is one of our well known residents, Mrs. Ellen A. Oderkirk, Paw Paw, Ill.

WHAT "BOB TAYLOR," . . . . .

Marble City Drug Mfg. Co., Knoxville, Tenn.

Gentlemen:—In reply to your letter of recent date, will say that you are correctly informed; I did receive great benefits from "Dr. Frank's Cough Cure." It stopped the most severe cough I have had for years, and cured my cold. I consider it the best remedy for coughs and colds I have ever used.

Yours truly, ROBERT L. TAYLOR.

GERSTLE'S
Female Panacea
Cures All Diseases of Women.

MANY women are under the impression that the diseases peculiar to their sex are natural and inevitable because so many suffer constantly from them. This is a mistake. Few women are so badly diseased that they cannot be cured. It is true that had they taken a remedy that was efficient when the first symptoms of disease appeared, a more rapid cure would have been the result. No woman should neglect herself. When the monthly period becomes too frequent, painful, profuse, obstructed, or irregular in any way, or if she suffers from falling of the womb, whites, or any other female trouble, she should at once resort to the use of

McELREE'S

has demonstrated ten thousand times that it is almost infallible

FOR WOMAN'S PECULIAR WEAKNESSES,

irregularities and derangements. It has become the leading remedy for this class of troubles. It exerts a wonderfully healing, strengthening and soothing influence upon the menstrual organs. It cures "whites" and falling of the womb. It stops flooding and relieves suppressed and painful menstruation. For Change of Life it is the best medicine made. It is beneficial during pregnancy, and helps to bring children into homes barren for years. It invigorates, stimulates, strengthens the whole system. This great remedy is offered to all afflicted women. Why will any woman suffer another minute with certain relief within reach? Wine of Cardui only costs $1.00 per bottle at your drug store.

For advice, in cases requiring special directions, address, giving symptoms, the "Ladies' Advisory Department," The Chattanooga Medicine Co., Chattanooga, Tenn.

Rev. J. W. SMITH, Camden, S. C., says: "My wife used Wine of Cardui at home for failing of the womb and it entirely cured her."

A $2,000 Word!

This paper announces, in connection with The Atlanta Weekly Constitutution, a new offer in which everyone may have a chance to supply the missing word in this sentence:

"AT FIRST IT WAS CONSIDERED BY THE '——' AS A GOOD OMEN."

The sentence is taken from a well-known publication. The word is a familiar one, and it may readily suggest itself.

GIVE YOU A CHANCE AT THE MISSING WORD FUND

At the end of period covered by this contest The Constitution will pay out to the successful party or parties the full prize amount that has accrued in the contest. The plan is simple and these contests have become so popular and have been conducted with such absolute fairness to all that they have been widely copied after, but none have become equal to The Constitution's great original series.

IN ONE YEAR THE CONSTITUTION HAS PAID OUT

NEARLY $6,000 IN CASH

in these missing word contests. It sets aside 10 per cent of the subscription fund received from subscribers guessing at the missing word, and this fund is given to the successful guesser or guessers in the contest. The fund is distributed with absolute fairness, and the fact that The Weekly Constitution has MORE THAN 150,000 subscribers and that it puts aside 10 per cent from all guessers' subscriptions for this distribution fund shows that the amount to be divided at each interval is large enough to be worth striving for. It is not a catch-penny or a deceitful proposition, but the plan is open and simple and IS ADMITTED to the mails by the Post Office Department as a meritorious contest.

A ——The book from which the sentence is taken is deposited in a safety vault under seal, and will be opened at the close of the contest before a competent committee, which makes the award after an examination of the subscription books.

In one of these contests there was only one successful guesser, who received more than $1,000, and in addition to this in one year $5,000 has been distributed among successful guessers.

Remember that, whether the missing word is supplied or not, it costs nothing to guess, and even though not successful, the guesser gets

THE GREATEST OF ALL WEEKLY NEWSPAPERS FOR ONE YEAR

Keep that in view and send your guess with your clubbing subscription for your home paper and The Weekly Constitution.

Should you already be a subscriber to your home paper, remit $1 to this paper for The Weekly Constitution for one year, and it will be forwarded to The Constitution with your guess.

The Constitution guarantees that the amount of the award will not be less than $500 in cash, and it may be as much as $2,000.

THE WEEKLY CONSTITUTION IS THE GREATEST WEEKLY NEWSPAPER IN THE WORLD. It is a TWELVE-PAGE, SEVEN-COLUMNS-TO-THE-PAGE NEWSPAPER, containing EIGHTY-FOUR COLUMNS every week. It has no equal as a Weekly Newspaper in America; its news reports cover the world, and its correspondents and agents are to be found in almost every bailiwick of the Southern and Western States.

AS A MAGAZINE it prints more matter than is ordinarily found in any magazine in the country.

AS AN EDUCATOR it is a schoolhouse in itself; a year's reading of The Constitution is a liberal education.

ITS SPECIAL FEATURES command it especially to every farm home in America.

ITS FARM AND FARMERS' DEPARTMENT, Its Woman's Department and Its Children's Department are all under able direction and are specially attractive to those to whom these departments are addressed. The Constitution is Democratic in Politics, and it is a hearty advocate of the principles enunciated in the National Platform of the Party.

THE FOLLOWING ARE THE CONDITIONS OF THE CONTEST

Ten Per Cent of the Guessers' Subscriptions goes to the Fund to be divided. In other words if this Subscription Fund amounts to $20,000 for this period then the fund to go to the successful guesser would be $2,000.

THE CONSTITUTION PUTS 10 PER CENT of the amount it receives for subscriptions from each sending the Missing Word Contest into a fund for distribution among those who name correctly the missing word. If only one contestant gets the right word, he or she will be given the entire fund. If more than one supplies the missing word, the same will be proportionately divided among the successful guessers.

THE CONDITION PRECEDENT FOR SENDING A GUESS at the Missing Word is that each and every guess must be accompanied by a yearly subscription to The Weekly Constitution. If sent through the paper publishing the advertisement in accordance of our clubbing offer the guess of the missing word will be forwarded. The guess must be sent with the subscription. Should one person send more than one answer he or she will be entitled to a share of the fund for each correct answer. There will be no capital prize—everyone will get a first prize. Persons may guess as many times as they send subscriptions.

IN MAKING YOUR ANSWER you need not write the sentence out in full—just say the Missing Word for the above particular period, designating it by "——."

Though so universally used and tested did you ever hea speak ill of this great remedy? No, you never did and neve if taken as directed and in the proper quality 5 Drops to cure any of the diseases for which it is recommended it has already done to relieve the suffering is told in thous letters of grateful praise.

Mr. J. B. Weaver, widely known for many years as the special representative of the Populists and Free Silver Press of the United States, has kindly consented to the following letter for publication:

DEAR SIRS—I am anxious for the sake of the suffering and out of gratitude to give my personal endorsement of your wonderful remedy. On the 4th of Jan. I was in Washington and was suddenly seized with an aggravated form of inflammatory rheumatism, so severe and painful was the attack that within 12 hours my left arm was paralyzed and I was only able to dress with assistance. I secured a bottle of 5 Drops and took a dose that night, rubbing some on the affected parts. The next morning I was surprised to find myself in measure relieved, and continuing the 5 Drops the second morning cured. My arm was also entirely free from pain, and a severe and stubborn cold disappeared. The quickness and completeness of the cure was remarkable. I have recommended the great curative to a number of friends and have several friends who have been cured by it. Neuralgia, Catarrh, Asthma, Wishing you every success and trusting that those seriously afflicted will give this remedy a trial. Sincerely yours,

Bureau of Populist and Reform Literature, New York Exchange Building.

CURES THE INCURABLE.

DEAR SIRS:—I would like to thank you for your great remedy, "5 DROPS," for you what it has done for me. I had rheumatism in every joint and in the back, had Catarrh of the head for 30 years, I was so poorly that I lost the use of my right and could not move without pain. I was also troubled with Asthma for seven years, and our family physician, a good doctor, told me that my kidneys and Catarrh were incurable and I believed him. It is now, after using 5 Drops two months, I can truly say I have not felt so well for seven years. I have more than is claimed for it. At this time my catarrh is much better, and I have not any Rheumatism at all and the bronchial weakness and pain are gone. My hearing is good and my eyesight is much better. I have gained more than 20 lbs. in flesh and do a full day's work. It is the best medicine I ever saw to give a mother who has a child for it has the same effect on the child as on the mother. It wards off croup and relieves of the child and causes sweet and easy sleep to both young and old.

Yours respectfully, W. M. KELLEY.

Jan. 29, 1890.

We received the following letter from Mr. T. J. Wilson of Omaha, Ill. Mr. W. has been for many years an invalid and reclines the above letter was published in the Kellems, asking if his endorsement was genuine and received this reply, which he forwarded:

MR. J. J. WILSON:

DEAR SIR:—Your letter of recent date at hand, the testimonial you speak of is genuine. The company who manufactures and sells "5 Drops" published my testimonial without my consent. I gave it to them and every word of it is true, and I could swear to it and produce many witnesses. The company did not pay me for this letter. I sent it to you in January for publication in order that poor sufferers, like unto I once was, and as you might be cured of R. 5 Drops and use it and it will cure you as it has cured me. I have received many letters like yours, and it is a pleasure to me to answer all who write me. Tell your neighbors what I have written about "5 Drops." I know how to sympathize with those who are afflicted, for though I suffered so long, it is now a possible since I have felt so well.

Dr. W. W. Kellems, my brother, uses "5 Drops" in his practice, and joins me in endorsing this great remedy. He says for a case like yours it is a positive cure.

Sept. 21, 1890. MR. W. M. KELLEY. DR. W. W. KELLEMS.

If you have not sufficient confidence after reading these letters to send for a large bottle, send for a sample bottle, which contains enough medicine to convince you of the wonderful curative gives almost instant relief and is a permanent cure for the worst cases of Sciatica, Neuralgia, Dyspepsia, Backache, Asthma, Rheumatism, Catarrh, Sick Headache, Nervousness, Sleeplessness and Neuralgic Headaches, Heart Weakness, Locomotor Ataxia, La Grippe, "La Grippe," Malaria, Creeping Numbness, Bronchitis and Kindred Diseases.

"FIVE DROPS" is the name and dose. Large bottles (300 doses) $1.00. Six bottles $5.00. Sample bottle prepaid by mail 25c. Not sold by druggists, but only by authorized agents. Agents appointed in new territory.

THE AMERICAN MONTHLY REVIEW OF REVIEWS

It is impossible to promise particular features that will appear in the "AMERICAN MONTHLY" during the coming year, for it is, as the Bookman says, "a great monthly newspaper." As such, it prints in its readers an illustrated account of the notable things which make the history of the month, of the political, economic, and literary happenings which are of value to intelligent men and women. The Editor's "Progress of the World" tells succinctly an illustrated story of the month. The "Leading Articles" give the best thought and information of the current magazines in five continents; the contributed articles furnish the character sketches of the man of the month, and give timely discussions by authorities on any question of immediate serious import.

"We know of no review published in this country or in Europe which combines so successfully as the AMERICAN MONTHLY the alertness, promptness, and energy of journalism with the sound judgment, carefully weighed opinion, exact knowledge, and well-chosen English of the purely literary periodical."—The Outlook.

The result of this comprehensive effort to edit in one monthly volume the information needed by intelligent people of "live" instincts is best gauged by the opinions which the readers of the AMERICAN MONTHLY have seen fit to express. These are thinking business men, clergymen, editors, lawyers, professors, engineers, the wide-awake women of America. They write that the AMERICAN MONTHLY "is indispensable"; "is simply invaluable"; "is a generous library in itself"; "a historical cyclopedia of the world"; "the best means of aid for a busy man"; "the best periodical of the kind we have ever had"; "a triumph of editorial genius"; "the world under a field-glass," etc., etc.

THE BIRMINGHAM CARNIVAL

The people are coming to the Birmingham Mardi Gras as they never have before, and the Magic City will for nearly a week be the spectacular picture [illegible] scene of gaiety. The city will be decorated in colors and combinations to [illegible] the most critical eye, and town will, so to speak, be [illegible] for to Rex and those who have [illegible] to see him, and there will be nothing [illegible] to prevent every one having a good time in any manner the individual may see fit to [illegible] the phrase.

Rates go into effect in the Southern Passenger Association territory on the 10th instant, and the extreme return limit is fixed at March 5.

A canvass of the different passenger offices reveals the fact that preparations are being made for the handling of an immense amount of travel to this point on account of the Mardi Gras.

Already Birmingham is wearing Mardi Gras colors. Banners and flags are kissing the breezes, telling the joyous event.

Preparations for the great Mardi Gras Carnival are progressing quite lively, and everything points to a great success. The floats of the Carnival Society are nearing completion. They are elegantly put together, and the finishing work is that of an artist.

All Birmingham is in a great stir over the great days of fun and frolic which will be February 21 and 22.

Costumes for the parade and the Rex ball have been purchased. Private firms have already made contracts for displays on an [illegible] scale of grandeur, and the Carnival Society has made arrangements for two grand parades which will far excel anything ever attempted in the South. The Rex ball on the night of February 22 will outrival anything that has ever been attempted in the South. The auditorium ball room floor is being put in excellent condition for the great event. As is now arranged, the floor is just 100 feet square, and five hundred couples can dance on it without inconvenience. The best music will be furnished the occasion, and this ball will be the talk of the South.

PROTEUS.

Clarks' Circus at Clanton.

Clarks' railroad show, which exhibited here yesterday, was, with one exception, the best show which has visited Clanton in a long time. The program was carried out in a full, and one feature, which, in many shows have advertised but not carried out, was the balloon ascension and parachute leap, the balloon sailing over the town, and landing on main street in front of Mr. Wright's store. The high-bred troupe of horses and the trained elephant was much appreciated. Everyone was thoroughly satisfied with the entire performance, and the hope was expressed that the show will again come to Clanton.

An Attempted Escape.

Monday last about noon one of the negro prisoners in the jail, by the sheriff had trusted to bring water, thought he saw an opportunity to escape, and made a break for it. Our vigilant sheriff, not to be fooled, however, quickly gave chase, commanding the negro to stop. As the negro did not stop on command the sheriff fired a couple of shots at him, one of which taking effect, caused the negro to fall. Before he could get up to make the biggest jump of his life, and stop instantly. He was hurt and the sheriff again had him under lock and key.

MOONSHINE RAID NEAR STRASBURG.

A raid was made last Saturday night by Deputy United States Collector Tutwiler and Deputy United States Marshal Bryan. The still was located four miles east of Strasburg. They found about twenty gallons of beer and several jugs marked to parties in Jemison. Deputy Collector Tutwiler had his horse-collar and leggings stolen by some of the moonshiners. They had quite a lively tussel with one of the moonshiners, who threatened to shoot them, but they succeeded in disarming him. Four men were arrested.

On 8th inst. death entered the happy home of Mr. Cordie Northcutt and snatched from a fond mother's care one of their beautiful twins, about five months old. Those two little boys were sweet beyond description. It is out of our power to give a word to ease the bereaved. God be with them.

On the 10th inst. Mr. Marion Askew was suddenly called to his last home. He was a good man who leaves a large family to mourn and miss him. Mr. Askew loved his family, his church and his God. His genteel, quiet, unassuming disposition will long be remembered. Our sympathy for the bereaved is boundless.

EDITOR BANNER: What is the matter with the people? Where is the patriotism that seemed to stir them a few years ago? Is there not just as much need for an awakening now as at any time in the country's history? I fear that the indifference on the part of the people is the forboding of no good to them. It may be that thousands have become discouraged and have resolved to quit voting, and if they should we know that it will only make the management of governmental affairs easier for the manipulators to handle in their own interest; but it will not decrease taxation; the people will continue to bear the burdens, and the tax gatherers will remind them annually that they are a part of this government whether they vote or not. The man who advises the people to relinquish their interest in the state by refusing to discuss public questions, men, and measures, is either uninformed himself, or wishes the people to become more ignorant in order that the old political schemers may handle them in such a manner as will best suit the officeholder. I wonder if the men who have been elected to office by the People's Party imagine that that was the purpose for which the party was organized? It seems that way to a looker-on. Some men who were elected by the Populists have, since they were elected, refused to say or do anything to advance the party's interest, and yet seem to think they have great claims on the party. If these men were to come forward for renomination in a Populist primary or convention, I imagine that I can hear them say: "Dear people, we once cried loud and long for this reform movement, but since we have been elected to office we feel that it is enough. Oh! let us have peace by electing us once again. Oh! thou dear people, have mercy on me and my wife, my son John and his wife—us four and no more—until next election."

Suppose we elect men who will talk long and loud in the interest of the people after they are elected to office as well as before.

Jemison, February 14, 1898.

Editor BANNER:—There is a song entitled "Old Time Religion," and the subjoined clipping shows old time democracy of fifty years ago.

Those who are inclined to the opinion that the Chicago platform is too radical for a Democratic platform should read the following, taken from an address issued by the "Young Democracy" at a convention held in Philadelphia fifty years ago, a copy of which is in the possession of Col. S. F. Norton of the Chicago Sentinel. As good as is the Chicago platform, compared with some others, it might go considerably further and still not reach the demands of the Democratic party fifty years ago, which were as follows:

"We demand that one man shall not hereafter be allowed to hold unlimited thousands of acres of the common inheritance, while hundreds and thousands of the race are homeless and destitute.

"We maintain that every man is entitled to as much of the earth's surface as may be necessary to supply the wants of each and all.

"The first great natural right of every human being—the most essential, the most vitally important of all with which man is most endowed, is the right to as much of the food and other necessaries of life as will make existence not only endurable but a pleasure and a blessing.

"This right is as old as creation—it is covered with man's wants, and is as inalienable as life itself.

"If a man has a right to live, he has a right to a place, a home in which to live, and a right to all the necessary means which to go to make life a benefit.

"Man has just as much right to all the means of living as he has to life; the one grows out of the other, and he can as justly be divested of the one as of the other.

"He who robs another of the means of life, as certainly commits a murder as he would have done had he thrust a dagger into his heart.

India's area of wheat farms is now about two-thirds as large as that of the United States. The wheat is still thrashed by being trodden out by bullocks and buffaloes.

The Japanese do not intend to rest supinely under the classification of the Colonial Government of New South Wales, which recently decided to include the Japanese in the Chinese Restriction act, denoting them "as other colored people." The Japanese Consul at Sydney has protested against the proposed legislation.

One of the foremost publishers in America denies with earnestness that the taste of the public has deteriorated, as some observers think it has. When asked to justify the tons of rubbish sold annually he replied: "The rubbish fosters at least the reading habit. The children of the people who read trash will instinctively turn to the reading of something, good or bad, and there are many chances in favor of their turning to the good. Certainly there are proportionately more goods books sold to-day than fifty years ago. Don't be discouraged by what looks like the prevalence of vulgarity. The people are reading, and thousands of them are reading the best books." This good news may be set against the impression received from the superficial appearances of things, maintains the New York Tribune. The poor book or the poorer newspaper is more frequently seen in the hands of "the man in the street" than are the best books or the best newspapers. But figures are precious. The sanguine publisher whom we have quoted based his statements on figures, which is to say, on facts.

In the trial of a case at Newark, N. J., Vice Chancellor Pitney, one of the most erudite of New Jersey's judges, gave an interesting opinion on the effect of noises on human life. The case was a protest against the terrific hammering in a copper boiler shop. The complainants were property owners of the neighborhood. Said the Vice Chancellor: "Noises tend to shorten life. It is a well-settled fact that, all other things being equal, people living in crowded streets and subjected to incessant, often loud, noises, do not live as long as those whose surroundings are comparatively quiet. The rule is that which renders life uncomfortable should be stopped. In considering the effect of noise, we should apply it to ordinary, everyday people, such as the complainants in this case, not people brought up in a palace, unused to noise of any kind, or people who live in a rigsty, caring nothing for noise of any sort. The Court must be judge and jury in this case, and the Court has been in a boiler shop and knows what it is. One man holds a small hammer inside the boiler, while another man hammers on the outside." Although the case was continued, the Court intimated that people involuntarily subjected to such hurt-producing noises had redress at the hands of the law.

Says the Boston Journal: "It is calculated by military students that fully one-half of the 100,000 men who died in battle on the Union side from 1861 to 1865 were a bloody sacrifice to the North's fatuous neglect of the science of arms and of the most ordinary military precautions. If that is true, then one-half of the wounded and disabled veterans whose names are now borne on the pension lists owe their disability to the fact that their country, in its long peace, had forgotten the solemn admonition of Washington and had allowed the great mass of its youth to become absolutely ignorant of the use of weapons and of martial exercises. On this basis of reasoning the national folly of the years before the Civil War is now costing the National Government about $70,000,000 a year, or more than twice the cost of its present military establishment. We shall never have a Civil War again. Our only possible conflict is with a foreign enemy, and in all probability we shall never have that if we maintain an adequate navy and complete our new and admirable system of coast defenses. Seventy million dollars would finish these defenses and arm them. It would build a fleet of fifteen first-class battleships and make our navy the second most powerful on the planet. The men who believe in a policy of reasonable military preparedness for the United States can justify their position not only by an appeal to the national honor, but by the broadest considerations of genuine economy."

THE QUARANTINE CONVENTION

Adopts Resolutions Asking Congress to Aid in Regulating Quarantine Affairs.

The quarantine convention, which was in session at Mobile the past week, adopted the following resolutions:

"Resolved, That it is the sense of this convention:

"1. That congress be required to provide for a department of public health as soon as possible.

"2. That it is the sense of this convention that congress should enact laws to provide for an efficient maritime quarantine to be uniform and impartial in its application to the different commercial ports of this country, so as to give to no one or more of them undue commercial advantage over the others, and to be enforced by the several state and municipal quarantine or health boards if they will undertake to do so, leaving to the states the power to prescribe and enforce additional reasonable safeguards of the health of their communities, provided that such state action shall not unreasonably obstruct commerce.

"3. That congress should aid the several states in establishing and maintaining uniform, reasonable and efficient quarantine lines, affecting but not regulating interstate commerce, leaving to each state adequate power to protect as it shall deem best the lives and health of its people.

"4. That congress should leave exclusively to the states the regulation of their purely internal commerce and the provision of such quarantine and sanitary laws and regulations as they may deem advisable to that end.

"5. That in the framing of quarantine laws and regulations and their enforcement congress should avail itself of the learning, experience and ability of the medical profession in the fullest manner possible, and especially by way of an advisory council."

BONDHOLDERS LOSE.

Kelly Estate in Control of the East & West Railroad.

Judge Dowdell of the chancery court at Ashville Friday rendered a decree in the case of W. C. Browning and other bondholders of the East & West Alabama railroad against the estate of the late Eugene Kelly, of New York, declaring that $625,000 of receiver's certificates bought by Kelly are prior to all other claims against the property. He also decided that Browning and others, who claim that Kelly entered into an agreement unless they paid to the Kelly estate the value of the receiver's certificates and other advances, amounting to about $1,000,000. The decision, in effect, if sustained by the supreme court, places the Kelly estate in absolute control of the road.

Goodwyn-Brewer Case.

The contested election case of Goodwyn vs. Brewer, from the Fifth Alabama district, was argued before the house committe on elections No. 1 Saturday. Mr. Goodwyn contested the seat held by Judge Cobb in the last house and was given the seat. Mr. Goodwyn was represented in the committee by Gen. W. W. Dudley, of Indiana, and Mr. Vaughan, of Alabama, and Mr. Brewer by A. D. Pitts and G. H. Patrick. Cobb's plurality on the face of the returns was 700; Brewer's almost 6,000. As in the Aldrich-Plowman contest, the principal allegation of fraud is made against the returns from the county (Lowndes in this case) where there is a large excess of colored population over white. The census shows that the population of Lowndes county consisted of 4,563 whites and 6,985 colored persons. The official returns from this county gave Brewer, democrat, 3,407, and Goodwyn, republican, 272.

Hon. W. F. Fontaine, of Arlington, Wilcox county, died last week. He represented Wilcox county in the legislature of 1892-3.

Florence is now on a firm financial basis. The collections of January exceeded the collections of January of last year by $2,000.

The city council of Dothan has decreed that no hog, cow or other live stock shall be allowed to run at large in the streets of that city.

The work of track laying on the extension of the Mobile & Ohio railroad from Columbus, Miss., to Montgomery, will be completed within two weeks.

Congressman O. W. Underwood has announced his candidacy for re-election to the house of representatives from the Ninth district. He is for the Chicago platform.

Col. A. K. McClure, editor of the Philadelphia Times, has accepted an invitation of the Commercial Club of Birmingham to be their guest at an early date.

Mrs. Florence Forbes, state superintendent of the railroad department of the W. C. T. U., has published an appeal to the members of the state to preach a special temperance sermon to railroad men on the first Sunday in March.

There are now 242 horses wintering at the race track at Selma and the expense of keeping them is about $12,000 per month, all of which is spent in Selma. Next year many more stables will be built, and an effort will be made to have at least 500 horses winter in Selma.

The Woman's Alabama Press Association met in Montgomery Friday for organization. Mrs. George C. Ball, of the Birmingham Age-Herald, was made president; Mrs. H. C. Hildreth, of the Decatur News, vice-president; Mrs. Dr. J. D. S. Davis, of Birmingham, secretary and treasurer; Miss Claudia Hood, of the Montgomery Journal corresponding secretary.

The following recent hog killings are noted in and near Alexander City: George McWhorter, one, weight 556; W. M. Jackson, two, weight 478 and 381; John Coley, three, weight 456, 432 and 326; W. L. Thomas, one, weight 449; Ed Rush, one, weight 416; W. B. Peterns, one, weight 365; R. M. Templeton, one, weight 334; E. P. Duncan, two, weight 350 and 336; Joe Knight, two, weight 336 and 323; Jim Coats, one, weight 276, ten months old.

Alabama Coal Production.

J. D. Hillhouse, chief mine inspector, Saturday gave out the final figures on Alabama coal production in 1897. The total is 5,868,271 tons, the largest in the state's history, and 122,654 tons greater than last year. The total number of men employed was 11,091. The total coke production was 1,395,252 tons, as compared to 1,689,307 tons for 1896, thus showing a falling off. He places the total number of coke ovens in blast last year at 4,662.

Saved by a Miracle.

A wreck occurred on the Kansas City, Memphis & Birmingham railroad, near Ensley City, in which Engineer J. T. Loveless and Fireman Dave Ingram were seriously injured. That five men, the entire crew, were not killed is a miracle, for an engine and caboose left the track while running at the rate of twenty miles an hour and the engine turned completely over down a little fill. There were three men on the engine, and with the exception of the engineer, who had two ribs broken, a slight fracture of the skull and a badly sprained leg, no injuries that could possibly result fatally were received.

Life Sentence Imposed.

The jury in the case of Dennis Atkinson and Lucien Atkinson, his son, on trial at Greenville for the murder of George Hunter, the son-in-law of Dennis Atkinson, brought in a verdict against both of guilty of murder in the first degree Saturday and fixed the punishment at confinement in the state penitentiary for the time of their natural lives.

Joseph W. Burke was appointed Friday by the president to be collector of customs for the district of Mobile.

FIGHTING IN GUATEMALA.

Strife and Bloodshed Has Followed the Assassination of Barrios.

A special from San Jose de Guatemala says civil strife and bloodshed have followed the killing of Barrios. Before the body of the late ruler had found sepulchre the factions were flying at each other's throats, and as a result General Marroquin, the chief supporter of Prospero Morales, one of the aspirants to the presidency, is dead, and his forces are seeking safety in flight.

Thursday night General Marroquin attempted to seize the reins of government in behalf of Morales. He made an attack in force on the palace barracks. The assault was vigorously resisted, and in the fighting General Marroquin and a few others were killed. Seeing that their efforts would not prove successful, the attacking forces, consisting of 2,000 men, headed by General Majera and Colonel Arrevalo, fled from the city.

General Toledo, who has been appointed minister of war by Manuel Gabrera, the president pro tem. of the republic, ordered the artillery in pursuit of the fleeing revolutionists.

The populace and soldiers are now demanding that General Mendoza be proclaimed president. The situation is becoming more alarming and the crisis is acute.

President Barrios' cabinet resigned Friday.

A BARON SUICIDES.

The Famous Prince of Trinidad Takes His Own Life.

Baron Harden Hickey, better known as the Prince of Trinidad, committed suicide by taking morphine at the Pierson hotel in El Paso, Tex. He left a letter addressed to his wife at Corona, Cal., in which he stated that he was going to die. Deceased was married to a daughter of John H. Flagler, of New York, the Standard Oil magnate, in 1891. Baron Hickey attained notoriety some time ago when he took possession of Trinidad Island and proclaimed himself military dictator.

Baron Harden Hickey was the first of the royal dynasty of Trinidad. He was born in San Francisco on December 8, 1854, of a Catholic and old royalist family. His ancestors, the Hickeys, originally came from Ireland, having accompanied the banished royal Stuarts of England in their flight to France.

PLEASED WITH FLORIDA.

Secretary Wilson Has Made a Tour of the State.

Secretary of Agriculture Wilson has completed a comprehensive tour of Florida. He visited orange groves, winter truck gardens, the sugar plantations of the Kissimmee valley on rich lands reclaimed by the Disston Company, the pineapple plantations of the east coast and tobacco plantations of many sections of the state. He was greatly impressed and astonished with the quality of leaf grown in Florida and of the development of the industry since the war in Cuba has limited the exports from that country; also of Florida's possibilities as a sugar producing state.

At Lake City he was presented with one hundred cigars made of '97 Florida tobacco, the box to be opened at the next cabinet meeting that he attends.

FIVE KILLED

In a Head End Collision on the L. & N. Near Brewton, Ala.

A terrible head end collision between freight trains occurred seven miles north of Brewton, Ala., at 1:30 o'clock Friday morning. Both engineers, Davidson and Ussery, a colored fireman, a negro railroad laborer and a white tramp were killed. Two white brakemen, a colored fireman and a tramp were injured seriously.

A disregard of orders by Engineer Davidson to meet the other train at Kirkland was the cause. The collision was on a straight stretch, but a dense fog prevented the enginemen from seeing the danger in time to save themselves.

Beyond a Million.

Savannah's cotton receipts reached the million mark Friday and went beyond. Friday's receipts of 3,190 bales carried the total to 1,000,025 bales. This is the earliest date in the season at which Savannah's receipts have gone to 1,000,000 bales.

President Barrios Assassinated.

Senor Lazo Arraga, the Guatamalan minister to the United States, Wednesday afternoon received an official cablegram from the minister of foreign affairs of Guatemala, announcing the assassination of President Barrios and the succession to the presidency of First Vice-President Manuel Estrada Cabria. No details were given.

Prominent Indiana Man Dead.

Thomas W. Woolen, formerly attorney-general of Indiana, died at his home in Franklin Saturday. He held numerous official positions in the state and was twice a member of the legislature, where he was a democratic leader.

Klondikers Frozen to Death.

According to news from Alaska by the City of Topeka, one of the small steamers plying between Juneau and Skaguay, brought word just as the Topeka sailed that five men had been found frozen to death in the Chilkoot Pass, and three others brought to Dyea.

Near Garrison, Tex., Joe Richardson and Joe Bates were killed by a lumber mill blowing over on top of them. Three others, names not known, were badly injured.

STRONG ADDRESS TO FARMERS

Commissioner Culver on Subject of What Planters Should Do.

Commissioner of Agriculture Culver, who is also president of the Alabama Agricultural Society, has issued an address to the farmers of the state.

The address appeared a day or two ago, incorporated in a pamphlet containing the constitution and by-laws of the society. Here is the address, and it is interesting:

It is an established fact that thorough organization is the corner stone to success in every enterprise.

The first organization for the promotion of agriculture that we have an account of was a small colony settled on the Tiber, extending five miles back to the Albion hills, and only four miles up and down the river. Out of this colony came Rome, with her world-spread dominion. Romulus only allowed one acre to each individual for cultivation, until Italy had been conquered, then the acreage was increased to four per capita. Cato, the first and most celebrated agricultural writer, tells how thoroughly agriculture was organized at the end of the second Punic war. He also enumerates the results of said organization. First thorough preparation and cultivation, rotation and rest. Also practiced a diversified agriculture. Rome's glory and power came from her agriculture, and as long as she fostered and protected that interest so long she maintained her position for power and conquest. The second effort was made in Italy, in the year 1900, in the establishing of an agricultural society, which soon failed.

Scotland did the same in 1723, and allowed, without good reason, the society to die out; but in 1783 organized the "Highland Agricultural Society." Only six men composed the organization. In 1787 said society was incorporated by royal charter, and a few years ago had over eight thousand members, paying as annual dues, six dollars, or for life membership, sixty dollars. Their constitution enumerates the object of the association, and we will do well to observe them. They are:

First—Sub-organizations through out Scotland with shows or fairs.

Second—Improved stock breeding.

Third—A proper system of agricultural education.

Fourth—The veterinary art and science.

Fifth—Analysis of soils and fertilizers.

Sixth—An annual publication of experiments and reports.

England has now her "Royal Agricultural Society," and so has every prosperous, progressive European country the same.

Well has it become known that an advanced and diversified agriculture is a potent factor in the prosperity of a nation, and well is it understood that only through organization can this be accomplished. Many of our own states have state organizations, societies and departments of agriculture, and there is no intelligent, progressive man in this state, or elsewhere, but recognizes the utility and necessity for such organizations. By organization, if we doubt for a moment its potency, either for good or evil, we have but to look at what has been accomplished by railroad combinations, manufacturers, merchants; indeed, today, every calling or profession in this country is backed by an organization thorough and complete. Not a single enterprise or business, public or private, that is not organized. Armies are handled and made effective only through organization. Religious denominations are maintained through their perfect system of organization. Denominations and sects of religionists disappear when organization is neglected. All nature, by God himself, stands organized, and to that extent within our power imitate Him. We are effectual in our efforts to accomplish a given enterprise. But, to be more practicable, we must be more specific with this question and display the results, or at least the more salient ones, to grow out of organization to us in Alabama as farmers and land owners. First, organization is a means of education. In our coming together we learn each other's defects, each other's wants, each other's capacity, in a word, become acquainted with each other, and by far the best of all we become acquainted with ourselves. We soon learn that God did not make us and then throw away the moulds, and that in us and with us all wisdom and knowledge of agriculture. Therefore, the most difficult part of man's education, "know thyself," is easily obtained when we are thrown together with men of whom we soon discover that they have forgotten more than we have ever learned, and while the most ignorant are the greatest learners, yet from them are many of our most practical and useful lessons obtained. Thus by the interchange of theory and practice; held and in operation on our individual farms, all are made common stock for improvement and progress. Again, we will learn that farming is not all art, but that science has much to do with successful farming.

The nature of our soils, the plant food extracted by a given crop, the necessary fertilizer, both as to kind and quantity, the value of rest, shade, air, sunshine, rain and dews are all illustrated by science. Those inclined to theory are held back by practical men that know of the art; thus all theory or book farming is passed through the mill of common sense, and we are often rid of the expense and worry of an experiment sure to fail.

When organized we can and ought to discuss the many subjects of vital interest to the farmers of Alabama, which can be done in our county and state societies. One of the first subjects that ought to come before us is the planting and raising of more food supplies of every kind for both man and beast first, and above all to influence each individual farmer to make his farm self-sustaining, and practice intensive farming, building up the productive capacity of his land by rotation and proper fertilization, thereby leaving to his posterity valuable real estates.

It is now a notorious fact that we have raised a ten and a half million bale crop of cotton this and with increased population and the increased area of cotton land we ought to be able to expect to cotton crop. In the year nature produces a surplus of all the common crops, and I am fully satisfied in my humble judgment that five cents cotton is here to stay for a long time. Then why not raise all the supplies and purchase no supplies and have no debts, is the why not face about and raise everything we need at home and then what cotton we can. If we plant for and raise twelve bales to the hand and but little food crops we may be able to realize all the way from three cents for our cotton, and then our cotton and our supplies to the bale if we should fail to raise them.

It is a matter of each individual planter and not for the legislature.

We hope that every county in the state that has not already a county society or club will at once organize, and it is my purpose to aid and assist in these organizations as rapidly as I can.

We hope that the counties will be organized in time to send delegates to the meeting of the State Society next August.

J. F. CULVER,
President Alabama State Agricultural Society.

Cost of Quarantine.

The state's quota for possible quarantine for the year 1898 has been about $2,000. This sum not has been known to some time, but on Friday a statement was made showing exactly how the quarantine fund stands. The sum of $5,000 for each year, 1897 and 1898, was appropriated, and the cost of last summer's quarantine amounted to $3,627; this is what it cost to guard the state. The balance left is only $373.

FASCINATION OF FOIBLES.

Little Frailties May Make the Possessor of Them More Lovable.

"No man is sincerely and securely loved, except by those who know his foibles," says Sir Arthur Helps. Rousseau qualifies his recognition of faults in his old friend Gauffrecourt by the surmise that without them he would probably have been less amiable. In no works is this better exemplified than in those of Charles Dickens. "When I know all the foibles a man has, with little trouble in the discovery, I begin to think he is worth liking." And of Dickens' father, and his notable Micawberisms of speech and demeanor, he declares that no one could know him without liking him the better for them. No one likes Micawber less for his follies, and Dickens liked his father better the more he recalled his whimsical qualities.

One of the notable examples of the fact that foibles may rather endear than estrange is in Oliver Goldsmith. The epithet so often heard, and ever in kindly tones, of "Poor Goldsmith" speaks volumes. Writing of him, Washington Irving says that when eminent talent is united to spotless virtue, we are awed and dazzled into admiration, but our admiration is apt to be cold; while there is something in the harmless infirmities of a good and great but erring nature that pleads touchingly with ours. Irving is persuaded that few who consider the real compound of admirable and whimsical qualities which formed Goldsmith's character would wish to prune away its eccentricities, trim its grotesque luxuriance, and clip it down to the decent formalities of rigid virtue.

"Let not his frailties be remembered," said Johnson; "he was a very great man." Washington Irving would rather say, "Let them be remembered, since their chief end was to endear."

Oliver Wendell Holmes asserts that we must have a weak spot in any character before we can love it much. "People that do not laugh or cry, or take more of anything than is altogether good for them, or use any but dictionary words, may be admirable subjects for biographies; but we don't always care most for those flat-pattern flowers that press best in the herbarium."

The most non-exacting and most indulgent cannot, perhaps, fail to find some faults in the nearest and best friends; but in not a few cases, foibles are even the strengthening of regards.

Gen. Woodford's Life in Danger.

Gen. Stewart L. Woodford, the United States minister at Madrid, seems to be in grave and imminent danger. He may be the chief sufferer from the results of the DeLome letter.

The situation has become so serious that the Spanish government has surrounded the United States legation with several companies of cavalry and infantry. But with all these precautions Woodford is in danger. The troops themselves are so aroused against the United States that they might be parties to the mobbing of the American minister in retaliation for the act of this government in expelling DeLome.

Spain Is Not Mad.

Senor Sagasta, the premier, and other members of the Spanish cabinet state publicly that the DeLome incident will not affect the relations between Spain and the United States and that a new envoy, competent to conduct the commercial negotiations, will be selected.

THE FAREWELL ADDRESS.

PRESENT APPEARANCE OF WASHINGTON'S HISTORIC MANUSCRIPT.

To the student of handwriting George Washington will be a joy forever. The manuscript of his Farewell Address is as legible to-day as the Spencerian "West" are underlined once. The greatest changes occur on pages 10 and 11, which are, in fact, almost expunged. It is toward the close of his plea for the continuance of the Union and his warning against sectionalism, where he says

"With such powerful and obvious motives to Union, affecting all parts of our country, while experience shall not have demonstrated its impracticability, there will always be reason to distrust the patriotism of those who in any quarter may endeavor to weaken its bands."

The writing on the two pages which follow this sentence is almost entirely obliterated. Such suppression in this particular portion of his Address seems to show that it received the author's most careful attention.

This document appeared first in the American Daily Advertiser, a paper printed in Philadelphia by David C. and Septimus Claypoole, and sold for the price of six cents. It was an enterprising sheet for the times, but would hardly be called a lively newspaper nowadays.

In the issue of Monday, September 19, 1796, when Washington's address appeared, there was no other literary work, nothing more than the usual bills and notices. The address took up about two and a half of the precious four pages. It is printed well, with the long s's then in vogue and an occasional misspelled word, like "cloathed," or "stedfast," which are also found in the manuscript. The usage of the time may have justified this orthography, but even if it did not, people will not lay these slips up against Washington. Since William C. Ford began to publish his edition of Washington's writings in 1889, it has been known generally that the Father of His Country not only misspelled words sometimes, but even used strong ones occasionally.

The address, as printed in Claypoole's paper, bears the heading:

"TO THE PEOPLE OF THE UNITED STATES: FRIENDS AND FELLOW CITIZENS."

The original manuscript lacks the first headline. In the paper the address bears the date of September 17, 1796, wherein the manuscript date is September 19, 1796. It is probable that the date of the manuscript was changed after the proof had already been corrected. It was on a Thursday, September 15, that Washington, then in Philadelphia, sent for the printer to come to him and informed him that he had a document which he wished published in the American Daily Advertiser. On Friday he sent the manuscript to the printing office, on Saturday he corrected the proof, and on Monday, the day on which it appeared in print, he left Philadelphia for Mount Vernon. That fact is surrounded thus in the next day's paper, above the quaint notice of a marriage between Robert Reed and Catharine Conner:

"Yesterday morning the President of the United States left this city on his journey to Mount Vernon."

Where the Magnetic Needles Point East

Observations were taken over a strip of country between Moscow and Karkoff, or extreme points, north and south, distant from one another as the crow flies about 550 miles. The greatest aberrations are found in the province of Kursk, the capital town of which is some 600 miles almost due south of Moscow. In the northern part of the province the needle deflects twenty degrees, further south, in the district of Staroi Oskol, up to thirty degrees, while in the southeast of the province, about 150 miles south of Tim, the deflection is over ninety-six degrees, the needle standing almost perpendicular and pointing east and west instead of north and south.—London Standard.

High and Dry.

The eleventh century Sandwich was the most famous English seaport. It is now, however, two miles inland, owing to the sea receding.

Two memorials of Thomas Arnold will soon be placed in his native town in the Isle of Wight, a brass in the Church of St. Mary and a tablet on the house of West Cowes.

WASHINGTON AND THE CHILDREN.

The Nation's Hero Was Kind and Generous to the Little Ones.

It is only of late that Washington's reputation as a cold and austere man seems likely to be cleared away. By his later biographers he is portrayed as a man of warm affections and kindly impulses. Mr. P. L. Ford, in his "Washington as the Man," dwells upon his relations with children. The son of Lafayette—during the period of Lafayette's imprisonment for revolutionary principles—became a member of Washington's family. "I was particularly struck," says a visitor at the mansion, "with the marks of affection which the general showed his pupil. Seated opposite him, he looked at him with pleasure and listened to him with manifest interest."

A business note in Washington's ledger serves to show both his delicacy and his generosity to the boy. "By Geo. W. Fayette, gave for the purpose of his getting himself such small articles of Clothing as he might not choose to ask for, $100."

At different times Washington adopted, or assumed the expenses and charge of, not less than nine of the children of his kith and kin, and to his relations he seldom wrote a letter without a line about the "little ones." Whenever death or illness came among the children of his friends, there was sympathy expressed.

Miss Stuart says, "One morning, while Washington was sitting for his picture, a little brother of mine ran into the room, when my father, thinking it would annoy the general, told him he must go away; but the general took him upon his knee, held him for some time, and had quite a chat with him."

"Permit me to thank my dear little correspondent for the favor of her letlet of the 18th of June last, and to impress her with the idea of the pleasure I shall derive from a continuance of them. Her papa is restored to her with all the good health, paternal affection and honors which her tender heart could wish. He will carry a kiss to her from me (which might be more agreeable from a pretty boy), and give her assurance of the affectionate regard with which I have the pleasure of being her well-wisher.

"GEO. WASHINGTON."

In his journey through New England, not being able to get lodgings at an inn, Washington spent the night in a private house, and when all payment was refused, he wrote his host from the next stopping-place:

writing in a model schoolboy's copy book. Any one who has once seen and studied a specimen of Washington's penmanship can easily recognize it again. Our model is remarkably clean, round, easy, businesslike, something of the character of the writer, well poised, self controlled in nature. The man who formed signatures and examples of Washington's handwriting of the Lenox Library in New York is one who knows of what he speaks.

Besides the Farewell Address the library possesses a number of the original manuscripts of his letters from Valley Forge and drafts of epistles to Madison and Hamilton. All the manuscript of the Farewell Address is a precious possession, and is carefully kept under double lock. It consists of thirty-two pages of note letter paper, written on both sides of the paper, and tied together in book form with a narrow, pale blue ribbon. The pages are thin and yellow, but that very fact enhances their value, which increases with the lapse of the distance from the time when they were first traversed by Washington's quill pen.

There is but little material alteration. Insertions and interlineations have been freely made, and there is an occasional marginal note or paragraph mark. In two places paper has been neatly pasted over the written text, and a new version set down on the pasted paper. One place toward the end has been left blank, as if the writer had thought he might come back and fill it up, but had never done so. The words "American" and "Union" are underlined twice when they occur, and the words "North," "South," "East" and "West" are underlined once. The greatest changes occur on pages 10 and 11, which are, in fact, almost expunged. It is toward the close of his plea for the continuance of the Union and his warning against sectionalism, where he says

Two memorials of Thomas Arnold will soon be placed in his native town in the Isle of Wight, a brass in the Church of St. Mary and a tablet on the house of West Cowes.

"Being informed that you have given my name to one of your sons, and called another after Mrs. Washington's family, and being, moreover, very much pleased with the modest and innocent looks of your two daughters, Patty and Polly, I do for these reasons send each of these girls a piece of chintz, and to Patty, who bears the name of Mrs. Washington, and who waited upon us more than Polly did, I send five guineas, with which she may buy herself any little ornaments she may want, or she may dispose of them in any other manner more agreeable to herself.

"As I do not give these things with a view to have it talked of, or even of its being known, the less there is said about the matter, the better you will please me, but that I may be sure that the chintz and the money have got safe to hand, let Patty, who I dare say is equal to it, write me a line informing me thereof, directed to 'The President of the United States' at New York."

That Is All.

That story about George Washington chopping down a cherry-tree is not founded on fact, is it?"

"No; it was the invention of a backwriter."

HON. JOHN W. TOMLINSON,

State Chairman of the Democratic National Bimetallic Committee.

SPEAKS ON THE FINANCIAL QUESTION.

"The Flag So Gallantly Run up at Chicago in 1896 Must Not be Pulled Down or Lowered For One Moment," Says Mr. Tomlinson.

Livingston, Ala., Feb. 11.—The democratic silver conference held here today was a great success, every beat in the county being represented, and a large audience listened to a very able speech on the currency question by Hon. John W. Tomlinson, state chairman of the Democratic National Bimetallic committee.

The meeting was held at the court house, and was called to order by C. H. Allen, editor of the Sumter Sun. A silver club was organized and great enthusiasm was manifested throughout the meeting. I. B. McElroy, of Cuba, offered the following resolution, which was unanimously adopted:

Resolved, That we do now organize the 16 to 1 Democratic club of Sumter county, with L. P. Neal as president and C. H. Allen as secretary, with one vice-president for each beat in the county, to be appointed by the president of the club.

After Mr. Tomlinson's address Dr. M. B. Cameron, the only 16 to 1 straightout candidate for probate judge, made a short but effective speech, urging the necessity of standing by the Chicago platform.

On being made chairman, F. P. Neal introduced Mr. Tomlinson in a well worded speech, characterizing him as the uncompromising leader of the democracy of the state. For more than an hour and a half the gentleman entertained his hearers with a speech replete with logic and eloquence. At the conclusion he was loudly applauded and a vote of thanks was tendered him.

Mr. Tomlinson opened his speech by complimenting the democracy of the Black Belt. He said that men who had resisted black domination had the manhood to resist the domination of the enslaving gold standard. That never in the history of the great fight for silver's restoration were the prospects better for ultimate success.

After explaining the position of the different political parties on the question, he declared that the republicans were evasive and insincere, while the democrats by their aggressiveness for the coinage of gold and silver at 16 to 1 showed their sincerity.

Plans of the Parties

The speaker showed conclusively that the republican plan was to have only gold coinage supplemented with non-legal tender national bank currency to be issued or withdrawn at the will of the banker. That the plan further contemplated the non use as primary money of all the silver money now coined, which when carried out, as money measures property, would result in the reduction of all present prices and wages, uninfluenced by local conditions, at least one-half what they are now. Whereas the democratic party also recognizing the inadequacy of the gold supply for money purposes, proposes to supplement the deficiency by restoring the coinage laws of this country as they existed before 1873, which provided for the free and unlimited coinage of silver by this country at the existing legal ratio of 16 to 1; believing that money, the supply of which is regulated by Nature and not by man, is a fairer arbiter between debtor and creditor, and a more impartial medium of payment in the transaction of business of the world.

Reasons for 16 to 1

The reasons for adhering to the existing legal ratio of 16 to 1 are:

1. Because that is the natural ratio. The average production for centuries being, in weight, in that proportion; which is confirmed by the fact that the gold and silver coin of the world—the result of the coinage from the earliest times—Amounts to in round numbers the same, viz: $4,000,000,000 each. In the year 1896, the year of the great contest on the financial question, the world's production of gold and silver at the coinage value of 16 to 1, was exactly the same $215,000,000 each.

2. Because the bonded indebtedness of the United States was contracted payable in coin at the then present weight and fineness, which was gold and silver at the ratio of 16 to 1, and to change the ratio, by enlarging the silver dollar, would be paying this debt beyond the legal and moral obligations involved.

3. Because the increasing of the ratio, by enlarging the silver dollar, would necessitate the recoining of all of the silver money in this country which, besides the expense thereof, would reduce the amount of silver dollars in exactly the same proportion that the ratio is increased, thereby producing contraction instead of expansion and defeating the very purpose of silver's restoration—more money.

4. Because it would put us farther away than ever from international agreement, as the European ratio is only 15½ to 1.

5. Because 16 to 1 is not only a principle but a programme on which the democratic, the populist and the silver republican parties are united, to abandon which would be to go from the strait road of fixed purpose to the open field of uncertainty and confusion that would likely result in the adoption of a larger ratio and, as we have shown, defeat the very purpose of the law—more money.

Gold Supply Inadequate

The speaker further contended: The coinage of gold alone is not keeping, and cannot keep pace with increasing population and business so as to afford an adequate supply of the circulating medium for the transactions of business. Republicans admit this by proposing to supplement with national bank currency. That as gold had become more valuable, the more it was sought after and consumed in the arts, little being left for money. That since 1873, the population of the United States had nearly doubled, that the coinage of gold had not kept pace. That as the volume of money measures the price of property, products and labor, if the supply of gold was as great as the increase in population and business, the coined silver remained as redemption money, prices would remain the same; that if not as great, and the silver coined no longer used as redemption money, then prices would decline.

Volume Money Regulates Prices

Quantitative theory is correct and is the key to the temple of all knowledge on the currency question. That it was axiomatic in monetary science, on which all writers on political economy agree from the days of Aristotle down, that the amount of money fixes the value of the money. That on the number of dollars out depends the value of the dollar. That cut in half the amount of dollars and you double the value of the remaining dollars, or double the number of dollars you cut in half the value of the dollar. That when you say the value of the dollar is doubled, you mean that it will buy twice as much of the products of human toil and of wages. That if the value of the dollar is worth one-half, that it will take only one-half the amount of the products of human toil and wages to get it.

Money Dearer, Prices Lower

That because of the dollar becoming dearer since the striking down of silver in 1873, prices have declined. That the French premier in a speech in the chamber of deputies recently explained that "with the same quantity of gold it is now possible to obtain a double quantity of products." That the general average of prices for a number of years, and not the price of one particular thing for one particular year, is valuable in establishing a general rule. That the index numbers of prices furnished by the Royal Statistical Society of London show general average of decline of more than 22 1-2 per cent. since 1873. That Prof. L. L. Price, of Oriel College, Oxford, says that in the light of converging lines of evidence it seems impossible to doubt the existence of a * * * connection between the recent fall of prices and the money changes of the last twenty years.

Bottom of Prices Not Reached

Mr. Tomlinson further showed from authority of unquestioned authority that the bottom of prices was not yet reached. That great economic changes are slow in taking effect.

He showed the condition of the agricultural laboring classes of England where children were put out at the tender years of 5 to 7 to work under strange taskmasters. But, he said, England had been on a gold basis since 1816, while this country had only been on a gold standard basis for less than a quarter of a century, and during part of that time with a limited coinage of silver.

He showed that the plan of the contractionists was not only to stop the coinage of silver but to do away with all of the silver now coined, which was one-half of the metallic money of the world, which, when accomplished, as money measures values, reduce the present values at least one-half where unaffected by local and other conditions; that the effect of this policy is being felt in the continuing fall in prices now, except in the manufactured products of the protected few.

Women and Children Must Work

That statistics show that 50 per cent. of the laboring people of this country now are unable to support the family without the wife and children working also, as got to be the case in England a good many years ago.

That domesticity is on the decrease, that there are fewer homes where "the love of country is born in the love of home."

To Debauch the Very Poor and to Use Them

He further showed that it is folly now to go in debt. That in the accomplishment of their purpose to do away with all silver money now in use, the extremely rich, as was the case on the decline of the Roman empire, are endeavoring to debauch the very poor, who must look, not to the future, but to their immediate necessities to satisfy the cries of hungry children. In this way it is attempted to debauch the very poor and to use them against the great middle classes who are to be defeated in this way.

Cato, the Wise, who made a visit to Carthage and beholding the insolence of the Carthagenians, on returning to Rome made a speech in which he said Romans must conquer the Carthagenians or the Carthagenians would conquer Rome, and after that in every speech he made he wound up with the same exhortation. We must conquer the gold standard or the gold standard will conquer us. The last contest was much closer than many supposed. Went in unorganized, came out an organized body; that very day the result was known the bugle note of renewed attack was sounded again along down the line, and led on by the gallant Bryan democracy had won in every contest since where it had stood firmly and aggressively by its principle.

Time is demonstrating the wisdom of the Chicago platform, not only on the money plank, but on all of the planks.

That Mexico is prospering under the double standard system of money; it is furnishing an object lesson to the world of the wisdom of true bimetallism. That while 400,000,000 people are under the gold standard, there are 900,000,000 who know nothing but silver—with whom mostly this country trades.

Fable of Wolf and Lamb

Mr. Tomlinson further contended that while the logic of events was proving the truth of the cause of democracy, yet to win democracy must fight, and continue to fight, and fight all along the line. That the gold standard people, like the wolf in the fable of the Wolf and the Lamb, would, if they could, have their dinner, the increments of an increasing dollar, in spite of all of our arguments; they are organized, aggressive, deceptive and misleading; and, unless watched, will in this state, under the plea of so-called "harmony" and under the plea "that in judicial fights the money question has no place," control our next democratic state convention, securing the state and county democratic executive committees so as to control the policy of the party in the great fight of 1900.

Help Those Who Help the Cause

That the policy of the silver advocates should be to help those who help the cause, and fight politically those who fight and sneer at the cause of silver; that any other course is illogical and unwise; that those who are earnestly in favor of silver will not put in the hands of others the club with which to fight silver, actions speak louder than words; those that are not for us are against us; those who profess to be for silver and work for the advocates of the gold standard in accomplishing their ends, are not fooling the people. When men say they are bimetallists, ask them if they are in favor of free coinage, second of unlimited coinage, third of independent coinage by this government, fourth at the existing legal rate of 16 to 1? If they answer yes, then they are true bimetallists, otherwise not.

Candidates for Solicitor

The speaker said, in proceeding with his speech, that he had heard that certain candidates for solicitor had been threatened that if they did not bring up their counties against silver in favor of certain candidates in the next state convention, that they would be beaten for solicitor in the next legislature. That if this was true, these candidates should not be influenced thereby; that they should remember that the next legislature will be controlled by the advocates of silver's restoration, and that if candidates for solicitor think that they will help their cause before that legislature by bringing up counties against silver, in the next state convention, they read the times incorrectly.

Aggressiveness Against Aggressiveness

If the banks of this state feel it to the interest to continue to fight the farmers, continue to fight for the gold standard in the interest of non-resident bond holders and against the producing and laboring classes of the state so that values and wages keep going down and down, then, the next legislature should reduce the rate of interest. If the railroads and telegraph companies desire to continue to do the same thing, then, the next legislature should, as it has a right to do, put down railroad and telegraphic rates. If water and gas companies are disposed to do likewise, then, let water and gas charges come down accordingly.

Mr. Tomlinson further explained, however, that while the silver forces should be aggressive in standing up for their cause, yet, there should be no abuse; there should be no needless opposition aroused, and he told a story illustrating how men could be won over by the use of tact and good judgment. But, he said, there must be

No Compromise of Party Principles

There must be no compromise of the principles of the party; no smothering them even for the time being. That the majority of those who did not support the national ticket last fall are quietly coming back into the party without making demands, but that the few who are making demands are making them in vain. That two years ago these very people advocated fighting for principle; this year, they are advocating just the opposite.

That for democracy to win, it must continue to stand by its principle and be aggressive in obtaining substantial relief for the people, and in such a manner as to convince the people that the party is in earnest, to do which the party must build not upon the shifting sands of uncertain expediency, but upon the eternal rocks of everlasting principle; and the flag which was so gallantly run up at Chicago in 1896, must not be pulled down or lowered even for one brief moment.

INTERNATIONAL LESSON COMMENTS FOR FEBRUARY 20.

Lesson Text: "The Twelve Sent Forth," Matt. x., 2-15—Golden Text: Matt. x., 8—Commentary on the Day's Lesson Written by the Rev. Dr. D. M. Stearns.

2-4. "Now the names of the twelve apostles are these. The first Simon, who is called Peter, and Andrew, his brother." Jesus Himself went about all the cities and villages, teaching in their synagogues, and preaching the gospel of the kingdom, and healing every sickness and every disease among the people, but the multitudes who were as sheep without a shepherd touched His heart and He told His disciples to pray the Lord of the harvest that He would send forth laborers into His harvest (chapter ix., 35-38). When we pray this prayer from the heart it seems to imply a readiness on our part to go ourselves if He opens the way, for it is just following this command so to pray that we have the record of His choosing and sending forth these twelve. In Luke vi., 12, we read that just before He chose the twelve He went out into a mountain to pray, and continued all night in prayer to God. In Mark iii., 14, we read that He ordained them that they should be with Him, and that He might send them forth to preach and to heal the sick. The last night before His crucifixion He told them that He had chosen and ordained them that they should go and bring forth fruit, and that their fruit should abide.

5, 6. "These twelve Jesus sent forth, and commanded them, saying, Go not into the way of the gentiles and into any city of the Samaritans enter ye not, but go rather to the lost sheep of the house of Israel." This restricted commission will not be understood unless one is familiar with God's plan of blessing for all nations, which is to bless Israel first and then all nations through Israel. This is fully revealed in the prophets, and He will not depart from it, for the gifts and calling of God are without repentance (Rom. xi., 29). Take as samples passages Ps. lxvii.; Isa. xxvii., 6; lx., 1-3, 21; Jer. iii., 17, 18; Zech. xiv., 16, 17. There are two other prayers which we would do well to pray along with Math. ix., 38. One is in Isa. lxii., 6, 7, and the other in Rev. xxii., 20. To pray these three prayers from the heart daily will bring one very near to the heart of Christ. His primary mission was to Israel (Math. xv., 24); hence this restricted commission at this time to the twelve, but being rejected and crucified by Israel He after his resurrection gave the worldwide commission as in Math. xxviii., 19.

7. "And as we go, preach, saying, The kingdom of heaven is at hand." Thus preached the Baptist, and Jesus Himself, and the 12, and the 70, for in the person of the king the kingdom was verily among them (Luke xvii., 21, margin), and had they been content to receive a crucified and risen Messiah the kingdom would doubtless have been set up after His resurrection, but seeing their decided rejection of Him, He, before His death, told them in a parable that the kingdom was postponed till His return from the far country (Luke xix., 11-15).

8. "Heal the sick, cleanse the lepers, raise the dead, cast out devils; freely ye have received, freely give." Some one has suggested that verses 5 to 15 of this chapter contain special directions for the commission of the apostles at that time, verses 16 to 23 directions for gospel ministry in all ages, and verses 24 to 42 the service of Christ in its fullest and widest sense, calling attention to the fact that the last verse in each of these sections has His "Verily, I say unto you."

9. "Provide neither gold nor silver nor brass in your purses." In Isa. vi., 8, the question is, "Whom shall I send and who will go for us?" If any one will go for God the Father, Son and Spirit on their business and wholly in their interests, they may rely upon Phil. iv., 19, being made true to them, "My God shall supply all your need according to His riches in glory by Christ Jesus." Or, as one has paraphrased it, "Make thou His service thy delight, He'll make thy wants His care."

10. "Nor scrip for your journey, neither two coats, neither shoes, nor yet staves, for the workman is worthy of his meat." If we are the Lord's messengers on the Lord's business, we have no occasion to be anxious about food or raiment or money, but disentangled and free and without fear (verses 26, 28, 31) follow where He leadeth in quietness and in confidence, for the silver and the gold and the cattle upon a thousand hills are His.

11. "And into whatsoever city or town ye shall enter, inquire who in it is worthy, and there abide till ye go thence." The prophets were plainly taught that not all would receive their message, but that some would hate them for it (Jer. i., 17, 19; Ezek. ii., 6, 7; iii., 7). In the second section of our present chapter, and in John xv., 18-20, we are taught to expect the same thing, but we are also taught that some will welcome Him, and also us for His sake. He will direct our steps in this matter also, and if some day He wants us to have fellowship with Him in being refused, His grace will be sufficient.

12, 13. "And when ye come into an house, salute it, and if the house be worthy let your peace come upon it, but if it be not worthy, let your peace return to you." Even Israel was not to fight against a city until that city had rejected their offers of peace which they were to proclaim to it (Deut. xx., 10-12). Every believer is to count himself a messenger of the Prince of Peace, and, like the angels at His birth, we are to proclaim peace in His name (Luke ii., 14). Preaching peace by Jesus Christ is our work (Acts x., 36), for He has made peace by the blood of His cross (Col. i., 20). Blessed are the peacemakers! How beautiful are the feet of such! But there are many who know not these things (Math. v., 9; Isa. lii., 7; lix., 8).

14. "And whosoever shall not receive you nor hear your words, when ye depart out of that house or city, shake off the dust of your feet." Thus the apostles did (Acts xiii., 57; xviii., 6), and doubtless God was glorified, as He always will be if the messenger is faithful, whether men will hear or forbear. The faithful messenger is unto God a sweet savor of Christ, whether men believe or not (II Cor. ii., 15, 16). The messenger is responsible for the faithful delivery of the message, but the one who sends him is the one who will attend to the way the message is treated. Verse 40 says that as they treat the Lord's messenger so they treat the Lord Himself (See also Luke x., 16).

15. "Verily I say unto you, It shall be more tolerable for the land of Sodom and Gomorrah in the day of judgment, than for that city." By comparing chapter xi., 22, 24, have we not a right to conclude that it may be more tolerable for the heathen who never heard of Christ, than for those in so-called Christian lands who having heard have not received Him.—Lesson Helper.

FASCINATION OF FOIBLES.

Little Frailties May Make the Possessor of Them More Lovable.

"No man is sincerely and securely loved, except by those who know his foibles," says Sir Arthur Helps. Rousseau qualified his recognition of faults in his old friend Gauffrecourt by the surmise that, without them he would probably have been less amiable. In no works is this better exemplified than in those of Charles Dickens. "When I know all my foibles a man has with little trouble in the discovery, I begin to think he is worth liking." And of Dickens' father and his notable Micawberisms, of speech and demeanor, he declares that no one could know him without liking him the better for them. No one likes Micawber, less for his follies, and Dickens filled his father better the more he recalled his whimsical qualities.

One of the notable examples of the fact that foibles may rather endear than estrange is in Oliver Goldsmith. The epithet seldom heard, and ever in kindly tones of "Poor Goldsmith" specks volumes. Writing of him, Washington Irving says that when eminent talent is united to spotless virtue, we are awed and dazzled into admiration, but our admiration is apt to be cold, while there is something in the harmless infirmities of a good and great but erring nature that pleads touchingly with ours. Irving is persuaded that few who consider the real component of admirable and whimsical qualities which formed Goldsmith's character would wish to prune away its eccentricities, trim its grotesque luxuriance, and clip it down to the decent formalities of rigid virtue.

"Let not his frailties be remembered," said Johnson, "he was a very great man." Washington Irving would rather say, "Let them be remembered, since their chief end was to endear."

Oliver Wendell Holmes asserts that we must have a weak spot in any character before we can love it much. "People that do not laugh or cry, or like motion of anything than is altogether good for them or use any but dictionary words, may be admirable subjects for biographies, but we don't want to care most for those that pattern flowers that press best in the herbarium."

The most not exacting and most intelligent cannot, perhaps, fail to find some faults in the nearest and best friends, but in not a few cases, foibles are even the strengtheners of regards.

Gen. Woodford's Life in Danger.

Gen. Stewart L. Woodford, the United States minister at Madrid, seems to be in grave and imminent danger. He may be the chief sufferer from the results of the DeLome letter.

The situation has become so serious that the Spanish government has surrounded the United States legation with several companies of cavalry and infantry. But with all these precautions Woodford is in danger. The troops the Spaniards are so aroused against the United States that they might be parties to the mobbing of the American minister in retaliation for the act of this government in expelling DeLome.

Spain Is Not Mad.

Senor Sagasta, the premier, and other members of the Spanish cabinet state publicly that the DeLome incident will not affect the relations between Spain and the United States, and that a new envoy, competent to conduct the diplomatic negotiations, will be selected.

On Tuesday night a terrible explosion occurred on board the U. S. battleship Maine in the Harbor of Havana, by which 253 brave American seamen lost their lives. All sorts of rumors are afloat concerning the explosion, some claiming it was pure accident on the ship, and others that the Maine was blown up by the Spanish by means of a floating torpedo. While in the first place, if the first rumor is correct, it is a most deplorable accident, in the second if the destruction of the ship was the result of Spanish design it must inevitably lead to war.

CHAIRMAN Marion Butler of the Populist National Executive Committee, and both the chairman of the Democratic National Committee and the chairman of the National Committee of the Silver Republican party have each issued an address to the people, advocating the union of all the forces opposed to the gold standard policy, and concentrating the full strength of the voters of the entire country upon candidates pledged to monetary reform, overwhelmingly carry the elections for congress next November, and in 1900 obtain complete control of the government. It is obvious that without some such arrangement the probability is that the gold standard will remain the permanent policy of this government, and the depression we have undergone this last few years will be continued indefinitely, to the greater distress of the people.

WHEN the present management assumed charge of the Age-Herald we had hoped that the wide experience in journalism of the gentleman at the head would have led him to be sure of his ground before undertaking to defend an indefensible position. In a leading editorial last Saturday, referring to the Aldrich-Plowman contest, the Age-Herald takes occasion to say:

"Let there be a convention, and let the electorate be so simply and clearly defined that a contest of such a nature will become an impossibility. For the good name of the State, and her prosperity, it cannot come too soon. The Aldriches of the State should be forever deprived of their opportunity to throw mud."

Does the Age-Herald realize it is throwing mud, and that of the direst sort, in the imputation contained in the last sentence? All that the "Aldriches of the State" have done is to prove incontestably to congress that the Fourth Alabama district is entitled to be represented in that body by the man whom a majority of the voters have elected for that purpose.

The Age-Herald is throwing mud at the voters of the district, at the congressional committee on elections, and at congress itself, and in the process bespatters itself.

The good name of the State cannot be redeemed too soon, but it cannot be done until the Fourth district so conducts its elections that there will be no ground for a contest.

The Age-Herald says the "illiterate voter must be weeded out," and yet the majority officially reported for A. L. Plowman was made up in the only black belt county in the district (Dallas) against an actual majority for Mr. Aldrich in the other five counties of 123, the official returns for the five counties being Plowman 6,023 and Aldrich 6,145.

Neither congress nor the country is blind, and such reckless assertions as that of the Age-Herald only serve to retard the investment of capital in the State and hinder its prosperity.

DEATH OF MR. J. P. ALLEN.

For over twenty years Mr. J. P. Allen has been a prominent man in Chilton county, and his death at his home at Jemison last Tuesday morning, at the advanced age of 81 years, leaves a void not easily filled. Mr. Allen, by dint of hard work, had long since acquired a competence which enabled him in his old age to calmly contemplate passing events, while his even-tempered mind rendered him a favorite with all who came in contact with him. He was twice married, and a widow, four daughters and one son mourn his departure from his earthly labors, hoping to meet him in the realms above. For 55 years he was a member of the Cumberland Presbyterian church, 56 years of which he was a Ruling Elder. The funeral took place at Jemison yesterday, a large concourse of friends and neighbors paying their last tribute of respect by their attendance. A good man has gone to his reward.

Verbena

A painful accident occurred last Monday at Verbena, in which Mr. J. A. Hester, the railroad agent whom everyone likes, was the sufferer. It was caused by his falling from a car and a pair of trucks falling on him. Mr. Hester came home to his mother and sisters at Clanton, and we hope will soon be able to resume his duties.

SWEET, SWEET HANDS.

God's roses are sweet and his lilies are fair,
As they bend 'neath the dews from from above;
They are splendid and fair—but they cannot compare
With the beautiful hands of — love.
No jewels adorn them—no glittering bands—
They are just as God made them, these sweet, wee! hands!

And not for the earth's gems, or its bright diadems,
Or the pearls from the depths of the sea,
Or the queens of the lands, with their beautiful hands,
Should these dear hands be taken from me.
What exquisite blisses await their commands!
They were made for my kisses, these dear, sweet hands.

Ay, made for my kisses! And when some day
My life shall be robbed of its trust,
And the lips that are colder shall kiss them away
And hide them in daisies and dust,
I will kneel in the dark where the angels stand
And my kiss shall be the last on these dear, sweet hands.

I have given Chamberlain's Cough Remedy a fair test and consider it one of the very best remedies for croup that I have ever found. One dose has always been sufficient, although I use it freely. West Chilton.

The dry fall, it seems, is being followed with an extremely wet winter. It has been raining almost ever since the first of December. All wagon roads leading into Selma has become so bad as to virtually stop people from traveling over them with loaded wagons.

There will be another large oat crop planted in these parts and less cotton this year. The people of West Chilton will go for hog and hominy, for every body is sold on five cents cotton.

Now is the time to set your stakes, and be sure and don't set them too far out. Set your stakes right and try to run to them and take them in next fall. Don't buy anything on credit unless you have to. We need a cash system, the credit system has ruined many a good man.

Political Pointers.

People's Press Bureau, St. Louis, Mo., Feb. 16, 1898.

The farce of a trial of Sheriff Martin and his deputies, who murdered striking miners at Lattimer Pennsylvania, last year, has been going on at Wilkesbarre, in that state. The evidence has shown the guilt of the accused, beyond question, but still very few people expect to see a conviction, although the judge and jury have been warned by letters to abide by the evidence.

Every week shows some new trust formed to control the necessaries of life. This week it is the cracker and bread trust with a capital of $55,000,000.

A Topeka, Kansas, paper is authority for the statement that a number of middle of the-road papers in that state have recently been sold outright to Republican stockholders and the present editors retained with the orders ending that the papers are to advocate socialism and the most extreme doctrines.

Governor Pingree is carrying out his suit against the railroad which refused to sell him a thousand mile ticket good for any member of his family, for twenty dollars.

Nebraska papers are putting W. J. Bryan forward as the next candidate for Governor of that state. Mr. Bryan has not yet stated his attitude on the matter.

The Populist and Free Silver Republicans among the Senators and congress-men at Washington, D. C., held an informal conference, February 5th, and agreed as to the necessity of absolute unity of action in the next election.

Investigation has revealed the fact that the War Department has for nearly twenty years maintained several clerks who were assigned to assorting a lot of old war documents and telegrams that it seems have many times before been assorted and that were absolutely valueless in the beginning.

The beauties of the recently enacted and much-vaunted Dingley Bill are daily being demonstrated. Germany has taken the lead and after excluding American beef and grains has now put a ban on American fruits.

The Honorable Jerry Simpson recently called attention to the fact that Dingley, the great apostle of protection, was wearing a London hat. Mr. Dingley, with the habit of his party, laid all blame on the working man, asserting that he had not ordered a hat made abroad. Jerry is a very troublesome fellow.

Senator Allen recently held up the appointment of one Bushnel as postmaster of Lincoln, Neb., alleging that he was guilty in the past of gross frauds.

Senator Marion Butler's speech against the Loud Bill has won golden opinions wherever it has been read.

Work is moving on nicely for the meeting of delegates at St. Louis, Mo., May 2nd, to perfect plans for the uniting of all the Labor Unions into one great body, organized and equipped for tremendous influence in the next Presidential campaign.

The Administration is being put in a very painful position on the Cuban question. Senator Mason of Illinois, who is very far from being a side-bound Republican and has refused to be silenced by the Hanna crowd, made a speech recently in which he bitterly arraigned the President and his advisers. The Spanish minister wrote a letter in which he referred to President McKinley as "a weak tool of bad men" and several other uncomplimentary terms. This letter has gotten back to Washington and having been published in the papers, it may arouse the Chief Executive to the seriousness of the situation. A. S.

Persistent Coughs

A cough which seems to hang on in spite of all the remedies which you have applied certainly needs energetic and sensible treatment. For twenty-five years that standard preparation of cod-liver oil, has proved its effectiveness in curing the trying affections of the throat and lungs, and this is the reason why: the cod-liver oil, partially digested, strengthens and vitalizes the whole system; the hypophosphites act as a tonic to the mind and nerves, and the glycerine soothes and heals the irritation. Can you think of any combination so effective as this?

SCOTT'S EMULSION

Be sure you get SCOTT'S Emulsion. See that the man and fish are on the wrapper.

SCOTT & BOWNE, Chemists, New York.

HOW TO FIND OUT.

Fill a bottle or common glass with urine and let it stand twenty-four hours; a sediment or settling indicates an unhealthy condition of the kidneys. When urine stains linen it is positive evidence of kidney trouble. Too frequent desire to urinate or pain in the back, is also convincing proof that the kidneys and bladder are out of order.

WHAT TO DO.

There is comfort in the knowledge so often expressed, that Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, the great kidney remedy fulfills every wish in relieving pain in the back, kidneys, liver, bladder and every part of the urinary passages. It corrects inability to hold urine and scalding pain in passing it, or bad effects following use of liquor, wine or beer, and overcomes that unpleasant necessity of being compelled to get up many times during the night to urinate. The mild and the extraordinary effect of Swamp-Root is soon realized. It stands the highest for its wonderful cures of the most distressing cases. If you need a medicine you should have the best. Sold by druggists, price fifty cents and one dollar. You may have a sample bottle and pamphlet both sent free by mail. Mention THE BANNER and send your address to Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N.Y. The proprietor of this paper guarantees the genuineness of this offer.

Miraculous Benefit

RECEIVED FROM

Dr. Miles' New Heart Cure.

ELI P. BABCOCK, of Avoca, N. Y., a veteran of the 3rd N. Y. Artillery and for thirty years of the Babcock & Munsel Carriage Co., of Auburn, says: "I write to express my gratitude for the miraculous benefit received from Dr. Miles' Heart Cure. I suffered for years, as result of army life, from sciatica which affected my heart in the worst form, my limbs swelled from the ankles up. I bloated until I was unable to button my clothing; had sharp pains about the heart, smothering spells and shortness of breath. For three months I was unable to lie down, and all the sleep I got was in an arm chair. I was treated by the best doctors but gradually grew worse. About a year ago I commenced taking Dr. Miles' New Heart Cure and it saved my life as if by a miracle."

Dr. Miles' Remedies are sold by all druggists under a positive guarantee, first bottle benefits or money refunded. Book on diseases of the heart and nerves free. Address,

Therefore, according to said command I shall expose for sale, at public outcry, to the highest bidder, for cash, all the right, title and interest of the above named Sallie Hanlin in and to the above described property, on

MONDAY, MARCH 21, 1898,

during the legal hours of sale, at the Court House door in Clanton, Alabama.

Dated at Clanton this 6th day of January, 1898.

J. T. COOLEY, Sheriff.

MAKE HAY While the Sun Shines

Do not wait until you are old to harvest good health and a sound constitution. Do not wait until next spring to begin a cure if you have "spring feelings" now. If you feel languid, peevish and out of sorts use

Johnston's Sarsaparilla

(QUART BOTTLES).

It will purify your blood, stimulate your nerves, brace your constitution against colds, and keep your stomach in good order. You will go through the winter bounding with energy and will fail to have "spring feelings" in the spring. The harvest of health will stand you and your children in good stead.

JOHNSTON'S SARSAPARILLA is sold everywhere in quart bottles and will purify every drop of blood in the body. $1 a bottle.

THE CROSS AND CROWN

Is the title of a treatise on the doctrine of perfection or sanctification, by A. L. Pattilo, of Verbena, now in the press. It is written in a plain, homely fashion by one deeply impressed with the necessity of Christians living a perfect life, who desires to see all professing religion imbued with the same spirit. The Author, who is also a poet, has written several poems, all on religious subjects. The whole when complete will make a book of over 200 pages, bound in a stiff board cover, which at the small charge of 50 cents, should speedily exhaust the edition.

This book has a double claim on the people of Chilton county, and should find a place in every home in the county, from the fact that it is entirely a home production, being the first book ever written, printed, bound and published in Clanton. It will be ready early in October. Price only 50 cents. Orders can be sent to THE BANNER, Clanton, or to A. L. Pattillo, Verbena.

Notice to Non-Resident.

The State of Alabama, Chilton county. In Chancery at Clanton, Alabama, Seventh District, North-eastern Chancery Division. January 29, 1898.

Nannie Davis, complainant, vs. A. Oscar Davis, defendant.

In this cause it is made to appear to the Register, by the affidavit of W. M. Adams, that the Defendant, A. Oscar Davis, is a non-resident of the State of Alabama, and that his residence and post office address is Comanche, Comanche county, State of Texas, and further, that in the belief of said affiant, the Defendant is over the age of twenty-one years.

It is therefore ordered by the Register that publication be made in the Banner, a newspaper published in Clanton, once a week for four consecutive weeks, requiring him, the said A. Oscar Davis, to answer or demur to the same within thirty days after the 1-tt day of March, 1898, and failing so to do a decree pro confesso will be taken against him in said cause.

Done at office in Clanton, Alabama, this 29th day of January, 1898.

W. E. STEWART,
Register in Chancery.

Edwin S. Cunningham, of Tennessee, has been appointed by the president to be consul at Aden, Arabia.

President McKinley will not demand an apology from Spain, as he is satisfied with De Lome's departure.

Italian warships have been ordered to Hayti to enforce pending claims of the Italian government to the amount of $120,000.

Ensign J. R. Breckenridge was washed overboard from the torpedo boat Cushing, now in Havana harbor, and was drowned.

Hon. Allen D. Candler, of Georgia, has tendered his resignation to the governor as secretary of state, to make the race for governor.

The corner stone of the Coleman Cotton mill, at Concord, N. C., was laid Friday. It is the only mill in the world owned and operated by negro labor.

J. Hadley Clack who has been chief of police of Nashville for many years was defeated by the new police board and Robert Sidebottom elected in his place.

A proposition is before the Louisiana Constitutional convention to pension ex-Confederates, which will probably become a part of the new constitution.

After celebrating his 56th birthday, George Hartman, living near Louisville, Ky., became suddenly despondent and plunged into a cistern, and was drowned.

The house committee on commerce killed the senate bill to permit the state of South Carolina to control liquors brought into the state in original packages. The motion to report it favorably was lost on a tie vote.

A special from Bonham, Texas, says that in an attempt to arrest William Green and Bob Hunter, near there, both men were killed, and Officer Tom Milstead and Charles Bridges were so badly injured that they will likely die.

One of the new bills introduced in the Kentucky house of representatives Friday was by Mount, populist, proposing to change the name of Carlisle county to William Jennings Bryan county.

Official advices received by the French foreign office from Pekin say Japan has notified China that she intends to keep Wei-Hai-Wei permanently. Such a report, however, has not been confirmed at Washington.

A Warsaw dispatch says: During a funeral service in the synagogue at Idzienciol, in Grodno, Wednesday, the woman's gallery collapsed. In the panic that ensued twelve women, five men and three children were crushed to death and many others were seriously injured.

The contest which has been waged in the house committee on invalid pensions ever since the assembling of congress over the question of barring from the pension rolls the widows and children of soldiers who marry hereafter, came to an end Thursday in the defeat of the proposition.

The American line steamer St. Louis, Captain Raddle, which arrived at New York Saturday from Southampton, reports the loss at sea of the Holland-American line steamer Veendam, Captain Stenger, from Rotterdam for New York. The passengers and crew of the Veendam were saved by the St. Louis.

The Goebel election law passed the Kentucky senate Thursday and will be rushed through the house. The governor will veto it and then it will be passed over his head. The law is such as to keep the republicans from carrying the elections in that the franchise will be regulated to the interest of the democrats.

The Spanish government has requested the Clyde Bank Ship Building Company to push Spanish work. The company has dispatched to Spain a high-speed torpedo cruiser, fully manned by Spaniards. In addition, two torpedo boat destroyers are being completed for Spain, the crews for which have arrived at Glasgow.

South Carolina's latest plan for reducing the number of homicides is a bill recently introduced in the legislature which makes it unlawful to have a hip pocket in the rear of the trousers or coat. Provision, however, is made for persons who may be permitted, for good reason, to carry a gun; they are granted a license, but must also wear conspicuously a metal badge which bears the legend: "I have my gun concealed."

ORDERED TO STRIKE.

Decision of the New England Textile Unions' Meeting Today.

At a meeting Sunday in Boston of sixty-five representatives of textile unions in New England, it was unanimously voted to recommend that all unions call out the operatives in every cotton mill in New England.

The meeting was practically the outcome of the recommendation of President Gompers made to the Federation of Labor last Sunday, in which he urged the different unions to unite on some settled policy regarding the mill situation in New England.

It now remains for the various national unions to take action on the recommendation, but what this action will be is a matter of conjecture. If all should acquiesce and vote to strike, 147,000 operatives would undoubtedly cease work and the manufacture of cotton goods throughout New England would be at a standstill. If, on the other hand, only a few unions should vote to strike, the refusal of the others would still keep a large portion of the mills in operation.

SATISFACTORY ADJUSTMENT

Expected by the State Department Regarding the DeLome Incident.

A special from Washington says: The state department Monday officially denied the rumor that General Fitzhugh Lee, consul-general to Cuba, has tendered his resignation.

It can be stated also that, while the details are not obtainable, matters regarding the DeLome incident have assumed such shape that an early and entirely satisfactory adjustment of affairs between the United States and Spain is confidently expected by the state department.

The 300 word cipher dispatch received from Minister Woodford Saturday night was translated at the state department Sunday, but no intimation of its import could be secured from official sources.

Bernarbe Succeeds De Lome.

The Spanish cabinet met Monday and discussed the present state of the war in Cuba and the DeLome matter at great length. It was decided to publish a decree accepting the resignation of Senor Dupuy DeLome as minister at Washington, and appointing Senor Louis Polo Bernarbe as his successor.

Murdered at a Church Door.

At a country church near Blue Ridge, Ga., Sunday, a young man named Rawlins was shot to death by Whitt Dillard. Rawlins was in the act of going into the church when several young men on the outside began poking fun at him, which precipitated a quarrel and a general fight ensued. Dillard drew a pistol and fired, instantly killing Rawlins. Several of the leading citizens who were in the church mounted their horses with the determination to avenge the murder, and soon overtook the fugitive. He was called upon to surrender, but paid no attention to the command. Firing began, and a bullet from the posse struck him, killing him instantly.

No Food in Forty-Four Days.

Mrs. Annie Burr, widow, 21 years old, living in northeast Nashville, has not taken food, solid or liquid, for forty-four days. Neither has she taken a drink of any sort within twenty-two days. Two physicians called in have been greatly puzzled over the case, which appears to be some affection of the throat. She suffers a great deal from hunger, but has not lost much flesh.

To Stay the Terrors of Death.

Two Brooklyn physicians have discovered a new anti-toxin with which they believe they can easily check the progress of pneumonia and other bacterial diseases. The doctors have not perfected their method as yet, and will not give full particulars, but as a remedy for pneumonia they say the anti-toxin will stand on its merits.

MAINE BLOWN TO ATOMS

In Havana Harbor and One Hundred Soldiers Killed.

MAY HAVE BEEN A PLOT OF THE SPANIARDS

It Is Believed the Explosion Occurred in a Small Powder Magazine—The Vessel Burning—Sailors Blown From Their Bunks into the Air.

A special from Havana says: At a quarter of 10 Tuesday evening a terrible explosion took place on board the United States cruiser Maine in Havana harbor. Many are killed or wounded. All the boats of the Spanish cruiser Alfonso XIII. are assisting. As yet the cause of the explosion is not apparent. The wounded sailors of the Maine are unable to explain it. It is believed the cruiser is totally destroyed. The explosion shook the whole city. The windows were broken in all the houses.

The correspondent of the Associated Press says he has conversed with several of the wounded sailors, and understands from them that the explosion took place while they were asleep, so that they can give no particulars as to the cause.

The Wildest Consternation.

The wildest consternation prevails in Havana. The wharves are crowded with thousands of people. It is believed the explosion occurred in a small powder magazine. Captain Sigsbee and the other officers have been saved. It is estimated that over 100 of the crew were killed, but it is impossible to give exact details. Admiral Manterola has ordered that boats of all kinds should go to the assistance of the Maine and her wounded. The Havana firemen are giving aid, attending carefully to the wounded as they are brought on shore. It is a terrible sight.

General Solano and the other generals have been ordered by Captain General Blanco to take steps to help the Maine's crew in every way possible.

Captain Sigsbee says the explosion occurred in the bow of the vessel. He received a wound in the head. Orders were given to the other officers to save themselves as best they could. The latter, who were literally thrown from their bunks in their night clothing, gave the necessary orders with great self-possession and bravery.

At 11:30 the Maine was still burning.

The first theory was that there had been a preliminary explosion in the Santa Barbara (magazine) with powder or dynamite below the water. Admiral Manterola believes that the first explosion was of a grenade shell that was hurled over the navy yard. The air is full of all kinds of rumors, and hundreds of opinions are advanced as to the probable cause of the blowing up of the warship. There is a strong belief that it was the work of the Spanish with dynamite, fired from one of the Spanish war vessels lying nearby in the harbor. It was with great difficulty that an outbreak was averted from Americans, who desired to begin shooting Spaniards on the streets.

Official Confirmation From Sigsbee.

The secretary of the navy received the following telegram from Captain Sigsbee:

"Maine blown up in Havana harbor at 9:40 and destroyed. Many wounded and doubtless more killed—and drowned. Wounded and others on board Spanish man-of-war and Ward Line steamer. Send light-house tenders from Key West for crew and few pieces of equipment still left and such as are now above water. Public opinion should be suspended until further report. All officers believed to be saved. Jenkins and Merritt not yet accounted for. Many Spanish officers, including representatives of Gen. Blanco, now with me and express sympathy. Signed, SIGSBEE."

Long Sends Assistance.

Secretary Long received Captain Sigsbee's dispatch but a few minutes before the Associated Press dispatches from Havana were handed in. He received the news with apparent calm, and his first act was to comply with Captain Sigsbee's request that assistance be sent from Key West. He immediately wired Captain Forsythe, at Key West, to proceed with the naval tenders Fern and Mangrove to Havana harbor.

Secretary Long then sent for Captain Dickens, and the two discussed Captain Sigsbee's brief telegram. No other naval officers were present, and besides the secretary and Captain Dickens, the naval colony at Washington is ignorant of the disaster, the greatest which has befallen the American navy since the disaster at Apia many years ago.

Description of the Maine.

The Maine was built in New York in 1890 at a cost of $2,588,000. She had a steel hull and a complement of 374 men. It is a battleship of the second class, and is regarded as one of the best ships in the new navy. She was built at the Brooklyn navy yard, and is 318 feet long, 57 feet broad, 21.6 mean draught, and 6,682 tons displacement. She carries four 10-inch and six 6-inch breech-loading guns in her main battery, and seven 6-pounders and eight 1-pound rapid-firing guns and four Gatlings in her second battery, and four Whitehead torpedoes.

OF INTEREST TO ALABAMIANS.

PROBABLY LOST IN A SHIPWRECK

Forty Klondikers Are Supposed to Have Been Drowned—Several Birmingham Boys Aboard.

A special from Victoria, B. C., says: The steamer Islander brings news that the steamer Clara Nevada, of Seattle, was burned in Lynn canal and forty men who were on board are supposed to have perished.

The Nevada left Skaguay for Juneau on February 5, and when the Islander, which arrived from Como Monday morning, reached Juneau the Nevada had not arrived there. The day she should have arrived at Juneau fire was seen on the waters of the canal and the opinion is general that the flames were from the burning steamer. Whether the passengers and crew reached land or whether they perished is not known. It is feared that they met with death, as there has been a terrible wind and snow storm prevailing in the north for several days and small boats could hardly live through it.

Aboard the Clara Nevada was a party of Alabama boys bound for the Klondike in the interest of the Birmingham Gold Mining company. The party consisted of Joe Biddle, Jim Biddle, Charles J. Smith, John Neale and G. W. Stapleton, who left Birmingham only a few weeks ago for Seattle where they embarked on the 5th instant aboard this ill-fated steamer.

Will Join the United Mine Workers.

Arrangements are being made for the holding of a state miners' convention in Birmingham some time in March, when it is expected that a division of the United Mine Workers of America will be formed from among the mining camps in Alabama. A movement in this direction was begun last October, but the miners at Pratt City proved a stumbling block by refusing to join. Recently a district assembly was organized at Pratt City, and now the miners of that place are ready to affiliate with the national organization.

Good Roads Convention in Session.

The Good Roads convention is now in session at Anniston, with an attendance of from 400 to 500 delegates from every county in the state. The object of the Good Roads convention is to bring about concerted action among all the counties toward perfecting a permanent organization which will work to get a uniform road law passed by the legislature. Several states already have such laws and they have proven a great success.

A Limestone Farmer Wears the Belt.

Mr. Ira H. Davenport, who lives near the county line of Lauderdale and Limestone, is the champion hog grower of all that section. Last year he had the heaviest porkers, and now this year he still leads the van. He butchered last Monday, when his largest porker turned the scales at 555, his next largest at 518, and the third at 396. He also killed two "pigs," 11 months old, that averaged 260. His 555 pound hog was 25 months old. Mr. Davenport still wears the belt.

Col. H. L. Watlington Drops Dead.

Col. Harry L. Watlington, one of best known lawyers of West Alabama, died at his home in Jasper Sunday morning from heart failure. Colonel Watlington had been troubled with spells of something like smothering for a long time, and of late they had been more serious. Sunday morning he walked out for something in the yard, and while there felt a spell approaching. He hastened into the house, but fell lifeless on the threshold.

Alabama War Data.

Adjutant General Ligon has received a letter from the federal pensions and record bureau at Washington requesting the temporary transfer to that city of the military records of Alabama. It is the purpose of the government to have copied and to publish for distribution all official American war data obtainable.

Executive Committee in Session.

The executive committee of the democratic and conservative party of Alabama are in session at Montgomery. They meet to fix the time and place for holding the state convention, the basis of representation and prescribe the qualification of voters who will be allowed to participate in the primaries.

Labor Sets the Pace.

The first man to be formally placed before the people as a candidate for representative to the legislature was named Monday, when the Union Label League, of Birmingham, by a unanimous vote placed in nomination the name of R. L. Russell. At the same meeting John McQueen was indorsed.

The Howard-Harrison Iron Co. are considering the building of two blast furnaces in Bessemer that will turn out 500 tons a day.

John Gafford Condemned to Death.

After three and a half days' deliberation the jury in the case of John Gafford, who killed Bartow Lloyd at Greenville, Ala., returned a verdict of murder in the first degree and fixed the penalty at death.

Adolph Luetgert Found Guilty.

Adolph Luetgert, of Chicago, was convicted of the murder of his wife and sentenced to imprisonment for the term of his natural life. He received the verdict with a laugh.

FIFTY-FIFTH CONGRESS.

The House—Monday.

A bill was passed to ratify the act of the territorial legislature of Arizona, authorizing the erection of a capital building. Without further preliminary business the house went into committee of the whole and took up the consideration of the military academy appropriation bill. The bill carried $455,540, $18,769 less than the estimates and $26,036 less than the current law. The debate then drifted in politics, for a while, after which the bill was passed. Mr. Dingley asked unanimous consent for the consideration of a bill unanimously reported by the committee on ways and means, limiting the time in which the outstanding refunding certificates of deposit of 1879 can be refunded into bonds of 1907 to December 31, 1899. About $40,000,000 of these certificates were issued in furtherance of the redemption act. But $42,000 of them remain now outstanding. There was no objection and the bill was passed. The senate amendments to the legislative, executive and judicial appropriation were disagreed and the bill was sent to conference. At 4:45 p. m. the house adjourned.

The Senate.

A communication was received by the senate from the secretary of war today presenting the urgent necessity for immediate action to control the disorderly elements that are assembling in Alaska. Mr. Chandler presented a memorial which called the attention of the senate to one of the most thrilling events of the civil war. The memorial prays that congress grant to the surviving members of Lieutenant Worden, who commanded the Monitor in the historic fight at Hampton Roads between that vessel and the ironclad Merrimac, the sum of $200 each in the nature of prize money. A house bill authorizing the secretary of the treasury either to purchase or have constructed a suitable revenue cutter for use on the Yukon river, Alaska, at a cost not to exceed $40,000, was passed. Mr. Morgan, of Alabama, called attention to the resolution introduced a few days ago concerning this country's attitude to Hawaii, which was referred to the foreign relations committee. The senate then went into executive session, and at 5 p. m. adjourned.

The House—Tuesday.

In the house today a bill was passed authorizing the Lewiston and Concord Bridge Company to construct and maintain a bridge across the Snake river, between Idaho and Washington. The senate amendments to the agricultural bill were non-concurred in and the bill sent to conference. Mr. Taylor, of Ohio, chairman of elections committee No. 1, then called up the contested election case of William F. Aldrich vs. Thomas S. Plowman from the Fourth Alabama district. Mr. Plowman, the sitting member, is a democrat, and Mr. Aldrich was the populist and republican candidate. The majority of the committee reported solidly in favor of unseating Mr. Plowman. The case was argued at length by Mr. Taylor, who spoke in favor of sustaining the majority report, while Mr. Fox, of Mississippi, presented the case of the minority, which reported that Mr. Plowman was entitled to his seat. Messrs. Mann, of Illinois, and Settle, of Kentucky, followed; when at 5 o'clock the house adjourned without reaching a vote.

The Senate.

Mr. Bate, of Tennessee, presented the credentials of Thomas B. Turley to fill the vacancy caused by the death of the late Senator Isham G. Harris, of Tennessee. Mr. Allen, of Nebraska, presented a Cuban amendment to the diplomatic and consular appropriation bill, that since the opening of hostilities in Cuba more than 300,000 pacificos had died of starvation, or of diseases directly traceable to insufficient food or lack of proper sanitary conditions. He said he had been informed that it was the custom of the Spanish government to herd hundreds of families together in inadequate quarters, starving them until they have been more than decimated by disease. He expressed the hope that the committee on foreign relations would act promptly on the amendment so that the senate could have an opportunity to vote upon it. The amendment is as follows: "That a condition of war exists between the government of Spain and the government proclaimed and for some time maintained by force of arms by the people of Cuba, and that the United States of America shall maintain a strict neutrality between the contending powers and accord to each all the rights of belligerency in the ports and territory of the United States." Cuban resolutions to the same effect were also offered by Messrs. Cannon, of Utah, and Mason, of Illinois.

The House—Wednesday.

The house to-day resumed the consideration of the Aldrich-Plowman contested election case from the Fourth Alabama district, with the understanding that a vote be taken at 4:30 p. m. to-day. Previous to the reopening of the debate the special deficiency appropriation bill passed, carrying $200,000 for the payment of juror's fees in the United States courts and $25,000 for witness fees... Representative Sulzer attempted to secure recognition for the introduction in open house of a resolution to the effect that the Spanish minister be "given his passports and sent home in disgrace." He was cut off by the demand for the regular order... The vote was then taken on the minority report of the Aldrich-Plowman case, which declared Mr. Plowman entitled to his seat. The motion was voted down by 124 to 145.

Mr. Bailey demanded a division on majority resolution declaring Plowman not entitled to his seat. The vote was 129 to 145. Party lines were strictly drawn upon the vote, except in the cases of Messrs. [illegible], Rep., O., and Fowler, [illegible], J., who were present and [illegible] vote. The second resolution seating Mr. Aldrich was adopted by 144 to 132. Mr. Aldrich took the oath and at [illegible] the house adjourned.

The Senate.

[illegible]

Mr. Mason [illegible] floor in support of his resolution, after which the Senate adjourned.

The House—Thursday.

The house was in a very bad [illegible] today and the whole session was consumed in filibustering against [illegible] of minor importance. Neither [illegible] further than the engrossment [illegible] third reading. The trouble [illegible] over the enforcement of the [illegible] against the discussion of irrelevant subjects when Mr. Handy, democrat of Delaware, attempted to reply [illegible] floor during the consideration of [illegible] bills to a letter recently written by Mr. Thomas F. Bayard, secretary of state under the Cleveland administration, in denunciation of the free [illegible] democracy. Roll call followed roll call all day long and partisan [illegible] reached a high pitch. Finally [illegible] it became evident no progress [illegible] be made with the bills presented [illegible] adjournment was taken until Monday.

The Senate.

General William Booth, of England, founder of the Salvation army, officiated as chaplain at the opening of the senate's session. Mr. [illegible] reported favorably from the committee on commerce a bill to amend the [illegible] relating to navigation. He said [illegible] as the proposed bill related only to Alaskan waters, it was necessary that prompt action should be taken. The bill was passed without division. The Indian appropriation bill was then considered. Considerable discussion arose over an amendment proposed by the committee, providing "that hereafter no Indian, or tribe of Indians, shall lease for mining purposes lands that are not patented to said Indians." It was agreed to. In the course of discussion of an amendment offered by Mr. Thurston, Mr. Allen, of Nebraska, made a sharp attack upon the speaker of the house of representatives. He declared, [illegible] was impossible to secure the passage through the house of any meritorious measures because one man stood at the entrance of the caverns into which proposed legislation was dumped [illegible] would permit nothing to be done [illegible] that of which he did not approve. [illegible] said that "in the other end of the capitol this one man stands for [illegible] and his bold, unwarranted, undignified action was a disgrace to the country and to the American people." The house then adjourned.

The Senate—Friday.

In the senate today a joint resolution providing for a survey and to determine the practicability of opening a navigable channel through the southwest pass of the Mississippi river passed. Mr. Allen introduced a resolution directing the committee on foreign relations to inquire whether or not the yacht Buccaneer, owned by William R. Hearst, has been seized and is being held by the Spanish government. The resolution was agreed to. The Indian appropriation bill was then taken up and the [illegible] amendment was adopted without discussion. It is as follows:

"That all settlers under the homestead laws of the United States upon the public lands acquired prior to the passage of this act by treaty or agreement from the various Indian tribes who have or who shall hereafter settle upon the tract entered in good faith for the period required by existing law, shall be entitled [illegible] the land so entered upon the payment to the local land officers of the usual and customary fees and no other further charge of any kind whatsoever shall be required from such settler to entitle him to a patent for the land covered by his entry, provided, that the right to commute such entries and pay for said lands, in the option of the settler and in the time and at the prices now fixed by existing laws, shall remain in full force and effect. Provided, however, that all sums of money so released, which if not released would belong to any Indian tribe, shall be paid to such Indian tribe by the United States."

The amendments to the bill, which carries an appropriation of nearly [illegible],000,000, were agreed to, and as amended the bill was passed. The senate then adjourned until Monday.

EMINENT DIVINES' SERMONS.

DISCOURSES BY TWO ABLE WORKERS IN GOD'S VINEYARD.

"Four Anchors" is the Title of the Thirteenth Sermon in the New York Herald's Competitive Series—Dr. Talmage Preaches a Sermon to Sisters.

TEXT: "They rest fast and remain out of the storm."—Acts xxvii., 29.

The symbolism of the text is striking and suggestive. Many lives have been shipwrecked for the need of anchors holding them to steadfastness. However deep we may feel the waters to be through which we are sailing, we are often nearer the shoals and reefs than is imagined.

The first anchor which should be thrown out is steadiness of purpose. The innermost secret of successful lives is in the concentration of power along certain definite lines. Paul says: "This one thing I do," and the world will ever do him reverence. Dr. Hudson Taylor says: "This one thing I do," and China is opened as never before to higher ideals and larger visions of life. The Earl of Shaftesbury says: "This one thing I do," and he goes down to the Holborn viaduct, in London, and the bootblacks and hucksters and street arabs and costermongers are transformed. The great names in art, in science, in philosophy and in finance are always identified with pain and purpose. Life's power but power undirected is lost. Only constant striking on the same spot makes an impression. Purpose connects and studies our months and years and makes of them all but parts of a single whole. Each day ought to be a link tempered and welded into the chain of a completed life. Three-fourths of men's failures may be attributed to the lack of purpose. The house can scarcely be constructed without a plan, how much less can a human life be fashioned without a conception of what it will be when finished. Plan must precede construction; the ideal before the realization, the purpose before the accomplishment. Only the man who aims will strike the mark. Turn your life into a definite channel; let it not cover too much territory, for it is the deeply flowing stream which cuts away the obstructions and at last reaches the sea, while the stream which spreads itself in shallowness goes silently into the swamp land and its life is ended. The analysis of every completed life reveals a central point about which energy and devotion cluster [illegible].

But purpose to exert its influence must be accompanied by perseverance, so cast out the second anchor. Here is a vast difference between the aim and the accomplishment. Perseverance is the bending of the bow to send the shaft at the target, and the bow is the will. "I will fight it out on this line if it takes all summer," was the great general. But as the spirit which conquers, so also under heaven plans be drafted or our purposes more than circumstances and difficulties seem to conspire to defeat and ruin them. Many a man has seen his star in the east, but only here at there has ever been possessed of the courage and devotion to follow it over an unbeaten path until it led him to his treasure. It is blood earnestness which tells. The man who is ever unconscious of defeat is he who some day will plant his standard upon the enemies' ramparts and win the day. He who holds on in the face of the storm in spite of discouragements, calmly suffering temporary delays, is he who finally secures his crown and his reward. Shall we complain of difficulties when a thousand lights are pointing at wonderful achievements, when other overcoming tremendous obstacles? Helen Keller, without sight, without hearing, without language, presses on until she passes the entrance examinations to Harvard University. John Bunyan, the drunken tinker of Bedford, rises to the authorship of "Pilgrim's Progress." It is half heartedness which fails, but the "doing with thy might" which succeeds. Before a determined will and a passionate devotion men will stand aside and let you pass. They cannot help it; difficulties will vanish. They cannot withstand your determination will be crushed their puny strength deserts them.

In order to make perseverance possible another the third, faith in one's self. To attain the estimate of our power falls far short of what it really is. Emerson's word, "Trust thyself," carries with it a true philosophy, for one may not achieve until there is a firm belief in one's own soul. If we rate our ideal at 100 and our power at fifty the accomplishment will be but one-half. The great crime men commit against themselves is not in overrating, but in underrating. My self-set limitations determine the extent of my achievements. And what right has man to rate in the image of God, with unknown and undeveloped powers, standing before a hidden future, to measure and to circumscribe his capabilities and to limit his possibilities of success in the construction of his destiny? No man is measure man, for only God knows the height the individual may reach. Men who today are almost powerless in their intellectual sweep are they who have not dared with compass and rule to set their bounds. This is not conceit, but a respect for the untouched, undreamed of potency of your own soul. So then, believe not only in your ideal, but in the possibility of realizing it.

And then the fourth anchor, faith in God. We may imagine Paul as the last anchor is thrown out calling to the sailors, "Men, does it hold?" and the answer coming back, "Lost the rope is taut; we do not see the ledge down below the waves, but the anchor holds." All that is the blessed experience of those who always grasps the solid rock, the unseen rock of God. Faith connects man with Omnipotence. Faith is the conductor which passes at our disposal living grace and power. This is the testimony of every child of faith. "I can do all things through Him." This is the power of our faith which may be appropriated. And there are times when the safety of the whole life depends upon this anchor. The anchor of purpose may be dislodged and flung high upon the shore by storm and tempest; the anchor of perseverance may be worn away by the fretting tide and the cutting sands, the anchor of faith may snap in twain in some fearful crisis when the strain is great and the heart is sick, but away down below the crashing billows of passion and temptation rests the anchor of faith embedded in the heart of God. So let us live with a noble purpose worthy the patient endeavor and unfaltering devotion we bestow upon it mindful of our own godly stored resources and holding fast to the rock of God.

First Presbyterian Church, Providence, R. I.

FOR GIRLS.

Rev. Dr. Talmage Preaches Directly to the Sisters.

TEXT: And his sister stood afar off to witness what would be done to him.—Exodus ii., 4.

Princess Thermutis, daughter of Pharaoh, looking out through the lattice of her bathing-house on the banks of the Nile, saw a curious boat on the river. It had neither oar nor helm, and they would have been useless anyhow. There was only one passenger, and that a baby boy. The boat was made of the broad leaves of papyrus tightened together by bitumen. "Kill all the Hebrew children born," had been Pharaoh's order. To save her boy, Jochebed, the mother of little Moses, had put him in in that queer boat and launched him. His sister, Miriam, stood on the bank watching that precious craft. She was far enough off not to draw attention to the boat, but near enough to offer protection. There she stands on the bank—Miriam, the poetess; Miriam, the quick-witted; Miriam, the faithful; though very human, for in after time she demonstrated it.

Oh, was not Miriam, the sister of Moses, doing a good thing, an important thing, a glorious thing when she watched the boat woven of river plants and made water-tight with asphaltum, carrying its one passenger. Did she not put all the ages of time and of a coming eternity under obligation when she defended her helpless brother from the perils aquatic, reptilian and ravenous? She it was that brought that wonderful babe and its mother together so that he was reared to be the deliverer of his nation, when otherwise, saved at all from the rushes of the Nile, he would have been only one more of the God-defying Pharaohs for Princess Thermutis of the bathing-house would have inherited the crown of Egypt and as she had no child of her own this adopted child would have come to our nation. Had there been no Miriam there would have been no Moses. What a guardian for a faithful sisterhood!

Miriam was the oldest of the family; Moses and Aaron, her brothers, were younger. Oh the power of the elder sister to help decide the brother's character for usefulness and for heaven! She can keep off from her the other morsels than Miriam could have driven back water fowl or crocodile from the ark of bulrushes. The older sister decides the direction in which the cradle boat shall sail. By gentleness, by good sense, by Christian principle she can turn it toward the palace, not of a wicked Pharaoh, but of a holy God and a brighter prospect than Thermutis could lift him out of peril, even religion, whose ways are ways of pleasantness and all her paths are peace. The older sister knew much the world owes her! Born while yet the family was in limited circumstances, she had to toil and take care of her younger brothers. And if there is anything that excites my sympathy, it is a little girl lugging around a great fat child and getting her ears boxed because she can not keep him quiet! By the time she gets to young womanhood she is pale and worn out, and her attractiveness has been sacrificed on the altar of sisterly fidelity and she is consigned to celibacy, and society call her by an unfair name, but in heaven they call her Miriam.

Let sisters not begrudge the time and care bestowed on a brother. It is hard to believe that any boy that you know so well is your brother can ever turn out anything very useful. Well he may not be a Moses. There is only one of that kind needed for six thousand years. But I tell what your brother will be either a blessing or a curse to society, and a candidate for happiness or wretchedness. He will, like Moses, have the choice between rubies and living coals, and your influence will have much to do with his decision. He may not, like Moses, be the deliverer of a nation, but he may, after your father and mother are gone, be the deliverer of a household. What thousands of homes to-day are pestilence stricken! There are the careless, now well inspected hand, yielding to temptation for the sport of sisters and younger brothers, because the older brother rose to the leadership from the day the father lay down to die. Whatever you do for your brothers will come back to you again.

Don't smile him. Don't deprecate his ability. Don't talk discouragingly about his future. Don't let Miriam get down off the banks of the Nile and wade out and upset the ark of bulrushes. Don't tease him.

Don't let jealousy ever touch a sister's soul as it sometimes does because her brother gets more favor or more means. Even Miriam, the heroine of the text, was struck with the pestilence of jealousy. She had possessed unlimited influence over Moses, and now he marries and not only so, but marries a black woman from Ethiopia; and Miriam is so disgusted and outraged at Moses first because he had married at all, and next because he had practiced miscegenation, that she is drawn into a frenzy, and then begins to turn white, and gets white as a corpse, and then whiter than a corpse. Her complexion is like chalk, the fact is, she has the Egyptian leprosy. And now the brother whom she had defended on the Nile comes to her rescue in a prayer that brings her restoration. Let there be no room in all your house for jealousy either to sit or stand. It is a leprous abomination. Your brother succeeds. O sisters, is your success. His victories will be your victories.

If you only knew it, your interests are identical. Of all the families of the earth that ever stood together, perhaps the most conspicuous is the family of the Rothschilds. As Mayer Anselm Rothschild was about to die, in 1812, he gathered his children about him—Anselm, Solomon, Nathan, Charles and James—and made them promise that they would always be united on "Change." Obeying that injunction, they have been the mightiest commercial power on earth, and at the raising or lowering of their scepter nations have risen or fallen. That illustrates how much, on a large scale and for selfish purposes, a united family may accomplish. But suppose that instead of a magnitude of millions it be the object, it be doing good, and making salutary impression, and raising this sunken world, how much more ennobling! Sister, you do your part, and brother will do his part. If Miriam will lovingly watch the boat on the Nile, Moses will help her when leprous disasters strike.

General Baker, of the Russian cavalry, had in early life wanderlust off in the army, and the family supposed he was dead. After he gained a fortune he emigrated to his native Hesse, his native place, and made a banquet, and among the great military men who were to dine he invited a plain miller and his wife, who lived near by and who, although poor, bearing some harm would be done them. The miller and his wife were placed one on each side of the general at the table. The general asked the miller all about his family, and the miller said that he had two brothers and a sister. "No other brothers?" "My younger brother went off with the army many years ago, and he, dear, was long ago killed." Then the General said: "Soldiers, I am this man's younger brother, whom he thought was dead." And how loud was the cheer and how warm was the embrace!

Brother and sister, you need as much of an introduction to each other as they did. You don't know each other. You think your brother is crotchety and cross and queer, and he thinks you are selfish and proud and unloving. Both wrong. That brother will be a prince in some woman's eyes, and that sister a queen in the estimation of some man. That brother is a magnificent fellow, and that sister is a morning in June. Come, let me introduce you: "Moses, this is Miriam." "Miriam, this is Moses." Add seventy-five per cent. to your present appreciation of each other, and when you kiss good morning do not stick up your cold cheek, wet from the recent washing, as though you hated to touch each others lips in affectionate caress. Let it have all the fondness and cordiality of a loving sister's kiss.

I read of a child in the country who was detained at a neighbor's house on a stormy night by some fascinating stories that were being told him, and then looked out and saw it was so dark he did not dare go home. The incident impressed me the more because in my childhood I had much the same experience. The boy asked his companions to go with him, but they dared not. It got later and later—7 o'clock, 8 o'clock, 9 o'clock. "Oh," he said, "I wish I were home!" As he opened the door the last time a blinding flash of lightning and a deafening roar overcame him. But after awhile he saw in the distance a lantern, and lo! his brother was coming to fetch him home, and the lad stepped out and with swift feet hastened on to his brother, who took him home, where they were so glad to greet him, and for a long time supper had been waiting. So may it be when the night of death comes and our earthly friends can not go with us, and we dare not go alone, may our Brother, our elder Brother, our Friend closer than a brother, come on to meet us with the light of the promises which shall be a lantern to our feet; and then we will go in to join our loved ones waiting for us, supper all ready, the marriage supper of the Lamb!

A Beautiful Girl's Affliction.

From the Republican, Versailles, Ind.

The Tuckers of Versailles, Ind., like all fond parents, are completely wrapped up in their children. Their daughter Lucy in particular, has given them much concern. She is fifteen, and from a strong, healthy girl three years ago has been one weak and sick failing off in flesh until she became a mere skeleton. She seemed to have no life at all. Her blood became impure and finally she became the victim of nervous prostration. Doctors did not help her. Most of the time she was confined to bed, was very nervous and irritable, and seemed on the verge of St. Vitus' dance.

"One morning," said Mrs. Tucker, "the doctor told us to give her Dr. Williams Pink Pills for Pale People, which he brought with him. He said he was treating a similar case with these pills and they were curing the patient. We began giving the pills and the next day could see a change for the better.

Discussed Their Daughter's Case for Hours.

The doctor came and was surprised to see such an improvement. He told us to keep giving her the medicine. We gave her one pill after each meal until eight boxes had been used when she was well. She has not been sick since, and we have no fear of the old trouble returning. We think the cure almost miraculous."

McELREE'S Wine of Cardui

has demonstrated ten thousand times that it is almost infallible

FOR WOMAN'S PECULIAR WEAKNESSES,

irregularities and derangements. It has become the leading remedy for this class of troubles. It exerts a wonderfully healing, strengthening and soothing influence upon the menstrual organs. It cures "whites" and falling of the womb. It stops flooding and relieves suppressed and painful menstruation. For Change of Life it is the best medicine made. It is beneficial during pregnancy, and helps to bring children into homes barren for years. It invigorates, stimulates, strengthens the whole system. This great remedy is offered to all afflicted women. Why will any woman suffer another minute with certain relief within reach? Wine of Cardui only costs $1.00 per bottle at your drug store.

For advice, in cases requiring special directions, address, giving symptoms, the "Ladies' Advisory Department," The Chattanooga Medicine Co., Chattanooga, Tenn.

Rev. J. W. SMITH, Camden, S. C., says: "My wife used Wine of Cardui at home for falling of the womb and it entirely cured her."

A $2,000 Word!

This paper announces, in connection with The Atlanta Weekly Constitution, a new offer in which everyone may have a chance to supply the missing word in this sentence:

"AT FIRST IT WAS CONSIDERED BY THE '_____' AS A GOOD OMEN"

The sentence is taken from a well-known publication. The word is a familiar one, and it may readily suggest itself.

Contest Began Jan. 1--Ends March 1, '98

TO ENTER THIS CONTEST YOU MUST SUBSCRIBE FOR

THE [illegible] CONSTITUTION

IN CONNECTION WITH

THE BANNER,

AT THE EXTREMELY LOW PRICE OF $1.50

In connection with this Clubbing Rate, we will, if you send your guess with the subscription price, forward all for you and thus

GIVE YOU A CHANCE AT THE MISSING WORD FUND

At the end of period covered by this contest The Constitution will pay out to the successful party or parties the full prize amount that has accrued in the contest. The plan is simple and these contests have become so popular and have been conducted with such absolute fairness to all that they have been widely copied after, but none have become equal to The Constitution's great original series.

IN ONE YEAR THE CONSTITUTION HAS PAID OUT

NEARLY $6,000 IN CASH

in these missing word contests. It sets aside 10 per cent of the subscription fund received from subscribers guessing at the missing word, and this fund is given to the successful guesser or guessers in the contest. The fund is distributed with absolute fairness, and the fact that The Weekly Constitution has MORE THAN 150,000 subscribers and that it puts aside 10 per cent from all guessers' subscriptions for this distribution fund shows that the amount to be divided at each interval is large enough to be worth straying for. It is not a catch-penny or a deceitful proposition, but the plan is open and simple and IS ADMITTED to the mails by the Post Office Department as a meritorious contest.

☞ The book from which the sentence is taken is deposited in a safety vault, under seal, and will be opened at the close of the contest before a competent committee, which makes the award after an examination of the subscription books.

In one of these contests there was only one successful guesser, who received more than $1,000, and in addition to this in one year $5,000 has been distributed among successful guessers.

Remember that, whether the missing word is supplied or not, it costs nothing to guess, and even though not successful, the guesser gets

THE GREATEST OF ALL WEEKLY NEWSPAPERS FOR ONE YEAR

Keep that in view and send your guess with your clubbing subscription for your home paper and The Weekly Constitution.

Should you already be a subscriber to your home paper, remit $1 to this paper for The Weekly Constitution for one year, and it will be forwarded to The Constitution with your guess.

The Constitution guarantees that the amount of the award will not be less than $500 in cash, and it may be as much as $2,000.

THE WEEKLY CONSTITUTION IS THE GREATEST WEEKLY NEWSPAPER IN THE WORLD. It is a TWELVE PAGE, SEVEN-COLUMNS-TO-THE-PAGE NEWSPAPER, containing EIGHTY-FOUR COLUMNS every week. It has no equal as a Weekly Newspaper in America; its news reports cover the world, and its correspondents and agents are to be found in almost every bailiwick of the Southern and Western States.

AS A MAGAZINE it prints more matter than is ordinarily found in any magazine in the country.

AS AN EDUCATOR it is second to no college in the land, as any reading of The Constitution is a liberal education.

ITS SPECIAL FEATURES comprise all successful features of every paper home in America.

ITS FARM AND FARMERS' DEPARTMENTS, its Women's Department and its Children's Department are all under able direction, and are specially attractive to those to whom these departments are addressed. The Constitution is a Democratic Publication, and it is a hearty advocate of the principles enunciated in the National Platform of the Party.

THE FOLLOWING ARE THE CONDITIONS OF THE CONTEST

Ten Per Cent of the Guessers Subscriptions goes to the fund to be divided in the words of this Subscription Fund amounts to $20,000 for this period then the fund to go to the successful guesser would be $2,000.

THE CONDITIONS PUTS 10 PER CENT of the amount it receives from guessers in a fund to be awarded to the guesser or guessers who name correctly the missing word. If only one guesser gets the right word, he or she will receive the entire fund. If more than one supplies the missing word, the entire sum will be proportionately divided among the successful guessers.

THE CONDITION PRECEDENT FOR SENDING A GUESS at the Missing Word is that each and every guess must be accompanied by a year's subscription to The Weekly Constitution. If sent through the mails pending the advertisement in acceptance of our clubbing offer, the guess at the missing word will be forwarded. The guess must be sent with the subscription. Should one person send more than one answer he or she will be entitled to a share of the fund for every answer allowed. The well-to-do capitalist and everyone will get a first prize. Persons may guess as many times as they send subscriptions.

IN MAKING YOUR ANSWER you need not write the sentence out in full—just say the Missing Word in the above particular sentence, designating it by "____."

5 DROPS

Hundreds of thousands of Sufferers cured without a single failure by "FIVE DROPS."

Though so universally used and tested did you ever hear anyone speak ill of this great remedy? No, you never did and never will. If taken as directed and in the proper quantity 5 Drops (or less) is sufficient to cure any of the diseases for which it is recommended. And it has already done to relieve the suffering is told in thousands of letters of grateful praise.

Rev. J. P. Lanneman, widely known for many years as the special correspondent of the Cincinnati Enquirer and Free Silver Press of the United States, has kindly consented to the following letter for publication.

Dear Sirs:—I am anxious for the sake of the suffering and out of gratitude to give my personal endorsement of your wonderful remedy. On the second day of January I was in Washington and was suddenly seized with an excruciating pain in the right limb, so severe and painful was the attack that within a few minutes I was perfectly helpless and I was entirely unable to dress without assistance. I secured a bottle of "5 Drops" and took a dose that night, rubbing some on externally. To my surprise the next morning I was surprised to find myself completely relieved, and could walk as well as ever. I woke the second morning cured. My aged wife also found relief from pain and soreness and stiffness had disappeared. The coldness and complete paralysis had left the limb. I have known for over a year of the great curative power of "5 Drops" and have several friends who have been cured by it of Neuralgia, Catarrh and Asthma. Wishing you every success and trusting that these similarly afflicted will be induced to give this remedy a trial. Sincerely yours,

J. P. LANNEMAN,
Bureau of Populist and Reform Papers, Old Stock Exchange Building, Chicago.

CURES THE INCURABLE.

Dear Sirs:—I would like to thank you for your great remedy "5 Drops" and tell you what it has done for me. I had been a sufferer from Catarrh for many years and had Catarrh of the head for 40 years. I was so deaf that I lost the use of one ear and could not move without pain. I was also afflicted with Asthma for seven years, and our family physician and best friend, who is a graduate of Yale and Catarrh were incurable and I believed him. But now after using "5 Drops" two months, I can truly say I have not felt so well for seven years. "5 Drops" is more than is claimed for it. At this time my Catarrh is entirely cured, my Asthma and my Rheumatism are all gone and the heart weakness and nervousness are relieved, and my eyesight is much better. I have gained more than ten pounds in weight and am able to do a full day's work. I take pleasure in recommending "5 Drops" to all sufferers, for I believe it is the only remedy that will do all that is claimed for it. I have given it to my children for the worst cases of colic and colds and it relieves them in a few minutes. Yours respectfully,

Jan. 29, 1900.

We received the following letter from Mr. [illegible] and have been personally acquainted with him for many years. He is a man of high standing in his community and we believe what he says in the letter is entirely reliable.

Reliance Savings Bank.

Mill City, Ark., Jan. 15, 1900.

Dear Sirs:—Your letter of recent date at hand. I have used "5 Drops" in my family. The company with manufactures and sells it has been in business here since January 1st, 1899. To my personal knowledge there were a number of cases of Rheumatism, Neuralgia, Catarrh and Asthma in this place that have been entirely cured by the use of "5 Drops" and I have received many letters from users, and it is a pleasure for me to recommend it to your neighbors what I have written about it. I have sympathized with those who are afflicted for, although I suffered so long with Rheumatism, I have been entirely relieved by the use of "5 Drops." Dr. S. W. Kellems, my brother, uses "5 Drops" in his practice and takes pleasure in endorsing this great remedy. He says for a case of kidney trouble it is a specific.

Yours truly,

M. E. W. SANDERS & W. E. KELLEMS.

Sept. 21, 1899.

If you have not sufficient confidence after reading those letters to send for a large bottle, send for a sample bottle, which contains sufficient medicine to convince you of its merit. This wonderful curative gives almost instant relief and is a permanent cure for Rheumatism, Sciatica, Neuralgia, Dyspepsia, Backache, Asthma, Hay Fever, Catarrh, Sleeplessness, Nervousness, Nervous and Neuralgic Headaches, Heart Weakness, Toothache, Earache, Croup, "La Grippe," Malaria, Creeping Numbness, Bronchitis and Kindred Diseases.

"FIVE DROPS" is the name and dose. Large bottles (250 doses), $1.00. Six bottles $5.00. Sample bottle prepaid by mail 25c. Not sold by druggists, but only by us and agents. Agents appointed in new territory.

THE AMERICAN MONTHLY REVIEW OF REVIEWS

It is impossible to promise particular features that will appear in the "AMERICAN MONTHLY" during the coming year, for it is, as the Bookman says, "a great monthly newspaper." As such, it prints for its readers an illustrated account of the notable things which make the history of the month, of the political, the economic, and literary happenings which are of value to intelligent men and women. The Editor's "Progress of the World" tells succinctly an illustrated story of the month. The "Leading Articles" give the best thought and information of the current magazines in five contents; the contributed articles furnish the character sketches of the man of the month, and give timely discussions by authorities on any question of immediate serious import.

"We know of no review published in this country or in Europe which combines as successfully as the American Monthly the alertness, timeliness, and energy of journalism with the sound judgment, carefully weighed opinion, exact knowledge, and well-chosen English of the purely literary periodical.—The Outlook.

The result of this comprehensive effort to edit in one monthly volume the information needed by intelligent people of "live" instincts is best gauged in the opinions which the readers of the AMERICAN MONTHLY have seen fit to express. These are thinking business men, clergymen, editors, lawyers, professors, engineers, the wide-awake women of America. They write that the AMERICAN MONTHLY "is indispensable"; "is simply invaluable"; "is a generous library in itself"; "is a historical cyclopedia of the world"; "the best means of aid for a busy man"; "the best periodical of the kind we have ever had"; "a triumph of editorial genius"; "the world under a field-glass," etc., etc.

COTTON GROWING.

Conditions on Which Successful Cotton Growing Depends.

From the American Farmer.

Hardly any other of the soil products is as little at the control of the cotton grower. The ease and almost mechanical manner in which a crop of cotton can be cultivated tempts the planter to keep every available acre in cotton. This crop well suited to his system of labor. Year after year the southern king waves his white banners in the same field which he has monopolized for preparation. True, each year is apparent to see his pomp and splendor somewhat abated and the white banner throws to the autumn breeze a little smaller and less abundant fleece, but the soil seems his by right of sufficient conquest and he retains his dominion.

While the rotation in cotton growing is not so imperative as it is with other crops, yet it is beneficial, and under most conditions necessary. But either with or without rotations, I am confident that from 25 to 35 per cent. at least can be added to the yield of cotton per acre, and at little extra expense by giving more attention to the proposition of the fertilizers used. Take for example, the average land on the market runs about right to nine per cent. of phosphoric acid, two to three per cent. of nitrogen and one to two per cent of potash. The deficiency is especially marked in the case of the latter ingredient, which should be at least three to four per cent.

That the following simple system of rotation and manuring will not only maintain the fertility of the cotton fields, but actually improve them I know to be true. Sow and plow under at least every third year a crop of cow pea vines. This manure, like vegetable or organic matter in the soil, lessons the washing effect of heavy rains, and furnishes the ammonia needed, provided, of course, that the cotton seed is also returned to the soil. All that will be necessary will be to use about 400 pounds of acid phosphate or 300 of kainit, or in case muriate of potash, which is cheaper and more concentrated, is substituted for kainit, 75 lbs. These can be composted with the cotton seed, hog all the stable manure that the farm affords. Of course much more can be used with good results, but above would be liberal, but with heavy broadcast manuring, and rotation soon get land in tilt to yield a bale of cotton an acre.

Rust and many kindred diseases are to be mainly an indication of the nourishment given the plant. It is either not sufficient, or else the ingredients of the nourishment are not in the right proportion.

There is no system of tillage on earth by which more need for care, economy and conservation of fertility, than on the cotton farms of the south. The profit is small, and in order to proper manuring lies all the difference between profit and no profit, even profit and absolute loss. As stated, the cotton lands are generally light and sandy. Such soil, subject as it is to the hot suns and heavy rains of the south, necessarily deteriorates very rapidly under cultivation, and intelligent care is absolutely necessary which are of value to intelligent maibe to manufacture at a pay" tate of fertility.

It can be done only by proper ring and the prevention of ing of the soil. Many years' ience has convinced me that telligent use of potash and acophate or dissolved bone in ction with the turning under vines is the only way of aining this paying state of fer-

By this means the fertility only be maintained, but in- d. Hand in hand with this d judicious manuring must ous and unremitting efforts nst the soil being washed off heavy rains. A system of ng, as it is termed, originated this immediate section, has entirely successful. With it ry rains do follow in system has, we believe, been described in publication but fact. No farmer can afford hout it for another year.

But either with or without rotations, I am confident that from 25 to 35 per cent. at least can be added to the yield of cotton per acre, and at little extra expense, by giving more attention to the composition of the fertilizers used, for an example, the average found on the market runs about right to nine per cent. of phosphoric acid, two to three per cent. of nitrogen and one to two per cent of potash. The deficiency is especially marked in the case of the latter ingredient, which should be at least three to four per cent.

That the following simple system of rotation and manuring will not only maintain the fertility of the cotton fields, but actually improve them I know to be true. Sow and plow under at least every third year a crop of cow pea vines. This manures the vegetable or organic matter in the soil, lessons the washing of heavy rains, and furnishes the ammonia needed; provided, of course, that the cotton seed is also returned to the soil. All that will be necessary will be to use 400 pounds of acid phosphate and 200 of kainit, or in case muriate of potash, which is cheaper and more concentrated, is substituted, kainit, 75 lbs. These can be composted with the cotton seed, adding all the stable manure that can be affords. Of course much more can be used with good results. The above would be liberal, but heavy broadcast manuring, and can get land in tilt to yield a bale of cotton an acre.

Rust and many kindred diseases seem to be mainly an indication that the nourishment given the plant is either not sufficient, or else the ingredients of the nourishment are not in the right proportion.

No system of tillage on earth is more need for care, economy and conservation of fertility, than on the cotton farms of the south.

The profit is small, and in the hope manuring nearly all the difference between profit and no profit, even profit and absolute loss. As stated, the cotton lands are usually light and sandy. Such soil, as it is to the hot suns and rains of the south, necessarily deteriorates very rapidly under cultivation, and intelligent care is impossible to maintain it in a payable state of fertility.

This can be done only by proper plowing and the prevention of washing of the soil. Many years' experience has convinced me that the intelligent use of potash and acid phosphate or dissolved bone in connection with the turning under of vines is the only way of maintaining this paying state of fertility. By this means the fertility not only be maintained, but increased.

Hand in hand with this should judicious manuring must be constant and unremitting efforts to prevent the soil being washed off by heavy rains. A system of terracing, as it is termed, originated [illegible] has been [illegible] with [illegible] ...

THE CORONATION CHAIR.

It Is Claimed as the Most Precious Relic In All England.

The most precious relic in all England, and to the English in all Europe, is an old Gothic chair which stands in the Chapel of St. Edward in Westminster abbey beside the sword and shield of Edward III. It is made of black oak in the Gothic style, and the back is covered with carved inscriptions, including the initials of many famous men. The feet are four lions that look like poodle dogs with their tails curled up over their backs. The seat is a large stone about 30 inches long by 18 inches wide and 12 inches thick, and all the sovereigns of England for the last 800 years have sat upon it when they were crowned. The chair is known as the coronation chair, and the stone is claimed to be the same which Jacob, the son of Isaac, the son of Abraham, used as a pillow when he lay down to sleep on the starlit plains of Judah that memorable night as he was on his way from Beersheba to Haran in search of a wife. It was then he had his dream and saw angels and archangels ascending and descending a ladder that reached to heaven, and Jehovah came to him and made the great promise which is being fulfilled to the Jews this very day. And Jacob took the stone and set it up for a pillow and poured oil upon it and vowed a vow and called the name of the place Bethel.

The kings of Israel were crowned upon this stone from the time that they ruled a nation—David and Saul and Solomon and all the rest.

The story goes that 580 years before Christ, at the time of the Babylonian captivity, Circa, daughter of Zedekiah, the last king of Judaea, arrived in Ireland and was married at Tara to Heremon, a prince of the Tuatha de Danan, which is said to be the Celtic name of the tribe of Dan. The traditions relate that this princess went originally to Egypt in charge of the prophet Jeremiah, her guardian, and the palace Tuphanes, in which they resided there, was discovered in 1886 by Dr. Petrie, the archeologist. After some years they went hence to Ireland, and from Circa and Heremon Queen Victoria traces her descent through James I, who placed the lion of the tribe of Judah upon the British standard.

Jeremiah is said to have concealed this sacred stone at the time of the destruction of Jerusalem and the captivity of the Jews and to have brought it, "the stone of the testimony," Bethel, the only witness of the compact between Jehovah and Israel, to Ireland, where it was known as the ha phail (stone wonderful). It was carried to Scotland by Fergus I, and thence to London in the year 1200, and has been used at the coronation of every king and queen of England from Edward I down to Victoria. It is thus the most priceless historical object in the British empire, as it was the palladium of Israel. It is a curious fact that the altars of Ireland were called bothel, houses of God.

In the same chapel surrounding the coronation chair in Westminster abbey are the graves of six kings, five queens, four princesses, a duke and a bishop.—W. E. Curtis in Chicago Record.

An Australian society has circulated a card with a list of questions covering almost everything that young Christians could attempt. In order to ascertain just what work is most suited to the individual member, each is requested to put a cross against the work that he would like to undertake. The first card is followed by another, on which the receiver is requested to enter a record of work done. Both lookont and nominating committees would find such a list helpful.—Exchange.

On the 18th inst., at 1 p. m., in Sumpter county, after two days of severe illness of pneumonia and congestive chill, Ira Leroy Campbell, aged 27 years, bid adieu to all suffering, and the precious immortal spirit flew away to God who gave it; yes, to a celestial abode where can enter no more pain or sorrow. Farewell, our baby boy, for a brief time. We are going to join you, one by one as our work is accomplished. May the protecting hand of Providence ever be about your wife and two brides.

Our darling boy's manly manliness, his affection to attention in affliction to his mother, and kindness to all with whom he came in contact; his love for active industry and honesty; his love for music and the Sabbath-school; his early religious inclination, and many virtues, have always overbalanced what is called boyhood follies.

This dear boy knew every word of the Lord's prayer the day he was three years old. When a little over five years old he tendered thanks at a picnic table, something he was accustomed to do at home in his father's absence. In the same year, one Sunday morning, the superintendent of the school being absent, this little fellow went forward and opened the Sunday-school in regular order by repeating the Lord's prayer. Thus there was no failure that morning. At the age of six years he memorized all of the 23rd Psalm and repeated it to a large gathering.

No more on earth we will meet, dear brother:
No more I will see your face;
But bye and bye we'll meet again,
By God's abounding grace.

Each day and every hour
We miss you more and more,
But far beyond this earthly vale
We'll meet to part no more.

Yet but a little while, dear brother,
In that bright world so fair,
Where tears and grief are never known,
I'll meet you over there.

BROTHER.

Mr. Ward L. Smith, of Fredericksburg, Mo., was troubled with chronic diarrhoea for over thirty years. He had become fully satisfied that it was only a question of a short time until he would have to give up. He had been treated by some of the best physicians in Europe and America but got no permanent relief. One day he picked up a newspaper and chanced to read an advertisement of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy. He got a bottle of it, the first dose helped him and its continued use cured him. For sale by J. S. Johnson, Jr., druggist.

Whereas, God has seen fit to remove from earth to heaven one of his precious jewels, Jules Williams, son of J. W. Williams. Deceased was born February 28, 1879, died February 13, 1898, aged 19 years. He was a good boy and a member of the Missionary Baptist church. He left a host of friends and relatives to mourn their loss. He said he was prepared to go if it was God's will to take him. Don't weep, dear friends, for he is at rest. Prepare to meet him in the morning of the resurrection.

The writer stood by the dying friend and relative, and as I stood there it seemed to me that I could almost hear the Master say: Well done, good and faithful servant, enter thou into the everlasting happiness prepared for the faithful.

The Fish Commissioners of this country are troubled about the threatened disappearance of terrapin.

The Japanese do not intend to rest supinely under the classification of the Colonial Government of New South Wales, which recently decided to include the Japanese in the Chinese Restriction act, denoting them "as other colored people." The Japanese Consul at Sydney has protested against the proposed legislation.

One of the foremost publishers in America denies with earnestness that the taste of the public has deteriorated, as some observers think it has. When asked to justify the tons of rubbish sold annually he replied: "The rubbish fosters at least the reading habit. The children of the people who read trash will instinctively turn to the reading of something, good or bad, and there are many chances in favor of their turning to the good. Certainly there are proportionately more goods books sold to-day than fifty years ago. Don't be discouraged by what looks like the prevalence of vulgarity. The people are reading, and thousands of them are reading the best books." This good news may be set against the impression received from the superficial appearances of things, maintains the New York Tribune. The poor book or the poorer newspaper is more frequently seen in the hands of "the man in the street" than are the best books or the best newspapers. But figures are precious. The sanguine publisher whom we have quoted based his statements on figures, which is to say, on facts.

In the trial of a case at Newark, N. J., Vice Chancellor Pitney, one of the most erudite of New Jersey's judges, gave an interesting opinion on the effect of noises on human life. The case was a protest against the terrific hammering in a copper boiler shop. The complainants were property owners of the neighborhood. Said the Vice Chancellor: "Noises tend to shorten life. It is a well-settled fact that, all other things being equal, people living in crowded streets and subjected to incessant, often loud, noises, do not live as long as those whose surroundings are comparatively quiet. The rule is that which renders life uncomfortable should be stopped. In considering the effect of noise, we should apply it to ordinary, everyday people, such as the complainants in this case, not people brought up in a palace, unused to noise of any kind, or people who live in a pigsty, caring nothing for noise of any sort. The Court must be judge and jury in this case, and the Court has been in a boiler shop and knows what it is. One man holds a small hammer inside the boiler, while another man hammers on the outside." Although the case was continued, the Court intimated that people involuntarily subjected to such hurt-producing noises had redress at the hands of the law.

Says the Boston Journal: "It is calculated by military students that fully one-half of the 100,000 men who died in battle on the Union side from 1861 to 1865 were a bloody sacrifice to the North's famous neglect of the science of arms and of the most ordinary military precautions. If that is true, then one-half of the wounded and disabled veterans whose names are now borne on the pension lists owe their disability to the fact that their country, in its long peace, had forgotten the solemn admonition of Washington and had allowed the great mass of its youth to become absolutely ignorant of the use of weapons and of martial exercises. On this basis of reasoning the national folly of the years before the Civil War is now costing the National Government about $70,000,000 a year, or more than twice the cost of its present military establishment. We shall never have a Civil War again. Our only possible conflict is with a foreign enemy, and in all probability we shall never have that if we maintain an adequate navy and complete our new and admirable system of coast defenses. Seventy million dollars would finish these defenses and arm them. It would build a fleet of fifteen first-class battleships and make our navy the second most powerful on the planet. The men who believe in a policy of reasonable military preparedness for the United States can justify their position not only by an appeal to the national honor, but by the broadest considerations of genuine economy."

BRIEF SUMMARY OF STATE NEWS.

THE GOOD ROADS CONVENTION WHICH MET IN ANNISTON ADOPTED A PLAN FOR BETTER ROADS IN ALABAMA.

Alabama Chapter of Confederacy's Daughters Will Establish a Home for Disabled Confederates—The Defunct Commercial Bank of Selma Will Pay 15 Per Cent to Depositors—Southern Iron Mill Men Can't Agree.

A PLAN FOR GOOD ROADS

Adopted by the Good Roads Convention Which Met in Anniston.

The Alabama state good roads convention which met in Anniston has adjourned. The most important action of the convention was the adoption of the report of the committee on permanent organization and the election of officers of the "Good Roads Association of Alabama." The following is the report of that committee:

Resolved, That this convention declare itself a permanent body and adopt the following for its government: That its name shall be the "Good Roads Association of Alabama;" that the association elect as permanent officers a president and nine vice-presidents, who shall hold office for one year or until their successors are elected; that the president with the vice-presidents shall constitute a board of management, five of whom shall be a quorum; that this board shall elect a secretary and treasurer of the board, who shall be the medium of communication; that the board shall appoint for each county a suitable person as corresponding secretary for the county, and through whom all correspondence shall be had; that the vice-president of the district shall have charge of and organize the counties of his district.

The Scope and Plan.

That the board of management prepare and publish an address setting forth the scope and plan of this work and ask of the several boards of revenue or county commissioners a contribution from the several counties for an expense fund; that the board of management be charged with the duty of securing such legislation as will give needed relief; that in the event of a vacancy or declination of any officer the board of management shall have the right to fill the same.

The organization of the "Good Roads Association of Alabama" was perfected and the following officers elected:

President, Dr. T. W. Ayers, editor of the Anniston Daily Hot Blast.

One vice-president from each congressional district, as follows: Geo. E. Sage, Mobile; J. M. Falkner, Montgomery; J. M. Carmichael, Ozark; John A. Edwards, Talladega; Morgan M. Smith, Autaugaville; A. P. Smith, Eutaw; S. W. Riddle, Gadsden; Milton Humes, Madison; Geo. I. Young, Birmingham.

The Plan Recommended.

The report of the committee of eleven outlined the plan of work. The committee recommends that the constitution of the state of Alabama be so amended to allow county boards of commissioners or revenue to levy a property tax for the construction, improvement and maintenance of public roads and bridges. That no man liable to work the public roads be allowed to pay not more tax than $5 nor work over ten days. That this per capita tax may be discharged in labor on the public roads of the county at the rate of forty to fifty cents per day. That the commissioners' courts or boards of revenue be authorized to issue bonds in such sums as the commissioners' court may decide to be necessary. Proceeds of such bonds to be used exclusively in building public roads or bridges or repairing same. No bond to be issued, however, without the approval or ratification of such issue by a majority vote at an election to be held for the purpose of testing the issuance of such bonds. And we further recommend that the limits of age of road workers be from 18 to 45 years.

Will Pay 15 Per Cent to Depositors.

At Selma Friday evening Clerk and Register Evans filed a partial report on the Commercial Bank cases. The assignees of the bank have collected $87,906.39. In his report, the clerk says 15 per cent can safely be paid to depositors, making in all 30 per cent saved from the wreck.

Southern Iron Men Can't Agree.

Representatives of several southern iron furnaces met at Birmingham and an effort was made to prevent cutting prices and to agree upon a fixed price for pig iron. The smaller furnaces refused to enter into any binding agreement, and the matter of organizing to maintain prices was necessarily abandoned for the present.

Aged Cousin of General Lee Dead.

Major Allen Lee, aged 88 years, died suddenly at Valley Head last week. Major Lee was an officer in the Mexican war and in the war of the rebellion. He was a cousin of General Lee and grandfather of Dr. J. B. Lee, of Chattanooga.

Big Bi-Product Plant for Birmingham.

A syndicate of capitalists will within the next ninety days begin the construction of a bi-product plant in Birmingham. It will require an expenditure of cash amounting to more than $750,000, and possibly $1,000,000. The Bi-product Company will make coke, fuel and illuminating gas, coal tar and ammonia, and will sell its coke to the Sloss Iron and Steel Company, its gas to a gas company, and its other products in the open markets.

Mr. A. T. London and Mr. Sol Haas represent the parties who will organize and operate the new gas company.

CONFEDERACY'S DAUGHTERS.

Alabama Chapter Will Establish a Home for Disabled Confederates.

The state convention of the Daughters of the Confederacy, which met in Birmingham, closed Friday, after a most successful session. It was determined to hold the next convention in Selma, which city sent a special invitation. It was decided to establish a temporary home for disabled confederate veterans at Montgomery. A building will be rented and different rooms will be furnished by various chapters and individuals. On a call for pledges to furnish rooms there were responses from a dozen chapters and ladies. The committee in charge of the project of purchasing the old White House of the confederacy at Montgomery will have charge of the temporary home, which they will endeavor to establish at once. Mrs. Kirkpatrick and Mrs. Gayle, of Montgomery, were added to the committee. The old officers were re-elected for another year. They are: President, Miss Sallie Jones, of Camden; first vice-president, Mrs. Joseph F. Johnston, of Birmingham; second vice-president, Mrs. W. A. Gayle, of Montgomery; corresponding secretary, Mrs. R. G. Lewis, of Birmingham. The question of joining the national organization was brought up, but a proposition to join was voted down.

Negro Conference for Next Wednesday.

The Tuskegee Negro Conference, held each year under the supervision of Booker T. Washington's famous negro institution for the training of the black youth of the South, meets again Wednesday, February 23d. Reports received from local conference organizations in all parts of the South show that the largest attendance of any in the history of these gatherings will attend next week. A package of garden seeds is to be given to each delegate with the hope that the "one crop system" may, in a measure, be changed. Many Northern visitors and representatives from nearly all the Southern colored institutions of learning will be present to avail themselves of the opportunity to study the real condition of the negro, to note his progress and his needs.

Madison's Tax Valuation.

Assistant State Examiner Foster, after an examination of the tax assessment books of Madison county, has reported to the governor that the county commissioners have allowed abatements in tax valuations amounting to $100,832. He also states that many more thousands of dollars will have to be added to the list to obtain a correct adjustment of this year's assessment. Last summer the commissioner made a considerable cut in the tax valuations by deciding that chattel mortgages are non-taxable.

Big Cargo for Havana.

The steamship John Wilson left Mobile port Friday afternoon bound for Havana with one of the largest cargoes which a vessel has ever taken out of Mobile. The cargo of the Wilson consisted of grain in sacks, hay, and a very large shipment of chickens, numbering 5,000. The vessel goes direct to Havana. This is the second or third shipment of this size consisting of fowls that has been made from this port to Havana.

For a Constitutional Convention.

The annual meeting of the Alabama Commercial and Industrial Association, consisting of all the commercial clubs in the various cities of the state, will be held in Birmingham on Wednesday, April 27. The programme has not yet been made out, but one of the most interesting features will be the adoption of resolutions urging upon the people of the state the necessity of a constitutional convention.

Bursting of a Mill Rock Kills Two Men.

A most horrible disaster occurred Friday at the steam mill of Mr. McDonald, two miles from Letohatchie, caused by the bursting of a mill rock. The result is that a negro man, Black Cain, had his brains dashed out; another, negro, Jim Howell, was fatally wounded, and Mr. C. E. McDonald has a fearful gash in his head, inflicted by a piece of the flying rock.

Underwood-Crowe Contest Dismissed.

The elections committee has dismissed the contest election case of Underwood vs. Crowe in the Ninth district, Mr. Underwood retaining his seat in congress.

Crushed by the Wheels.

At Selma, Will C. Johnson, 12 years old, attempted to jump on a rapidly moving Southern passenger train near the city limits and fell beneath the wheels. His left leg was completely severed and he is in a critical condition.

Congressman Wheeler's Opposition.

It is said that Zee Trimble, a well-known character, will be a candidate for congress. There are already three avowed candidates—General Wheeler, for re-election; Hon. Samuel Blackwell and Judge Richardson.

BRIEFLY MENTIONED.

Percy A. Ellis has been elected mayor of Warrior.

At Union Springs J. C. James, fell and expired in a few minutes from heart failure.

R. F. Bankhead, brother to Congressman Bankhead, died at Sulligent last Thursday.

W. H. Null, aged 47, committed suicide at Adger, Jefferson county, by shooting himself in the head.

Walter Darwin, aged 29, suicided at Huntsville Saturday by swallowing three tablespoonfuls of morphine.

The second annual convention of the Daughters of the Confederacy convened in Birmingham the past week.

Frank Martin was sentenced to life imprisonment at Rock Springs Saturday for killing Will Alexander last October.

Jefferson county will hold a primary on April 9th for the nomination of county officers and six representatives to the general assembly.

Unknown parties in ambush shot Wash Green, a farmer living at Turkeytown, while he was standing in his doorway. He will recover.

The trial of the cases of the State against the bondsmen of the ex-Tax Collector Lott, of Mobile, has been postponed from March 4 to March 10.

A committee has been appointed by the citizens of Wyam to confer with the commercial club of Birmingham with a view of co-operation in the extension of the Ensley dummy line to Wylam.

Albert S. Johnson, a machinist at the Hardie-Tynes foundry in Birmingham, was accidentally killed Saturday. He was caught in the belting and whirled round and round, producing wounds from which he died soon after.

Negro Convention.

About 200 colored farmers of Montgomery county met at the court house Saturday and organized a farmers' congress. The call was issued by J. C. Leftwich who was subsequently made president of the congress. A set of resolutions were drafted and adopted urging the colored farmers to discontinue mortgeging their crops, and to practice more economy in their livelihood.

Died of Grief.

Mrs. Anna Gafford, relict of the late Col. Frank Gafford, and mother of the now celebrated murderer of the same name, who is lodged in the county jail awaiting the action of the supreme court on a new trial, died at Greenville Saturday, from grief over the fate of her son.

Farmers Preparing for Crops.

Farmers throughout Colbert and adjoining counties have broken a great deal of land for planting corn, and several are plowing for cotton, but the cotton acreage will not be nearly so large as last year.

MOB USING THE TORCH.

Property Destroyed in an Arkansas County as a Result of Race War.

Rioting has been resumed in Lonoke county, Arkansas. A mob has been at work for the past several nights in Crooked Creek township burning and otherwise destroying property. Nearly every school house in the township has been burned and other public property destroyed.

The grand jury of Lonoke county, which has just adjourned, says in its report:

"We have made especial efforts to investigate and ferret out the depredations and outrages committed against some of the colored residents of the town of Lonoke, but regret to state that our efforts have been without success and we are compelled to refer these matters to the next grand jury."

Eighty-Seven Perish.

Teneriffe, Canary Islands—The Campagnie Generale Trans-Atlantique line steamer Flachat, bound from Marseilles for Colon, was totally wrecked off Garaport, this island. Her captain, second officer, eleven of her crew and one passenger, were saved. Thirty-eight of the crew and forty-nine passengers were lost.

President of a Bank Killed.

A tragedy occurred at Greenwood, Miss., Friday in which Ivo Miller, manager of the Leflore Telephone Company, shot and killed J. S. McDonald, president of the Delta bank. Family matters is given as the cause of the killing.

Sam Jones for Governor of Georgia.

The following announcement from Rev. Sam Jones has been made public.

"Cartersville, Ga.—I arrived home early this morning from an extended tour and after going hurriedly through my mail and seeing the great pressure on all sides, and consulting myself and wife, I have upon mature deliberation decided to announce myself as a candidate for governor of Georgia.

"With the assurance that I will not be the 'hind dog' in the race, I ask the public to await further announcements of my platform and plans, reasons and regrets."

PREPARATIONS AT FT. M'PHERSON

Orders Received to Hold Two Companies of Infantry Ready to Go to Key West.

A special from Atlanta says: It develops here that orders have been received at Fort McPherson to hold two companies of United States infantry for immediate movement to Key West. Two companies have been detailed and private soldiers are under orders not to leave the reservation even when off duty. Inquiry developed the fact that this order had been expected ever since the riot in Havana, but it was not received until several days after the Maine was blown up. It is understood to have reached Atlanta Monday, but was kept quiet, and is not yet generally known. The soldiers who have been detailed for this duty understand that Key West is not their real objective point, but they are only a small part of a force to be mobilized at Key West and held ready for a quick trip to Havana, which may be made in six hours. It is understood that the officers at Fort McPherson, like the private soldiers, look upon this as a serious move, indicating a purpose on the part of the war department to be prepared for emergency at Havana. It is learned on good authority that the immense fortification built at Key West for the government by the Venable Construction Company, is nearing completion, and that the government has been advised that the guns may be mounted immediately, consisting of four ten-inch and two eight inch guns. These are immense guns, fifteen feet long, weighing about twenty-six tons each. At the Tybee Island fortification the government is mounting the first of the four eight-inch guns which compose the battery.

ALMOST A CERTAINTY.

Powder Cans on the Maine Are Found Intact, Proving Spanish Treachery.

A special from Havana says: Simultaneously with the announcement of the finding of the battered 6-inch and 10-inch shells intact, the announcement is made that the findings of the board of inquiry on the Maine disaster will not be given out until after the board's return to the United States. Obviously these powder cases would not be as they are had they passed through the sudden heat and fierce shock of a magazine explosion. On the other hand, they would be in just the condition they are had an external force ruptured the magazine and jammed the powder cans against each other and against the bent walls.

Tuesday an almost identical discovery was made in reference to the big magazine forward. A can for the 10-inch gun was recovered near the forward magazine. It was even more badly battered than the smaller can. The 6-inch casing is supposed to be one of the half dozen or so that were kept in the small magazine with the saluting powder for immediate use. The 10-inch shell, on the other hand, was undoubtedly from the Maine's forward magazine. So far the circumstantial evidence points directly away from any theory of accident. The only grain of evidence for the Spanish side so far disclosed (and every paper in Havana and Spain has made the most of it), is that no dead fish floated after the explosion, as might have been expected.

Tremendous importance is attached to the finding of the powder cans.

A REVOLTING CRIME.

Negro Postmaster and Child Killed, and Three More of His Family Wounded.

The most revolting crime ever perpetrated by white men in South Carolina was committed at Lake City Tuesday morning, when Postmaster Baker, a negro, and his family were burned out of their home, the postmaster and a babe in arms killed, his wife and three daughters shot and maimed for life.

Baker was appointed postmaster three months ago. Lake City is a town of 500 inhabitants, and the negro population in the vicinity is large. There was a protest at Baker's appointment, but not very vigorous. Three months ago, as the postmaster was leaving the office at night he was fired on from ambush, but escaped unhurt. Tuesday morning the mob again appeared and applied the torch to the house and began firing into the burning building, which resulted in killing Baker and his baby and seriously wounding three more of his family.

Gen. Gordon Very Ill.

General John B. Gordon, the brilliant ex-confederate officer, was to have lectured in Toledo, O., Tuesday night. Shortly after noon a telegram came from Port Huron announcing that the general had been taken suddenly ill at that point and could get no further. Private advices since are to the effect that he is very ill.

A Judge Resigns.

Judge Robert W. Hughes, of the federal court of the eastern district of Virginia, appointed by President Grant in 1874, has forwarded his resignation to President McKinley.

Little Child Badly Burned.

Little May Horton, daughter of Tax Assessor Horton, of DeKalb county, Alabama, was seriously burned Tuesday. While playing near the fire her clothes ignited and she was enveloped in flames in a few moments. Mrs. Horton extinguished the flames with difficulty, but not before the child was badly burned.

A Murderer Executed.

Leon Shows was executed at Hattiesburg, Miss., Tuesday for the murder of Harriet Murphy.

GIGANTIC COLONIZATION SCHEME

Is Set on Foot by John Jacob Astor to Develop Honduras.

The greatest colonization scheme that the world has ever seen was practically begun in New York Thursday when John Jacob Astor started for Honduras.

The syndicate has already started a national bank in Honduras, erected light houses, established a revenue cutter service, and begun the extension of the Honduras railroad to the Pacific ocean.

It has taken control of the custom houses under guarantee to the government of $1,000,000 a year, and is already of $1,000 a month of old time smuggling gains has been made.

Astor will go to the capital, Tegucigalpa, to see President Bonilla. The new railroad has reached the great coffee country now, and there will be a colony formed there in which every man will have a chance for a fortune.

Only men with families, with some little money, with practical farming experience and with the best references, will be taken. To them will be given concessions as to land, implements, etc., and beyond a certain point financial aid will be given.

Details of the colonization plan have not been perfected, and will not be arranged and made public until after the Astors return in March.

IT IS CLOSED.

The De Lome Incident Satisfactorily Closed Disavowal From Spain.

Spain has officially disclaimed in a positive manner the reflections contained in the De Lome letter, and as officially announced by the state department, the incident is satisfactorily closed. The statement given out is as follows:

The following is an abstract of a note sent by the Spanish government to Minister Woodford at Madrid:

The Spanish government on learning of the incident in which Minister Dupuy De Lome was concerned and being advised of his objectionable communication, with entire sincerity laments the incident which was the cause of the interview with the minister.

It states that minister De Lome had presented his resignation and it had been accepted before the presentation of the matter by Minister Woodford.

That the Spanish ministry, in accepting the resignation of a functionary whose services they have been utilizing and valueing up to that time, leaves it perfectly well established that they do not share, and rather, on the contrary, disauthorize the criticisms tending to offend or censure the chief of a friendly state, although such criticisms had been written within the field of friendship and had reached publicity by artful and criminal means.

THREATS WERE MADE

To Blow Up Our "Rotten Navy"—Spanish Circular of Menacing Character.

The Atlanta Journal's Washington correspondent says: Mrs. Sigsbee has given out a circular sent to her by Captain Sigsbee over two weeks ago, on which was written the warning words: "Lookout for your ship. We will blow your whole rotten navy to pieces if you send it here."

The circular is printed in Spanish and headed "Long Live Spain With Honor," then follows a vast amount of abuse against the Yankees.

Mrs. Sigsbee says she cannot give out the contents of the letter in which this circular was enclosed, but she has felt vague fears ever since Captain Sigsbee sent it to her.

To Exempt Manufacturers.

The directors of the chamber of commerce of Nashville appointed a committee to draft a call for a convention of business men and manufacturers, to be held in that city with the object of agreeing on a proposed amendment to the state constitution so as to permit the exemption of manufactories from taxation; also on reforms of the state tax laws.

Rushing Fortification Work.

Dispatches from Newport, Newport News, Charleston and other cities report the work on fortifications is being pushed with greatest energy in anticipation of a conflict with Spain. Also reports from big ammunition plants say that the works are being run night and day filling orders for the government.

HURRYING THE WORK.

Huge Pieces of Ordnance Are Being Turned Out.

The big Niles Tool works at Hamilton, O., are turning out 12-inch mortars for the government as speedily as possible. Two naval attaches, assigned to the ordnance department, have been at Hamilton engaged in pushing forward the work and superintending the construction of the huge pieces of ordnance. Within the past few days the work has been greatly hastened to all appearance. The officials of the company deny that any special effort has made to hasten the work since the recent war scare.

The Vizcaya Anchored.

The Spanish cruiser Vizcaya, in command of Capt. Eulate, passed through the Narrows Sunday afternoon to New York harbor and anchored off Tompkinsville, S. I., where she is closely guarded by navy yard tugs and police patrol boats.

The Vizcaya has been lying outside of the bar since Friday night and was unable to come into the harbor owing to the dense fog and rainstorm which have prevailed for over forty-eight hours.

DESTROYED FROM WITHOUT

Government Divers Find No Trace of Internal Explosion of the Maine.

THE TOTAL LOSS OF LIFE REACHED 246.

Evidence Accumulating That the Vessel Was Blown Up by the Spaniards With Submarine Mine—Court of Enquiry at Work.

Havana, via Key West.—The divers sent by the United States began official inspection Saturday. Their first discovery proves that the Maine was wrecked from without. The stars and stripes is floating at half mast above the wreck of the Maine, and half a dozen divers are at work under Captain [illegible] direction.

The forward [illegible], including the [illegible] magazines, are intact. This is proved by the condition of the wreck, the magazines themselves not having been actually reached.

Only the small caliber shells in the pilot house and some saluting charges are now unaccounted for.

There is not an American officer in Havana who is not satisfied that the Maine was anchored over a government mine, the explosion of which did the awful work.

The elimination of the Maine's magazines from the explosion makes it almost certain that a greater amount of explosive than any torpedo contains was fired under the Maine.

The refusal of the American government to permit Spain to have any part in our investigation, now generally known here, has angered the populace more than anything since the Maine arrived. The government here has not yet indicated how it takes the refusal.

Details of the Sinking.

The officers of the Maine state that the explosion was in the central magazine, and that the Maine was raised out of the water and then went partially to pieces. All but the surgeon were in the ward room at the moment of the explosion. Then came the stupendous shock. All the officers below rushed on deck, but could get no further forward than the middle superstructure on deck. Only a very pitiful few of the 350 jackies ever got from below. The water rushed over them and many were stunned and drowned, but not mangled. The officers on deck narrowly escaped. In the junior officers' mess all had to clamber out through water and wreckage waist deep. One ladder from the after torpedo compartment was jammed with men struggling for life. All agreed that a double explosion occurred from the natural result of an under water explosion of the magazines.

Piteous Cries for Help.

Brass pipe, angle iron, etc., fell in a shower on the decks of the City of Washington, so injuring two boats that when lowered they were useless. Out of the dense smoke came anguished cries for help. Simultaneously with the cessation of falling fragments, search lights were thrown on the wreck and its load of agony. Spanish boats from the shore joined those of the Washington alongside at once, but the regular ferry boats, passing soon after the explosion, did not stop to offer aid.

Total Lost 246.

The navy department has compiled the following summary, showing the total results of the Maine disaster, from all available official information up to the close of the departments Thursday night:

"Total officers and men on board Maine, 355; total officers, 26; total men, 329; total officers saved, 24; total men saved, 76; total officers lost, 2; total men lost, 246; total officers injured, none; total men injured, 57; doubtful men, 7.

"The seven men appearing as doubtful probably represent that number or less whose lives have been saved, but who cannot be identified at present on account of errors in the transmission of telegrams.

"The 57 appearing as injured are included in the 76 appearing as saved."

A Plot to Blow Up American Consulate.

The Associated Press correspondent has secured a circular printed in Havana, which shows up a latter plot to blow up Gen. Lee and the consulate. It follows:

"Spaniards: The time has arrived when the patience of the loyal has vanished before the decided protection that the Americans lend to the bands of turbulent foreigners who lay waste our country. Death to them. The moment has arrived to lower the colors at the heels of the Americans and prove to them that our unconquerable nation can reach the doors of the capitol at Washington, demand reparation for the grave offenses which they daily inflict upon us. Expel, yes, expel Consul-General Lee, who, with his fame, is nothing more than the miserable secretary of the bandits. Away, away with the Yankee consulate protector of criminals of the lowest degree. Every moment the action of justice is impeded by American interference. Are we to continue only? No; no, a thousand times no.

"Consul-General Lee, when the suspicious explosion comes that will carry consternation to the whole city, if you have the strength left, it would be well for you to inure yourself to your country and relate what has happened to you.

"Long life to Spain; long life to Spanish Cuba. Death to our enemies."

A special from Madrid says: Orders have been issued to Captain Peral to open inquiry into the cause of the disaster to the Maine. The government has received a cable message from the Washington government thanking Spain for the assistance rendered by the Spanish authorities at Havana after the disaster.

The Court of Inquiry.

The navy department received a dispatch from Admiral Sicard, in command of the North Atlantic squadron giving the details of the court of inquiry to investigate the Maine disaster as follows: "Captain Sampson, president of the court; Captain Chadwick, Lieutenant-Commander Schroeder, Lieutenant-Commander Marix."

Captain Sampson, president of the court, is commander of the battleship Iowa, now at Tortugas. Captain Chadwick is commander of the New York at Key West. Lieutenant-Commander Schroeder is executive officer of the battleship Massachusetts, now at Tortugas. Lieutenant-Commander Marix is executive officer of the Vermont.

It is believed that under the most favorable circumstances this investigation cannot be made for several days. Arrangements must first be made for the proper working of the diving outfits.

Torpedo Story Unconfirmed.

A correspondent of the Associated Press has just returned to Key West on board the Olivette from the scene of the wreck of the United States battleship Maine, who reports that the divers who have been working about her bottom have discovered an eight-inch percussion hole in the plate, which appears to have been made by a torpedo. This report lacks official confirmation. Secretary Long says there is no such thing as a percussion hole; that there is no eight inch torpedo, and no other way in which such a hole could be accounted for.

All officers and men who were aboard the warship Maine at the time of the explosion say that the explosion was due to some interior cause, and was not the result of an explosion of a torpedo on the outside.

A Spanish Officer's Opinion.

Lieutenant J. G. Sobral, naval attache of the Spanish legation at Washington, has given his opinion of the explosion of the Maine in the following interview with a New York Herald reporter:

"It was the result of an explosion inside the ship which took place in one of the forward magazines. The fact of the matter is that the discipline and the watch observed on the ship were very lax. This, as one English newspaper the other day declared, is the case on American warships generally. This sort of things have occurred on previous occasions on American warships."

Newspaper Divers Not Allowed.

Admiral Manterola refuses to allow the divers sent to Havana by American newspapers to make an investigation near the wreck, at least until Captain Sigsbee shall have finished his official investigation.

Sigsbee Convinced of Treachery.

News was received at Key West from Havana Sunday morning to the effect that Captain Sigsbee and his officers were now convinced of treachery and foul play in the Maine wreck and that Captain Sigsbee had made an important report to the Washington officials to that effect. No details are given, save the bare fact that something has been discovered convincing Sigsbee of foul play.

DUN'S REVIEW OF TRADE

Shows That Favorable Features Prevail in Business Circles.

A SHARP RISE IN THE PRICE OF WHEAT.

The Iron and Steel Trade Still Shows Marked Activity—The Maine Disaster Had Little Appreciable Effect on the Markets—Cotton Steady.

R. G. Dun & Co.'s review of trade says:

The dreadful disaster to the Maine, much as it has affected all hearts, has not much affected business. Only in the stock market, but in no other speculative markets was an effect felt, nor in general business.

Wheat has risen 3½ cents, and exports continue so heavy that a material advance is natural. Atlantic exports in three weeks have been 8,416,495 bushels, flour included, against 5,661,971 last year. Such shipments, with heavy engagements for the future, in spite of 11,430,831 bushels exported, against 12,597,214 bushels in the same week last year, are conclusive proof of the urgency of foreign needs.

The bottom fact is that the world needs wheat, which this country can only supply for about six months to come.

Cotton has held unchanged for spot, though a little lower for options, prospects of decrease in the next yield being the main support.

The iron output February 1, with reports of stock on hand not held by the great steel companies, indicates a consumption of at least 3,000 tons per week greater in January than the previous maximum attained in November, 1895.

The production is at present greater than consumption, stocks having increased 9,050 tons weekly in January outside the steel companies, whose stocks presumably decreased.

Some weakness in pig would naturally result, but while grey forge has declined at Pittsburg to $8.90, with Southern iron offered at Chicago at concessions, no changes appear in products. Though new business has been somewhat disappointing, the works are mainly supplied for months ahead.

In the cotton manufacture production is restricted by strikes, and some grades are a shade dearer. The recent opening of high grade woolens at advanced prices meets less demand than was expected, with less activity in lower grades and unexpectedly numerous cancellations in light weights, indicating larger buying than consumption has yet warranted.

Kansas Pacific Sold.

The eastern division of the Kansas Pacific road, 140 miles in length, was sold under the first mortgage at the Union Pacific depot at North Topeka. Judge W. D. Cornish, of St. Paul, special master, conducted the sale, and the property was bought in by Mr. Alvin W. Krech, on the part of the reorganization committee, for $4,500,000.

Two Negroes Drowned.

Bill and Ab Campbell, negroes, were drowned in Duck river, near Cortner's station, Tenn. They were being carried across the river in a boat, when it sank. Four other negroes who were in the boat swam out.

Snow Seven Feet Deep.

The blizzard which started in Saturday morning and of which Milwaukee is the center, still continues. Snow to the depth of seven feet is piled up all along the different street railways.

Forest Fires Doing Damage.

More news of the damage by forest fires in North Carolina the first three days of this week comes in. The loss in Cumberland county alone foots up over $100,000. In the state it undoubtedly was over $500,000. Railway and lumber companies sustained losses. Over 100 buildings of various kinds were destroyed.

E. G. Massey, a prominent citizen and constable of Little River county, Arkansas, was murdered Saturday by Ned Aiken and his son and two negroes he was trying to arrest.

Enquiry Court Will Sit One Week.

Admiral Sicard is negotiating with the Merritt Wrecking Company for the services of the tug Right Arm, which arrived at Havana Sunday to tow the leaking vessel north. The Maine court of inquiry will probably be at Havana one week.

Murder in Birmingham.

William Carney, a puddler in the Birmingham rolling mill, was shot and instantly killed Monday night by John O'Brien, a negro bartender.

Notices were posted in the mills of the Boston Manufacturing company at Waltham, Mass., announcing a cut of 10 per cent. in wages in all departments, to take effect February 28.

At Meridian, Miss., in a fit of despondency, Sanford Houston placed a gun to his side, pulled the trigger and emptied the entire load of shot in his side. He died instantly.

Senator Robt L. Berner, of Forsyth, and Hon. Louis F. Garrard, of Columbus, will both be candidates for governor of Georgia.

FIFTY-FIFTH CONGRESS.

The House—Monday.

Considerable excitement was caused among the members of the house today by the rumor, broadly circulated before the house convened, that important action relative to Cuba was to be taken. It turned out to be simply a resolution of inquiry unanimously reported by the foreign affairs committee last week calling on the state department as to the condition of the concentrados in Cuba and the progress made in Spain's effort to induce autonomy. The resolution was adopted without division, and is similar to the one adopted by the senate today. The day was consumed with speeches relative to the Cuban situation.

The Senate.

Mr. Bate, of Tennessee, presented his colleague, Mr. Turley, and the oath of office was administered.... Mr. Morgan reported adversely from the committee on foreign relations an amendments to the diplomatic and consular bill recognizing the belligerency of the Cuban insurgents. He objected to the amendment being tacked to the appropriation bill. After further discussion Mr. Morgan's original Cuban resolution was presented and passed. The resolution as passed is as follows: "Resolved, That the president is requested, if in his opinion it is not incompatible with the public service, to send to the senate copies of the reports of the consul general and consuls of the United States in Cuba, written or received since March 4, 1897, which relate to the state of war in that island and the condition of the people there, or that he will send such parts of said reports as will inform the senate as to these facts. Second, That the president inform the senate whether any agent of the government in Cuba has been accredited to this government or the president of the United States with authority to negotiate a treaty of reciprocity with the United States, or any other diplomatic or commercial agreement with the United States, and whether such person has been recognized and received as the representative of such government of Cuba."..... A bill carrying $800,000 was passed, making appropriation for the expense of the United States courts and other purposes.... Mr. Harris, of Kansas, introduced a resolution with reference to the latest phase of the Kansas Pacific sale. He said in connection with the resolution that the reason for its presentation at this time was that the attorney-general had informed him less than a week ago that he proposed to redeem the first mortgage bonds of the Kansas Pacific and have a receiver appointed for the road. The resolution went over until tomorrow, and the the senate adjourned.

The House—Tuesday.

Mr. Payne called up the senate bill to amend the navigation laws of the United States. Mr. Payne explained that the bill had been prepared by the treasury department, and was designed solely to protect our seacoast trade along the Pacific coast with Alaska. The bill was passed without division. .... Mr. Undergraff, of Iowa, from the committee on judiciary, called up a bill to amend the act of 1887 relating to the fees of United States officers so as to correct some existing abuses, and it was passed.... Mr. Cox, of Tennessee, called up a bill to "better control and promote the safety of national banks." The bill provided that no national bank shall make a loan to the president or any other officer or employe of the bank until such officer or employe has submitted the proposition for the loan in writing to the directors and it has been approved by a majority of them, and in no case shall the loan exceed the amount permitted by law. The bill was passed by a vote of 65 to 28.... Mr. Ball, of Texas, presented a resolution calling upon the secretary of war for an estimate of the cost of creating a channel 760 feet wide at the mouth of Double bayou, Galveston bay, and it was adopted.... A bill presented by the committee on merchant marine and fisheries was passed amending the law relating to the licensing of mates of ocean and river steamers..... Mr. Loud called up the bill to make it lawful to transmit through the mails private postal cards with a 1 cent stamp affixed. The bill was passed. At this point Mr. Dalzell, of Pennsylvania, asked for a modification of the order for consideration of the bankruptcy bill (which begins tomorrow) by which the final vote should be taken on Saturday instead of Monday as originally ordered with the understanding that Monday should be private bill day. Agreed to.... A bill was passed empowering registers and receivers of general land offices to issue subpœnas and compel attendance. A bill was passed repealing the statute requiring affirmative proof of loyalty by the holders of bounty or land warrants. At 5 o'clock the house adjourned.

The Senate.

Mr. Pettus, of Alabama, secured the passage of a resolution requesting the president to inform the senate what action had been taken in reference to the murder of Legundo N. Lopez, a citizen of the United States, in April, 1896, in Cuba by armed soldiers of Spain..... The resolution introduced yesterday directing the attorney-general to furnish the senate information as to the agreement reached by the government with the reorganization committee of the Union Pacific railroad concerning the Kansas branch, was laid before the senate. Mr. Gear moved that the resolution be referred to the committee on Pacific railroads. The motion was defeated—19 to 34—and the resolution was then adopted without division..... At 2:30 the senate went into executive session. After the executive session the report of the attorney-general on the Harrison resolution was read, and the senate adjourned.

The House—Wednesday.

Representative Underwood opened for the opposition to the Torrey bill in the debate on the bankruptcy measure in the house today. He said he was opposed to any feature that forced a man into bankruptcy whether he was willing or not, and has offered an amendment to strike out that part of the bill. He also opposed in speech that part of the bill which extended the operation of the law to corporations, and said at the proper time he would move to eliminate it. The present laws, which provided for receiverships, were, he said, good enough, and any plan to allow corporations to go into a bankruptcy court, he said, would only help them to defraud their creditors..... The committee on elections, by a unanimous vote today, decided to dismiss the case of Dr. Crowe, who has been a contestant for the seat held by Oscar W. Underwood. The committee found that while some of Crowe's allegations as to fraud may have been true, there was not sufficient evidence, even admitting all the statements of the contestant to be true, to justify them either in seating Crowe or declaring that no legal election had been held. Admitting all the claims of Crowe, the committee found that Underwood was still elected by a large majority. A report will be presented to the house Monday and will probably be agreed to without opposition.

The Senate.

A discussion upon coast defenses was the interesting feature of the senate today. Many senators took the ground that the appropriations should be for the full amount of the estimates by the war department, instead of some $4,000,000 less. Senators Perkins and Hale said it was the policy of the appropriations committee to make an annual expenditure of $10,000,000 for fortifications. Senators Stewart, Hawley, Chandler and Lodge spoke in favor of increases..... In the early part of the day there was a discussion of the Kansas Pacific railroad sale, but no action was taken..... The fortifications bill was then taken up. Mr. Perkins said the committee on appropriations was unanimous in its action in increasing the aggregate sum appropriated by the house bill. Mr. Teller spoke briefly in favor of the measure. An amendment to increase the amount appropriated for powder and projectiles from $650,618 to $950,618 was accepted. This completed the consideration of the bill, and it passed without division. At 6:05 o'clock the senate adjourned.

The House—Thursday.

The debate on the bankruptcy bill dragged along listlessly in the house today, interest in it being overshadowed as on yesterday by the Maine disaster. The speeches on the floor attracted almost no attention and were delivered in most instances to a handfull of members. At 5 p. m. the house recessed until 11 tomorrow.

The Senate.

After a spirited debate occupying more than two hours the senate today by a vote of 39 to 29 agreed to the resolution of Mr. Turple, declaring the senate's opposition to the confirmation of the sale of the Kansas Pacific railroad except upon the terms of the original claims, and the interest thereon due to the United States from said railroad company of the Kansas Pacific division be paid in full by the bidders..... The only reference thus far made to the disaster to the battleship Maine was in the form of this resolution introduced by Mr. Allen, of Nebraska: Resolved, That the committee on naval affairs be directed to make an immediate and thorough investigation into the cause of the disaster to the battleship Maine in the harbor of Havana on the 15th instant and report to the senate. Several senators objected to the resolution and it went over until tomorrow.

The senate, at 4:10 p. m., went into executive session and five minutes afterward adjourned.

The Senate—Friday.

Soon after the senate met today Mr. Hale, of Maine, obtained the floor and introduced the following joint resolution: That the secretary of the navy be, and he is hereby authorized, to engage the services of a wrecking company or companies having proper facilities for the prompt and efficient performance of submarine work, for the purpose of recovering the remains of the officers and men lost on the United States steamer Maine; and of saving the vessel, or such parts thereof and so much of her stores, guns, material, equipment, fittings and appurtenances as may be practicable; and for this purpose the sum of $200,000 or so much thereof as may be necessary is hereby appropriated and made immediately available.

The resolution was prepared at the navy department and introduced at the request of Secretary Long, who, in forwarding it to Mr. Hale, also sent a letter explaining its purpose. He says in this letter: "It was deemed proper and important that steps should be taken immediately to recover the remains of the officers and men lost on the occasion of this most deplorable catastrophe; to raise the vessel or to save such parts of her armament and equipment as may be practicable." The resolution was passed by the senate without objection, being amended so as to authorize and to direct that the remains of officers and sailors be brought to the United States for interment.... Mr. Mason offered a resolution for the investigation of the Maine disaster providing for a special committee to make the investigation. The resolution produced a long and heated debate, but went to the calendar without a vote. The senate then went into executive session, and soon after adjourned.

The House.

Immediately after the reading of the journal in the house today, Mr. Boutelle, of Maine, chairman of the naval committee, asked unanimous consent for the consideration of the resolution prepared by the navy department and passed by the senate. The mere mention of the Maine affair on the floor brought members in crowds from the cloak rooms and lobbies, and they thronged down the aisles to listen. The spectators in the galleries leaned over with breathless interest as Secretary Long's letter was read. The resolution was adopted.

The House—Saturday.

After four days' of consideration the house today passed the bankruptcy bill reported by the house committee on judiciary as a substitute for the senate bill passed last summer. The bill is known as the Henderson bill and contains voluntary and involuntary features. It is considered less drastic than the measure passed by the last house by a vote of 157 to 87. The involuntary feature, however, had but sixteen majority. Today a motion to strike out the involuntary features was defeated by a majority of 19 and the bill was passed by a majority of 23, the vote standing ayes 158, nays, 125. Eighteen republicans voted against the bill and twelve democrats for it. The populists, with one exception, voted against it.

There was no session of the senate today.

The Senate—Monday.

The joint resolution providing for the bodies of the officers and men from the wrecked battleship Maine and for the recovery of valuable property on the ship, which was passed by the house last week, was presented to the senate and passed immediately. It carries an appropriation of $200,000..... Mr. Hoar introduced a joint resolution directing the transfer of valuable historical documents from the several governments to the national library..... Mr. Allen, of Nebraska, introduced the following resolution: Resolved, That the committee on naval affairs be, and it is, hereby directed to make a thorough inquiry into the destruction of the battleship Maine in Havana harbor on the 15th inst., and report to the senate. The resolution was passed immediately without a word of debate..... Unobjected bills were passed as follows: Requiring masters and mates of sail vessels of over 700 tons to have license issued by United States inspectors; granting to the state of Wyoming 50,000 acres of land to aid in the continuation, enlargement and maintenance of the Wyoming state soldiers' and sailors' home; authorizing the White and Black River Valley Railroad Company to build a bridge across the Black river in Arkansas; to require patents to be issued to land actually settled under the act entitled "An act to provide for the armed opening and settlement of the unsettled part of the peninsula of Florida, approved August 4, 1842," and to amend an act to prohibit the passage of local or special laws in the territories to limit indebtedness, etc..... Mr. Allen's resolution calling for senate investigation of the measure providing for the twelfth census was passed.

The House.

After the passage of twenty-two pension bills, the house went into committee of the whole on the private calendar. The first bill, to appropriate $15,000 for damage and injury sustained by Newberry college, South Carolina, while occupied by a New York regiment as a barracks, in 1865, after Lee's surrender, was favorably acted upon without a division. Two other minor bills were laid aside with favorable recommendations..... Mr. Bailey moved that the house observe Washington's birthday by adjourning over tomorrow. Mr. Dingley opposed the motion, but it carried 158 to 35. At this moment the speaker announced that under the rule the house was in recess until 8 o'clock tonight, the evening to be devoted to private bills.

FIRED HER SKIRTS.

Negroes Attempt to Burn a White Girl to Death.

Bare facts regarding the horrible efforts of three unknown negroes to burn to death the daughter of James Alday, in Decatur county, Georgia, have just come to light. The girl, who is about 16 years of age, had occasion to go to a spring about 200 yards from her father's house, and on returning she was seized upon by three negroes, and when they discovered that she was the daughter of Alday two of them firmly held her, while the third applied matches to the skirts of her clothing. She was detained until the flames were licking her face and had eaten into her under garments and then released and ordered to fly for her life. She ran screaming to her father's door, where she arrived with not a shrewd of clothing on her body and literally one huge blister. Immediate attention was given her and every effort to save her life was made, but the latest reports from the place indicate that her death was hourly expected.

GREATER REPUBLIC ENDED.

Salvador Withdraws From Central American Union.

News from Salvador is to the effect that the greater republic of Central America has ceased to exist, the republic of Salvador, the backbone of the union, having withdrawn. The consolidated republics included the three states of Salvador, Honduras and Nicaragua and it was expected the other two republics of Guatemala and Costa Rica would join in time. Salvador quarreled with her two neighbors, is witnessing a rebellion in Nicaragua, and is opposing Honduras, and has therefore seceded from the union.

THE County Executive Committee is called to meet at Clanton on Friday, March 11

BIRMINGHAM'S two days carnival was well attended and was pronounced by all present as a great success.

THE atmosphere is charged with war talk, and from present appearances very little more is required to cause a declaration of war. The talk is that Spain will be asked for an indemnity of ten million dollars for the loss of the Maine, and in the event of a refusal war will be declared.

WILLIAM J. BRYAN will make six addresses to the people of Alabama, commencing at Tuskaloosa Tuesday night, March 1, then at Birmingham on the 2; Mobile on the 3; Pensacola the 4th; Talladega the 5th and Montgomery the 7th.

PROSPECTIVE candidates would do well to bear in mind that the present Governor has inaugurated a system of supervision over county officers which renders it more than ever necessary the offices should be filled by men qualified in every particular to discharge the duties of the office.

MR. PLOWMAN has returned to his home in Talladega, and his friends are already industriously at work seeking his renomination by the Congressional convention next November. It appears, however, that he will have to meet competition again. Hon. Percy Clark, of Dallas, covets the nomination, and it is said that Hon. Gaston Roberts, of the same county, also aspires to serve the people of the Fourth once again. Hon. R. P. Thomas, of Oxford, is also said to have a well-developed yearning for congressional honors, and if the four enter the race it will undoubtedly be a spirited one. All of the gentlemen have been candidates for congress before in the Fourth, Mr. Roberts having served two terms there and Mr. Plowman part of one term.

There has been one Alabamian at Washington lately who has covered himself with glory. He is Tyler Goodwyn, and his fame was won by the splendid argument he made in the Goodwyn Brewer contest case before the election committee of the House. Young Goodwyn was the junior counsel and Chairman Vaughan and Gen. W. W. Dudley the senior attorneys. On Saturday, February 12, the case was argued before the committee, and Tyler Goodwyn was to make the opening argument of fifteen minutes duration for his father, but when his time expired he was told to go on by Gen. Dudley, and then by the chairman of the committee, until he had spoken for two hours. After he had finished he was warmly congratulated by his associates, the chairman and the committee. It was said to be one of the best arguments ever heard before an election committee. Afterwards Gen. Dudley told me that Tyler Goodwyn was the best analytical lawyer he was ever associated with, and that his argument in this case was the best and most thorough that he had ever heard before an election committee. These words of praise, coming from a lawyer like Gen. Dudley, who is accorded the best contest lawyer in the country, are words of praise indeed. General Dudley is not alone in his opinion of young Goodwyn's argument as every one who heard it is of the same opinion.

ENTREE TO ENGLAND'S 400.

How Millionaires Achieve the Pleasures of Aristocratic Company.

"How do they do it?" I asked a lady last week whom I thought likely to know how money is got out of an African millionaire bitten with a desire to become a man of fashion. She said: "Well, of course, when they take a fine house, guests have to be found. Then there is a competition to 'run them.'" "Yes," I said, "but supposing that I were a fine lady, poor, but greedy, and did not aspire to more than a few hundreds?" "You would have to be one of the right set, you know," she explained. "Yes," I continued, "I will suppose myself a bright particular star of the right set and both nice looking and influential." "You need not be the first; the second would be enough. You first have to make the acquaintance of your intended victim, but this is easy. Then you find yourself talking to him at a party or somewhere. You say to him, with a simple, innocent look, that you have a little money that you would like to invest, and you ask him to invest it for you. He probably will agree to do this. Then he invests it and soon returns you £200 or £300." "But supposing that the £100 is lost?" I asked. "Oh, but you don't really give him the £100; you only say that you want to invest it. He understands what is meant, and just buys whatever society influence he thinks that you may have." "And do many ladies try this game out?" I asked. "Plenty," she answered, "and I do not blame them. They have to live, and if they have something to sell and a millionaire thinks it will do him good to buy it, why no? After all, you don't suppose that people of this sort are received and made much of for any other reason than for getting what they can out of them? All the talk about investing is only a delicate way of letting the man know that if he wants social currency he must pay his footing." "Oh," I said.

And yet what possible pleasure can these millionaires find in being admitted into the outer courts of a society that laughs at them and that only tolerates them in order to plunder them—a society to whose ways they are strange and in which they are as much fish out of water as would be a fine lady in a Johannesburg barroom? Some of these millionaires have the good sense to perceive this. They enjoy life with their own friends and in their own way. These I respect. But for those who are buying their way into a position that is contemptible I feel the utmost contempt. I never knew the late Barney Barnato—indeed to my knowledge I never saw him—but I once heard that a number of fine ladies and gentlemen had been invited to meet him. Each went to the dinner in the hope of getting something out of him, and their hopes rose when, after the dinner was over, he thanked them for the pleasure of finding himself among them, and said that he was anxious to do something to show his appreciation of their kindness. Then he recited to them the soliloquy of Hamlet and wished them good evening. I always had a sneaking admiration for the departed Barney after I heard this story.—London Truth.

The Kansas Pacific railroad has been sold by decree of court to the reorganization committee and at a loss of seven million dollars to the government. The proposition of purchase by government officials seems to have been made only to calm public sentiment and make it easier for the Wall street interests to fleece the people. It furnishes another striking illustration of the servility of the present administration to corporate interests.

W. J. Bryan, in a signed letter to the New York Journal, expresses himself strongly in favor of co-operation on the part of all the people opposed to the gold standard. In support of this plan he cites nine distinctive propositions which are cardinal tenets of faith with Democrats, Populists and Free Silver Republicans, and asks, "Why should the Republican be allowed to nominate the policy of the country, when only minor differences exist in the ranks of those who believe in a government of, by and for the people."

From the many sensational reports appearing in the press of late it looks like the United States might be drawn into a little brush with Spain. Delome only said of President McKinley what his political opponents in this country have been reiterating constantly, yet the Spanish Minister's utterances created a feeling of indignation which caused his return to Spain in disgrace. Many well informed people are of the opinion that the sequel to this war talk is a desire of the administration to perpetuate Republican rule.

The Senate Committee on Education and Labor has decided by a unanimous vote to report favorably the bill prepared by the chairmen of the country and recently introduced in the Senate by Senator Kyle, providing for the arbitration of railroad strikes by a board of arbitrators to be chosen by the strikers and the Interstate Commerce Commission.

Both houses of the Massachusetts legislature have concurred in the request of the Committee of Labor for an investigation of the reduction in wages lately made by the cotton mills of that State. Similar action should be taken in other States

A proposition has been introduced in the legislature of New York to organize and equip a State police force to protect corporate interests and be paid by the corporations. This system would benefit the railroads principally, who are perfectly willing to take upon themselves the position of legislator, judge, jury and executioner in the general government of the country.

The total reduction of the state debt of Nebraska under the first year of Populist rule was $530,376,83.

The American Nonconformist of Indianapolis, Ind., which has been on nearly all sides of every question advocated by the People's party and had a very stormy career, is about to be removed to Nebraska, but for just what purpose deponent sayeth not.

The conservative Populist leaders of Minnesota held a conference at Minneapolis on Wednesday of last week for the purpose of taking the preliminary steps toward consolidating the silver forces.

The action of the Democratic, Populist and Free Silver Republican National Committees in issuing an address to the public through their chairmen, advising co-operation of all the forces opposed to the gold power, is meeting the approval of all patriotic citizens. It is not proposed to disband any of the reform organizations now in the field but it is possible to secure the co-operation and cash in rescuing the government from the plutocrats and restoring it to the people to whom it belongs.

The conversion of Richard Croker, the great Tammany leader of New York, to Free Coinage, is announced. If true, the event is emedy of value in showing a change in political sentiment and the desire of Eastern politicians of doubtful hue, to go with the popular tide. A. R.

HOW TO FIND OUT.

Fill a bottle or common glass with urine and let it stand twenty-four hours; a sediment or settling indicates an unhealthy condition of the kidneys. When urine stands for it is positive evidence of kidney trouble. Too frequent desire to urinate or pain in the back, is also convincing proof that the kidneys and bladder are out of order.

WHAT TO DO.

There is comfort in the knowledge so often expressed, that Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, the great kidney remedy fulfills every wish in relieving pain in the back, kidneys, liver, bladder and every part of the urinary passages. It corrects inability to hold urine and scalding pain in passing it, or bad effects following use of liquor, wine or beer, and overcomes that unpleasant necessity of being compelled to get up many times during the night to urinate. The mild and the extraordinary effect of Swamp-Root is soon realized. It stands the highest for its wonderful cures of the most distressing cases. If you need a medicine you should have the best. Sold by druggists, price fifty cents and one dollar.

You may have a sample bottle and pamphlet both sent free by mail, upon receipt of three two-cent stamps to cover cost of postage on the bottle. Mention The Banner and send your address to Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y. The proprietors of this paper guarantee the genuineness of this offer.

COURTING

is the best time in every man and woman's life, the happiest time, the jolliest time. That 's so!

Twice a year everybody comes a courting to Clanton, and when you come this year, you can be made to think of old times and have a better time than you have ever had in your life before. You want to know how. Well, there 's only one way and that is by doing your trading with Abe Kanter, at the old court house store, where you will find the biggest assorted stock and the smallest prices you have ever heard of.

There 's no use in keeping goods in stock. We must sell them or give them away. Our prices are so low it is just about the same as giving goods away. We are clearing out our Winter Goods to make room for our new Spring stock and this is your opportunity.

Don't forget that the place to trade is at

Suffered 20 Years.

MRS. MARY LEWIS, wife of a prominent farmer, and well known by all old residents near Belmont, N. Y., writes: "For twenty-seven years I had been a constant sufferer from nervous prostration, and paid large sums of money for doctors and advertised remedies without benefit. Three years ago my condition was alarming; the least noise would startle and unnerve me. I was unable to sleep, had a number of sinking spells and slowly grew worse. I began using Dr. Miles' Restorative Nervine and Nerve and Liver Pills. At first the medicine seemed to have no effect, but after taking a few bottles I began to notice a change; I rested better at night, my appetite began to improve and I rapidly grew better, until now I am as nearly restored to health as one of my age may expect. God bless Dr. Miles' Nervine."

Sheriff's Sale.

By virtue of an execution issued out of the Circuit Court of Chilton county, and State of Alabama, and to me directed, whereby I am commanded to make the amount of a certain judgment recently obtained against S. A. Foshee, out of the goods, chattels, lands and tenements of the said S. A. Foshee, I have levied on the following property:

East Number 3 in the town of Maplesville, Alabama, together with the two-story store house thereon, which said ... is bounded as follows, to-wit: On the east by the East Tennessee, Virginia and Georgia railroad; on the south by property of A. S. Woosley; on north and west by property of Dr. J. S. Johnson, Sr., and to stand as subject to two mortgages executed by said S. A. Foshee to Matthews, Woosley and by said Woosley, which transferred and assigned to H. J. Fegues. And also Lot Number 17 in the town of Maplesville, Chilton county, Alabama, together with the dwelling house thereon.

Therefore according to said command I shall expose for sale at public auction, to the highest bidder for cash in hand, the right, title and interest of the above named S. A. Foshee in and to the above described property, on during the legal hours of sale, at the Court House door in Clanton, Alabama.

MONDAY, MARCH 21, 1898,

Dated at Clanton this 5th day of February, 1898. J. T. COOLEY, Sheriff.

THE CROSS AND CROWN

Is the title of a treatise on the doctrine of perfection or sanctification, by A. L. Pattillo, of Verbena, now in the press. It is written in a plain, homely fashion by one deeply impressed with the necessity of Christians living a perfect life, who desires to see all professing religion imbued with the same spirit. The Author, who is also a poet, has written several poems, all on religious subjects. The whole when complete will make a book of over 200 pages, bound in a stiff board cover, which at the small charge of 50 cents, should find a place in every home in the county, from the fact that it is entirely a home production, being the first book ever written, printed, bound and published in Chilton. It will be ready early in October. Price only 50 cents. Orders can be sent to The BANNER, Clanton, or to A. L. Pattillo, Verbena.

Notice to Non-Resident.

The State of Alabama, Chilton county. In Chancery at Clanton, Alabama, September Session, 1897.

Nancie Davis, complainant, vs. A. Oscar Davis, defendant.

In this cause it is made to appear to the Register by the affidavit of A. M. Abercrombie that the Defendant, A. Oscar Davis, is a non-resident of the State of Alabama, and that his residence and post office address is Clanton, Alabama. It is therefore ordered and adjudged by the Register that the said A. Oscar Davis, be and appear and plead, answer or demur to the same within thirty days after the 1st day of March, 1898, and failing so to do a decree pro confesso will be taken against him in said cause.

Done at office in Clanton, Alabama, this 26th day of January, 1898.

W. E. STEWART,
Register in Chancery.

CANDY CATHARTIC CASCARETS CURE CONSTIPATION

10¢ 25¢ 50¢ — ALL DRUGGISTS

CANDY CATHARTIC — CASCARETS taste good. Not taste like candy. They remove any bad taste in the mouth, leaving the breath sweet and perfumed. It is a real pleasure to take them instead of nauseating liquids or cannon-ball pills.

PURELY VEGETABLE — CASCARETS are purely vegetable and contain no mercurial or other mineral poison. They are made of the latest remedies discovered and are a scientific combination never before put together in any form.

ANTISEPTIC LAXATIVE — CASCARETS are antiseptic. That means they act as digestive ferments, prevent fermentation in the bowels and kill the germs of any kind that breed and feed in the system.

LIVER STIMULANT — CASCARETS tone the stomach and bowels and stimulate the lazy liver, making it work. They strengthen the nerve centers and make their action easy and natural.

BOON FOR MOTHERS — CASCARETS increase the flow of milk in nursing mothers. A tablet eaten by the mother assures her milk mildly purgative and has a mild buttermilk effect on the baby, the only safe laxative for the baby.

PLEASE THE CHILDREN — CASCARETS relished by the children. They taste good and do good. Stop wind-colic and cramps, and kill and drive off worms, and all kinds of parasites that live in the bowels of the growing child.

CURE GUARANTEED — CASCARETS, taken patiently, permanently and guaranteed to cure from one to three cases of constipation, no matter how old and obstinate, or your druggist will cheerfully refund your money.

WEALTH FOR 10 CENTS — CASCARETS are sold by all druggists for 10c, 25c, 50c a box, according to size. A 10c box will prove their merits and put you in the right mood to purchase and permanent health. Don't risk delay.

Don't judge CASCARETS by other medicines you have tried. They are new, unlike anything else that's sold, and infinitely superior.

A RIDICULOUS FRAUD.

THE ARGUMENT OF EX-SENATOR EDMUNDS.

The Attorney for the Goldbugs Claims that Gold Has a Fixed Value When He Knows It Has Doubled in Purchasing Power Since 1873.

Before the committee of the house on currency and banking, ex-Senator Edmunds made the following arguments on the "standards:"

The commission felt that such a thing as a double standard had never existed in the world through natural operations. There have been double standards established by law, but never in fact. When it comes to an actual standard there can be but one. By law the United States has a double standard, a silver coin and a gold coin established on the theory that they could be maintained at an exact equality.

Mr. Edmunds then referred to the experience of the great nations of the world all showing, he said, that a single standard meant stability and safety, while legal attempts at double standards meant disaster and panic. From this universal experience, Mr. Edmunds said he and his associates had come to the conclusion that the first principle on which to base a currency was to have one standard, that gold is the best standard because it is the most stable of all standards of value, subject to the least fluctuation from year to year and from century to century.

Thus the commission was brought to the gold standard as their first proposition. That, however, did not exclude the idea of bimetallism, for it did not exclude the use of silver or any other metal to the largest extent that they could be maintained on an equality with the one fixed and invariable standard of gold.

"That conclusion was reached," Mr. Edmunds added, "with no prejudices, with no private political considerations, but solely from the conviction of those of the commission representing the various sections of the country."

The idea of a man like Mr. Edmunds pretending to be puzzled over a "double standard" of money, is one of the most ridiculous frauds ever attempted by the gold standard conspirators. It would be just as difficult for him to find a single standard, because there is no such thing as a standard of value. Standard of value is what is assumed by double and single standard. Value is an imaginary thing, and cannot be reduced to substance. Value is a comparative term and expresses the difference in price between two or more pieces of property. That price or value is constantly shifting, and is unstable as the the sands on the sea shore. It is utterly impossible to have a standard for anything that is constantly changing. There is no single standard of value, and this is the reason there can be no double standard. Had Mr. Edmunds been asked to define a single standard of value his argument would have refuted itself. There is nothing that has substance and can be created but can readily be duplicated.

To claim that gold "is subject to the least fluctuations from year to year and from century to century" is absurd. The same amount of gold will purchase today twice the amount of staple products of a hundred or five hundred different kinds, that it would twenty-five years ago. The five hundred things have kept on the same level of prices, bearing the same, or nearly the same percentage of value to each other that they had twenty-five years ago, while gold has gone away above and beyond them.

The falsehood of this assumption—it has not the dignity of an argument—has been pointed out hundreds of times, but they keep repeating it in the hope that maybe it can be made to stick. If gold could be made a "standard of value" and anchored securely so that it were impossible for it to vary, there would be no difficulty in adjusting silver to it, and two substances fixed and stable, they would stand as firmly as two stone walls.

For thousands of years before 1873 silver money had been a recorder of price the same as gold. It was then demonetized by the great powers of the world. In every country for thousands of years the silver coin bearing the same face or mint value that gold coin bore, would purchase the same quantity of goods, and pay the same amount of debt. And the silver coins today are doing the same work. It is worse than folly, it is an insult to common sense, to claim that gold "is the most stable of all standards of value, subject to the least fluctuations from year to year and from century to century." But what falsehood is too brazen for one of these old hoary senate lawyers to tell with a solemn face—if he is paid to do it?

When Senator Edmunds or anybody else succeeds in making a single standard of value out of gold, or any other metal or any other substance, there will be no difficulty whatever in making a duplicate standard to place beside it. The whole trouble exists in being unable to make the single standard. The value of their "standard" and the goods it is to exchange with are constantly fluctuating. That "value" can't be made to hold still, but always keeps moving. When either grows scarce in proportion to the demand it rises in value. Gold is growing scarce measured by the demand for it, and is steadily rising in value.

The ex-senator's climax is a little too funny for anything, where he says: "That conclusion was reached with no prejudices, with no private political considerations, but simply from the convictions of those of the commission representing the various sections of the country." If the senator had added the "goldbugs" of these sections, his claim would never be doubted. But their "convictions," such as they are, represent only goldbugs.

What is wanted to bring prosperity to the country is more legal tender government money. It doesn't matter what material the government uses if congress enacts a law ordering more—a good deal more—legal tender to be issued by the secretary of the treasury. Gold cannot be gotten. That is out of the question. Silver could be used to the extent perhaps of $100,000,000 per year, but that is not sufficient to supply the growing demand for money to exchange an ever increasing production, and the bankers acknowledge this fact by their eagerness to have a law of congress permitting them to issue all the currency they desire to circulate.

The government should not only provide means for increasing the quantity of legal tender money, but also provide the necessary machinery to control, safe-keep, and distribute the money for the people, and take this privilege out of the hands of bankers who are fast growing to be a select class as dangerous to the government as the Mamelukes were to their Turkish masters.

The government could as readily establish banks or depositories for the safe keeping, discounting, and loaning money as postoffices. This, it will be found, is the only "currency reform" that will ever reform the currency in the interest of the people. It would be but a few years till a system of government banks would change the entire business of the country by establishing a paper currency stronger and better than any gold currency can ever be made. In fact, gold, of all metals or materials that was ever chosen for money purposes, is the very worst.

As between gold and silver, the latter is far preferable. No nation can get along without silver money if metal money is used at all, while no nation ever misses gold money when it disappears, at the first sound of the war trumpets or the alarm of panics.

A full legal tender government currency, with finances managed by government banks would banish gold from the marts of trade. Nobody would use it when they could get legal tenders and silver. There can be little if any doubt that a United States legal tender currency managed by the government as the people's banker, would send this nation to the front of all commercial nations of the world, and its currency to a premium over gold in every country in Europe, as the credit system of the Bank of Venice stood for hundreds of years at a premium of twenty per cent above gold. The hundreds of millions swallowed up by bank interest under our present system would be saved to industry, and a stability of prices which would surely be maintained, would change the whole framework of society changing the moans of the tramp and the sorrowings of enforced idleness to songs of rejoicing.

We do not believe that the sophistry and misrepresentations of the hired attorneys, such as Edmunds, of the goldbugs, can continue to deceive and mislead the American people. They are slow but mighty in their wrath when stirred by conviction.

E. E. EWING.

Trusts Monopolies and Combines.

Exceedingly injudicious combinations have been formed in the United States which have deprived thousands of persons of a livelihood, and these combines of capital have been the means of driving a large number of people out of trades and occupations in which they were employed, because they were unable to combat against united wealth, and the unequal and greedy methods of doing business. It may be asked, why did not the people who were ousted turn to some other occupation? To which is answered that many did and found other trusts, monopolies and combines had been formed in other lines, which in like manner had deprived thousands of other persons of employment, through which they supported themselves and their families.

It is argued in extenuation that by these large combines of capital and destroyers of competition, goods are produced cheaper. That is admitted but the price paid for the concession is as naught compared with the starving families which they have caused. Capitalists seem determined to control both money and manufactories, and abstract therefrom still greater wealth, and the subservience of the people, whether families starve through the operation or not.—W. T. Wood.

Minority Representation.

We shall never have really just and equitable laws until we adopt the principle of minority representation, and a cumulative vote along with the initiative and referendum, says the Journal of the Knights of Labor. By minority representation we should always have a minority so strong and so fairly and directly representative of the people in our legislative bodies that no majority could enact vicious or tyrannical legislation. By cumulative voting we should always have the ablest and most honest men in the nation in our congresses, legislatures and city councils. And all shades of opinion and all classes of reformers would be fairly represented.

Age.

The year is hasting, and the days
Are burdened with ungarnered sheaves;
And underfoot our treasured hopes
Lie thick, as the neglected leaves.
But listen! did you hear a song
Sweet as if by an angel band?
"Only the Golden Rule of God
Shall bring the golden age of man."

'Tis true that in the path of life
We stumble oft, and often fail;
Sometimes our listening ears grow dull
And give not heed to duty's call.
Then comes the warning: "Child, arise,
March onward, 'tis the Father's plan;
Only the Golden Rule of God
Will bring the golden age of man."

Lift up the fallen, bind the wounds
That man has given brother man.
For sin, and want, and woe, and shame
Grow rampant since the world began.
Shall we who bear the name of Christ
Be lagging found? No, reach the van.
Proclaim "The Golden Rule of God
Shall bring the golden age of man."

Then scatter seeds, what if so small
That God alone the seed can see?
He giveth increase, and He knows
We give our best, and give it free.
We're pledged to crush the world's great foe,
Men, women, children, help who can
To prove "The Golden Rule of God
Will bring the golden age of man."

—Union Signal.

No Party Has a Monopoly.

That the National Convention did not name any particular party in its resolutions this year is not to be construed as indifference to "prohibition by a party." The National stands just where it has stood for years in relation to this question. It believes in prohibition by law, and that this is to be accomplished by the ballot box. It does not propose to desert a cause or a friend. It will go with its principles one mile, or it will go with them twain, if it can, but it will go no part of a mile further than its principles go. In other words, the National has declared its principles, and will stand by them wherever found. Therefore, to be consistent, it could not name and commend one party embodying a fundamental principle and ignore another having precisely the same principle, as was contemplated by the resolutions as first offered. It is well to keep in mind that wherever parties have been named and commended in state or National conventions, it has been only so far as they have exemplified our principles and no farther. Sympathy and affiliation have never been offered beyond this. It is more than probable that, had Miss Willard's unique resolution, formulated and passed unanimously in her own inner consciousness, and so announced to the Convention, been presented for a vote, it would have passed.—Union Signal.

Wearing the White Ribbon.

A writer in the Union Signal, the organ of the W. C. T. U., says: Do our members wear the white ribbon? Why not? It speaks volumes! I am a very busy business woman, but I stick to my bow of white ribbon, and wherever I go my little badge of loyalty brings me many a pleasure. In my work among business men, often is my ribbon mentioned. One gentleman said: "I see you wear the white ribbon; I should like you to go home with me to dinner, my wife would be pleased to meet you." Another, pastor of a church that I attend, said: "I am pleased to meet any one associated with my wife in her work."

Do you not love to meet those wearing the badge of your order? Why should not we be as proud as our order as the secret societies, the Free Masons and Odd Fellows, and numerous others. Is not our society as worthy our loyalty? Then let us stick to our badge. Be sure we have enough white ribbon to put a knot on every dress and outside wrap, and let it speak a silent language for our grand cause of total abstinence.

Liquor at the Capitol.

When we read in the papers that on the opening of Congress no intoxicants could be had at the capitol—for the first time in many years—we rejoiced and congratulated the Fifty-fifth Congress and the nation at large. Our felicitations, however, were nipped in the bud. We learn that "after a spasm of virtue, which lasted just twenty-four hours, the committee on rules of the Senate and House of Representatives authorized the sale of liquor again at the capitol restaurant." We are told further that the relapse was due to pressure brought to bear by certain law-makers, who threatened to bring the matter up on the floor and demand a vote unless their beloved grog were nearer at hand than the Congressional Hotel across the way. This so alarmed the members who represent both "prohibitionists" and brewers, the church voter and the saloonkeeper, that they proceeded to labor with the committee on rules, and the result is that the capitol bar is opened for "light drinks."

The Duty of Christians.

At a recent meeting of the Central Pennsylvania Synod of the Lutheran Church, the following resolution, determinative of the duties of Christians of that denomination towards the temperance cause, was passed:

Resolved, That in our judgment as a synod, domestic wines and so-called "hard cider" in the houses of our people are a menace to the moral welfare and sobriety of our young people.

Resolved, That in our judgment, no communicant member of the church should ever sign a petition for license, as such an act is inconsistent with the baptismal confirmation promise to renounce "the devil and all his works."

Resolved, That the individual Christian should be a total abstainer from all intoxicating drinks as a beverage, because of the influence of his example, and,

That the state should adopt absolute constitutional prohibition as the only consistent way for the state to deal with intoxicants as a beverage.

For Drinkers to Remember.

In the blood liquor tends to prevent the interchange of vital gases in the red corpuscles, which constitutes a portion of the function of respiration or breathing. Notice the blue lips and fingers, the red face, and shortness of breath of the excessive drinker. He is suffering from all the symptoms of slow asphyxia or strangulation. In the liver we have a repetition of the same inflammation which we have described in relation to the stomach. It first becomes full of blood (congested) and enlarged, and later contracted and excessively small, and covered with nodules. In England gin is so frequently employed in this manner that the term "gin-drinker's liver" is commonly used to describe this prevalent and fatal disease.—Prof. C. H. Steele.

Intemperance in England.

Says an English correspondent of the Eight Hour Herald: I asked John Burns what was the greatest cause of poverty in England.

"Drink," was his laconic reply.

"What is the greatest obstacle to the advancement of the working classes?"

"Drink," he said again.

"What is the reason that the working classes of Great Britain are less intelligent, less tidy, and less ambitious than those of the United States?"

"Drink," he again ejaculated.

"What is the greatest incentive to crime and vice among the working people?"

"Drink."

"Is there any hope for the elevation of the working classes of your country to the same standard as those in the United States?" I asked.

"Not as long as there is a public house at every cross-roads in Great Britain," he replied.

Temperance Notes.

The annual convention of the Kansas state temperance union will be held December 27-28.

Illinois Prohibitionists have issued a call for their state convention, to be held at Peoria, June 1 and 2, 1898.

A dispatch from Berea, Ky., states that Glade Precinct, in Madison county, in which Berea college is located, has gone dry by a vote of 15 to 1.

The U. K. A., the Band of Hope union, and the Temperance Hospital of London, have each received a legacy of a thousand guineas, bequeathed by the late Mrs. Caroline Wallis.

News from Indian Territory says that the Indian agent, Wisdom has ordered the arrest of any persons found with liquor in their possession, or who are intoxicated. Such persons will have to tell where they got their liquor or be declared in contempt of court for refusing to do so.

The United States supreme court has rendered a decision in which it is held that the provisions of the Dingley bill did not take effect until the bill was signed by the president, which was on July 24. The brewers will therefore get their 7½ per cent rebate without the necessity of suing for it.

The twenty-seventh annual meeting of the American association for the study and cure of inebriety was held in Boston, Mass., recently. These officers were elected: President, L. D. Mason, Brooklyn; first vice president, Isaac M. Quimby, Jersey City; secretary-treasurer, T. D. Crothers, Hartford.

Prof. Samuel Dickie, chairman of the national prohibition committee, addressed the Methodist preachers' meeting of Chicago the other day on the "Relation of the Preacher to Politics, Politicians and Voters." He stirred up lively discussion and the meeting was extended an hour beyond the usual time.

Mayor Davis of Coffeyville, Kan., has been arrested on a warrant charging him with violating certain provisions of the prohibitory law, which enjoins upon all city officials the duty of enforcing the law. It is claimed that he allowed places to run wide open, and monthly collected fines from such places, as is shown in the city records.

The Kentucky court of appeals has decided that the special local option acts, allowing the people to vote on the question of selling liquor, were not repealed by the new constitution, and that the counties where the sale of liquor is now prohibited under said acts, are still "dry" till they become "wet" by a vote of the people of the county.

At the recent session of the Des Moines, Iowa, conference the following resolutions were adopted: First, that the destruction of the saloon is the paramount political issue in Iowa; second, that the passage of the manufacturer's bill was betrayal of a public trust; third, that we urge the submission of a prohibitory constitutional amendment to a vote of the people at a non-partisan election, and fourth, that to support candidates for office who are in any way committed to the liquor interests, is a weak and recreant surrender to partisan prejudice.

A PAYING COTTON CROP.

Best Method of Growing the Staple to Make a Profit.

The low price of cotton is already bringing out various schemes for reducing the acreage in this crop. At present prices for the staple there is no profit in cotton growing for the average farmer who follows the old plan of growing cotton after cotton on land that has long since parted with all its vegetable matter, and who cultivates three acres or more to get a bale. There should of course be a reduction of the acreage in cotton, and an increase of the acreage in the crops used for forage and the improvement of the land. There should be more intelligent farming and less of mere plodding in the old ruts. We have often shown that a man by systematic use of the chopper forms of fertilizers or peas can accumulate vegetable matter in his soil that will enable him to use the commercial fertilizers to greater profit on his crops. A soil full of decayed vegetable matter will give better results from the use of commercial fertilizers than one in which there is no such deposit. It will withstand the effects of drought better, is warmer and earlier in the spring, and its mechanical texture is such that it is easier to work. What we need now is not so much to reduce the total crop of cotton in the South as to grow the crop on fewer acres and at less expense. If cotton will bring but five cents per lb. then if we are to grow it at a profit we must produce it at a less cost than five cents. We have seen it grown at an actual cost of three and a half cents when all the labor was paid for in cash, and an accurate account kept. But the crop was a long way over half a bale per acre. With but half a bale per acre or less the cost of growing cotton will exceed its present price. And this is now just the condition of the majority of the cotton growers in the Southern uplands. Reduce your acreage, but make the efforts to get just as much cotton on the reduced acreage. The way to do is not to take an old cotton field and give an extra dose of fertilizer, but start at once in the work of building up the land and stocking it with vegetable matter till you can give all the fertilizer that can profitably be used. You have an old piece of land that has been in cotton for generations. You have grown no peas, as you should have done, and have no pea fallow for the cotton. What is next best? We would cut the cotton area in such a case right in two or less, and would go to work at once to cover all the portion to be cultivated with some sort of decayed vegetation. Get to the forest and haul out during the winter all the decayed mould you can get and cover all the land over broadcast. Do not go to the labor of composting, but cover the land all over with the refuse from the forest. Spread all the cotton seed out the same way, and then apply broadcast, too, a mixture of Kainit and acid phosphate in equal parts at rate of 400 pounds per acre. Put it out during the winter, and do not be afraid it will get away from you. It will simply get into better condition for the crop by being put on the land a month or two ahead of planting. With the land covered over bodily with the black mold and leaves from the woods you will have an amount of humus added to the soil that will make your fertilizers more effective, and the leaching away of the salt in the Kainit will render soluble some matters in this mold that will be of value to the crop. Then when you come to prepare for the crop a light dressing of some complete fertilizer, or only some cotton seed meal, will give the plants an early start, and through all the summer they will be finding new food as their roots extend. Kainit has a special value in bringing about conditions that enable the plant to resist the attacks of rust and leaf blight, and although under general conditions we believe that the more concentrated potash salts, like the muriate or the sulphate, are the cheaper with the cotton crop we would use Kainit with an abundance of acid phosphate. The same mixture applied to a crop of peas, and the peas let die on the land, will give you a coat of vegetable matter ready spread that will be better than that which you could haul there. But for the present try the hauling of vegetable decay and cover the land all over, and then get the acid phosphate and Kainit there a month or so ahead of the planting. Broadcast manuring and the growing of peas are the means for bringing land up to the production of 4000 pounds seed cotton per acre.

In all the special fertilizers for cotton there is too small a percentage of potash for the sandy lands of the Southern coast plan, which need this element badly. While, therefore, a man may use a complete fertilizer in the furrow for his cotton, he will, if he is on sandy land, find that the broadcast application of Kainit which we have recommended will pay well, and will reduce the amount necessary to use in the furrow to give the cotton a start by fully one-half.

FRANCES E. WILLARD.

President of the Woman's C. T. U., Died in New York.

Miss Frances E. Willard, president of the Woman's Christian Temperance Union, died shortly after midnight Thursday, at the Hotel Imperial, in New York. Miss Willard had been seriously sick about three weeks. She had been a sufferer for several years with profound anemia, but fatal results were not anticipated until a few days ago, when she took la grippe, which hastened the end. She was 59 years of age.

EMINENT DIVINES' SERMONS

DISCOURSES BY TWO ABLE WORKERS IN GOD'S VINEYARD.

"Stirring Folks Up"—Fourteenth Sermon in the New York Herald's Competitive Series to be a Pennsylvania Minister—Dr. Talmage On Ordinary People.

Ahab, who incited Jezebel his wife stirred up. 1 Kings xxi. 25.

A large part of the evil and a larger part of the good in the world would never be done but for the ones being stirred up to it.

Life is much like the sea: there seems always some wind to ruffle the surface or some strong undercurrent to send its restlessness up from the depths.

Too loss is many sided. If fully considered it covers the whole complex question of our relationships. It is not one part of a world against the other, part of the world giving the other ever receiving. Instead of one who is stirred up to evil we see a constant impulse to another's good.

No matter how weak one may be or how ineffectual in others, there is still some energizing force, consciously or unconsciously, which makes more positive the good or evil of the world's conflicting forces.

We find ourselves passed by life's invitations or irritations. Its attractions and its repulsions find no allies in our inclinations, and often we fail because we understand not the opposing forces, or we joyously realize that we have been impelled to a usefulness we had thought beyond our power.

The example of Jezebel, the daily Mail and Express, the "new woman" of nearly three thousand years ago is not to be despised. Women are more prone to stirring up to evil than men, though blessed is the woman who "stirs up" her husband who ever he needs it, and happy is the man who never stirs up his wife to anything.

We are ready to condemn Jezebel for having stirred up Ahab to evil, but we lose sight of how Ahab influenced Jezebel. His negative weakness provoked her positive badness. We sometimes comfort ourselves that we are not bad because we are not great sinners, forgetful that our very weakness may provoke some one else into sinning.

Ahab wanted a piece of ground that was near the royal palace. It was the property of Naboth, who with tremendous reverence refused to part with it. Pitied by Naboth's refusal Ahab went to bed, turned his face to the wall and refused to eat. Ahab, the king, peevish as a child because he could not have his own way! It was from Jezebel's murderous plans were formed. Ahab's peevish sulkiness stirred up the wicked spirit of Jezebel. Had he been by himself he could not have been so evil.

Whom provoked his wife stirred up?—stirred up to evil. Had that power been turned to good even what a rich might have been one of the world's helpers.

The power for great evil reveals the possibilities of great good; the power in the direction of wrong is the measure of benefit if turned in the opposite direction.

Who can estimate what the world would have lost had not Wendell Phillips heard his true hearted wife say, "Wendell, don't shilly-shally." That put an end to possible infidelity. Was Lady Palmerston's "stirring up" of Pitt to be? She stood her life in the ring and kept her husband in his proper position.

What a rare tribute was paid by General Charles H. Taylor to the memory of Eben D. Jordan when in a Boston Globe editorial he said: "No man of my acquaintance ever possessed a rarer gift of developing the gifts of other men, and no one ever helped others with more patience and generosity." He stirred up to their best possibilities those with whom he made them by his help what, possibly, they never could have been without it.

Are those who are near you weak and sinful because you have not stirred them up to be their best selves?

The world will ever be grateful to Dr. W. Robertson Nicholl for his persistent stirring up of Ian Maclaren. He gave him no rest until he led the world to the "Bonnie Brier Bush," while, like the Bush Moses saw, it was "not consumed."

Parents, sometimes, are lenient to the world at large—stirred up.

If not just the right kind of relations with one of the wild boys of his power and wisdom be masters, not servants, of fate. Don't hang it has been said!

Lingering wealth in the waves of

As we journey through life,
Let little of it said
About the failings of the dead,
And of the living be the style.

How are we using the hours which some think are dragging heavily? Are we sowing the seeds which are to spring up and bear fruit on the footsteps of others? Are we doing a little good every day that we live? Are we speaking kindly words to the sorrowful? Are we trying to lighten the burdens of others? Are we doing our duty? Are we living as we would wish to have lived when we look back upon our lives from the dying bed? Are we living as we would wish to have lived when we look back upon our lives from the dying bed? Are we living as we would wish to have lived when we look back upon our lives from the dying bed?

Now, what is wanted is grace—divine grace for ordinary business men, men who are harassed from morn till night and all the days of their life harassed in business. Not grace to lose a hundred thousand, but grace to lose ten dollars. Not grace to supervise two hundred and fifty employes in a factory, but grace to supervise the bookkeeper and two salesmen and the small boy that sweeps out the store. Grace to invest not the eighty thousand dollars of net profit, but the twenty-five hundred of clear gain. Such a grace as thousands of business men have today—seeming them through, whether goods sell or do not sell, whether coal mines pay or do not pay, whether tariff is up or tariff is down, whether the rope are luxuriant or a dead failure, calm in all circumstances, and amid all vicissitudes. That is the kind of grace we want.

Then there are all the ordinary farmers. We talk about agricultural life, and we immediately shoot off to talk about Cincinnatus, the patrician, who went from the plow to a high position, and after he got through the dictatorship, in twenty-one days, went back again to the plow. What encouragement is that to ordinary farmers? The vast majority of them none of them will be patricians. Perhaps none of them will be Senators. If any of them have dictatorships it will be over forty or fifty or a hundred acres of the old homestead. What these men want is grace, to keep their patience while plowing with balky oxen, and to keep cheerful amid the drouth that destroys the corn crop, and that enables them to restore the garden the day after the neighbor's cattle have broken in and trampled out the strawberry bed, and gone through the Lima bean patch, and eaten up the sweet corn in such large quantities that they must be kept from the water lest they swell up and die.

Grace in enabling weather that enables them, without impatience, to spread out the hay the third time, although again, and again, and again, it has been almost ready for tossing. A grace to doctor the hay with hollow horn, and the sheep with tobacco, and the horses with the distemper, and to expend unwilling acres of ploughed in for the family, and weeding out the children and little extras to buy the children in Christmas, and something for the daughter's wedding outfit, and a little surplus for the time when the ankles will get stiff with age, and the speed will be a little short, and the whitening of the grain the night the hot harvest flood will bring on the old man's rheumatism. Better so, as we have sought to do, the circumstances under which He ordered those words, we will miss much of their force. He was, humanly speaking, weary and heavy laden because of the unbelief and ingratitude of those He sought to help and He found His rest in the will of God and His meek acceptance of the same, manifested in His "Yes, My Father." Mr. Spurgeon used to say that he saw in this verse a great proof of our Lord's divinity, for when he tried to comfort even a few heavy laden ones in his congregation, he soon found himself getting burdened, so that anyone who could give rest to all the heavy laden of earth must be none other than God Himself.

29. "Take My yoke upon you and learn of Me; for I am meek and lowly in heart, and ye shall find rest unto your souls." Not in crying and striving, not in endless doing, but in Him and in His love is rest; not in running from Him, but in running to Him. In returning and rest is salvation, and in quietness and confidence is strength (Isa. xxx., 15). Whosoever will may take the water of life freely and be saved (Rev. xxii., 17), whosoever will may take His meek and lowly fellowship and find perfect peace, but there is no other way. If one will insist upon his own way, his own will, his own rights, he can never find rest. There is no rest but to the meek and lowly in heart who are willing to humble themselves to walk with God and be agreed with Him (Mic. vi., 8; Amos iii., 3).

30. "For my yoke is easy and My burden is light." Do you not find it so? Then you want to know Him better and find out how much He loves you. Is not His will the wisest? Is not His way the best, and in perfect acquiescence is there not perfect rest? With child-like in his love and in His wisdom accept all as from Him who gave Himself for you, and learn to say "Yes, My Father."—Lesson Helper.

SUNDAY SCHOOL.

INTERNATIONAL LESSON COMMENTS FOR FEBRUARY 27.

Lesson Text: "Warning and Invitation," Matt. xi., 20-30—Golden Text: Matt. xi., 28—Commentary on the Day's Lesson Written by Rev. Dr. D. M. Stearns.

20. "Then began He to upbraid the cities wherein most of His mighty works were done, because they repented not." Before He chose the twelve He had been about all the cities and villages teaching, preaching and healing, and after He had chosen and instructed them He continued to teach and preach in their cities (chapters ix., 35; xi., 1). He never seemed to rest except when He had to because night had come, but even then He sometimes spent the night in prayer. Being anointed with the Holy Spirit and with power He went about doing good and healing all that were oppressed of the devil, for God was with Him (Acts x., 38). God is not willing that any should perish, but that all should come to repentance (II Pet. iii., 9). Even the awful judgments of the period of the great tribulation will be poured out in order that men may repent, according to Rev. ix., 20, 21; xvi., 9, 11, 21, 24. It shall be more tolerable for Tyre and Sidon, for Sodom and Gomorrah, than for the cities in which He had done His mighty works. The people of Nineveh and the Queen of Sheba shall condemn those who heard a greater than Jonah or Solomon, yet repented not (chapter xii., 41, 42). But when will this be? He answers at the day of judgment, and He knows, for He is the appointed Judge. "God commandeth all men everywhere to repent, because he has appointed a day in the which He will judge the world in righteousness by the man whom He hath ordained, whereof He hath given assurance unto all men in that He hath raised Him from the dead" (Acts xvii., 30, 31). Not only will every one of us give account of himself to God, but God will bring every work into judgment with every secret thing, whether it be good or whether it be evil. Every idle word that men shall speak they shall give account thereof in the day of judgment (Rom. xiv., 12; Eccl., xii., 14; Matth. xii., 36). Let us not think of a so-called general judgment day when all who have ever lived from Adam to the kingdom shall appear at one grand assize, but rather let us get the mind of God, which is briefly this: All who are saved by Jesus' blood can see Only Calvary that the judgment for their sins is past (Isa. xliii., 25; John v., 24), but all saved ones must appear at the judgment seat of Christ that their service as such may be tried with the possibility of loss or approval (Rom. xiv., 10; II Cor. v., 10; I Cor. iii., 14, 15).

25. "At that time Jesus answered and said, I thank thee, O Father, Lord of heaven and earth, because thou hast hid these things from the wise and prudent, and hast revealed them unto babes." Thank God for all the babes who are willing to believe every word their Heavenly Father tells them. The wise and prudent in their own estimation must continue to walk in the light of their own fire and in the sparks that they have kindled (Isa. l., 11), because they are too wise to accept God's teaching. The world by its wisdom knows not God (I Cor. i., 21).

26. "Even so, Father, for so it seemed good in Thy sight." In the French this verse reads, "Yes, My Father, this is so, because that Thou hast found it good." We must remember that the words "at that time" of the last verse direct us to the time when servants were doubting, Israel mocking and men despising. They had called Him a glutton and a winebibber, a friend of publicans and sinners. Even John the Baptist in his lonely prison seemed to be listening to satan's doubts (do not condemn him till you have tried to put yourself in his place), and under all these and many worse as the time of His awful agony drew nigh He was content to have it so, if only the Father might be glorified in Him.

27. "All things are delivered unto Me of My Father, and no man knoweth the Son, but the Father. Neither knoweth any man the Father, save the Son, and he to whomsoever the Son will reveal Him." The Father loveth the Son and hath given all things into His hand (John iii., 35). It makes us think of the words of Abraham's servant concerning the only son, "Unto him hath he given all that he hath" (Gen. xxiv., 36). No one but the Father in heaven understood fully the Son of God, and no one but the Son knows the Father or can make Him known. If therefore you would know God, it must be by knowing Christ, for His words still hold good, still that hath seen Me hath seen the Father" (John xiv., 9). "All things" include all power in heaven and on earth" Matth. xxviii., 18), power over all enemies, so that He need not have submitted to a single thing unless He chose to.

28. "Come unto Me all ye that labor and are heavy laden, and I will give you rest." Better so, as we have sought to do, the circumstances under which He uttered those words, we will miss much of their force. He was, humanly speaking, weary and heavy laden because of the unbelief and ingratitude of those He sought to help and He found His rest in the will of God and His meek acceptance of the same, manifested in His "Yes, My Father." Mr. Spurgeon used to say that he saw in this verse a great proof of our Lord's divinity, for when he tried to comfort even a few heavy laden ones in his congregation, he soon found himself getting burdened, so that anyone who could give rest to all the heavy laden of earth must be none other than God Himself.

29. "Take My yoke upon you and learn of Me; for I am meek and lowly in heart, and ye shall find rest unto your souls." Not in crying and striving, not in endless doing, but in Him and in His love is rest; not in running from Him, but in running to Him. In returning and rest is salvation, and in quietness and confidence is strength (Isa. xxx., 15). Whosoever will may take the water of life freely and be saved (Rev. xxii., 17), whosoever will may take His meek and lowly fellowship and find perfect peace, but there is no other way. If one will insist upon his own way, his own will, his own rights, he can never find rest. There is no rest but to the meek and lowly in heart who are willing to humble themselves to walk with God and be agreed with Him (Mic. vi., 8; Amos iii., 3).

30. "For my yoke is easy and My burden is light." Do you not find it so? Then you want to know Him better and find out how much He loves you. Is not His will the wisest? Is not His way the best, and in perfect acquiescence is there not perfect rest? A Vigorous Battle.

From the New Era, Coppersburg, Ind.

The following is a straightforward statement by a veteran of the late war. No comrade will need further proof than their friend's own words, as here given.

Squire John Castor, of Newpoint, Ind., is the narrator, and an honest, respected citizen he is too. He said: "I have been troubled with rheumatism in all my joints ever since I went to the war. It was brought on by my exposure there. It came on me gradually, and kept getting worse until I was unable to do any work. I tried several physicians, but they did me no good. They said my trouble was rheumatism resulting in disease of the heart, and that there was no cure for it. Nevertheless I had lived and fought the disease for thirty years, and did not intend to die simply because they said I must, so I

I Want to Survive to That.

hunted up some remedies for myself, and finally happened on Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People. I asked some of my neighbors about the medicine, for it had been used by several persons in the community, and they recommended it very highly. I procured a box. The pills helped me right away, and I continued taking them. I commenced taking them last fall, and finished taking the sixth box a few months ago. I am not bothered with the rheumatism now—the medicine has cured me. I can most certainly recommend Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People."

These pills are not only good for rheumatism, but are valuable for any disease that arises from impoverished, or bad blood. They do not act on the bowels.

WHAT "BOB TAYLOR," . . . GOV. OF TENN., SAYS:

Marble City Drug Mfg. Co., Knoxville, Tenn.

Gentlemen:—In reply to your letter of recent date I will say that you are correctly informed; I did receive great benefits from "Dr. Frank's Cough Cure." It stopped the most severe cough I have had for years, and cured a cold. I consider it the best remedy for coughs and colds I have ever used.

Yours truly, ROBERT L. TAYLOR.

TEXAS LADIES

Don't Lie.

Mrs. W. H. Harris.

Quitman, Tex., writes: After 12 years' suffering from Dyspepsia and Sick Headache I was cured by Dr. M. V. Simmons Liver Medicine. It cured my husband of Constipation, our son of Nervousness, and our son of Catarrh of the Bowels. It cured Mrs. Newman of Paludal Intermittent, and cured Mrs. [illegible] safely through Change of Life. It promptly regulates the Liver, Stomach and Bowels, and leaves no bad effects. Both "Black Draught and Dandelion Liver Regulator" did not leave my system in such good condition. I found relief in the First Package, and it only requires a few days to try for a dose, and I had rather pay $1.00 per Package for it than use "Delirium's" or "Black Draught" as a free gift.

Bad Taste in the Mouth.

Digestion is the great [illegible] by which nature repairs the waste [illegible] of the body, which, when the [illegible] is in health is performed [illegible] and regularity, and [illegible] to any disagreeable sensations.

Indigestion includes [illegible] deviation from the ordinary [illegible] health and in the dull [illegible] of [illegible] of food sometimes which are necessary to the conversion of food into blood. The best corrective for these complaints is Dr. Simmons Liver Medicine a few doses of which will remove the offensive taste.

A. C. Perkins

Randolph, Tex., writes: I will always speak of Dr. M. V. Simmons Liver Medicine as the best of Chronic Constipation and Torpidity of Liver after suffering for years and both physicians and [illegible] failed. I took [illegible] months' [illegible] Black Draught" as the directions say, I took it and it had but little effect on me, and I don't think it did much strength.

Backaches Common to Mothers.

The busy mother sometimes feels an inability to perform her accustomed duties. She feels listless, weary and depressed. Her back, oh, how it aches! When she sits down she feels as though she must go right up, and when she stands, that she must sit down. She wrinkle in the cuticle of her nervous system has been overtaxed, it has become exhausted and there is a breaking down. What is needed in cases of this kind is Simmons Square Liver. What it does: Regulates the action of the liver, creates healthy functional activity and gives good vitality to the nervous system.

One of the First Symptoms of Failing Health in a Woman is NERVOUSNESS

Did you ever think that there is always a cause for this malady? In women Nervousness is generally the forerunner of some form of female disease, such as Whites, Painful, Profuse or Irregular Menses, either of which will produce Nervousness in all of its distressing intensity. If you use

Gerstle's Female Panacea

TRADE (G.F.P.) MARK.

you will very soon be cured of Nervousness and all other female troubles as well. If costive, move the bowels with mild doses of St. Joseph's Liver Regulator.

I HAVE SUFFERED FOR YEARS

With painful menses, attended with sour stomach, rushing of blood to the head, and occasional whites. I also have severe nervous spells and heart palpitation so bad I cannot rest. I have used various female remedies for a long time, but found no relief until about two months ago, when I commenced using your Gerstle's Female Panacea and ST. JOSEPH'S LIVER REGULATOR, and they are doing me more good than all others. I shall continue their use.

A $2,000 Word

This paper announces, in connection with The Atlanta Weekly Constitution, a new offer in which everyone may have a chance to supply the missing word in this sentence:

"AT FIRST IT WAS CONSIDERED BY THE '_____' AS A GOOD OMEN"

The sentence is taken from a well-known publication. The word is a familiar one, and it may readily suggest itself.

Contest Began Jan. 1--Ends March 1, '98

TO ENTER THIS CONTEST YOU MUST SUBSCRIBE FOR

THE ATLANTA WEEKLY CONSTITUTION

IN CONNECTION WITH

THE BANNER,

AT THE EXTREMELY LOW PRICE OF $1.50

In connection with this Clubbing Rate, we will, if you send your guess with the subscription price, forward all 'or you and thus

GIVE YOU A CHANCE AT THE MISSING WORD FUND

At the end of period covered by this contest The Constitution will pay out to the successful party or parties the full prize amount that has accrued in the contest. The plan is simple and these contests have become so popular and have been conducted with such absolute fairness to all that they have been widely copied after, but none have become equal to The Constitution's great original series.

IN ONE YEAR THE CONSTITUTION HAS PAID OUT

NEARLY $6,000 IN CASH

in these missing word contests. It sets aside 10 per cent of the subscription fund received from subscribers guessing at the missing word, and this fund is given to the successful guesser or guessers in the contest. The fund is distributed with absolute fairness, and the fact that The Weekly Constitution has MORE THAN 150,000 subscribers and that it puts aside 10 per cent from all guessers' subscriptions for this distribution fund shows that the amount to be divided at each interval is large enough to be worth striving for. It is not a catch-penny or a deceitful proposition, but the plan is open and simple and IS ADMITTED to the mails by the Post Office Department as a meritorious contest.

☞ The book from which the sentence is taken is deposited in a safety vault under seal, and will be opened at the close of the contest before a competent committee, which makes the award after an examination of the subscription books.

In one of these contests there was only one successful guesser who received more than $2,000, and in addition to this in one year $8,000 has been distributed among successful guessers.

Remember that, whether the missing word is supplied or not, it costs nothing to guess, and even though not successful, the guesser gets

THE GREATEST OF ALL WEEKLY NEWSPAPERS FOR ONE YEAR

Keep that in view and send your guess with your clubbing subscription for your home paper and The Weekly Constitution.

Should you already be a subscriber to your home paper, remit $1 to this paper for The Weekly Constitution for one year, and it will be forwarded to The Constitution with your guess.

The Constitution guarantees that the amount of the award will not be less than $500 in cash, and it may be as much as $2,000.

THE WEEKLY CONSTITUTION IS THE GREATEST WEEKLY NEWSPAPER IN THE WORLD. It is a TWELVE PAGE, SEVEN COLUMNS TO-THE-PAGE NEWSPAPER, containing EIGHTY-FOUR COLUMNS every week. It has no equal as a Weekly Newspaper in America; its news reports cover the world, and its correspondents and agents are to be found in a most every hallwicks of the Southern and Western States.

AS A MAGAZINE it prints more matter than is ordinarily found in any magazine in the country.
AS AN EDUCATOR its contributions in agriculture, stockraising, etc., make it a liberal education.
ITS SPECIAL FEATURES commend it especially to every farm home in America.
ITS FARM AND FARMERS' DEPARTMENT, its Woman's Department and its Children's Department are all under able direction, and the specialties conducted by those to whom these departments are confided. The Constitution is DEMOCRATIC IN POLITICS, and it is a hearty advocate of the principles enunciated in the National Platform of the Party.

THE FOLLOWING ARE THE CONDITIONS OF THE CONTEST

Ten Per Cent of the Guessers' Subscriptions goes to the fund to be divided—in other words if this Subscription Fund amounts to $2,000 for this period, then the fund to go to the successful guesser would be $2,000.

THE CONSTITUTION PUTS 10 PER CENT of the amount it receives (aside from subscriptions at Missing Word Contest rates) into a fund to be distributed among those who name correctly the missing word. If only one contestant gets the right word, he or she will be given the entire fund. If more than one supplies the missing word, the same will be proportionately divided among the successful guessers.

THE CONDITION PRECEDENT FOR SENDING A GUESS at the Missing Word is that each and every guess must be accompanied by a new subscription to The Weekly Constitution. If sent through the paper publishing this advertisement, in acceptance of our club rate offer, the guesses at the missing word will be forwarded. The guesses must be sent with the subscription. Should one person send the right name as the successful guesser, and a subscription for this paper for each guess, he or she will be entitled to a share of the fund for each correct guesser. There will be no capital prize—everyone will get a first prize. Persons may guess as many times as they send subscriptions.

IN MAKING YOUR ANSWER you need not write the sentence out in full—just say the Missing Word for the above portion of it (the) designating Guess No. 1.

Hundreds of thousands of Sufferers cured without a single letter by "FIVE DROPS."

Though so universally used and tested that you ever hear anyone speak ill of this great remedy. No you never did and never will. If taken as directed and in the proper quantity 5 Drops cannot fail to cure any of the diseases for which it is recommended. In fact it has already done to relieve the suffering in hundreds of thousands of cases, as the following letters of grateful praise

Mr. J. F. Lineberger, widely known for many years as the financial representative of the Republican and Free Silver Forces in the United States, has kindly furnished the following letter for publication.

Dear Sirs: I am anxious for the sake of the suffering and afflicted to give my personal endorsement of your wonderful remedy, "5 Drops." While I was in Washington and was suddenly attacked with an aggravated case of inflammatory rheumatism so severe and painful that I was confined to my bed. I was partially paralyzed and I was only able to dress with assistance. I secured a bottle of "5 Drops" and took a dose that night. [illegible] as I could. The next morning I was surprised to find myself [illegible] and before the second morning cured. My [illegible] and all pain and soreness had disappeared. The [illegible] and completely vanishable. I have known for [illegible] great value and have recommended it to my friends who have been afflicted with Neuralgia, Catarrh and kindred diseases. Wishing you every success and trusting that these simple lines may induce others to give this remedy a trial. Sincerely yours, Bureau of Printing and Engraving, Treasury Department, Washington, D. C.

CURES THE INCURABLE.

Dear Sirs: I would like to thank you for your great remedy, 5 DROPS. You know what it has done for me. That terrible disease, Catarrh, which I had contracted in every part of my body, and had catarrh of the head for seven years. I was so deaf that I could not hear a watch tick, and could not move without pain. I was completely crippled with rheumatism for seven years, and our family physician gave me up to die. Rheumatism and Catarrh were incurable and I believed him. But now after using 5 DROPS for two months, I can truly say I have not felt so well for seven years. I have taken more than is claimed for it. At this time my catarrh is entirely gone, and I have not had any Rheumatic pains, and the heart trouble is entirely relieved. My appetite is splendid, and my eyesight is much better. I have gained more than twenty pounds in flesh. It is a full day's work. It is the best medicine ever known. I have given it to my children for [illegible] and it has the same effect on the child as with myself. It saves the lives of the child and causes a sweet, refreshing sleep. I feel that I owe my life to 5 DROPS. Yours respectfully,

Jan. 20, 1896.

We received the following letter from Mr. [illegible] and have been for many years an invalid, and we know the statements made in the letter to be true. Editors.

MR. J. WILSON

Dear Sirs:—Your letter of recent date at hand the testimonials in reference. The company, who manufactures and sells 5 Drops, published my testimonial. I gave it to them and every word of it is true. I would be glad to have you use my name as reference. The company did not ask me for the letter. I gave it to them of my own accord, for I felt that 5 Drops would do as much for others as it did for me. I have received many letters like yours, and it is impossible for me to answer them all. I have written to some of your neighbors what I have written to all. I have been personally acquainted with Dr. W. Kellems, and brother, and know them to be reliable men. I take pleasure in endorsing this great remedy. He says he can cure [illegible]

THE
AMERICAN MONTHLY REVIEW OF REVIEWS

It is impossible to promise particular features that will appear in the "AMERICAN MONTHLY" during the coming year, for it is, as the Bookman says, "a great monthly newspaper." As such, it points for its readers an illustrated account of the notable things which make the history of the month, of the political, economic, and literary [illegible] which are of value to intelligent men and women. The Editor's "Progress of the World" tells succinctly an illustrated story of the month. The "Leading Articles" give the best thought and information of the current magazines in five continents; the contributed articles furnish the character sketches of the man of the month, and give timely discussions by authorities on any question of immediate serious import.

"We know of no review published in this country or in Europe which combines as successfully as the American Monthly the alertness, timeliness, and energy of journalism with the sound principles, carefully digested information, knowledge, and well-chosen English of true purely literary periodicals."—The Outlook.

The result of this comprehensive effort to edit in one monthly volume the information needed by intelligent people of "live" instincts is best gauged by the opinions which the readers of the AMERICAN MONTHLY have seen fit to express. These are thinking business men, clergymen, editors, lawyers, professional engineers, the wide-awake women of America. They write that the AMERICAN MONTHLY "is indispensable"; "is simply invaluable"; "is a generous library in itself"; is "a historical cyclopedia of the world"; "the best means of aid for a busy man"; "the best periodical of the kind we have ever had"; "a triumph of editorial genius"; "the world under a field-glass," etc., etc.

RAILROAD IMPROVEMENTS CLANTON

The increase of business at [illegible] on for some considerable time [illegible] as demonstrated the fact that [illegible] extensions [illegible] as high as [illegible] years. By the [illegible] management of Dr. [illegible] Agent [illegible] figgins, [illegible] generally [illegible] ness has been [illegible] with very [illegible] te public, but it has taken place work [illegible]

The L. & N. Railroad is always live to the needs of its patrons and once assured there is anything [illegible] cking on its behalf, goes to work remedy it, regardless of expense. he work now in hand would [illegible] en commenced earlier, but it seemed inadvisable to intertere with e old arrangements during the [illegible] the Fall and Winter business.

On Monday Train Master J. [illegible] heeler, Chief Train Dispatcher A. Morrison, and Road Master [illegible] im Callaway came down from [illegible] rmingham, and after carefully [illegible] g over the ground decided to [illegible] the two present side tracks [illegible] out 1700 feet to the south, which [illegible] ill give accomodation for 200 cars [illegible] aving the main tracks clear. [illegible] w track, commencing about [illegible] rds south of the depot, will [illegible] d, coming up back of the depot [illegible] the convenience of the Clanton [illegible] siness. This will get away [illegible] rs which, in front of the depot, [illegible] ve always been such a nuisance [illegible] passengers.

Mr. W. D. Sampey's warehouse will be moved back from its present position to above the new track and the freight platform will be added about 100 feet to the south. [illegible] ording ample facility to conveniently handle all the business.

About 1500 feet and a construction train are now employed on the work. The dirt is being taken from the cutting, which will give a clear view through, and do away with the old curve. The cost of the work is estimated at $7,000.

In Memory of Mr M J Askew

He departed this life Feb. [illegible] 98. He was born in the year 1845, in the state of Georgia. [illegible] moved to Alabama when a [illegible] all boy, and lived at Wetumpka [illegible] ill 1864, when he moved back to [illegible] itman Co., Ga. He joined the [illegible] y in 63, and remained till the [illegible] se of the war, when he came [illegible] l, and joined the M. E. church, [illegible] th, and remained a faithful [illegible] ber to his death. He was [illegible] ife and eight children and a host of [illegible] nd children, and a large number [illegible] oree sisters and brothers and a [illegible] ost of friends. He was a good [illegible] citizen, a loving father and kind [illegible] sd husband. He was a sufferer for [illegible] years, but did what he could to [illegible] te those around him happy. His [illegible] suffering is now over. No man ever made more friends than [illegible] J. Askew. His son preceded [illegible] only a few weeks to that heavenly [illegible] d. He cannot come back to us, [illegible] heart-broken family and friends [illegible] we can all go to him. Let us bow to the will of the Lord, and [illegible] let us live true and devoted lives so that we can join our father and brother in Heaven.

D. R. STOKES.

A Clever Trick.

[illegible] certainly looks like it, but there is really no trick about it. Anyone can try it who has Lame Back or Weak Kidneys, Malaria or nervous troubles. We mean he can cure himself right away by taking Electric Bitters. This medicine tones the whole system, acts as a strengthener to the Liver and Kidneys, is a blood purifier and nerve tonic. It cures Consumption, Headache, Fainting spells, Sleeplessness and Melancholy. It is purely vegetable, acts mildly but surely, and restores the system to its natural vigor. Try Electric Bitters and be convinced that they are a miracle worker. Every bottle guaranteed. Only 50 cents a bottle at J. S. Johnson's Drug Store.

REPUBLICAN MEETINGS.

A meeting of the Republican party of Chilton county was held at the New Convert church last Saturday. About one hundred and fifty were present. Resolutions were passed endorsing Hon. W. F. Aldrich and promising him their hearty support in the future. Also, resolutions were passed pledging the aid of the party to the Populist candidates in the county campaign.

* * *

The following is taken from the columns of the Age-Herald. Our information is four white men and about twenty negroes were present.

At the conventon of the Chilton county republicans, held at this place today, delegates were elected to the state and district conventions, and H. A. Wilson was re-elected chairman of the county executive committee.

Resolutions were adopted instructing the delegates to vote as a unit against fusion with the populists in the coming election.

The delegates were further instrucied to vote against any and all candidates who may offer for any office who favor a co-operation or fusion with or between the republican or populist parties or any other free silver element. They are also instructed not to vote for candidates for any position until all such candidates have first announced publicly that they are opposed to such alliances as hereinbefore stated, and that they will exert their efforts to prevent such alliances.

For a failure to comply with the instructions in every particular delegates will be debarred from participating in the republican counsels and conventions of this county.

A resolution was also adopted condemning the administration for appointing populists to office in the Fourth congressional district.

In reference to W. F. Aldrich, the present representative in congress, the following resolution was unanimously adopted:

"Whereas, W. F. Aldrsch, who misrepresents the Fourth congressional district in congress, is the populist party's nominee and is not a republican by the voice of the republicans of Chilton county; therefore, be it Resolved, that the delegates elected by this convention to the district convention are hereby instructed to exert every effort in their power to prevent W. F. Aldrich or any other populist from being indorsed in any manner by a republican convention."

Resolutions were also adopted commending President McKinley for his stand in the Cuban situation.

LA GRIPPE

Mistak n for Consumption—Given Up to Die.

To some people the mention of la grippe calls forth a smile. They are the people who have never had it. Any one who has ever had even the slightest touch of la grippe knows well the complete misery for the time being, but unless properly treated its sequella follow it month after month until the patient despairs of ever getting well again. Peruna is the remedy for all such cases. Mrs. Lou Davis, Fayetteville, Tenn., writes as follows: "I was afflicted with a disease commonly known as la grippe; the doctors said I had consumption. I had a dreadful cough and could not sleep at night. I was advised by a friend to try Peruna. I got one bottle, and the second night my cough stopped. I took ten bottles, and I will say that I believe I would be a dead woman now if it had not been for Peruna. I recommend Peruna to all those who suffer with la grippe."

Died on the 18th of February, Mr. Leroy Campbell, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ira Campbell, after a very brief illness, of pneumonia. He died almost suddenly of heart failure and congestion of the lungs. He was a young man well known and loved throughout the State. He was formerly of this county, but died in Sumter county, Ala. His honesty and integrity was fast bringing him to the front as a railroad man. He leaves a wife and two children, father and mother, brother and two sisters, and a host of relatives and friends to mourn his loss.

We tender our sympathies to the relatives and friends, and may the blessings of the great and eternal good that does all things well, be with us all until we meet on the evergreen shore. J. B. N.

This remedy is intended especially for coughs, colds, croup, whooping cough and influenza. It has become famous for its cures of these diseases over a large part of the civilized world. The most flattering testimonials have been received, giving accounts of its good works; of the aggravating and persistent coughs it has cured; of severe colds that have yielded promptly to its soothing effects, and of the dangerous attacks of croup it has cured, often saving the life of the child. The extensive use of it for whooping cough has shown that it robs that disease of all dangerous consequences. Sold by J. S. Johnson, jr.

Pratt City, Ala., Feby. 26 1898

Editor BANNER: Dear Sir. I am a subscriber to the Banner, and always enjoy reading its newsy columns. I was only a few moments ago, reading of the death of Mr. Leroy Campbell and Jules Williams, two devoted Christians, who had spent a life in service for God and now they have gone to reap the reward for them in God's mansion above. I trust that the parents, brothers, sisters, relatives, friends and readers will profit by the death of those dear ones who, have passed from this earth in peace with God. Remember we all, in the near future, for life is short and death is sure, must give account of the deeds done in the body, before the judgment bar of God. Jesus says my yoke is easy and my burden is light, and invite all to take upon them this yoke. (Matthew 11 chap.) All things are easy for Christ's sake. God in his mercy and wisdom has taken these loved ones to Heaven, and spared you that your heart might be turned to Heaven where your treasure is. Your treasure is in Heaven, even Jesus Will you look to Him and be saved.

I have been afflicted with rheumatism for fourteen years and nothing seemed to give any relief. I was able to be around all the time, but constantly suffering. I had tried everything I could hear of and at last was told to try Chamberlain's Pain Balm, which I did, and was immediately relieved and in a short time cured. I am happy to say that it has not since returned.—Josh. Edgar, Germantown, Cal. For sale by J. S. Johnson, jr.

Turn-Round Topics.

A cold snap, but no serious damage done.

H. Kendrick is at present some better, while Mr. Norris stays about the same. Mrs. Goss is also better, and E. L. Jones was taken with a high fever Friday and is now better.

Mrs. F. M. Connell jr. after a short stay with home-folks here returned home Thursday to Cross Roads.

Uncle Joel Gulledge, of Verbena, was again a pleasant visitor to H. Kendrick Friday.

J. W. Pattillo went to Mardi Gras, stayed three days and reports a good old time.

W. W. Wadsworth, of Wadsworth, was a visitor to H. Kendrick Friday.

Several of our young men attended church ac Friendship Sunday.

After an extended visit to relatives here Miss Emma Mims, formerly of Shelby, left Friday morning for Prattville, her future home, accompanied by her father who came after her. Miss Emma will be greatly missed in this community and am sorry to say she left some sad hearts behind.

Rumor says there was a brilliant wedding close by last week, and as I know not the particulars, can only say I wish this couple all possible joy and happiness.

Some of us expect to attend the school concert at Lightwood Wednesday night.

What has become of "Mamma's Pet?" I long to see some more pieces from her.

With these remarks, will say au revoir.

CLANTON, - ALABAMA

The 79,000,000 pounds of tea imported into the United States in ten months had an average value of only 13 cents per pound. What a lot of refuse stuff there must be considering the average price farmers are obliged to pay over the retail counter, exclaims the New England Homestead.

Ex-Governor Morrill of Kansas once said, that his ambition was to create in Kansas the largest orchard in the world and leave it as a monument to his memory. That hope is about to be realized, as he has turned his farm over to a man with the stipulation that 65,000 fruit trees, mostly apples, are to be planted there.

For the benefit of a conductor who had suffered an accident which endangered his earning ability, the Consolidated Electric Railway Company of Santa Barbara, Cal., gave the gross receipts of its line for one day while he was in the hospital. The case appealed to his fellow workmen and the public, as he had been a faithful employe and was the sole support of his mother. The other employes of the company on the same day gave their day's earnings to him, and patrons of the road and conductors ring up sums ranging as high as $20. The car receipts amounted to $327.05.

Lord Charles Beresford has been making some plain speeches in London. He declared the other day that the boys who robbed orchards and were generally mischievous and bad made the best soldiers when they grew up, and later, at a banquet, he said that money was everything in England. It would buy access to what is known as the very best society; and let anybody go to England with enough money, no matter whether it had been gained honorably or disgracefully, there was no door which he could not hope to enter. He proclaimed the ruin of the country unless the dominion of money was overthrown.

The retirement of the Rev. Dr. John Hall from the active pastorate of the Fifth Avenue Presbyterian church has excited widespread interest among members of all the religious denominations, says the New York Sun. "Dr. Hall has long been regarded as one of the conspicuously representative men of the metropolis. The qualities that have raised him to his present eminence are well known. Perhaps the most distinguished one is his manliness. Although he could not be described as a brilliant preacher, there was always a strong personality behind his spoken word, and this made him effective at all times. Although a Presbyterian, a most democratic of church bodies, Dr. Hall has taken precedence over his brethren of the Presbyterian ministry. There was a real truth in the humorous description of him as the Presbyterian Bishop of New York."

Says the New York Post: "Medical circles are inclined to pooh-pooh the reported discovery of the sex secret by Dr. Samuel Schenk, professor in the Vienna university. Nevertheless it is exciting wide interest, in view of Dr. Schenk's position as an embryologist and the importance attached to the announcement even by the Austrian government. The professor, so far, has only stated that for many years his experiments were limited to the lower animals, that by a system of nourishing the female he produced a disposition to bring into the world male young only, but that recently, by advising wives what food to take, boys or girls had been born just as desired. This disposition, however, when established cannot be changed. The offspring of the same parents henceforth will be all males. Professor Ohlshausen, the well known gynecologist, thinks the whole thing impossible, also Professor V. holds to the same opinion.

Limbless From Birth.

A strange sight was witnessed recently in the Southwestern police court. An elderly man, armless and legless, was carried into the witness box by a policeman, who held him as though he were a baby, while he made an application to the magistrate for an extension of time under an ejectment order from the court. Mr. Marsham asked him how he came to be so afflicted, to which the helpless man replied that he was born so. He got his living by making beaded ornaments with his mouth. His Worship allowed him a few additional days to find fresh accommodations.—London Daily Mail.

Ex-Consul General Insigli is to keep books during his term in prison. That is hard labor, for those who find it difficult.

NEWS OF OUR COMMONWEALTH.

IMPORTANT REPORT FROM THE STATE TREASURER SHOWING A CASH BALANCE OF NEARLY $500,000.

Birmingham's Mardi Gras a Success—Negroes in Conference Urged to Ambition—The Governor Wants War—A Town to Be Resurrected—Cattle Shipments—Brief Summary.

REPORT FROM STATE TREASURER

Shows a Cash Balance of Nearly Half a Million Dollars.

The state treasurer made a very important report to the governor Thursday, showing the condition of the treasury at the close of business on February 23 of each year from 1894 to 1898.

The report shows on the 23d of February, 1894, a cash balance on hand in the treasury of $189,539.37; for 1895, balance of $154,618.87; for 1896, balance of $242,115.71; for 1897, balance of $217,459.95; for 1898, balance of $424,130.50.

Governor Johnston, when interviewed as to the cause of the increase, would say but little, but mentioned that the sum of $60,000 had been saved in the management of the convict department alone, and in other branches of the state department at least $50,000 had been saved in the state's expenses. The prompt collection of the taxes of the state, the tax commissioners and the state public examiners of accounts all had their influence in adding to the grand total of increase in the state's revenue.

WILL TRY IT AGAIN.

Birmingham Decides to Have Another Carnival in 1899.

Birmingham will have another carnival in 1899. It was so decided at the annual meeting of the Birmingham carnival society. The reports of the society showed its affairs to be in excellent condition. The big deficit of last year has been wiped out and the society now owes the nominal sum of $288. The carnival this year was a big success both in point of attendance and financially. The old officers were re-elected with Emil Lesser as president, and Louis Braun as secretary.

The Governor Wants War.

Answering the queries of a non-resident newspaper, Governor Johnston has wired this pithy statement over his signature:

"I am unable to express an opinion as to the cause of the disaster of the Maine. The report of the board will doubtless settle that question, and our government should depart from its timid policy and promptly take steps to maintain the dignity of the country. Some things are more to be dreaded than war, and one is a policy that brings contempt upon the flag of the country. There should be prompt recognition of Cuban belligerency without regard to the Maine disaster. Every day brings me letters from confederate officers tendering their services in case of war.

A Town to Be Resurrected.

The recent deal, whereby the property of the old Ensley Land company was transferred to the new Ensley company will result in the resurrection of the town of Ensley, which has lain dormant since the days of the boom. The surveyors have already begun work and in a short time 230 acres situated just east of Ensley City will be laid off into plats. Extensive manufacturing plants are to be erected, among the first a $25,000 brick works, employing 100 hands. The founders of the new town are under contract to build three other big industrial plants. These industries will consist of a big iron foundry, a planing mill and a complete machine shop.

Arranging for the Sunday Schools.

Arrangements are being made for the meeting in Birmingham on May 13 of the State Sabbath school association. The purpose of the organization is to promote the observance of the Sabbath day. The movement was commended by the Alabama Methodist Conference at its last meeting.

The Governor's Clemency.

Governor Johnston announced the following pardons Friday:

Alf McIntosh, Ed and Lee Ramsey, L. J. and H. Bonner and I. George, all of Wilcox county, convicted last fall and sentenced for one year for receiving stolen property.

Gerald Crenshaw, of Perry county, convicted last fall of having given liquor to a minor and sentenced for one year.

Ed Simpson, of Bullock county, sentenced three years ago for four and one-half years for grand larceny.

George Willingham, of Coosa, convicted of burglary five years ago and sentenced for six years.

Will Adams, of Jefferson, convicted of larceny.

McClure's Opinion of Alabama.

In response to an invitation from the chamber of commerce of Huntsville to Hon. A. K. McClure, the distinguished editor of the Philadelphia Times, he writes the secretary: "I expect to be south some time after the middle of March and will certainly visit your city, and will be glad to deliver a brief address relating solely to the material interests of your state. There never was such an opportunity for any commonwealth to advance her interests as is now presented for Alabama. It is the most inviting state for capital there is in the union."

URGE THEM TO AMBITION.

Colored Leaders Give Some Facts and Advice to Negroes.

At the seventh annual negro conference held in the Normal school pavilion at Tuskegee, about 2,000 colored farmers, representing nearly every Southern state, were present.

Booker T. Washington presided.

To encourage gardening, a free package of seeds was given to everyone present.

The result of the conference was the unanimous adoption of the following resolutions:

"Wherever our people have been reached by outside influence we believe there is constant growth in acquiring education, building schoolhouses, extending the school term, developing Christian character, improving and purifying the ministry, securing land, diversifying crops, getting out of debt, and living more economically.

"Since 83 per cent of our people in the Gulf states live by agriculture, we strongly urge that along with other forms of education, special stress be laid upon training in agriculture. We earnestly urge upon all to buy land, if only in small tracts, while it can be secured at a low price.

"We believe the annual holding of county fairs would prove most helpful.

"We strongly beseech our people not to be satisfied with their present condition, but to reach forward to something higher and better."

Cattle Shipments.

Alabama cattle are still going to the feeding grounds in Indian Territory, where they are prepared for slaughter at the packing houses. The Kansas City, Memphis and Birmingham railroad shipped out seventeen cars Friday. The quarantine limit was extended to March 1, after which time the business, except for points above the quarantine line, will cease. It is believed that shipments for the year will reach 40,000 head.

A Commendable Undertaking.

A chapter of the Daughters of the Confederacy is being organized in Athens by a number of the ladies of the town. They have undertaken the work to secure money with which to erect a monument to the unknown Confederate dead who are buried at that place.

Lauderdale Will Organize.

Judge J. J. Mitchell, member of the executive committee of the State Agricultural Society, has issued a call to the farmers of Lauderdale county, requesting them to meet at Florence, March 7, for the purpose of forming a county agricultural society.

New Handle Factory.

The Gurley Handle company has been organized to manufacture all kinds of hickory handles.

Thread Mill at Athens.

A movement is under way to build a $25,000 thread mill at Athens. Only local capitalists are interested.

Will Build a Church.

The Christian congregation at Gurley have purchased a lot and will build a church at once.

BRIEFLY MENTIONED.

The annual encampment of the G. A. R. will meet in Decatur, March 4.

Frank Washburn, who killed a negro last year at Selma, has been sentenced to twenty years imprisonment.

Hon. Hannis Taylor, ex-minister to Spain, has announced himself a candidate for congress from the First district.

Pleas Ferrell, colored, was shot and instantly killed near Montgomery last week. Nat Waller has been arrested for the crime.

Bill Scott, the negro who murdered three of the Singley family near Greensboro some time ago, was hanged for the crime Friday.

J. M. Brooks & Co., of Evergreen, made a general assignment Friday to F. L. Hickox. The liabilities are estimated at $6,000, and assets $5,000.

The state executive committee of the republican party will meet in Birmingham between the middle and last of next month for the purpose of calling a state convention.

A white man supposed to be P. M. Bolver, of Alabama City, was run over and killed by a switch engine on the Alabama Great Southern road between Attalla and Gadsden.

Assistant Examiner Foster's report on the books and accounts of A. J. Esslinger, ex-tax collector of Madison county, shows that he failed to include the raises of tax valuations during the year 1893, and is consequently due the state $559.36.

Ed Spencer, a negro, died at Florence from the effects of a lot of whisky drunk a few nights ago. Spencer, in company with a lot of other negroes, drank whisky on a bet as to which could stand the larger number of drinks, and gulped down twenty-six drinks before he left the bar.

DEATH IN THE FLAMES.

Fearful Conflagration in Charleston, S. C., in Which Nine Lives Are Lost.

Nine lives were lost in a fearful fire which raged for a short while in Charleston, S. C., Saturday morning. At 2:30 o'clock a policeman on duty noticed big sparks flying from a tenement house on Church street. The officer found that a blaze was issuing from one of the windows on the first floor. Somebody yelled that a family of women were sleeping on the third floor. The police rushed up stairs and when they reached the top story the life saving work was stopped by the flames. Screams from dying women were heard and officers rushed in and pulled out three charred bodies.

The quick work of the fire department checked the fire and it was soon under control, but not until the lives on the third story had been lost. The dead are:

Mrs. Rebecca Knickemyer, Albert O'Neal, Caswell O'Neal, Josephine Knickemyer, 17 years of age; Katie Knickemyer, 16 years of age; Leonora Knickemyer, 9 years of age; Frances Knickemyer, 7 years of age; a baby of Mrs. Knickemyer, one month old; Lillie Knickemyer, 3 years old.

NO SUBMARINE MINES EXIST

In Havana Harbor, Says Senor Du Bose, the Spanish Representative.

In view of the widely-published report that the harbor at Havana contains a system of submarine mines, a statement around which has centered the chief public interest in connection with the disaster of the battleship Maine, Senor du Bose, Spanish charge d'affaires at Washington, has made to the Associated Press the following statement, which, coming from such authority, may be considered as an official denial:

"I wish to state on my own official knowledge that no mine exists inside or outside of Havana harbor; nor is there any submarine defense of any kind. The report is so absolutely false and ridiculous that it could only have originated in the minds of those persons anxious to incite the evil passions of both nations for their own miserable ends. I consider the very suggestion of such a thing an insult to Spain."

READY TO LAND TROOPS.

The Plant System Has Arranged to Transport Arms and Men to Cuba.

A special from Tampa, Fla., says: Although the officials of the company have not said so publicly, nearly everybody here understands that the Plant system has completed arrangements for the transportation of troops and munitions of war to Havana on short notice. All of their ships have been placed in condition for emergencies. Should war be declared it is said that they have perfected plans to land a large body of troops in Havana within thirty-six hours after their arrival at this place. Troops can be transported from Washington and New York to this port in from twenty-four to thirty hours. The company has also made arrangements, it is understood, to land promptly men and arms at Key West and all strategic points on the coast of Florida and at Mobile.

SPANIARDS WANT WAR.

The Government Is Urged to Prepare to Strike the First Blow.

London—According to a special dispatch from Madrid, reports received there from the United States to the effect that public opinion in the latter country is becoming more excited, owing to the impression that the loss of the Maine was not due to an accident, are "resfirring popular feeling here (in Madrid), and the conviction increasing in ministerial circles that the worst must be expected."

Continuing, the special dispatch says: "The government has no choice if the United States adopts a threatening attitude, for the prospect of war is popular with all parties, and the more excitable newspapers are already urging the government to take measures to enable Spain to strike the first and decisive blow."

President of Costa Rica Looks for War.

A dispatch to the New York Herald from Panama says: Advices received from Costa Rica state that at a banquet given Sunday night President Iglesias, in a speech, said the situation between Costa Rica and Nicaragua was such now that war was inevitable.

SPANISH STATESMEN AMAZED

At the Very Idea of Consenting to Sell Cuba.

The Madrid correspondent of the London Standard says:

Spanish statesmen of every shade of opinion are simply amazed and indignant at the idea that Spain would ever consent to sell Cuba. The suggestion would expose the monarchy to an irresistible movement of popular feeling, shared by the army and navy.

From a financier's view point, it is equally impossible, because the price suggested would not half cover the Cuban debt, which is almost entirely held by Spaniards.

Tobacco Plant Burned.

The mammoth plant of the Louisville branch of the American Tobacco Company was destroyed by fire Friday, entailing a loss of $250,000, fully covered by insurance. Fourteen hundred men, women and children are thrown out of work.

Big Steamer Missing.

Up to Friday the overdue French liner La Champagne from Havre to New York had not been sighted, nor had anything been heard of her. She should have arrived last Sunday.

OUTSIDE MEANS WERE USED

In Blowing Up the Maine Will Be the Report of the Board.

SURE THAT A MINE DID THE WORK.

Officials Figuring on the Cost of a Brush With Spain—Demand For Indemnity Equal to a Declaration of War—Torpedo Theory Established.

A special from Key West says: From all the testimony taken before the court of inquiry investigating the disaster to the Maine, there is, in the opinion of members of the board, but one conclusion to be reached, and that is, that the Maine was destroyed by external means. This will practically be the tenor of the report sent to the navy department.

Sure a Mine Did the Work.

A copyrighted cablegram to the Evening World, from Sylvester Scovel at Havana, says: "It is now absolutely certain that the battleship Maine was blown up by outside agencies. Divers working forward Saturday found absolute proof that the forward magazine, which alone could have so damaged the ship, was surely unexploded.

"Many divers were sworn today in the investigation of the board. There is no longer any doubt of finding the bottom plates blown up, and which show four feet above water.

"It is now believed by experts that a big torpedo or mine, aided by 500 pounds of saluting powder in the reserve magazine next to the big magazine, might have produced the actual results, both as regards extent and direction found in the wreck.

"Collapsed powder casks, found about the magazine, have hexagonal marks in the thin copper where the external pressure forced the hexagons into contact with the copper."

Figuring on the Cost of War.

It is figured that a war with Spain will cost not to exceed $75,000,000, of which no inconsiderable portion would be a permanent investment in the way of arms, equipment and fortifications. It might be much less, for the chances are favorable of Spain surrendering at the first blow. The United States has lost $300,000,000 already from the Cuban revolution. The shrinkage of values on the New York stock exchange alone present a total larger than the bill to be footed for the coming war.

A new danger confronts the administration. Letters are pouring in upon congress at the rate of 15,000 a day, and the number is increasing at an unparalleled rate, demanding a settlement of the Cuban question. The president has been advised for months that the next house of representatives is surely lost to the republican party if his policy fails to satisfy the country in his matter of the Maine and Cuba. The strain of the great crisis is telling heavily upon three of the most important factors of the situation.

Equivalent to Declaration of War.

The demand for indemnity, it is agreed in the state and navy departments, is equivalent to a declaration of war. Spain is not expected to accede to any such demand. The proposition is counted upon to create disturbance in Madrid and Havana. It is likely the navy department will enforce the demand by placing its ships in Cuban waters. Everybody in the state or navy department is willing to accept the demand for indemnity as another form of declaring war, and will be prepared to back up the demand in much the same manner as if congress actually came out in belligerent attitude toward the government at Madrid. The amount of indemnity, it is expected, will be in the neighborhood of $10,000,000. This is the estimate in the state department on the liberal basis that the lives lost in the disaster are each represented by the sum of $5,000, an amount stipulated by the civil service of this country as the legal value of a human life.

Conclusively Established.

The story of the finding of a ten-inch unexploded copper cylinder in the wreck of the Maine has been found correct.

MORE TORPEDO BOATS WANTED.

Naval Officers Urge the Strengthening of the Naval Militia.

A delegation of officers of the Naval Reserve of several of the Eastern states, headed by Captain Miller, of New York Naval Militia, and Commander Anderson, of Maryland, appeared before the naval committee of the house Friday to urge favorable action upon the bill introduced by Representative Bull, of Rhode Island, to increase the strength of the naval militia. The bill provides for the construction of twenty torpedo boats of 150 tons each, at a cost not exceeding $2,500,000, for the use of the naval militia.

Relief for Wounded Sailors.

Representative Boutelle, of Maine, chairman of the house committee on naval affairs, has introduced a bill providing for the relief of the victims of the United States battleship Maine. It follows generally the lines of the Samoan disaster relief bill of 1890, and is the result of several days' conference in committee and embodies the views of the administration. The bill carries $167,000.

A decree has been issued at Madrid dissolving the Spanish cortes.

At Lynchburg, Tenn., the still of Jack Daniels was seized by government officials. The warehouse contains 3,500 barrels of whisky. The charges against Daniels are the illegal removal of whisky and the reuse of stamps. In taxes to the government this distillery pays about $100,000 annually. No arrests have been reported.

The Spanish cruiser Vizcaya, after spending a week in the port at New York on a friendly visit to the United States, got up anchor Friday afternoon and started to sea. Her destination is Havana.

Captain Wilhelmsen, of the Norwegian bark Hetman, which has arrived at quarantine at Pensacola from Para, Brazil, reports that while the vessel was at Para he sent six of his crew at one time to the hospital. They were all suffering with yellow fever, and two of them died in the hospital. The remaining six had just recuperated from an attack in Norway and were making a cruise with her father.

Ex-Candidate Jones, Limited.

Sam Jones has announced his retirement from the race for governor of Georgia, and declares he is in favor of Allen D. Candler. He says: "I never was a candidate up till last Saturday, and I have really enjoyed it, though I never ran for office in my life and never shall. Now I must take up my life's work again. After this you must address me and write of me as ex-Candidate Jones, limited."

Colonel J. C. Clark has resigned the presidency of the Mobile and Ohio railroad.

SHIPS ORDERED TO BE READY

M'KINLEY GIVING EARNEST ATTENTION.

Campos, Former Captain-General of Cuba, Predicts the Breaking Out of Hostilities Between Spain and the United States May Begin in April.

A special to the Age-Herald from Key West West Monday night says:

The fleet here, made up of the New York, Iowa, Marblehead, Montgomery, Nashville, Cushing and Ericson, as well as the three battleships, Indiana, Texas and Massachusetts, now at Dry Tortugas, at three o'clock this afternoon received orders to hold themselves in readiness to start for Havana at the tap of the drum.

The orders came from Long, in Washington, to Admiral Sicard, and are said to be based on information wired from Havana by the captain of the Bache, United States coast survey boat, which left Key West for Havana yesterday.

M'KINLEY'S ATTITUDE.

He Is Giving Careful and Earnest Consideration to the Situation.

A member of the cabinet, in speaking of the president's attitude on the question of a war with Spain, says:

"President McKinley is giving careful and earnest consideration to every phase of the Cuban situation as it appears, but he will not be jingoed into war or act in anticipation of events which may never occur.

"He fully realizes what war means, and will not go to this last direful extremity without the approval of his conscience and a firm conviction that such a course would be right in the sight of God and of man. But whenever the honor and integrity of the nation or its people become involved the president may be depended upon to do his whole duty and to do it promptly."

CAMPOS PREDICTS WAR.

Is of the Opinion That Hostilities Will Break Out in April.

A former captain-general of Cuba, presumably Marshal Martinez Campos, interviewed by a representative of Correspondencia Militar, at Madrid, is reported as saying:

"I never entertained a doubt that if the rebellion was not suppressed before 1898 war with the United States would become an accomplished fact. Unhappily, my prophecy will be fulfilled.

"I have the consolation of having done all in my power to avert it, and therefore I do not regret the blame which has been heaped upon me. All that is now possible is that we should unite to meet the danger that threatens the country."

Predicts Hostilities in April.

The Correspondencia Militar, organ of the Spanish army, says:

"The prevailing impression is that war between Spain and the United States will break out in April."

Spain Has No Sympathy in England.

The London Daily News, commenting editorially Tuesday morning on the relations between the United States and Spain, says:

"Spain can expect [illegible] general sympathy from England against the United States. Spain's cause in Cuba is [illegible] by the whole of Europe, [illegible] only and mass [illegible] reckless, mischievous and [illegible] to [illegible] the [illegible] with those who must now [illegible] without any and [illegible] sympathy on our part."

The Standard, in an editorial on the same subject today, highly praises President McKinley's statesmanlike moderation and recognizes that it would be only human nature that proof of the Maine having been blown from the outside should encounter [illegible] in America.

Sir Edward James Reed, the eminent naval expert, writes to the Times this morning expressing the opinion that the Maine could be refloated for little of her cost.

William M. Singerly's Dead.

William M. Singerly died suddenly at his home in Philadelphia Sunday afternoon from heart disease.

William Singerly was proprietor of the Record Publishing Company and president of the Chestnut Street National bank and the Chestnut Street Savings Fund and Trust Company, which recently collapsed. He was a man of affairs, and held during his long business career many positions of trust, political and otherwise.

Mr. Singerly was always an active democrat. In 1894 he was unanimously made the democratic candidate for governor of Pennsylvania, and entered with great energy into the canvass.

Kentucky Will Be Launched.

The battleship Kentucky will be launched at Newport News on March 24. Governor Bradley, of Kentucky, has issued a proclamation requesting the people of that state to show by their patriotic action on that occasion that they are not unmindful of the compliment bestowed on them and the state.

Murdered and Then Cremated.

Lewis Myers was murdered and his body cremated late Saturday night near Knoxville, Tenn.

FOR NATIONAL HONOR.

Gibson Introduces a Bill Appropriating $20,000,000 for Defense.

Representative Gibson of Tennessee introduced a bill Monday in the house appropriating $20,000,000 for the maintenance of national honor and defense.

The bill appropriates the money for the construction, purchase, repair and equipment of such and so many vessels of war, and for the construction and purchase and repair of such and so much material and stores of naval warfare, and for the enlistment and transportation, equipment and subsistence of such and so many sailors, officers and marines and other men as in the judgment of the secretary of the navy the public welfare may require.

PLENTY MONEY IN CASE OF WAR.

Senator Hanna and Other Financiers Will See to That.

The Evening World says Senator Hanna was in conference Saturday with a number of representatives of prominent financial institutions, and he was given to understand by them that the administration could depend on all the money support necessary to carry out any plan of action that might be determined upon. According to the World, a series of bond issues aggregating $500,000,000 was suggested as a possibility, and was acquiesced in by the assembled financiers.

LANDING WAR MATERIAL.

Twenty-Six Carloads of Ammunition for Atlantic Coast Points.

The Watertown arsenal at Boston is now engaged in loading 500,000 pounds of ordnance and other war material destined for points along the Atlantic coast. This material will be transported in twenty-six cars, which have been supplied to the arsenal on orders from Major Riley, by the Fitchburg railroad. The ammunition includes shot and shell for 8-inch, 19-inch and 12-inch rifles and 12-inch mortars.

Reasons for the Preparations for War.

In answer to the question as to what was the meaning of the movement of guns and munitions of war, Assistant Secretary of the Navy Roosevelt said Monday:

"It merely serves to show that the department does not believe there will be any trouble; but neither does it intend to be caught unprepared if there should be trouble."

Will Go Into Commission.

Orders have been received at the League Island navy yard at Philadelphia to put in commission at once the cruisers Columbia and Minneapolis and the double-turreted monitor Miantonomoh and the ram Katahdin.

Both cruisers have skeleton crews aboard, while the monitor has been lying at her dock for several years and the Katahdin since last winter.

A Division With Lee in Command.

A card in a local newspaper at Middlesboro, Ky., asking ex-Confederates to form a regiment to serve in case of war with Spain, had brought more than enough responses to fill the ranks from Southwest Virginia, East Tennessee and Kentucky. The originator of the idea now contemplates the formation of a division to be commanded by Fitzhugh Lee.

Six Lives Lost by Fire at Sea.

The steamer Legislator, bound from Liverpool to Cuba, was burned at sea. The fire broke out Feb. 13 and burned fiercely for three days, during which time six of the crew were burned to death. The rest of the crew and two passengers were rescued by the fruit steamer Flower Gate and brought to port at Boston, arriving Sunday.

Working Night and Day.

The greatest activity known since the late war is now witnessed at the Watervliet arsenal at Albany, N. Y., and the entire plant is working night and day. Six carloads of projectiles will be shipped to various forts during the present week. Orders have been received to ship all completed guns to the proving grounds at Sandy Hook.

Burned to Death.

Eugene Mills was burned to death at Cleveland, Tenn., Saturday. He was asleep in a boarding house when the building caught fire and he lost his life before he could be rescued.

Hay Trust in the Latest.

One of the largest trusts formed in years has been organized by Chicago men under the name of the American Hay company. The organization when completed will include more than a hundred of the largest buyers and shippers of hay in the states of Illinois, Indiana, Ohio and Michigan. The capital stock is $5,000,000.

Ten Million Men Available.

Acting Secretary of War Meiklejohn has transmitted to congress an abstract of the militia force of the United States. The aggregate is 111,353, and, including the Territories, 114,362. The grand aggregate of men available is 10,501,339.

Bounced the Father.

Father Weber, whose recent declaration at Rondout, N. Y., that in case of war between the United States and Spain it would become the duty of Roman Catholics to fight on the side of Spain has been officially requested to leave the diocese.

An explosion occurred in the Hall chemical laboratory at Kalamazoo, Mich., which wrecked the building, killing ten persons and wounding twelve others.

DUN'S REVIEW OF TRADE.

New Business for Dull Season is Unprecedented.

A CHECK IN THE ADVANCE OF WHEAT.

Industrial Production Continues Larger Than Ever—Remarkable Increase in Silk Manufacture—Demand for Iron Products is Heavy.

R. G. Dun & Co.'s weekly review of trade says in its issue of Saturday:

Foreign possibilities have affected speculation and caused hesitation in some large business operations, possibly accounting in part for a check in the rapid advance of wheat. But industrial production continues larger than ever, a few more works being added to the active list, with a decrease in the number of hands on strike and renewed evidence that the volume of business is larger than in February of any previous year. Nor is there any symptom of a senseless craze based on rising prices. The legitimate export and domestic demand presses closer to the capacity of works, and though there is no flighty advance in any line, in all narrowness of profit is a matter of complaint, new business for this dull season is unprecedented.

Wheat continued its progress upward until 1.08¾ was reached on Monday, but declined 8¾ later as if there were fears that Spain would some how stop British vessels from taking wheat across the water, but the price has advanced about 10 cents since Chicago speculators last took occasion to shake off weak followers and the opportunity for reaction was inviting. There was no abating of foreign demand. The spot price of cotton was not affected.

It is not the season for such improvement in textile manufacture, but the cotton branch has gained by the closing of the strike in one Fall River mill and by the addition of some works at the south.

The woolen manufactures meet many cancellanations, especially in goods sold early without definite price, but is doing more than ever at this season, though new business in the higher grades of worsteds and woolens is not particularly encouraging.

The silk manufacture shows a remarkable increase during the last six months, having imported raw material far in excess of consumption in any previous year and at a rate of 120 per cent. above the imports in the last consus year.

The iron manufacture has more demand for products. No finished products have changed in price, and all are strong in demand excepting bar, which a combination has failed to advance. Some large contracts are reported, especially in car and bridge building, ship and structural work, and the demand for sheets is heavy.

TRIED TO KILL GREECE'S KING.

Shot at the Ruler But Missed Him and Hit the Footman.

An unsuccessful attempt was made Saturday to assassinate King George of Greece. The king was returning from Phaglerum at 5 o'clock in the evening in a landau, accompanied by the Princess Maria, when two men, who were hidden in the ditch alongside the road, opened fire with guns upon the occupants of the carriage.

The first shot missed, but the second wounded a footman in the arm. The coachman whipped up his horses and the royal party dashed away at a gallop. The miscreants fired several more shots after them, none of which took effect, and the king and princess returned to the palace unhurt.

Meeting of Railway Employes.

On March 12, 13 and 14 a mass meeting of representatives of all the organized railroad employes south of the Ohio river will be held in Chattanooga. The national officers of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers, Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen, Order of Railway Conductors and Brotherhood of Railway Trainman have promised to be present and an attendance of several thousand members is expected. The object of the meeting is to bring about a more fraternal feeling among the southern trainmen and put them on a harmonious working basis.

OFFER TO THE INSURGENTS.

Virtually Confessing Failure of Autonomy Is Approved.

In the uncertainty of the relations of the United States, the importance of the recent action of the autonomist party in Cuba is overlooked. Its central committee has formally approved the plan, which is a confession of the failure of the present scheme of autonomy and an offer to the insurgents to concede everything except the withdrawal of the Spanish flag.

If ever negotiations are actually opened with the insurgents Govin's and the radical autonomists' proposition will be rejected.

Arkansans Have the War Fever.

Great activity prevails in military circles in Arkansas. Brigadier-General C. S. Schaer, of the state guard, is being overwhelmed with letters from all parts of the state containing offers to enlist and go to the front. New companies are being organized and the older companies are manifesting unusual interest. Brigadier-General Schaer said that he could mobilize 20,000 Arkansans in less than thirty days should their services be needed.

FIFTY-FIFTH CONGRESS.

The Senate—Tuesday.

As soon as the reading of the historic farewell address of Washington was concluded by Mr. Lodge, in the senate today Mr. Hawley called up the bill providing for the enlistment of two additional regiments of artillery for service in manning the heavy coast defense batteries which congress has provided during the past two years. The war department estimates that the 1,600 men, which the bill calls for, will be necessary to properly man the guns. The bill went over. Mr. Morgan, of Alabama, secured the adoption of the following resolution: "That the committee on naval affairs is instructed to inquire and report whether a man of war equal at least to any warship in the world, to be named the 'George Washington,' can be built, armed and commissioned within a period of twelve months by the use of the facilities of the ship yards, machine shops, mines and forests of the United States wherever the same are found, and that the committee has leave to report at any time by bill or otherwise." The senate then went into executive session.

The House.

Washington's birthday was celebrated in the house, after a motion of Mr. Bailey had been voted down, with a vast deal of political speech-making, and it was also signalized by the firing of the first gun in opposition to Hawaiian annexation. Mr. Johnson, an Indiana republican, delivered a speech that electrified the galleries in denunciation of the annexation policy of the administration. He spoke at length, and when he concluded the demonstration of approval was one of the greatest witnessed during this session of congress. The remainder of the day was consumed with political speeches.

The Senate—Wednesday.

While the senate had under consideration the diplomatic and consular appropriation bill today a sharp debate on the Cuban question was precipitated by Mr. Allen, of Nebraska, who offered as an amendment the resolution passed by the senate a year ago, recognizing the belligerent rights of the Cuban insurgents. The debate became general and occupied nearly four hours. The resolution provides for a committee of five senators who should go to Cuba and ascertain the precise situation on the island. Mr. Allen's amendment was finally ruled out of order, and the appeal from the ruling taken by Mr. Allen was laid on the table by a vote of 51 to 5. The senate then went into executive session, and soon after adjourned.

The House.

The sundry civil appropriation bill was again under discussion in the house today. The clause appropriating $75,000 to pay spies and informers for information in internal cases was stricken out by a vote of 69 to 63, and it was decided a victory for the democrats, inasmuch as it was a strict party vote, with the exception of Messrs. Lenney, Pearson and Mahoney, who voted with the democrats. Congressman Tate, of Georgia; Kitchen, of North Carolina, and Swanson, of Virginia, led the fight against the appropriation of the money with which to pay spies, and the republican side of the house being slim, they won.

The Senate—Thursday.

At the conclusion of the morning session, the vice-president laid before the senate the resolution of Mr. Allen which was laid over from yesterday. It provides for the appointment of five senators to make an inquiry into the condition of affairs in Cuba with a view to bringing the war to a peaceful end. Allen withdrew the motion.

Mr. Spooner made a constitutional argument in favor of seating Mr. Corbett. No vote was reached, however, and the contested case went over. At this point it developed that there was no quorum present and the senate adjourned.

The House.

The house devoted itself strictly to business today and disposed of several additional pages of the sundry civil appropriation bill. Mr. Sayers criticised the item in the bill placing only the unexpended epidemic funds of past years at the disposal of the quarantine service. He thought $200,000 additional should be appropriated, and moved to increase the appropriation $200,000. The motion was lost. Mr. Cannon said that the largest amount expended in a previous year was $287,000, in 1894. Last year but $134,000 was spent. On February 1, 1898, there was an unexpended balance of $340,000. In his opinion that was sufficient. The discussion soon drifted into the advisability of the establishment of a national quarantine.... An amendment was adopted appropriating $6,300 for the Yeosemite national park, California.... The senate bill to prohibit the passage of local or special acts by territorial indebtedness was passed.

The Senate—Friday.

Hon. Henry W. Corbett's right to a seat in the senate from Oregon was under consideration by the senate this afternoon for five hours. Mr. Teller spoke in support of the resolution presented by a majority of a committee. Mr. Turley, of Tennessee, said the views he held would compel him to support the majority of the committee against the seating of Mr. Corbett. At 5:15 p. m. the senate went into executive session and at 5:25 p. m. adjourned.

The House.

The house today renewed the consideration of the sundry civil appropriation bill, and the greater part of the session was devoted to the discussion of the bill.... An unsuccessful effort was made to secure consideration of the bill passed by the senate for two additional regiments of artillery, but on objection from Mr. Cox, of Tennessee, it went over.... The house at 5 o'clock recessed until 8 p. m., the evening session to be devoted to private pension bills.

The evening session was largely wasted. Six private bills were ordered to be favorably reported to the house by the committee of the whole, but on the next Mr. Sullivan raised the point of no quorum, which was sustained, and at 10:30 p. m. the house adjourned.

The Senate—Saturday.

A bill to authorize the president to appoint a first lieutenant of infantry the director of swordsmanship and gymnastics at the West Point military academy was passed. A resolution was adopted calling upon the secretary of the navy for the reason why he shipped certain freight over the Canadian Pacific road to Mare Island, Cal. Also a resolution requesting the president, if not incompatible with the public interests, to send to the senate copies of all reports and communications received by the state department since the 24th of February, 1895, from Tomas Estrada Palma or any agent of the Cuban insurgents which relate to the state of war in the Island of Cuba, or such parts of said documents as it may be deemed proper and advisable to communicate. Mr. Hoar then called up the Corbett case, and Mr. Kyle addressed the senate briefly in support of Mr. Corbett's claim to a seat in the senate.

The House.

The house resumed consideration of the sundry civil bill to-day immediately after the reading of the journal, the pending amendment being one to appropriate $150,000 for Yaquima Bay, Oregon. It was lost—36 to 76. An amendment appropriating $300,000 for the harbor of Cleveland, Ohio, offered by Mr. Burton, of Ohio, was adopted. An amendment to increase the appropriation for Boston harbor from $100,000 to $250,000 was adopted. An amendment offered by Mr. Grosvenor appropriating $28,880 for the continuation of the publication of records of the rebellion was adopted. At 5:15 p. m. the committee of the whole rose without having completed the bill, and five minutes later adjourned.

STATE S. S. CONVENTION.

Preparations Being Made for a Large Attendance at Birmingham Meeting.

At a recent meeting of the executive committee of the Alabama State Sunday school association, arrangements were made to hold the next annual convention in Birmingham, April 19-21.

These annual gatherings of the Sunday School folks are growing greatly in interest and attendance. At the meeting held in Tuskaloosa last spring the delegates numbered between 400 and 500, and the indications are that the one soon to meet in Birmingham will greatly outnumber that one. A large number of prominent workers from outside of the state have promised to be in attendance to assist and council with the home-workers. All officers of the state, county and beat associations, pastors and superintendents are authorized delegates to the convention. Also one other representative from each Sunday School.

British Flag Raised.

The steamer Noyo, which arrived at Seattle, Wash., from Skaguay, Alaska, brings news which, if true, will probably cause international complications. Parties arriving at Skaguay before the vessel left circulated the report that the Canadian mounted police had raised the British flag at Summit Lake, which is twelve miles from Skaguay and fourteen miles inside the American boundary. Capt. Lindquist says the report had not been verified when he left Skaguay and that he places little credence in it.

Widow's Hopes Blighted.

A widow holding the position of postmaster in one of the more important smaller cities of the South recently asked whether a married man 19 or 20 years of age could be postmaster. Assistant Postmaster General Heath's reply was that "marriage was not a cure for the prohibition in the postal laws and regulations against a minor being postmaster." So the widow cannot marry the young man and have him made postmaster.

General Taliaferro Dead.

Gen. W. F. Taliaferro, a Mexican war veteran and commander of the Virginia troops during the John Brown raid, major-general in the Confederate army and ex-judge, died at his home in Gloucester county, Va., Monday night.

Spain's Navy Yards Busy.

The work of naval construction and armament at Ferrol, Spain, is being pushed by the government with the greatest activity at the arsenal and dockyard.

Court of Inquiry at Key West.

The United States court of inquiry into the loss of the battleship Maine in the harbor of Havana on Feb. 15 began its session at Key West Monday morning.

India's area of wheat farms is now about two-thirds as large as that of the United States. The wheat is still thrashed by being trodden out by bullocks and buffaloes.

The eye of the vulture is so constructed that it is a high-power telescope, enabling the bird to see objects at an almost incredible distance.

HAPPENINGS IN ALABAMA.

Used a Shotgun to End His Life.

Sunday morning at Wylam, a small mining town near Pratt City, George Drysdale, a Scotch miner, 67 years of age, ended his life with a shotgun. He had for some time been acting strangely and recently left his family and took up his residence in a small cabin, where he lived alone. Saturday he wrote a note to his son-in-law, John Kelso, in which he stated he was tired of life, and handed it to a negro, saying if anything happened to him to deliver it to Kelso. The old man deliberately planned self-destruction by placing a gun at the foot of the bed with a string attached to the trigger and then got into the bed, pulled the string and sent a load of shot crashing into his heart.

Italians Ready to Fight.

The Italians in the Birmingham district are ready to fight for Uncle Sam in the event of war with Spain. At a meeting of the Italian society of Birmingham the following resolution was adopted, after patriotic speeches had been made: "We, the Italian-American citizens of Birmingham and vicinity, deplore the loss of the brave sailors who suffered death in the Maine disaster in Havana harbor and we are ready to defend the stars and stripes, the flag of our adoption, at any time we may be called upon." There are 800 members of the society, everyone of whom, says a member, are ready to respond to a call to arms at any moment.

Changes in Internal Revenue Force.

The following changes were made in the internal revenue department by Julian Bingham Tuesday:

John M. Hanlin, of Chilton county, appointed storekeeper and gauger to succeed W. H. Moore at distillery of John H. Maxwell, of Jacksonville.

John W. Kitcheus, of Cleburne county, appointed raiding deputy collector to succeed J. F. Creen at Anniston.

J. C. Miller, of Jefferson county, appointed division and raiding deputy collector to succeed L. W. Willis, of Jasper, Walker county.

All of those whose positions are thus filled tendered their resignations several days ago.

Placing Surveyors in the Field.

It is stated on good authority that the Illinois Central will place a corps of surveyors in the field on Tuesday next to make the final survey for the branch road it proposes to build from Aberdeen, Miss., to Carbon Hill, in Walker county. The Illinois Central recently purchased several thousand acres of valuable mineral lands in Lamar, Marion and Walker counties in this state and these it proposes to develop.

Memphis & Charleston Railroad Sold.

The Memphis and Charleston railroad, extending southeast from Memphis to Stevenson, a distance of 290 miles, was sold at public outcry Saturday. The Southern Railway company bought the property at the upset price of $2,500,000, there being no other bidders. The sale was made necessary because of default of payment of interest on the road's bonded debt.

Arrested for Whitecapping.

Near Kennedy, Lamar county, Saturday morning Ed Wilson, Coot Long, Will McCullough, A. W. Roland and Vestor Pate, prominent farmers, were arrested by Sheriff Holly on the charge of murder. It is alleged that they were members of the whitecap gang that murdered Andre[illegible]son, colored, some months ago.

Long Distance Telephone.

It has been learned through the construction manager of the Bell Telephone company that work will begin in about two weeks on long distance telephone lines between Decatur, Huntsville and Birmingham, and when that is completed, later to Nashville.

Making Their Own Fertilizers.

In the neighborhood of DeArmanville, Calhoun county, the farmers, instead of selling their cotton seed to oil mills, are having it ground for fertilizer and stock feed. A mill has been established at DeArmanville for that purpose and several thousand bushels of seed have been ground.

New Depot for Montgomery.

The Western Railway of Alabama will build a new depot at Montgomery at a cost of $75,000.

Street Railway Changes Hands.

The North Birmingham Street railroad has been sold to Messrs. A. T. London and associates and will be operated in connection with the Birmingham Traction Company's lines. The line will be converted into an electric railway.

Negro Kills Another.

A shooting affray occurred near Selma in which Henry Shelton, a negro, was instantly killed by Anderson Monier.

Dan Gordon Nominated.

Dan Gordon, of Abbeville, has been nominated by the democratic convention for judge of probate.

Urging Col. Higdon to Make the Race.

Col. E. L. Higdon is being urged by the citizens of Birmingham to allow his name to be used as a candidate for representative of Jefferson county in the coming primary.

James A. Stratton, secretary and treasurer of the Birmingham Railway & Electric company, died Sunday morning with typhoid fever.

Frank J. Kilpatrick, of Bridgeport, will be a candidate for the republican nomination for governor of Alabama.

WAR news is quiet.

WE would be glad if some of our lawyer-editor friends would be kind enough to publish the manner in which they construe the law of Alabama to define the word "publishing." For instance, several sections of the new code, relating to the publication of legal notices, read publication must be made in a newspaper published in the county or by posting at the court house door. County commissioners are required to "publish" various announcements in a newspaper published in the county or by posting at the court house door.

Is it discretionary on the party who has to make the notice to decide whether it shall be published in a newspaper published in the county, or whether it shall be posted at the court housedoor; or is it mandatory upon the party to make publication of the notice in the newspaper, when one is published in the county, and if no newspaper is published in the county, (or in some instances an adjoining county) then the notice posted at the court house door is all that is required under the law?

Our construction of the law is that there is no discretion on the part of the party to make the notice, but that the newspaper (if one is published in the county) MUST be used, and failing the publication of a newspaper in the county, then, AND ONLY IN THAT CASE, can a legal publication be made by posting at the court house door.

THE growing importance of Clanton as a business centre, and more especially as a cottonmart, can best be estimated by a reference to the subjoined table, showing the cotton receipts here for the last five seasons. The munber of bales received at Clanton was:—

1893–94	2328
94–95	3520
95–96	2388
96–97	3299
97–98 up to each 3	5185

It will readily be seen that our cotton receipts this season have been nearly 50 per cent more than the big crop year of 1894-95. This is due to the large increase of our farming population more than to any other cause. It means more waste land has been put in cultivation. The vacant places are filling up. Land is naturally getting to be more valuable in Chilton county, and in a very few years there will be no waste land at all. Nothing better perhaps, for the prosperity of a county than the desire of others to become citizens. The average price per bale this season at Clanton, has been $27.50 which means our cotton has brought into the county this season, $140,000. To our merchants is due thanks from our farmers for keeping up the price to as high a figure as possible. In fact the market price at Clanton has largely influenced the price in adjoining markets, or probably the nett receipts would have been less.

THE Hon. Wm. J. Bryan will deliver an address in Montgomery on the night of Monday, March 7, under the auspices of the Bimetallic Club of Montgomery. The citizens ladies especially of the other counties adjacent to Montgomery, are cordially invited to be present. Arrangements have been effected to seat 10,000 persons. There will be no charge made for admission. Railroad companies have been applied to for reduced rates over their lines for this occasion.

The De Lome incident was on many accounts an extremely irritating one. The recent Spanish minister had cut a very wide swath during the past three years. He had exploited a large corps of detectives and had spent great sums of Spanish secret-service money in this country to thwart and destroy by all possible means a perfectly legitimate American traffic. For it must be remembered that although the United States Governmene has spent not less then two million dollars, practically under Mr. De Lome's instructions, in preventing the movement of so-called filibustering expeditons, only a small per centage of the expeditions which interfered with have in fact, been of a filibustering character. It is, indeed, against the law to use American soil for the fitting out of armed expeditions to make war upon a friendly power. It is not, however, against the law to sell arms and supplies. The Cuban insusgents have not desired the equipment of armed expeditrons in the United States, but have merely wished in a perfectly legitimate way to buy various munitions. It is true that they intended to smuggle these wares into Cuba; but the prevention of smuggling is a matter for the Spanish revenue service in Cuba to deal with. The United States has on more proper concern with Cuban smuggling that with Australian smuggling. There are many people who would much like to know why our Government, both nnder Mr. Cleveland's administration and also under Mr. McKinley's, has not drawn more sharply the line between the unlawful fitting out of military expeditions and the lawful export of supplies It is to be hoped that Mr. De Lome's successor will not be accorded so large a freedom as the late Spanish minister enjoyed in the utilization of the official resources of this country as auxiliary to Spain's foul warfare against her Cuban subjects.—From "The Progress of the World," in American Monthly Review of Reviews for March.

The Greatest Discovery Yet.

W. M. Repine, editor Tiskilwa, Ill., "Chief," says: "We won't keep house without Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption, Coughs and Colds. Experimented with many others, but never got the true remedy until we used Dr. King's New Discovery. No other remedy can take its place in our home, as in it we have a certain and sure cure for Coughs, Colds, Whooping Cough, etc." It is idle to experiment with other remedies, even if they are urged on you as just as good as Dr. Kings New Discovery. They are not as good, because this remedy has a record of cures and besides is guaranteed. It never fails to satisfy. Trial bottle free at J. S. Johnson's Drug Store.

The Blind Children.

It was the general hour for recess at the great New York Asylum For Blind Children. Down the bare wooden stairs a troop of eager boys clattered with so much of the usual bustle and push that one could hardly believe were it not for now and then a pair of cautious hands extended that all those restless, bright eyes were sightless. Out through the open doors to a small, barren playground they rushed. The feet of a foremost boy felt under them the joy of ice. There was a scream of pleasure. The two or three visitors standing near smiled at one another. It was merely a tiny, contracted patch of frozen drippings from the eaves that boys who know whole rivers and ponds of winter pleasure would have passed unnoticed. But, lo, this little afflicted one, whom we had been pitying as having lost most of life's pleasures, had found the key to that most precious of all earthly possessions—contentment. He threw up his happy little arms in a transport of pleasure. "Come on, boys!" he shouted, sliding down the narrow confines. "Come on! Come on! Here's a lake of ice."—New York Letter.

Reading.

A bundle of old letters was found not long ago in England which turned out to be valuable because the letters were written by Charles Lamb. Very few of you children are too young to enjoy this great author's essay on "Roast Pig," with his funny account of the way the delicious dish was discovered. When you are a few years older, it is to be hoped that you will not be satisfied until you have read every essay he wrote. Indeed a taste for Charles Lamb is considered a sort of touchstone—that is, if a person likes to read his works, he is considered [illegible] that all he to be cultivated

We are anxious to do a little good in this world and can think of no pleasanter or better way to do it than by recommending One Minute Cough Cure as a preventative of pneumonia, consumption and other serious long troubles that follow neglected colds. Stanfield & Matthews.

An Uncertain Disease.

There is no disease more uncertain in its nature than dyspepsia. Physicians say that the symptoms of no two cases agree. It is therefore most difficult to make a correct diagnosis. No matter how severe, or under what disguise dyspepsia attacks you, Browns' Iron Bitters will cure it. Invaluable in all diseases of the stomach, blood and nerves. Browns' Iron Bitters is sold by all dealers.

Political Pointers.

Peoples Party Press Bureau }
St. Louis, Mo., Feb. 23.1893 }

From semi-official sources it is learned that the Populist State Convention of Indiana, held at Indianapolis on Feb. 22 23, was a rather stormy affair. A full state ticket was nominated as follows: Secretary of State, Dr. H. H. Morrison; Auditor, W. H. Parks; Treasurer, F. M. Brown; Clerk of Supreme Court, R. W. Todd; Supt. Public Instruction, Edward Packard. The platform favors free silver at 16 to 1, female suffrage, prohibition and the abolition of National banks. It declares against fusion and government by injunction. A split in the party is said to be imminent.

Texas Democrats are having a nice little war among themselves. At a recent meeting of the State Executive Committee several personal encounters were narrowly averted. The test of party membership adopted by the committee, bars all those who voted against Bryan for President in 1896.

The bolting faction of Prohibitionists known as the Liberty party, held a National conference at Columbus, O., last week and decided to make overtures for a coalition with the "middle-of-the-road" Populists, who are reported as having proposed a union with the Libertyites last year.

The scheme of annexing Hawaii has been abandoned by the Republicans in Congress since trouble with Spain came up. It is evident that in the case of war the United States will have enough seacoast to protect without taking in Hawaii.

Hon. W. J. Bryan has accepted an invitation to address the Mohawk free silver club, of Detroit, Mich., on April 4.

Senator Allen of Nebraska persists in offering resolutions bearing on the Cuban question which, though often voted down, are proving very troublesome to the present administration.

Arrangments have been made by the administration, with the leading Wall Street Bankers, for any possible loan that the government may need in the event of war with Spain. While the government has not made formal proposals yet, it is well understood by the bankers that a large issue of immergency bonds may be made and all the plutocratic vultures in the financial world are swarming in Washington. Arrangements have been perfected, whereby a request from the government, for money, whether $100,000,000 or five times that amount would be immediately met by J. Pierpont Morgan, Russel Sage and other representatives of the Rothchilds.

The evidence thus far introduced by the defense in the trial of the sheriff and his deputies, charged with the murder of striking miners at Hazelton, Penn., shows that very little violence was offered by the miners and that even the most disorderly ones were only armed with clubs. It is very doubtful whether the sheriff and his murderous deputies will be convicted.

During a recent discussion in the House of Representatives on the tendency of the times to provide millionaires, Jerry Simpson created considerable amusement by admiting that he would like to be a million aire. He said the fact that he is not a millionaire was evidence of his disinclination to take advantage of his fellowmen, and that if he were one he would at least add an air of respectability to that class.

Ex-President Harrison in his Washington anniversary address to Chicago, delivered a very strong plea in favor of the rich paying their proportion of the personal tax, and even suggested the imposition of an inheritance tax to prevent the piling up of vast estates, but he had no word of encouragement for an income tax.

The Populist territorial committee of Oklahoma has been called to meet at Kingfisher March 4.

Since the crisis in this country's relations with Spain, our venerable Secretary of State, John Sherman, seems to have been completely shelved. Assistant Secretary Day is the real head of the department and to him go all communications and from him come all official orders. That Sherman was forced out of the senate to make room for Hanna is no secret, and that he is hardly figure head at this time is well known. Retribution seems at last to have overtaken the one man in America who has done more to fasten industrial slavery upon the people than any other.

Hon. J. R Sovereign, of Sulphur Springs, Arkansas, former Grand Master Workman of the Knights of Labor, has recently been elected Grand Chief of the new order of Mohawks, which organization is growing rapidly in many states. The members of the order are pledged to the advocacy of the free and unlimited coinage of silver at the ratio of 16 to 1. A. R.

HOW TO FIND OUT.

Fill a bottle or common glass with urine and let it stand twenty-four hours; a sediment or settling indicates an unhealthy condition of the kidneys. When urine stains linen it is positive evidence of kidney trouble Too frequent desire to urinate or pain in the back, is also convincing proof that the kidneys and bladder are out of order.

WHAT TO DO.

There is comfort in the knowledge so often expressed, that Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, the great kidney remedy fulfills every wish in relieving pain in the back, kidneys, liver, bladder and every part of the urinary passages. It corrects inability to hold urine and scalding pain in passing it, or bad effects following use of liquor, wine or beer, and overcomes that unpleasant necessity of being compelled to get up many times during the night to urinate. The mild and the extraordinary effect of Swamp-Root is soon realized. It stands the highest for its wonderful cures of the most distressing cases. If you need a medicine you should have the best. Sold by druggists, price fifty cents and one dollar.

You may have a sample bottle and pamphlet both sent free by mail, upon receipt of three two-cent stamps to cover cost of postage on the bottle. Mention The Banner and send your address to Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y. The proprietors of this paper guarantee the genuineness of this offer.

NOTICE.

We take pleasure in informing the citizens of Clanton and surrounding country, that we have secured the services of a competent druggist in the person of Mr. H. O. Bassett, who has had 20 years experience in one of the largest cities South. Mr. Bassett has exclusive charge of our prescription business and being a man of correct habits and thoroughly competent guarantees satisfaction on reasonable charges on all prescriptions and family receipts.

We have now a complete prescription department all of the best and freshest drugs in stock. We make prescriptions a specialty. Thanking you all for your past favors and soliciting a continuation of same; we are yours for square dealing.

STANFIELD & MATTHEWS.

What pleasure is there in life with a headache, constipation and biliousness? Thousands experience them who would become perfectly healthy by using DeWitt's Little Early Risers, the famous little pills. Stanfield & Matthews.

SMALLPOX AT MONTEVALLO

A number of the young ladies of the Montevallo Industrial school left yesterday and will remain until the smallpox is stamped out.

Owing to the prevalence of the disease the school has been temporarily suspended, and pupils will remain at their homes until there is no longer any danger. The disease has spread among the private boarding houses.

From the conversation of the young ladies, it is believed that the smallpox will soon be gotten rid of and that the school will resume by March 21.

After years of untold suffering from piles, B. W. Pursell of Knittersville, Pa., was cured by using a single box of DeWitt's Witch Hazel Salve. Skin diseases such as eczema, rash, pimples and obstinate sores are readily cured by this famous remedy. Stanfield & Matthews.

Puny Children

Who would prescribe only tonics and bitters for a weak, puny child? Its muscles and nerves are so thoroughly exhausted that they cannot be whipped into activity. The child needs food; a blood-making, nerve-strengthening and muscle-building food.

Scott's Emulsion

of Cod-Liver Oil is all of this, and you still have a tonic in the hypophosphites of lime and soda to act with the food. For thin and delicate children there is no remedy superior to it in the world. It means growth, strength, plumpness and comfort to them. Be sure you get SCOTT'S Emulsion.

COURTING

is the best time in every man and woman's life, the happiest time, the jolliest time. That 's so!

Twice a year everybody comes a courting to Clanton, and when you come this year, you can be made to think of old times and have a better time than you have ever had in your life before. You want to know how. Well, there 's only one way and that is by doing your trading with Abe Kanter, at the old court house store, where you will find the biggest assorted stock and the smallest prices you have ever heard of.

There 's no use in keeping goods in stock. We must sell them or give them away. Our prices are so low it is just about the same as giving goods away. We are clearing out our Winter Goods to make room for our new Spring stock and this is your opportunity.

Dr. Miles' Heart Cure

Cures a Prominent Attorney.

MR. R. C. PHELPS, the leading pension attorney of Belfast, N. Y., writes: "I was discharged from the army on account of ill health, and suffered from heart trouble ever since. I frequently had fainting and smothering spells. My form was bent as a man of 80. I constantly wore an overcoat, even in summer, for fear of taking cold. I could not attend to my business. My rest was broken by severe pains about the heart and left shoulder. Three years ago I commenced using Dr. Miles' Heart Cure, notwithstanding I had used so much patent medicine and taken drugs from doctors for years without being helped. Dr. Miles' Heart Cure restored me to health. It is truly a wonderful medicine and it affords me much pleasure to recommend this remedy to everyone."

Dr. Miles' Remedies are sold by all druggists under a positive guarantee, first bottle benefits or money refunded. Book on diseases of the heart and nerves free. Address,

WINE OF CARDUI

FOR ALL WOMEN

NINE-TENTHS of all the pain and sickness from which women suffer is caused by weakness or derangement in the organs of menstruation. Nearly always when a woman is not well these organs are affected. But when they are strong and healthy a woman is very seldom sick.

McELREE'S Wine of Cardui

Is nature's provision for the regulation of the menstrual function. It cures all "female troubles." It is equally effective for the girl in her teens, the young wife with domestic and maternal cares, and the woman approaching the period known as the "Change of Life." They all need it. They are all benefitted by it.

For advice in cases requiring special directions, address, giving symptoms, the "Ladies' Advisory Department," The Chattanooga Medicine Co., Chattanooga, Tenn.

THOS. J. COOPER, Tupelo, Miss., says: "My sister suffered from very irregular and painful menstruation and doctors could not relieve her. Wine of Cardui entirely cured her and also helped my mother through the Change of Life."

THE KNIGHTS OF LABOR

Is the greatest Labor Organization the world has ever seen.

It is the only organization which, while striving to secure for wage-workers the best possible terms as to wages, hours and conditions, aims at reforming the causes of industrial injustice.

It secures to each trade and locality absolute control over its own trade or local affairs, yet its perfect organization enables its members to act unitedly, promptly, and therefore, effectively when concentrated action becomes necessary to remedy injustice or to resist oppression.

It is pledged to work for the overthrow of the capitalistic system of production and exchange, yet, realizing that reforms can only be beneficial and permanent when they rest upon the convictions of a wise, educated people, it seeks to accomplish its objects only by appeals to reason and conscience—never by force.

It is a secret organization only so far as secrecy is necessary to protect its members from wrong and persecution, and can never be used to shield wrong-doing.

Its doors are open to all who labor honestly and usefully either by hand or brain, without question or discrimination on account of creed, race or nationality.

CANDY CATHARTIC Cascarets CURE CONSTIPATION

REGULATE THE LIVER

10¢ 25¢ 50¢ — ALL DRUGGISTS

CANDY CATHARTIC — ....CASCARETS taste good. But taste like candy. They restore any bad taste in the mouth, leaving the breath sweet and perfumed. It is real pleasure to take them instead of nauseating liquids or cannon-ball pills.

BOON FOR MOTHERS — ....CASCARETS increase the flow of milk in nursing mothers. A tablet eaten by the mother makes her milk mildly purgative and has a mild but certain effect on the baby, the only safe laxative for the babe-in-arms.

PURELY VEGETABLE — ....CASCARETS are purely vegetable and contain no mercurial or other mineral poison. They are made of the latest remedies discovered and are a scientific combination never before put together in any form.

PLEASE THE CHILDREN — ....CASCARETS are liked by the children. They taste good and do good, stop wind-colic and cramps, and kill and drive off worms, and all kinds of parasites that live in the bowels of the growing child.

ANTISEPTIC LAXATIVE — ....CASCARETS are antiseptic. That means they stop undigested food from souring in the stomach, prevent fermentation in the bowels and kill disease germs of any kind that breed and feed in the system.

CURE GUARANTEED — ....CASCARETS, taken patiently, persistently, are guaranteed to cure any case of constipation, no matter how old and obstinate, or purchase money will be cheerfully refunded by your own druggist.

LIVER STIMULANT — ....CASCARETS tone the stomach and bowels and stimulate the lazy liver, making it work. They strengthen the bowels and put them into vigorous, healthy condition, making their action easy and natural.

HEALTH FOR 10 CENTS — ....CASCARETS are sold by all druggists for 10c, 25c, 50c a box, according to size. A 10c box will prove their merit and put you on the right road to perfect and permanent health. Don't risk delay.

Don't judge CASCARETS by other medicines you have tried. They are new, unlike anything else that's sold, and infinitely superior. Try a 10c box to-day, if not pleased get your money back! Larger boxes, 25c or 50c. Sample and booklet mailed free. Address

THE TWO METHODS.

BIMETALLISM—INTERNATIONAL AND INDEPENDENT.

If the Former Is Wise Then the Latter Means Is Doubly Wise — Nations Would Compete for a Low Ratio Not a High One.

Ex-Senator Edmunds told the banking and currency committee that the establishment of the single gold standard "did not exclude the idea of bimetallism, for it did not exclude the use of silver or any other metal to the largest extent that it could be maintained on an equality with the one fixed and invariable standard of gold."

The Chicago Tribune calls this "an accurate description of the 'international bimetallism' which the national republican platform of 1896 pledged that party to promote." The Tribune may be in a position to say what sort of bimetallism the republican platform of 1896 promises to promote, though the editor of another Chicago sheet is understood to have had much more to do with making the financial plank of that platform than the editor of the Tribune had.

Be that as it may, it is certain the passage quoted from Mr. Edmunds' argument is not an accurate description of what any intelligent bimetallist of Europe or America means by the term "international bimetallism." When bimetallists use that term they do not mean "the one fixed and invariable standard of gold," with a subsidiary coinage of silver kept up to that standard by direct or indirect convertibility into gold at the pleasure of the holder. That is, they do not mean what Mr. Edmunds means. Indeed, they know that no "fixed and invariable standard," whether of gold or any other thing or number of things, is possible.

What they mean by international bimetallism one can learn from the writings of Henri Cernuschi. They mean the coinage of both gold and silver on precisely the same terms for the benefit of depositors, in unlimited quantities, by a number of leading commercial nations, all of them coining the two at the same ratio, so that there could be no profit in melting down and recoining either the gold or the silver coin of any of the agreeing countries at the mints of any other of them.

They do not insist upon the ratio of 16 to 1 or 15½ to 1 or any other. This for the reason that once the principle is established the lowest possible ratio would be sought by all nations concerned. That would be something very far removed from the Edmunds plan of a one-metal standard with another metal attached to it as a dependent. Bimetallists know that if both metals were coined on the same terms by a number of powerful countries they would be held closely together at even the ratio of 8 to 1.

They reason in this way: If by reason of diminished production or other cause either metal should rise in value above the other at the agreed ratio it would cease to be taken to the mints by the contracting countries for coinage. It would be profitable to deposit the cheaper metal, because the metal costing the depositor less would go just as far in paying his debts. This would tend to increase the value of the cheaper metal and to depress that of the dearer by increasing the demand for the former and diminishing the demand for the latter. Bimetallists claim that in this way free access to the mints of either metal at the option of depositors would tend powerfully to maintain the value of the two at the agreed mint ratio, pressing up the value of either one when it is tending downward and pressing down its value when it is moving upward, thus preserving a mean of the two more stable than the value of either would be if it were the sole standard. Such is the theory of bimetallism. The great body of Americans know that this country alone can regulate the value of the two metals in the manner described. And they denounce as ignoramuses those who say it will take more than one country to do so great a thing and as wanting in patriotism and willing to make "a cowardly surrender of our sovereign rights as Americans" and "to permit Europe to legislate for us on one of the most vital questions of self-government."

The United States has four-fifths of all the silver in the world. Any fool can see that the consent of other nations is not essential. The insistance on an international agreement is nonsense.

Worse Than British.

English newspapers are ridiculing the new rules of etiquette at the white house recently adopted by the sponsors of the new social regime under the McKinley administration. One paper says that President McKinley's protocol will soon rival that of President Faure of the French republic, who has long been accused of putting on monarchial airs. Vanity Fair, commenting on the rule which says that the invitations issued by Mrs. McKinley are to take precedence over all other invitations, attempts to prove that under the stars and stripes it is quite possible to outdo royalty itself in the absurdity of court regulations. There is some probability that these English critics are unjust, and that they are taking the dictum of some understrapper of the administration as the final word of the architects of our new court etiquette. Someone should inform these badly advised commentators that the real sponsor for the glory that is to be of the McKinley administration is temporarily catching his breath. When Hanna is on deck again there will be a readjustment of this etiquette business that will stand as a monument to our progress in politeness and a precedent for future barbarians.

A Party That Meddles with Matters.

A Maryland editor is quoted as saying that the "marvelous strides in material development and wealth" made by the country during a period of thirty years "was due to a wise protective policy and a let-matters alone disposition on the part of the government." Probably the reader will not need to be told that the author of this contradictory deliverance is a republican editor. The little speech supplies abundant internal evidence of that fact. To anyone not hopelessly befuddled by republican tariff notions it is as plain as day that a protective policy is diametrically opposed to a let-matters-alone policy. From A to Z a protective policy is a policy of meddling with matters. It presumes to issue its arbitrary command that we must buy in one place and must not buy in another place and it fines us enormously if we follow our inclination and buy where we wish to buy and can get most for our money. It is a policy which lets nothing alone; which meddles with every one of us continually and at every step we take and every turn we make. It is the very essence of odious meddling.

Queer, Isn't It.

It is rather singular that most of the newspaper opponents of postal savings banks are republican in politics. One would naturally think that a plan which partakes of paternalism would commend itself to republican editors, but they don't view it from that standpoint. The Indianapolis Journal, for instance, opposes the postal banks because their establishment would result in "scandals and losses that would bring discredit on the system and the government." The obvious answer to this objection is that the republicans will not be in power more than three years longer and they can't do irreparable damage in that time. With a democratic administration in power the postal savings banks—and all the other branches of the government—will be conducted without loss or scandal and to the great advantage of the people. The Journal's objection is more candid than flattering to its own party.

Iowa's Freak Governor.

Governor Shaw of Iowa can't realize, apparently, that he is actually elected and that it is no longer necessary for him to make stump speeches concerning "national honor" and the gold standard. His inaugural address is largely a rehash of the stereotyped oration that he used in the campaign of last fall and has no more to do with the administration of Iowa affairs than with the situation in China. Mr. Shaw's task is not to reform the national currency, but to undo, if he can, the mischief wrought by rascally republican officials in Iowa who have plunged the state into debt by unlawful means. That duty accomplished he may, if he likes, proclaim the beauties of a single standard as exemplified by the gold clause in his chattel mortgages.

Bryan Is Always Right.

Mr. Bryan in his recent Jackson day speech said that the results of the republican party's policy are being written in newspaper headlines all over the country under two headings—namely, the formation of new trusts and the reduction of wages. This is notoriously true as to the headlines, and it is a tribute to the general truthfulness of the press that not even the radical republican organs dare to refuse publishing the news. Of course, the McKinley editors will cherfully buckle on the armor and try to convince their readers that more trusts and less wages are merely prosperity in disguise, but the average voter has fairly good powers of penetration.

Hanna's Modest Announcement.

"God reigns and the republican party still lives." Too much cannot be said in praise of the modesty and self-abnegation of Senator Hanna in thus announcing his victory to the President. God reigns, as heretofore, instead of abdicating, as must evidently have been the case in the event of Mr. Hanna' defeat. It is something to know that God reigns and the republican party still lives; it is more to be assured that this state of things will continue for at least seven years—until the expiration of the time for which Mr. Hanna was elected. Laus Marco.

The Infant Industry Fallacy.

Free traders will admit that tropical fruits can be grown in Labrador. But as to the wisdom of establishing an orange grove in Labrador the free trader has his opinion. So it is with establishing new industries by protection. It may be done, but it's an expensive proceeding, and the cost is fully equal to the value of what is gained, and usually far greater. And when the protected child is adopted it almost invariably turns out to be a sickly, weakly, but mighty greedy infant.

Goes Before the Courts.

The Kurtz members of the Ohio legislature admit that Mr. Hanna has won, but they manifest a prying and impertinent determination to find out just what it cost him, and they are likely to succeed. Legislative investigations can be smothered, but it is not practicable to "fix" the courts. Mr. Campbell's libel suit ought to furnish some entertaining facts and figures.

Grand Rapids Herald: While we are congratulating ourselves on the fact that the sum total of our exports and imports aggregated more than $1,000,000 for 1897 what are we to say when we consider the fact that England's export and import trade amounted to no less than $3,722,115,000 for 1897, nearly four times the sum of our foreign trade?

Origin of Strong Liquor—Alcoholism in France—Good News from Canada—Road to Ruin for Our Youth—Notes.

Say Not Nought Availeth.

Say not, the struggle nought availeth,
The labor and the wounds are vain,
The enemy faints not, nor faileth,
And as things have been they remain.

If hopes were dupes, fears may be liars;
It may be in yon smoke concealed,
Your comrades chase e'en now the fliers,
And but for you possess the field.

For while the tired waves, vainly breaking,
Seem here no painful inch to gain,
Far back, through creeks and inlets making,
Comes silent, flooding in the main.

And not by eastern windows only,
When daylight comes, comes in the light;
In front, the sun climbs slow, how slowly,
But Westward, look, the land is bright.
—Arthur Hugh Clough.

Origin of Strong Liquors.

Strong liquors are of modern invention, for the ancients knew of nothing more powerful than lightly fermented wines, and they have left many warnings of the abuse of them. Alcohol was not discovered until the seventh century, and the distillation of spirit from wine was not discovered until the twelfth century, while spirits did not come into common use until the fifteenth, sixteenth and seventeenth centuries. Professor Arnoldus Villanova, in the fourteenth century, made a panacea of the "water of life," which was said to have the virtue of "giving sweet breath, fortifying the memory, besides being good for sore eyes, the toothache, gout," etc. Distilled spirits came into use in London in 1450, and had to be prohibited in 1494. Michael Savonarola produced a treatise on the making of "water of life" in the fifteenth century, which became a standard authority on the subject, and was followed by the work of Matthioli, of Sienna. These books gave an impetus to brandy-making in Italy, whence the trade extended to France. About 1520 the Irish usquebaugh began to acquire reputation in England. Before 1601 "brand wine" had begun to be distilled in the Low Countries from apples, pears and malt; and in that year an ordinance was passed at Tournay forbidding the sale of the liquor except by apothecaries, "partly because of the dearness of corn and partly because of the drunkenness which this cheap brand wine caused, to the great prejudice not only of homes and lives, but to the extreme danger of the souls of its drinkers, many of whom had died without confession."

The Victory.

One breastwork has been captured in the battle with the Capitol saloon—the "hard liquors" have been ordered out, an encouragement to charge again with a resistless volley of petitions for the Gallinger-Ellis bill to exclude all intoxicating liquors from all government buildings. The House Committee on the Alcoholic Liquor Traffic will no doubt report the bill. Hon. W. R. Ellis, of Oregon, the second member of the committee, introduced the bill, and is strongly for it. Hon. S. J. Pugh, of Kentucky, we are assured by the secretary of the Congressional Temperance Society, is on the right side of this question, though a Kentuckian. Hon. M. N. Johnson, of North Dakota, has declared for the bill. Three other members, Hon. S. J. Barrows, of Massachusetts, Hon. H. C. Van Voorhis, of Ohio, and Hon. Jeremiah Botkin, of Kansas, are all ex-preachers and can be relied on. Mr. Botkin has stood as a prohibition candidate as has also another member of the committee, Hon. A. M. Todd, of Michigan. These constitute two-thirds of the committee and we know nothing against the other three, Hon. H. C. Brewster, of New York, Hon. J. E. Osborne, of Wyoming, and Hon. W. W. Kitchin, of North Carolina.

Road to Ruin.

Tabulated statements from the chiefs of police of many cities, presented by the secretary of the Boys and Girls National Home convention which met recently in Indianapolis, show the number of boys who start every year on the road to the penitentiary to be appalling. From one hundred towns 371 bands of boy robbers were reported; 33,000 boys were confined in Chicago jails in two years, and nearly one-third of Boston's arrests were boys. Apropos of these facts is the item of news in a morning paper to the effect that four youthful offenders in Chicago, having pleaded guilty to the charges of robbery, burglary and larceny, informed the judge that the beer, which they obtained without difficulty in their neighborhood, gave them the "nerve" to commit all kinds of depredations. Also apropos of boy criminals and open saloons, St. Louis reports a reduction, under the curfew law, of fifty per cent in commitments to the reform school, and Lincoln, Neb., a reduction of seventy-five per cent. Ring out the saloon, ring in the curfew!

Alcoholism in France.

A very interesting report has recently been drawn up by a French specialist on the spread of alcoholism and its effects. In the various institutions of the Department of the Seine, in France, 775 persons suffering from alcoholism were received in 1891—624 men and 151 women. The forms of alcoholism in the case of the males comprised 282 cases of alcoholic delirium, 332 cases of chronic alcoholism and 10 cases of absinthism—a form of disease which appears to be almost exclusively confined to France and Algeria. Among the women there were 90 cases of alcoholic delirium, 60 of chronic alcoholism and 1 of absinthism. In reviewing these cases Dr. Magnan says: "As a consequence of alcoholism we find an increase of general paralysis, and, what is still more serious, an augmentation in the number of idiots, of youthful epileptics, whose family history reveals almost always the alcoholism of the father and sometimes of the mother, and frequently of both." In the interests of public health it would seem to become a public duty in France to endeavor by all possible means to stay the ravages of this scourge, which is worse in its effects because these effects are more far-reaching than the most devastating epidemics.

Good Piece of News.

The best temperance news, as usual, comes from Ontario, where not only the plebiscite in prospect, but the government reports of the past give us cheer. The licenses have been reduced from 6,000 in 1877, to 3,000, in 1897. In 1884, the commitals for drunkenness were one for every 423; in 1897, one for every 702. Of the 812 municipalities 187 have no license. But let not Ontario's government use these statistics as arguments against improvements in her liquor laws. "The better is a great enemy of the best." Another cheering item of Canada news is the organization in Toronto by the unions of the Young People's Societies of a Christian Citizenship Federation to influence municipal and provincial elections.

Temperance Notes.

The Prohibitionists of Brigatine, N. J., polled more votes at the recent election than the Republicans and Democrats combined.

Sir Wm. Meredith, C. J., of Toronto, Canada, has ruled that a hotelkeeper has no legal right to give liquor to a personal friend during the hours when the sale of intoxicants is prohibited by law.

A call has been issued for a national conference of Prohibition workers, to be held at Cincinnati, Ohio, on Wednesday, January 26, 1898. The object of the conference is to discuss plans and develop enthusiasm.

An enthusiastic conference was held at Cambridge, Mass., on December 19, to discuss arrangements for the national convention of Catholic Total Abstinence Societies in Boston, next August. The convention will be presided over by the Rev. Father Cleary, and addresses will be made by Archbishop Ireland and the Rev. Father Doyle, of the Paulist Fathers. A message of greeting will be read from Pope Leo indorsing the movement.

The annual convention of the Kansas State Temperance Union, called for December 27 and 28, has been postponed to February 1 and 2, in order to give more time for preparation. Among those who have accepted places on the program are Dr. Howard H. Russell, of the American Anti-Saloon League, and Bishop John H. Vincent. Each local union of the Kansas W. C. T. U. is entitled to three delegates. The railroads have granted a one and one-third rate on the certificate plan.

A committee of the New York State Liquor Dealers' Association has decided what the trade wants in the way of modification of the Raines law. The liquor dealers claim they have assurances from the party bosses that the law will be greatly modified, practically to suit the saloon men. The committee which was appointed by the liquor dealers to frame a bill has decided to put in it a reduction of the license for Raines law hotels from $800 to $400, with the privilege of keeping open all the time, and of saloons to $400, with the privilege of keeping open from 1 to 5 a. m. on the payment of $100 extra.

Discipline by Gentleness.

There are men, perhaps always the majority, who try not to offend God because they are afraid of him. There are others who cease to offend him because they are ashamed to. With characteristic dignity and tenderness the Prayer-Book prays that "We may be both afraid and ashamed to offend Thee." There is a wide experience of discipline by gentleness of which the world is likely to hear far less than of the discipline by suffering. There are hosts of men between whom and God is the secret of their having been shamed out of their sin by the kindness which they have not deserved. The gentleness of God has made them great.

A Polite Answer.

Smoking a cigarette the other night in the north I heard a story which so far as I know is new. A proud old lady swept indignantly up to the door of a railway carriage at York station. A school boy was leaning half way out of the compartment, reflectively making a cigarette, and, after the fashion of the English schoolboy, not caring for anybody. "Is this a smoking compartment?" asked the dame with scathing voice. "No, madam," replied the boy, politely raising his cap; "if you want a smoking compartment you will find one a little lower down."—Figaro.

Getting Eggs Without Hens.

At a county fete a conjurer was performing the old trick of producing eggs from a pocket handkerchief when he remarked to a boy in front: "I say, my boy, your mother can't get eggs without hens, can she?" "Of course she can," was the reply. "Why, how's that?" asked the conjuror. "She keeps ducks," replied the boy, amid roars of applause.—London Tit-Bits.

GOD'S MESSAGE TO MAN.

PREGNANT THOUGHTS FROM THE WORLD'S GREATEST PROPHETS.

Endurance—The Transforming Power of Conversion—A Prayer for Simplicity—How God Moulds Souls—Life But Going Home—Simply Restoring.

How much the heart may bear, and yet not break!
How much the flesh may suffer, and not die!
I question much if any pain or ache
Of soul or body brings our end more nigh.
Death chooses his own time; till that is sworn
All evils may be borne.

We shrink and shudder at the surgeon's knife,
Each nerve [illegible]
Whose edge seems searching for the quivering life;
Yet [illegible] sense the bitter pangs reveal,
That still, although the trembling flesh be torn,
This also can be borne.

We see a sorrow rising in our way,
And try to flee from the approaching ill;
We seek some small escape, we weep and pray;
But when the blow falls, then our hearts are still.
Not that the pain is of its sharpness shorn,
But that it can be borne.

We wind our life about another life,
We hold it closer, dearer, than our own,
Anon it faints and falls in deadly strife,
Leaving it stunned and stricken and alone.
But, ah! we do not die with those we mourn,
This also can be borne.

Behold! we live through all things—famine, thirst,
Bereavement, pain; all grief and misery,
All woe and sorrow; life inflicts its worst
On soul and body—but we can not die.
Though we be sick and tired and faint and worn
Lo! all things can be borne!
E. A. Allen.

The Transforming Power of Conversion.

A new creature in Christ Jesus—this is what conversion makes one. It changes the point of view from which everything is regarded. He who has been accustomed, more or less consciously, to consider primarily what he has supposed to be his own interests now learns to think first and chiefly of the divine interests. God and his relation and duty to God now are the most important subjects of his thought. New views of both truth and life result. Of truth, because the significance of spiritual facts and principles is seen to be not only far greater than has been supposed, but also quite different. For instance, the duty of repentance for sin and the blessedness of being forgiven may have been appreciated intellectually in some degree formerly, but now they have become matters of actual experience and appear in a new light. Of life also, because dedication of one's self to God's service always means altering one's habits in some respects and the inspiration of one's whole conduct by another mood and temper. New purposes are formed. To live and labor definitely for Christ's sake and by the help of the Holy Spirit is very different from living with the aim of even the most high-minded man who is not a servant of Christ. New sympathies are cherished. We find ourselves drawn gladly and closely to all who love our Lord. Many, whom we never have thought that we could learn to like, we now find tender and trusty friends, our common loyalty to Christ proving a sure and precious bond. Conversion changes the whole character for the better. It does not do this all at once or in any miraculous manner, but by supplying a new aim and spirit and by heading one in a new direction—towards God instead of away from him. There can be few, if any, of us who do not personally know men or women in whom this change has taken place so evidently as to cause no little comment.

A Prayer for Simplicity.

O God, our heavenly Father, who hast taken thought for us in the night watches, bless us also in the opportunities of this new day. Help us with willing hearts to spend its moments in thy service. In coming and in going, in labor and in rest, in care and pleasure grant us thy companionship for sympathy and aid. If thou hast sorrows for us to bear, pain to endure, losses to undergo, uphold us and enrich us even in these appointed trials. If thou hast joys to give us, if the end of labor in attainment is appointed for this day's crown, if cherished hopes are in thy mercy to be fulfilled, if pleasures come, let none of these things turn our hearts away from thee. If the day in its unvarying course brings no changes, through the still hours may the sunlight of thy presence glow. Help us to bear true witness in simplicity of heart, to find our joy in little things, to [illegible] toward the [illegible] life in kindly service and to cherish [illegible] [illegible] of obedience [illegible] [illegible] our days with [illegible] peace, O God, through Jesus Christ thy Son. Amen.

How God Moulds Souls.

The potter takes the clay abandoned to his working and he [illegible] mould and fashion it according to his own will. He kneads and works it, he tears it apart and presses it together again, he wets it and then suffers it to dry. And then, when by all these processes he has made it perfectly pliable in his hands, he proceeds to make it up into the vessel he has purposed. The lump of clay would never grow into a beautiful vessel if it stayed in the clay-pit for thousands of years; but when it is put into the hands of a skillful potter it grows rapidly, under his fashioning, into the vessel he intends it to be. And in the same way the soul abandoned to the working of the Heavenly Potter is made into a vessel unto honor, sanctified and meet for the Master's use.—Hannah Whitall Smith.

Life But Going Home.

Life has been defined as a going to the Father. It is quite clear that there must come a time in the history of all those who live this life when they reach the Father. This is the most glorious moment of all. Angels attend it. Those on the other side must hail the completing of another soul with ineffable rapture. When they are yet a great way off the Father runs and falls on their neck and kisses them. On this side we call that Death. It means reaching the Father. It is not departure, it is arrival, not sleep, but waking. For life to those who live like Christ is not a funeral procession. It is a triumphal march to the Father. And the entry at the last in God's own chariot is the last hour of all. No, as we watch a life which is going to the Father, we cannot think of night or gloom, of dusk and sunset. It is life which is the night, and Death is sunrise.—Henry Drummond, in "The Ideal Life."

Consecration Simply Restoring.

Consecration is simply the restoring to Christ His own property, recognizing and answering His rightful claims, saying gladly and reverently, "I am Thine, O Lord." When once this attitude has been thoughtfully assumed, it answers all the questions which arise in the conduct of life. These hands are my Master's, they may not touch the unclean thing; these feet are His, they may not go in forbidden paths, these senses and faculties are His, they must not be used outside the circle of His will; this body is His, no voice but His can control or direct it; these members are His, they may not be presented as weapons of unrighteousness unto sin. Reasonings like these make us feel that we dare not sin.—Rev. F. B. Meyer.

Stand in awe and sin not; commune with your own heart and be still.

DAVID'S SLING

Investigation Is Said to Show that It Was No Shoestring Affair.

Now comes some iconoclast and declares that it was no miracle by which David slew Goliath. Investigation shows that the famous sling that shot the stone was no mere shoestring affair. And the stone was no mere pebble. The Asiatic sling is two yards long, and as thick as a man's finger. David could have hanged Goliath with it had he happened to catch him, and it won't have borne a giant's weight. The sling throws its missile so that it travels at the rate of about fifty miles an hour. A stone as large as a hen's egg crushing into a gentleman's head at that rate would naturally prove more or less fatal.

LESSON IN PALMISTRY.

The Line of the Heart If Pronounced Indicates Strong Feelings.

The line of the heart begins at the side of the hand near the base of the little finger and extends across the hand toward the forefinger. It sometimes terminates on the Mount of Jupiter at the base of the forefinger, sometimes ends between the first and middle fingers and sometimes ends on the Mount of Saturn at base of the middle finger. The broad line in the accompanying cut shows the general course of the line of the heart across the hand. When the line is strong it indicates strong feelings. If it be stronger than the head line it shows that the individual can be led by the feelings rather than by reason. When it is strong and is accompanied by the girdle of Venus and a weak head line it shows a person who will lead a reckless life, who will be ardent and passionate and will go to extremes in matters of love.

Deafness Cannot Be Cured

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube gets inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed, Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever. Nine cases out of ten are caused by catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces. We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars, free.

CURES EFFECTED BY Gerstle's Female Panacea.

One Bottle Cured Where Physician Failed.

I believe GERSTLE'S FEMALE PANACEA, G. F. P. to be a valuable medicine. My wife had been given up as incurable, and had been confined to her bed for six months. After taking one bottle she was entirely relieved and is now in good health every way. R. C. HILLIARD, Moore's Bridge, Ala.

Health Restored.

I was sick and in very bad health and unable to do any work. I used one bottle of GERSTLE'S FEMALE PANACEA, G. F. P. and found it to do me more good than any medicine I ever used. I am now in good health and able to do my work. Mrs. S. E. CHANDLER, Gin, Ark.

A Total Disability Claim of $1,650 Paid to a Man who was Afterward Cured.

The Monitor, a newspaper published at Meaford, Ont., Canada, first discovered this case two years ago, and published it at length, which now seems owing to the cure of it, to be a miracle. The facts were so remarkable that many people doubted the truth of them. They said: "It is too remarkable; it cannot possibly be true; the paper is mistaken; and the man, although he may think himself cured, will soon relapse into his former condition," etc., etc. The accuracy of its report called in question, the Monitor determined to find out definitely whether the facts were as stated and whether the man would really stay cured. They accordingly sent a skilled writer on the case four years after the first article appeared, and have just now published another article about it in which the original [illegible] are completely verified, the cure is permanent [illegible] published in the issue of the [illegible] by the Canadian Mutual Life Assurance Co. for $1650.00 on account of total disability resulting there to Mr. Petch.

The [illegible] stated that the patient (see [illegible]) had been a paralytic for [illegible] years, that there was such a total lack [illegible] in his limbs and body, that a pin [illegible] could not be felt; that he could not walk or help himself at all; for two years [illegible] dressed; furthermore that he was [illegible] was for that reason almost unrecognizable and could not get his clothes on. The paralysis was so complete as to affect the face and prevented him from opening his mouth sufficiently wide to take solid food. The doctors called the disease spinal sclerosis, and all said he could not live.

For three years, he lingered in this condition. Then by some friends he was advised to take Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People. He took them and there was a slight change. The first thing noted was a tendency to sweat freely. This showed there was some life left in his helpless body. Next came a little feeling in his limbs. This extended, followed by trickling sensations, until at last the blood began to circulate freely, naturally and vigorously through his body, and the helplessness gave way to returning strength, the ability to walk returned, and he was restored to his old time health.

The above is the substance of the first article published by the Monitor. Now follow some clippings taken from the same paper (six years afterward) and there is not the slightest shadow of a doubt, in view of this testimony, that Mr. Petch's cure is permanent. Here follows the account:

On being again questioned, Mr. Petch said: "You see I use hands—the skin is now natural and elastic. Once they were hard and without sensation. You could pierce them with a pin and I would not feel it, and what is true of my hands is true of the rest of my body. Perhaps you have observed that I have now even ceased to use a cane, and can get about my business perfectly well. You may say there is absolutely no doubt as to my cure being permanent. In fact I am in even better health than when I gave you the first statement."

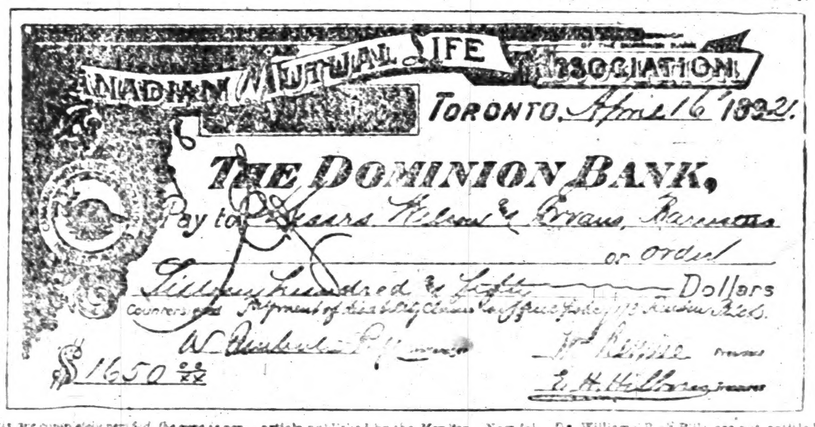
"Do you still attribute your cure to the use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills?" asked the Monitor.

"Unquestionably I do," was the reply. "Doctors had failed as had also the numerous remedies recommended by my friends. Nothing I took had the slightest effect upon me until I began the use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. To this wonderful medicine I owe my rescue from [illegible] death. I have since recommended these pills to many of my friends, and the verdict is always in their favor. I shall always bless the day I was induced to take them."

Such is the history of one of the most remarkable cases of modern times. Can any one say, in the face of such testimony, that Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are not entitled to the candid consideration of any suffering man, woman or child? Is not the case in truth a marvel of modern medicine?

To make the [illegible] publish across the face of the [illegible] from the Canadian Mutual Life Assurance Co. [illegible] almost [illegible] history. It is unnecessary to add that the [illegible] after the most careful examination of its condition by their medical experts. They must have regarded him as forever incurable.

Mr. Petch's address is as follows, Reuben Petch, Griersville, Ont., Canada.



ALABAMA LADIES
DON'T LIE
Mrs. W. A. Garrett

Oak Lowery, Ala., writes: Have used Dr. M. A. Simmons Liver Medicine in my family for 10 years, with good results. I think it is stronger than "Zeilin's" or "Black Draught."

Cramps

Are caused by an irritation of the nerves. They are local symptoms, frequently the result of uterine disease. There are pinching, gnawing and contractive pains in the region of the stomach extending to the back and chest. They are often the symptom and effect of indigestion. Dr. M. A. Simmons Liver Medicine should be used to eliminate the digestive organs and Dr. Simmons Aqua-Vine Wine to give immediate relief and permanent cure.

After the old proprietors of the article now called "Black Draught" were by the United States Court enjoined from using the words constituting our trade name—does not equity require that they stand on their own trade name and merits (if any) their article, and not seek to appropriate the trade for our article called for and known as Dr. Simmons Liver Medicine, by publishing the picture of another Dr. Simmons on their wrapper and falsely advertising that their article "Black Draught" was established in 1846, that being the year in which our article was established, while no one ever heard of "Black Draught" till after 1870. Why do they advertise that falsehood and associate their article with ours (having the picture of Dr. M. A. Simmons on it) by their publication of the picture of another Dr. Simmons, if not done to unfairly appropriate our trade? Is not the motive apparent?

Prof. T. B. Riley

San Antonio, Tex., says: My wife has used Dr. M. A. Simmons Liver Medicine many years for Sick Headache and never fails to try a package when she expects to need it. I cannot say enough in its praise. It has been a necessary medicine in my house.

Caution. Don't be fooled into taking cheap worthless stuff. If the merchant tells you [illegible] not the same as M. A. S. L. M., you may know that he is trying to sell you cheap stuff to make a big profit by palming off on you a wholly different article.

A $2,000 Word!

This paper announces, in connection with The Atlanta Weekly Constitution, a new offer in which everyone may have a chance to supply the missing word in this sentence:

"AT FIRST IT WAS CONSIDERED BY THE '_____' AS A GOOD OMEN."

The sentence is taken from a well-known publication. The word is a familiar one, and it may readily suggest itself.

GIVE YOU A CHANCE AT THE MISSING WORD FUND

At the end of period covered by this contest The Constitution will pay out to the successful party or parties the full prize amount that has accrued in the contest. The plan is simple and these contests have become so popular and have been conducted with such absolute fairness to all that they have been widely copied after, but none have become equal to The Constitution's great original series.

IN ONE YEAR THE CONSTITUTION HAS PAID OUT NEARLY $6,000 IN CASH

in these missing word contests. It sets aside 10 per cent of the subscription fund received from subscribers guessing at the missing word, and this fund is given to the successful guesser or guessers in the contest. The fund is distributed with absolute fairness, and the fact that The Weekly Constitution has MORE THAN 150,000 subscribers and that it puts aside 10 per cent from all guessers' subscriptions for this distribution fund shows that the amount to be divided at each interval is large enough to be worth striving for. It is not a catch-penny or a deceit ful proposition, but the plan is open and simple and IS ADMITTED to the mails by the Post Office Department as a meritorious contest.

☞ The book from which the sentence is taken is deposited in a safety vault under seal and will be opened at the close of the contest before a competent committee, which makes the award after an examination of the subscription books.

In one of these contests there was only one successful guesser who received more than $1,000, and in addition to this in one year $5,000 has been distributed among successful guessers.

Remember that, whether the missing word is supplied or not, it costs nothing to guess, and even though not successful, the guesser gets

THE GREATEST OF ALL WEEKLY NEWSPAPERS FOR ONE YEAR

Keep that in view and send your guess with your clubbing subscription for your home paper and The Weekly Constitution.

Should you already be a subscriber to your home paper, remit $1 to this paper for The Weekly Constitution for one year, and it will be forwarded to The Constitution with your guess.

The Constitution guarantees that the amount of the award will not be less than $500 in cash, and it may be as much as $2,000.

THE WEEKLY CONSTITUTION IS THE GREATEST WEEKLY NEWSPAPER IN THE WORLD. It is a TWELVE PAGE, SEVEN COLUMNS TO THE PAGE NEWSPAPER, containing EIGHTY-FOUR COLUMNS every week. It has no equal as a Weekly Newspaper in America, its news reports cover the world, and its correspondents and agents are to be found in almost every hailwick of the Southern and Western States.

IS A MAGAZINE of high literary merit—this is unfortunately not found in any one magazine in the country.

IS AN EDUCATOR in the schoolhouse in point of value—a year's subscription to The Constitution is a liberal education.

ITS SPECIAL FEATURES are conducted especially for every farm home in America.

ITS FARM AND FARMERS' DEPARTMENT, "Aunt Minnie's Department and Its Children's Department," are under able direction and are a feature to those to whom these departments appeal. The Constitution is Democratic in Politics, and it is a hearty advocate of the principles enunciated in the National Platform of the Party.

THE FOLLOWING ARE THE CONDITIONS OF THE CONTEST

The Per Cent of the Guesser's Subscription Fund Which Goes to the Fund to be Divided Among the Successful Guessers.

THE CONSTITUTION PUTS 10 PER CENT of the amount it receives for subscriptions from parties sending the Missing Word Contribution fund or entitling them to guess at the Missing Word. Every one entitled gets the right word, he or she will be given the entire fund. If more than one supplies the missing word, the same will be proportionately divided among the successful guessers.

THE CONDITION PRECEDENT FOR SENDING A GUESS at the Missing Word is that each and every guess must be accompanied by a year's subscription to The Weekly Constitution. If sent through the paper publishing this advertisement in accordance with our club rates, the guess at the missing word will be forwarded. The amount received is the subscription. Should one person send more than one answer, he or she will be entitled to a certain number of the fund for each correct answer. There will be no capital prize—everyone will get a first prize. Persons may guess as many times as they send subscriptions.

IN MAKING YOUR ANSWER be sure and write the sentence out in full—just say the Missing Word for the sake of convenience, and state it as

THE AMERICAN MONTHLY REVIEW OF REVIEWS

It is impossible to promise particular features that will appear in "AMERICAN MONTHLY" during the coming year, for it is, as Bookman says, "a great monthly newspaper." As such, it prints its readers an illustrated account of the notable things which make the history of the month, of the political, economic, and literary happenings which are of value to intelligent men and women. The Editor's "Progress of the World" tells succinctly an illustrated story of the month. The "Leading Articles" give the best thought and information of the current magazines in five countries; the contributed articles furnish the character sketches of the man of the month, and give timely discussions by authorities on any question of immediate serious import.

"We know of no review published in this country or in Europe which combines so successfully as the AMERICAN MONTHLY the alertness, promptness, and energy of journalism with the sober judgment, carefully weighed opinion, exact knowledge, and well-chosen English of the purely literary periodical."—The Outlook.

The result of this comprehensive effort to edit in one monthly volume the information needed by intelligent people of "live" instincts is best gauged by the opinions which the readers of the AMERICAN MONTHLY have seen fit to express. These are thinking business men, clergymen, editors, lawyers, professors, engineers, the wide-awake women of America. They write that the AMERICAN MONTHLY "is indispensable"; "is simply invaluable"; "is a generous library in itself"; "a historical cyclopedia of the world"; "the best means of aid for a busy man"; "the best periodical of the kind we have ever had"; "a triumph of editorial genius"; "the world under a field-glass," etc., etc.

The Republican party will gladly leave the Populists in possession of all the principles, so long as the Republicans are permitted to hold all the offices, because political principles are of no service to the public until they are enforced, through the legislative, executive and judicial departments of the government. The Silver Republicans will be asked to listen to the stern song of international bimetallists, and warned against the contaminating influence of both Democrats and Populists. As an ounce of prevention is said to be worth a pound of cure, so a dollar spent in separating the reform forces will be more useful than sixteen dollars spent in an attempt to overcome their united strength.

In great crises the patriotism of the American people always rises sufficient for any emergency. An emergency is now upon us; it will require all the intelligence and patriotism of the people to rescue the government from the hands of a party which has become the defender and abettor of every form of political vice. In such a crisis there is no time to discuss the ultimate effect of co-operation upon any particular party. We may rest assured that the people will bestow honor where honor is due, and that party which shows the greatest devotion to the welfare of the people will, in the end, receive due credit for every laudable endeavor.

Fourth District Republican Convention.

The Republicans of the Fourth Alabama district met at Calera Tuesday. Two separate conventions were held by the Aldrich and Wilson wings of the party. Both conventions nominated Aldrich for re-election to congress. The two wings harmonized and chose a new executive committee. They reaffirmed the St. Louis platform, endorsed McKinley and declared for Cuban independence.

PUBLISH MY LETTER

So That Women May Know Where to Find Relief.

Such is the request of Mrs. L. M. Haynes, Springfield, Mo. (General delivery). A part of Mrs. Haynes' letter reads as follows: "I wrote to you in May, 1897; I was about to give it up, for I had the best four doctors in the city and they could not cure me. My disease was female weakness. I had been troubled with it for five years. Four and a half bottles of Pe-ru-na cured me. I hope all suffering women will take Pe-ru-na. I know it will cure others also. I cannot praise Pe-ru-na enough."

Bear in mind that female weakness is pelvic catarrh, to which women are peculiarly liable, and from which few are entirely exempt. Pe-ru-na cures catarrh wherever located. "Health and Beauty," a book devoted to the phase of catarrh peculiar to women, will be sent free to any woman by The Pe-ru-na Drug Manufacturing Company, Columbus, Ohio.

The Surprise of All.

Mr. James Jones, of the drug firm of Jones and Son, Cawden, Ill., in speaking of Dr. King's New Discovery, says that last winter his wife was attacked with La Grippe, and her case grew so serious that physicians at Cowden and Pana could do nothing for her. It seemed to develop into Hasty Consumption. Having Dr. King's New Discovery in store, and selling lots of it, he took a bottle home, and to the surprise of all she began to get better from first dose, and half dozen dollar bottles cured her sound and well. Dr. Kings New Discovery for Consumption, Coughs and Colds is guaranteed to do this good work. Try it. Free trial bottle at J. S. Johnsons Drug Store.

A $2,000 Word!

This paper announces, in connection with The Atlanta Weekly Constitution, a new offer in which everyone may have a chance to supply the missing word in this sentence:

"AT FIRST IT WAS CONSIDERED BY THE '_______' AS A GOOD OMEN."

The sentence is taken from a well-known publication. The word is a familiar one, and it may readily suggest itself.

Contest Began Jan. 1—Ends March 1, '98

TO ENTER THIS CONTEST YOU MUST SUBSCRIBE FOR

THE ATLANTA CONSTITUTION

THE BANNER,

AT THE EXTREMELY LOW PRICE OF $1.50

In connection with this Clubbing Rate, we will, if you send your guess with the subscription price, forward all for you and thus GIVE YOU A CHANCE AT THE MISSING WORD FUND

At the end of period covered by this contest The Constitution will pay out to the successful party or parties the full prize amount that has accrued in the contest. The plan is simple and these contests have become so popular and have been conducted with such absolute fairness to all that they have been widely copied after, but none have become equal to The Constitution's great original series.

IN ONE YEAR THE CONSTITUTION HAS PAID OUT

NEARLY $6,000 IN CASH

in these missing word contests. It sets aside 10 per cent of the subscription fund received from subscribers guessing at the missing word, and this fund is given to the successful guesser or guessers in the contest. The fund is distributed with absolute fairness, and the fact that The Weekly Constitution has MORE THAN 150,000 subscribers and that it puts aside 10 per cent from all guessers' subscriptions for this distribution fund shows that the amount to be divided at each interval is large enough to be worth striving for. It is not a catch-penny or a deceitful proposition, but the plan is open and simple and IS ADMITTED to the mails by the Post Office Department as a meritorious contest.

The book from which the sentence is taken is deposited in a safety vault under seal, and will be opened at the close of the contest before a competent committee, which makes the award after an examination of the subscription books.

In one of these contests there was only one successful guesser who received more than $1,000, and in addition to this in one year $5,000 has been distributed among successful guessers.

Remember that, whether the missing word is supplied or not, it costs nothing to guess, and even though not successful, the guesser gets

THE GREATEST OF ALL WEEKLY NEWSPAPERS FOR ONE YEAR

Keep that in view and send your guess with your clubbing subscription for your home paper and The Weekly Constitution.

Should you already be a subscriber to your home paper, remit $1 to this paper for The Weekly Constitution for one year, and it will be forwarded to The Constitution with your guess.

The Constitution guarantees that the amount of the award will not be less than $500 in cash and it may be as much as $2,000.

THE WEEKLY CONSTITUTION IS THE GREATEST WEEKLY NEWSPAPER IN THE WORLD. It is a TWELVE PAGE, SEVEN COLUMNS TO THE PAGE NEWSPAPER, containing EIGHTY FOUR COLUMNS every week. It has no equal as a Weekly Newspaper in America, its news reports cover the world, and its correspondents and agents are to be found in almost every bailiwick of the Southern and Western States.

THE FOLLOWING ARE THE CONDITIONS OF THE CONTEST

Ten Per Cent of the Guessers' Subscriptions goes to the Fund [illegible] Subscription Fund amounts to $ [illegible] the successful guessers [illegible]

THE CONSTITUTION PUTS 10 PER CENT of the amount it receives for subscriptions from parties sending for the Missing Word Contest into a fund, for distribution among those who guess correctly the missing word. If only one contestant gets the right word, he or she will be given the entire fund. If more than one supplies the missing word, the same will be proportionately divided among the successful guessers.

THE CONDITION PRECEDENT FOR SENDING A GUESS at the Missing Word is that each and every guess must be accompanied by a year's subscription to The Weekly Constitution. If sent through the paper publishing this advertisement in accordance with our clubbing offer, the guess at the missing word will be forwarded. The guess must be sent with the subscription. Should one person send more than one answer, he or she will be entitled to a share of the fund for each correct answer. There will be no capital prize—everyone will get a first prize. Persons may guess as many times as they send subscriptions.

THE AMERICAN MONTHLY REVIEW OF REVIEWS

It is impossible to promise particular features that will appear in "AMERICAN MONTHLY" during the coming year, for it is, as Bookman says, "a great monthly newspaper." As such, it prints its readers an illustrated account of the notable things which make the history of the month, of the political, economic, and literary happenings which are of value to intelligent men and women. The Editor's "Progress of the World" tells succinctly an illustrated story of the month. The "Leading Articles" give the best thought and information of the current magazines in five continents; the contributed articles furnish the character sketches of the man of the month, and give timely discussions by authorities on any question of immediate serious import.

"We know of no review published in this country or in Europe which combines so successfully as the AMERICAN MONTHLY the alertness, readiness, and energy of journalism with the sound judgment, carefully weighed [illegible] knowledge, and well-chosen English of the purely literary periodical."—The Outlook.

The result of this comprehensive effort to edit in one monthly volume the information needed by intelligent people of "live" instincts is best gauged by the opinions which the readers of the AMERICAN MONTHLY have seen fit to express. These are thinking business men, clergymen, editors, lawyers, professors, engineers, the wide-awake women of America. They write that the AMERICAN MONTHLY "is indispensable"; "is simply invaluable"; "is a generous library in itself"; "a historical cyclopedia of the world"; "the best means of aid for a busy man"; "the best periodical of the kind we have ever had"; "a triumph of editorial genius"; "the world under a field-glass," etc., etc.
